CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE SIXTIETH CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 7, 1908.

The first Monday in December being the day prescribed by the Constitution of the United States for the annual meeting of Congress, the second session of the Sixtieth Congress commenced this day.

The Senate assembled in its Chamber at the Capitol.

The Vice-President (Mr. CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS) called the Senate to order at 12 o'clock noon.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. Edward E. Hale, offered the following prayer:

Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.

* * * * * * *

The kingdom of God is within you.

* * * * * * *

Because ye are sons of God, God sent forth the spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying Abba Father.

* * * * * * *

I must be about my Father's business.

Father of life, Father of love, Thy servants in this Congress meet again to do our Father's will, to enter into this service of Thine, which is perfect freedom. And we have Thy strength for our weakness; we have Thy light for our darkness; we have Thy wisdom for our direction.

Help Thy servants, Father, in every hour of every day in every day of every month, that this winter may be blessed to this land; that we may see Thy kingdom come, the reign of God establish itself in the world.

We remember before Thee, Thy servants, whom Thou hast called to higher and larger service. They are with Thee as Thou art with them.

Father, may every example of patriotism, of purity, of truth, of justice, of unselfishness be reflected in the lives of Thy servants who are here, that this may be a gathering together of Thine own children in our Father's work, ready to go about our Father's business; that this Nation may lift up what has fallen down; that this Nation may feed the hungry and the thirsty; that this Nation may make the Light of this world more clear and more true for those who come after us.

Here is our prayer. And for this Congress, Father, that Thou wilt bless us as Thou hast blessed our fathers. We ask it in Christ Jesus.

Our Father Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is done in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

SENATOR FROM VERMONT.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Mr. President, I present the credentials of Hon. CARROLL S. PAGE, who has been chosen by the legislature of Vermont a Senator of the United States to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Redfield Proctor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The credentials will be read by the Secretary.

The credentials of CARROLL S. PAGE, chosen by the legislature of the State of Vermont a Senator from that State for the unexpired portion of the term of the late Senator Redfield Proctor, ending March 3, 1911, were read and ordered to be filed.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Mr. PAGE is present in the Chamber and prepared to take the oath of office.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator-elect from Vermont will present himself at the Vice-President's desk and take the oath prescribed by law.

Mr. PAGE was escorted to the Vice-President's desk by Mr. DILLINGHAM, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him, he took his seat in the Senate.

CALLING OF THE ROLL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll of the Senate.

The Secretary called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aldrich	Davis	Hopkins	Penrose
Ankeny	Depew	Johnston	Perkins
Bacon	Dick	Kean	Piles
Bailey	Dillingham	Knox	Platt
Bankhead	Dixon	La Follette	Rayner
Borah	Dolliver	Lodge	Richardson
Bourne	du Pont	Long	Scott
Brandegee	Elkins	McCreary	Simmons
Briggs	Flint	McCumber	Smith, Md.
Brown	Foraker	McEnery	Smith, Mich.
Burkett	Foster	McLaurin	Smoot
Burnham	Frazier	Martin	Stephenson
Burrows	Frye	Milton	Sutherland
Carter	Fulton	Money	Taliaferro
Clapp	Gallinger	Nelson	Taylor
Clark, Wyo.	Gamble	Newlands	Teller
Clay	Gore	Nixon	Warner
Crane	Guggenheim	Overman	Warren
Culberson	Hale	Owen	Wetmore
Cullom	Hemenway	Page
Curtis	Heyburn	Paynter

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Eighty-two Senators have answered to their names. A quorum of the Senate is present.

SENATORS PRESENT.

By States the Senators present were as follows:

Alabama—John H. Bankhead and Joseph F. Johnston.
Arkansas—Jefferson Davis.
California—Frank P. Flint and George C. Perkins.
Colorado—Simon Guggenheim and Henry M. Teller.
Connecticut—Frank B. Brandegee.
Delaware—Henry A. du Pont and Harry H. Richardson.
Florida—William H. Milton and James P. Taliaferro.
Georgia—Augustus O. Bacon and Alexander S. Clay.
Idaho—William E. Borah and Weldon B. Heyburn.
Illinois—Shelby M. Cullom and Albert J. Hopkins.
Indiana—James A. Hemenway.
Iowa—Jonathan P. Dolliver.
Kansas—Charles Curtis and Chester I. Long.
Kentucky—James B. McCreary and T. H. Paynter.
Louisiana—Murphy J. Foster and Samuel D. McEnery.
Maine—William P. Frye and Eugene Hale.
Maryland—Isidor Rayner and John Walter Smith.
Massachusetts—Winthrop Murray Crane and Henry Cabot Lodge.
Michigan—Julius C. Burrows and William Alden Smith.
Minnesota—Moses E. Clapp and Knute Nelson.
Mississippi—Anselm J. McLaurin and H. D. Money.
Missouri—William Warner.

AUTHENTICATED U.S. GOVERNMENT INFORMATION GPO

Montana—Thomas H. Carter and Joseph M. Dixon.
Nebraska—Norris Brown and Elmer J. Burkett.
Nevada—Francis G. Newlands and George S. Nixon.
New Hampshire—Henry E. Burnham and Jacob H. Gallinger.
New Jersey—Frank O. Briggs and John Kean.
New York—Chauncey M. Depew and Thomas C. Platt.
North Carolina—Lee S. Overman and F. M. Simmons.
North Dakota—Porter J. McCumber.
Ohio—Charles Dick and Joseph B. Foraker.
Oklahoma—Thomas P. Gore and Robert L. Owen.
Oregon—Charles W. Fulton and Jonathan Bourne.
Pennsylvania—Philander Chase Knox and Boies Penrose.
Rhode Island—Nelson W. Aldrich and George Peabody Wetmore.
South Dakota—Robert J. Gamble.
Tennessee—James B. Frazier and Robert L. Taylor.
Texas—Joseph W. Bailey and Charles A. Culberson.
Utah—Reed Smoot and George Sutherland.
Vermont—William P. Dillingham and Carroll S. Page.
Virginia—Thomas S. Martin.
Washington—Levi Ankeny and Samuel H. Piles.
West Virginia—Stephen B. Elkins and Nathan B. Scott.
Wisconsin—Robert M. La Follette and Isaac Stephenson.
Wyoming—Clarence D. Clark and Francis E. Warren.

NOTIFICATION TO THE HOUSE.

Mr. HALE submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate is assembled, and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. ALDRICH submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of three Senators be appointed to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

The VICE-PRESIDENT appointed as the committee Mr. ALDRICH, Mr. GALLINGER, and Mr. TELLER.

HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the hour of daily meeting of the Senate be 12 o'clock meridian until otherwise ordered.

DEATH OF SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Mr. DOLLIVER. Mr. President, it is a painful duty to announce to the Senate the death of Senator ALLISON. He died at his home in Dubuque on the 4th day of August.

At a future time, at the convenience of the Senate, I will ask that an hour be set aside for suitable tributes to his memory. I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk, and ask for their adoption.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Iowa submits resolutions which will be read by the Secretary.

The resolutions were read, considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Hon. WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, for more than thirty-five years a Senator from the State of Iowa.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate a copy of these resolutions to the House of Representatives.

Mr. DOLLIVER. Mr. President, as a further tribute of respect to the memory of the late Senator ALLISON, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was unanimously agreed to, and (at 12 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 8, 1908, at 12 o'clock meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, December 7, 1908.

This being the day designated by the Constitution for the annual meeting of Congress, the Members of the House of Representatives assembled in their Hall for the second session of the Sixtieth Congress, and at 12 o'clock m. were called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER.

Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D., Chaplain of the House, offered the following prayer:

Our Father in heaven, source of all that is truest, noblest, best in man, we look up to Thee for inspiration, strength, and guidance. Receiving with unfeigned love and gratitude all that has come down to us out of the past which makes for the larger life and higher civilization, yet we realize that our work is not done; hence we most fervently pray for a larger, clearer vision that we may go forward with unfaltering footsteps, high ideals, and unswerving integrity to the tasks before us, that we may add somewhat to the sum of human happiness and thus fulfill the law of Christ.

Be Thou a living presence, we beseech Thee, moving in the minds and hearts of all our people, that good citizenship may more and more obtain. Safeguard every home throughout our land, fill them each with love and affection, that peace and righteousness may dwell therein.

Inspire these Thy servants, the representatives of the people, that they may hold fast to the traditions of our fathers and leave behind them a record worthy of emulation.

Strengthen, support, and guide the Speaker of this House in his arduous duties, that with justice and equity he may guide to the highest possible results.

Protect the President of these United States from violence and give to him and his advisers light from on high, that the ship of state may be guided with unerring precision through all the storms that may arise to a safe and peaceful harbor.

Quicken the minds of our judiciary, that their judgments may "be true and righteous altogether," that thus working together with Thee as a people we may hasten the coming of Thy kingdom in all the earth. In the spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

The SPEAKER directed the Clerk to call the roll by States to ascertain the presence of a quorum, when the following-named Members responded:

ALABAMA.

George W. Taylor.
Henry D. Clayton.
W. B. Craig.
J. Thomas Heflin.
Richmond P. Hobson.
John L. Burnett.
William Richardson.
Oscar W. Underwood.

ARKANSAS.

Robert Bruce Macon.
Stephen Brundidge, jr.
John C. Floyd.
Ben Cravens.
Charles C. Reid.
Joseph T. Robinson.
Robert M. Wallace.

CALIFORNIA.

W. F. Englebright.
Duncan E. McKinlay.
Joseph R. Knowland.
Julius Kahn.
Everis A. Hayes.
James C. Needham.
James McLachlan.
Sylvester C. Smith.

COLORADO.

George W. Cook.
Robert W. Bonynge.
Warren A. Haggott.

CONNECTICUT.

Nehemiah D. Sperry.
Edwin W. Higgins.
Ebenezer J. Hill.

DELAWARE.

Hiram R. Burton.

FLORIDA.

Stephen M. Sparkman.
Frank Clark.

GEORGIA.

James M. Griggs.
William C. Adamson.
Leonidas F. Livingston.
Charles L. Bartlett.
Gordon Lee.
Thomas M. Bell.
Thomas W. Hardwick.
William G. Brantley.

IDAHO.

Burton L. French.

ILLINOIS.

Martin B. Madden.
James R. Mann.
William W. Wilson.
James T. McDermott.
Adolph J. Sabath.
Philip Knopf.
Charles McGavin.
Henry S. Boutell.
George Edmund Foss.
Howard M. Snapp.
Charles E. Fuller.
Frank O. Lowden.
James McKinney.
George W. Prince.
Joseph V. Graff.
John A. Sterling.
Joseph G. Cannon.
William B. McKinley.
Henry T. Rainey.
Ben F. Caldwell.
William A. Rodenberg.
Martin D. Foster.
Pleasant T. Chapman.
Napoleon B. Thistlewood.

INDIANA.

John H. Foster.
John C. Chaney.
William E. Cox.
Lincoln Dixon.
Elias S. Holliday.
Jesse Overstreet.
John A. M. Adair.
Charles B. Landis.
Edgar D. Crumpacker.
George W. Rauch.
Clarence C. Gilhams.

IOWA.

Charles A. Kennedy.
Albert F. Dawson.
Benjamin P. Birdsall.
Gilbert N. Haugen.
Daniel W. Hamilton.
John A. T. Hull.
William P. Hepburn.
Walter I. Smith.
James P. Conner.
Elbert H. Hubbard.

KANSAS.

Charles F. Scott.
Philip P. Campbell.
James M. Miller.
William A. Calderhead.
William A. Reeder.
E. H. Madison.
Victor Murdock.

Ollie M. James.
Augustus O. Stanley.
Addison D. James.
Ben Johnson.
Swagar Sherley.

Robert F. Broussard.
John T. Watkins.
Joseph E. Ransdell.

Amos L. Allen.

Joshua F. C. Talbott.
John Gill, jr.

George P. Lawrence.
Frederick H. Gillett.
Charles G. Washburn.
Charles Q. Tirrell.
Butler Ames.
Augustus P. Gardner.
Ernest W. Roberts.

Edwin Denby.
Charles E. Townsend.
Washington Gardner.
Edward L. Hamilton.
Samuel W. Smith.
Henry McMorran.

James A. Tawney.
W. S. Hammond.
Charles R. Davis.
Frederick C. Stevens.
Frank M. Nye.

Ezekiel S. Candler, jr.
Benjamin G. Humphreys.
Wilson S. Hill.

James T. Lloyd.
William W. Rucker.
Joshua W. Alexander.
Charles F. Booher.
Edgar C. Ellis.
David A. De Armond.

Ernest M. Pollard.
Gilbert M. Hitchcock.
J. F. Boyd.

Cyrus A. Sulloway.

Henry C. Loudenslager.
John J. Gardner.
Benjamin F. Howell.
Ira W. Wood.
Charles N. Fowler.

William W. Cocks.
George H. Lindsay.
Charles B. Law.
George E. Waldo.
William M. Calder.
John J. Fitzgerald.
Daniel J. Riordan.
Henry M. Goldfogle.
William Sulzer.
Charles V. Fornes.
William Bourke Cockran.
Herbert Parsons.
William Willett, jr.
J. Van Vechten Olcott.
William S. Bennet.
Joseph A. Goulden.
Thomas W. Bradley.

Claude Kitchin.
Charles R. Thomas.
Edward W. Pou.
William W. Kitchin.
John H. Small.

Thomas F. Marshall.

Nicholas Longworth.
Herman P. Goebel.
J. Eugene Harding.
William E. Tou Velle.
Timothy T. Ansberry.
Matt R. Denver.
J. Warren Keifer.
Ralph D. Cole.
Isaac R. Sherwood.
Albert Douglas.

KENTUCKY.

W. P. Kimball.
Joseph B. Bennett.
John W. Langley.
Don C. Edwards.

LOUISIANA.

George K. Favrot.
Arsène P. Pujo.

MAINE.

Edwin C. Burleigh.

MARYLAND.

Sydney E. Mudd.
George A. Pearre.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Samuel W. McCall.
John A. Keliher.
Joseph F. O'Connell.
Andrew J. Peters.
John W. Weeks.
William S. Greene.
William C. Lovering.

MICHIGAN.

Joseph W. Fordney.
James C. McLaughlin.
George A. Loud.
Archibald B. Darragh.
H. Olin Young.

MINNESOTA.

Charles A. Lindbergh.
Andrew J. Volstead.
J. Adam Bede.
Halvor Steenerson.

MISSISSIPPI.

Eaton J. Bowers.
John Sharp Williams.

MISSOURI.

Courtney W. Hamlin.
Dorsey W. Shackleford.
Champ Clark.
Richard Bartholdt.
Henry S. Caulfield.
Joseph J. Russell.

MONTANA.

Charles N. Pray.

NEBRASKA.

Edmund H. Hinshaw.
George W. Norris.
Moses P. Kinkaid.

NEVADA.

George A. Bartlett.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Frank D. Currier.

NEW JERSEY.

William Hughes.
Richard Wayne Parker.
Le. Gage Pratt.
Eugene W. Leake.
James A. Hamill.

NEW YORK.

Samuel McMillan.
William H. Draper.
George N. Southwick.
George W. Fairchild.
Cyrus Durey.
George R. Malby.
James S. Sherman.
Charles L. Knapp.
Michael E. Driscoll.
John W. Dwight.
Sereno E. Payne.
James Breck Perkins.
J. Sloat Fassett.
Peter A. Porter.
William H. Ryan.
De Alva S. Alexander.
Edward B. Vreeland.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Hannibal L. Godwin.
Robert N. Page.
Richard N. Hackett.
Edwin Y. Webb.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Asle J. Gronna.

OHIO.

Edward L. Taylor, jr.
Grant E. Mouser.
Jay F. Laning.
Beman G. Dawes.
William A. Ashbrook.
James Kennedy.
W. Aubrey Thomas.
Paul Howland.
Theodore E. Burton.

Bird S. McGuire.
Elmer L. Fulton.

OKLAHOMA.

Charles D. Carter.
Scott Ferris.

OREGON.

Willis C. Hawley.

W. R. Ellis.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Henry H. Bingham.
Joel Cook.
J. Hampton Moore.
Reuben O. Moon.
W. W. Foulkrod.
George D. McCreary.
Thomas S. Butler.
Irving P. Wanger.
H. Burd Cassel.
T. D. Nicholls.
John T. Lenahan.
Charles N. Brumm.
John H. Rothermel.
George W. Kipp.
William B. Wilson.
John G. McHenry.

Benjamin K. Focht.
Marlin E. Olmsted.
John M. Reynolds.
Daniel F. Lafean.
Charles F. Barclay.
George F. Huff.
Allen F. Cooper.
Ernest F. Acheson.
Arthur L. Bates.
J. Davis Brodhead.
Joseph G. Beale.
Nelson P. Wheeler.
William H. Graham.
John Dalzell.
James Francis Burke.
Andrew J. Barchfeld.

RHODE ISLAND.

Daniel L. D. Granger.

Adin B. Capron.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

James O. Patterson.
Joseph T. Johnson.

J. Edwin Ellerbe.
Asbury F. Lever.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Philo Hall.

TENNESSEE.

Walter P. Brownlow.
Nathan W. Hale.
John A. Moon.
Cordell Hull.
William C. Houston.

John Wesley Gaines.
Lemuel P. Padgett.
Thetus W. Sims.
Finis J. Garrett.
George W. Gordon.

TEXAS.

Morris Sheppard.
Gordon Russell.
Choice B. Randell.
Jack Beall.
Rufus Hardy.
John M. Moore.
George F. Burgess.

Albert S. Burleson.
Robert L. Henry.
Oscar W. Gillespie.
John H. Stephens.
James L. Slayden.
John N. Garner.
William R. Smith.

UTAH.

Joseph Howell.

VERMONT.

David J. Foster.

Kittredge Haskins.

VIRGINIA.

William A. Jones.
Harry L. Maynard.
John Lamb.
Francis R. Lassiter.
E. W. Saunders.

James Hay.
Charles C. Carlin.
C. Bascom Slemp.
Henry D. Flood.

WASHINGTON.

Wesley L. Jones.
Francis W. Cushman.

William E. Humphrey.

WEST VIRGINIA.

William P. Hubbard.
George C. Sturgiss.
Joseph Holt Gaines.

Harry C. Woodyard.
James A. Hughes.

WISCONSIN.

Henry A. Cooper.
John M. Nelson.
William H. Stafford.
John J. Esch.

James H. Davidson.
Gustav Küstermann.
John J. Jenkins.

WYOMING.

Frank W. Mondell.

The SPEAKER. Three hundred and forty-four Members have responded to the call—a quorum.

CREDENTIALS OF NEWLY ELECTED MEMBERS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the credentials of the following newly elected Members, which were severally read:

Mr. O. C. WILEY, Second Congressional District of the State of Alabama, to succeed the late Mr. A. A. Wiley.

Mr. HENRY A. BARNHART, Thirteenth Congressional District of the State of Indiana, to succeed the late Mr. Abraham L. Brick.

Mr. ALBERT ESTOPINAL, First Congressional District of Louisiana, to succeed the late Mr. Adolph Meyer.

Mr. JOHN P. SWASEY, Second Congressional District of the State of Maine, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Charles E. Littlefield.

Mr. FRANK E. GUERNSEY, Fourth Congressional District of the State of Maine, to succeed the late Mr. Llewellyn Powers.

Mr. EBEN W. MARTIN, State of South Dakota, at large, to succeed the late Mr. William H. Parker.

THIRD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, NEW YORK.

Mr. CALDER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Mr. OTTO G. FOELKER be permitted to take the oath, having been elected for the Third Congressional District, the certificate not having yet arrived.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from New York why that gentleman does not have a certificate.

Mr. CALDER. The state board of canvassers of our State does not meet until the 10th of December.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. How much of a majority has this gentleman?

Mr. CALDER. Three thousand and one hundred.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I understand, Mr. Speaker, that there is no doubt of this gentleman's election by a good round majority, and therefore I offer no objection to his being sworn in.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to administering the oath to the gentleman from New York? (After a pause.) The Chair hears none. The gentlemen whose credentials have been read, and any who have not previously been sworn in, will present themselves.

The following Members then presented themselves at the bar of the House and took the oath of office:

Mr. O. C. WILEY, Mr. HENRY A. BARNHART, Mr. ALBERT ESTOPINAL, Mr. JOHN P. SWASEY, Mr. FRANK E. GUERNSEY, Mr. OTTO G. FOELKER, Mr. H. BURD CASSEL, and Mr. EBEN W. MARTIN.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Crockett, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate is assembled and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

Also:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of three Senators be appointed to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

And that in compliance with the foregoing resolution the Vice-President had appointed as said committee Mr. ALDRICH, Mr. GALLINGER, and Mr. TELLER.

Also:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Hon. WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, for more than thirty-five years a Senator from the State of Iowa.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate a copy of these resolutions to the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased Senator, the Senate do now adjourn.

COMMITTEE TO NOTIFY THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution and ask for its immediate consideration:

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three Members be appointed on the part of the House, to join the committee appointed by the Senate, to wait upon the President and inform him that a quorum of the two Houses is assembled and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may have to make.

The question was taken, and the resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. PAYNE, Mr. MCKINLEY of Illinois, and Mr. CLARK of Missouri as the committee on the part of the House under the resolution just adopted.

NOTIFICATION OF THE SENATE.

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution:

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House inform the Senate that a quorum of the House of Representatives has appeared, and that the House is ready to proceed to business.

The resolution was agreed to.

DAILY HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. DALZELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That until otherwise ordered the hour of daily meeting of the House of Representatives shall be 12 o'clock meridian.

The resolution was agreed to.

WITNESSES BEFORE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the following resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means, in their investigation and inquiry for the purpose of preparing a bill to revise the present tariff laws, shall have power to subpœna and examine witnesses under oath, and to send for records, papers, and all other evidence that may be necessary to make the investigation and inquiry full and complete, and that the Speaker shall have authority to sign and the Clerk to attest subpœnas during the recess of Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

ADDITIONAL EMPLOYEES, HOUSE POST-OFFICE.

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from West Virginia asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the following resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House compensation at the rate of $100 per month during the present session to three additional messengers, to be employed under the direction of the Postmaster of the House in delivering mail to officers and employees of the House and to committee rooms in the House wing of the Capitol and for duty in the branch post-office therein.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I should like to inquire of the gentleman from West Virginia if this resolution is authorized by the committee?

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia. No; this is not authorized by the committee. It was suggested by the Committee on the Distribution of Rooms that this was necessary, on account of the removal of the post-office to the new Office Building.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Who is responsible for the post-office being moved over to the other building, anyhow?

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia. The Committee on Distribution of Rooms.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will permit me, I can answer that. The House of Representatives is responsible.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Did they move it?

Mr. TAWNEY. At the last session of Congress; and now unless this service is authorized, or this resolution is adopted, there will be no means whereby the Members of the House who do not occupy rooms in the House Office Building can have their mail delivered as it is delivered to other Members of the House who have rooms over in the Office Building. That is the necessity of this resolution.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Can they not get along without these men?

Mr. TAWNEY. There is no means whereby the mail can be delivered to Members of the House or to committees in this building. They have to send over and have their mail brought over here. Members who do not have rooms in the House Office Building, and Members who are chairmen of committees that remain in the House wing of the Capitol, will have to send over there or go over there themselves in order to get their mail, for the reason that there is no means of delivering it, no means whereby that service can be given to those Members of the House.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will the gentleman state what happened to those messengers who were authorized at the last session to deliver mail in the Office Building while the post-office over here?

Mr. TAWNEY. They are delivering mail in the Office Building now.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Why can they not continue to deliver it?

Mr. TAWNEY. It is intended that they shall continue to deliver mail in the Office Building, but there are no men for the service required on the part of the House itself and Members of the House who have no rooms over in the Office Building.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will it require three men to deliver the committee mail from the House Office Building?

Mr. TAWNEY. It will.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. Are not all the offices that are occupied by Members in the Capitol now occupied by Members who are chairmen of committees?

Mr. TAWNEY. I did not catch the first part of the gentleman's question.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I will cut this matter short by objecting and let it go to the Committee on Accounts.

Mr. PAYNE. I would suggest to the gentleman from West Virginia that this is suspension day.

The SPEAKER. It is suspension day.

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia. This is for the accommodation of Members of the House, but I will let it go over and go to the Committee on Accounts.

The SPEAKER. Objection is heard.

BILLS STRICKEN FROM THE CALENDAR.

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House a list of bills, some on the Union Calendar, some on the House Calendar, and some on the Private Calendar, which bills have been acted upon by the House and passed in what is known as the "omnibus bill." Without objection, the bills will be stricken from the Calendar.

The Clerk read as follows:

On the Union Calendar: H. R. 10446, H. R. 1, H. R. 14783, H. R. 14395, S. R. 28, H. R. 19418, H. R. 18519, H. R. 13663, S. R. 9, H. R. 20430, H. R. 19087, H. R. 20348, H. R. 13844, H. R. 213, H. J. Res. 51, H. R. 21048, H. R. 21091, and H J. Res. 150.

On the House Calendar: H. R. 3932, H. R. 18350, H. R. 18351, H. R. 18450, H. R. 10502, H. J. Res. 117, S. 5133, H. R. 19412, H. R. 19964, H. R. 20115, H. R. 20384, H. R. 20383, and H. R. 16063.

On the Private Calendar: H. R. 20062, H. R. 20244, S. 6071, H. R. 20432, H. R. 20482, H. R. 20824, H. R. 20836, H. R. 21127, S. 5938, S. 6192, H. R. 21135, H. R. 21406, H. R. 21684, S. 6715, S. 6846, H. R. 4377, S. 6569, S. 6987, S. 6988, S. 5412, S. 7123, and S. 4341.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the Committee of the Whole will be discharged from the further consideration of the bills on the Union Calendar and the bills on the Private Calendar, and those bills, together with the bills on the House Calendar, the numbers of which have been read, will be laid upon the table. The Chair hears no objection.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. GRANGER, until further notice, on account of sickness.

To Mr. EDWARDS of Georgia (at the request of Mr. CLARK of Missouri), indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. MUDD, for thirty days, on account of sickness.

To Mr. LEGARE, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. CLARK of Florida, indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. LAMAR of Florida, indefinitely, on account of important business.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE DUNWELL.

Mr. FOELKER. Mr. Speaker, it is with profound sorrow that I announce to the Members of this House the death of the Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, whose seat I have the honor to occupy now.

At a later day I shall ask the House to set apart a day when Members may be afforded an opportunity to pay tribute to his life, character, and public service.

I now offer the following resolution, and ask that the Clerk read it.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, late a Representative from the State of New York.

The resolution was agreed to.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE POWERS.

Mr. GUERNSEY. Mr. Speaker, it is with regret that I rise to announce the death of a former Member of this House, Hon. LLEWELLYN POWERS, and offer the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk. At a later day I shall ask that the House set apart a time for its consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. LLEWELLYN POWERS, a Representative from the State of Maine.

The resolution was agreed to.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE PARKER.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Hon. WILLIAM H. PARKER, a Representative from the State of South Dakota, who died at his home in Deadwood, S. Dak., on June 25, 1908.

The resolution was agreed to.

DEATH OF SENATOR ALLISON.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, a message from the Senate has given official announcement of the death of WILLIAM B. ALLISON, late a Senator from the State of Iowa. In behalf of the delegation from that State, I offer the following resolution and ask its present consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow and sincere regret of the death of Hon. WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, who served with distinction for eight years as a member of this body and continuously for more than thirty-five years as a Senator from the State of Iowa.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Senate.

The resolution was agreed to.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE WILEY.

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, it becomes my melancholy duty to announce to the House of Representatives the death of our former colleague, Hon. ARIOSTO A. WILEY, a Member of the House of Representatives from the Second Congressional District of Alabama.

On a later day I shall ask the House to set aside a day in which suitable eulogies on the work, life, and character of our friend and colleague may be paid.

I now desire to offer the following resolutions, which I send to the Clerk's desk, and move their adoption.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. ARIOSTO A. WILEY, a Member of the House of Representatives from the Second Congressional District of Alabama; that the Clerk communicate these resolutions to the Senate, and send a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect to the memory of our deceased colleagues, Hon. WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, Hon. WILLIAM H. PARKER, Hon. LLEWELLYN POWERS, Hon. ARIOSTO A. WILEY, and Hon. CHARLES TAPPAN DUNWELL, the House do now adjourn.

The resolution was agreed to.

Accordingly, at 1 o'clock and 2 minutes p. m., the House adjourned until to-morrow at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, transmitting a detailed statement of expenditures for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, for certain specified purposes—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, transmitting an account of money drawn and disbursed by him—to the Committee on Accounts and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, transmitting a list of property in his charge on November 30, 1908—to the Committee on Accounts and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, transmitting a report of travel by the officers of the Institution from Washington to points outside the District of Columbia during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, transmitting a copy of a letter from the attorney for the middle district of Alabama in reference to a judgment against G. W. Black—to the Committee on the Judiciary and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, transmitting a report as to the improvement of the water system at Rapid City Indian School—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, transmitting a report as to disposition of certain nonreservation Indian schools—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting reports as to the finances, expenditures, and estimated revenues of the department—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the chief clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a statement of all judgments rendered by the court for the year ended December 5, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a report as to travel of officers and employees on official business from Washington to points outside the District of Columbia during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a report of the public property in the Post-Office Department—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the report of the Superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane—to the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Interior, transmitting legislative journals of Porto Rico—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

A letter from the Clerk of the House, transmitting a report as to the employees of the House, expenditures from the contingent fund, stationery accounts, etc.—to the Committee on Accounts and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting their annual report for the year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting an itemized statement of expenditures in his department for contingent expenses for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Doorkeeper of the House, transmitting a list of books, maps, and pamphlets in the folding room—to the Committee on Accounts and ordered to be printed.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of bills of the following titles, which were thereupon referred as follows:

A bill (H. R. 1400) granting a pension to Sydney B. Strunk—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 1527) granting a pension to Ernest W. Hilliard—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 1759) granting a pension to Francis S. Griest—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 2212) granting an increase of pension to Samuel A. Rask—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 6358) granting an increase of pension to William F. Pike—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 10113) granting a pension to Thomas J. Parker—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 11403) granting an increase of pension to Charles Falbisaner—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 12479) granting an increase of pension to Robert Phillips—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 12577) granting an increase of pension to Florence L. M. Mentz—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 13799) granting a pension to John H. Leslie—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 14253) granting an increase of pension to Carl B. Traver—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 15618) granting a pension to David H. Burket—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 17234) granting an increase of pension to Gifford Ramey—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 19351) granting an increase of pension to Daniel A. Brown—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 20412) granting a pension to Charles S. Kinman—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 20641) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Riner—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 20684) granting an increase of pension to Michael J. Maw—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 20738) granting an increase of pension to John M. Williams—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 20742) granting a pension to Ruth E. Dietz—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 21011) ganting a pension to William C. Stanford—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 21360) granting a pension to Juan Deciderio Valdez—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 21543) granting a pension to Leonisco Martin—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 21615) granting an increase of pension to James C. Burwell—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 21773) granting a pension to Alvina McCabe—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ANDREWS: A bill (H. R. 22273) to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and state government, and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 22274) to authorize the St. Paul Bridge and Terminal Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near St. Paul, Minn.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. OLCOTT: A bill (H. R. 22275) for relief of war telegraphers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOBSON: A bill (H. R. 22276) to regulate the strength and promote the efficiency of the personnel of the United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. OLCOTT: A bill (H. R. 22277) to create in the Navy Department a roll to be known as "the Volunteer and Regular Navy and Marine Corps Civil War Service List"—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22278) for the relief of certain surgeons, passed assistant surgeons, and assistant surgeons, United States Navy, retired—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22279) increasing the salaries paid to circuit and district court judges of the United States—to the Committee on Judiciary.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of New York: A bill (H. R. 22280) to regulate the judicial procedure of the courts of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 22281) to increase the efficiency of the Army of the United States—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 22282) to establish and disburse a public-school teachers' retirement fund in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. GOULDEN: A bill (H. R. 22283) to create an executive department of education—to the Committee on Education.

By Mr. HENRY of Texas: A bill (H. R. 22284) to amend the act approved July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against any unlawful restraints and monopolies"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22285) for the erection of a federal building for the United States post-office at Belton, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22286) for the erection of a federal building for the post-office at Marlin, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22287) for improving Brazos River from Old Washington to Waco—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 22288) pensioning the surviving officers and enlisted men of the Texas Volunteers employed in the defense of the frontier of that State against Mexican marauders and Indian depredations from January 1, 1851, to January 1, 1861, and from 1866 to 1876, inclusive, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LAFEAN: A bill (H. R. 22289) to provide for the erection of a public building at Gettysburg, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22290) amending section 2 of the act of April 19, 1908, increasing the pension of widows, minor children, etc., of deceased soldiers and sailors of the late civil war, the war with Mexico, the various Indian wars, etc., and to grant a pension to certain widows of deceased soldiers and sailors of the late civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22291) providing for an experimental rural parcel-post system to be confined entirely to rural-delivery routes in not to exceed four counties in the United States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HAMILL: A bill (H. R. 22292) making an appropriation for the site and building for a post-office and other government offices at Jersey City, N. J.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: A bill (H. R. 22293) to promote the efficiency of the army, to disseminate useful military knowledge among the people of the United States of America, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CASSEL: A bill (H. R. 22294) to provide for the erection of a public building at Columbia, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. KINKAID: A bill (R. R. 22295) to provide additional facilities for the transmission of small sums through the mails—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 22296) relating to foreigners obtaining copyright or patents in the United States—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 22297) for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of imitated or misbranded articles of commerce and regulating the traffic therein, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. YOUNG: A bill (H. R. 22298) to regulate the issue of injunctions from federal courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 22299) appropriating money for the improvement of San Diego Harbor, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. ADAIR: A bill (H. R. 22300) in amendment of section 2 of an act entitled "An act to increase the pension of widows, minor children, etc., of deceased soldiers and sailors of the late civil war, the war with Mexico, the various Indian wars, etc., and to grant a pension to certain widows of the deceased soldiers and sailors of the late civil war"—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: A bill (H. R. 22301) to regulate commerce with foreign nations so as to equalize the footing of American vessels with foreign, to make preference for the use of American ships in our own trade, to extend the postal service by American steamships, and to promote the commercial independence of the United States—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. ROBINSON: A bill (H. R. 22302) appropriating the sum of $250,000 for the construction and repair of dikes and revetment work at Pine Bluff, Ark.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. STANLEY: A bill (H. R. 22303) for the construction of a lock and dam in the Ohio River below the mouth of Green River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. GARRETT: A bill (H. R. 22304) for the purchase of a site and erection of a public building at Humboldt, Tenn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 22305) to pension certain soldiers of the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: A bill (H. R. 22306) to authorize the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad and the Lackawanna Railroad Company of New Jersey to construct and maintain a bridge across the Delaware River—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 22307) to remove the charge of desertion on the rolls against officers and enlisted men of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SIMS: A bill (H. R. 22308) declaring the carrying openly or concealed about the person any pistol, bowie knife, dirk or dirk knife, black-jack, dagger, sword cane, slung shot, brass or other metal knuckle in the District of Columbia a felony—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 22309) authorizing that agents be sent into China and other eastern countries for the purpose of inquiring into and stimulating our trade relations with those countries, removing the boycott, and urging the use of American cotton goods—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22310) for the relief of locators of military bounty land warrants and surveyor-generals' certificates—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22311) for the establishment of a fish-cultural station for the propagation of shad on the Coosa or Alabama River, near Wetumpka, Ala.—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22312) to provide for the issue of emergency currency and to prevent the recurrence of the present money stringency—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22313) to provide a site and erect a public building at Luverne, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22314) to provide a site and erect a public building at Greenville, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22315) to provide a site and erect a public building at Andalusia, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22316) appropriating $30,000 to improve the public building at Montgomery, Ala., so as to meet the necessities of the public business—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22317) to establish fish-hatching and fish-cultural stations in the various States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22318) to add a corps of dental surgeons to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22319) to amend the acts to regulate commerce so as to provide that interstate railroads may grant free or reduced transportation to bona fide members of the Old Time Telegraphers' and Historical Association and the Society of the United States Military Telegraph Corps while attending annual reunions—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22320) to fix the fees of court criers, bailiffs, and witnesses in attendance upon the United States courts in Alabama—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22321) to establish a soldiers' home at or near Daphne, in Baldwin County, Ala.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22322) for the erection of a monument to Jeremiah O'Brien—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22323) authorizing the construction upon the military reservation at Fort Morgan, Ala., of a suitable building for the use and accommodation of the customs service—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22324) to aid in the establishment and temporary support of common schools—to the Committee on Education.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22325) to prevent the exclusion of a newspaper or periodical from the United States mails as second-class matter after having been entered to such privilege, without due process of law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22326) to appropriate $500,000 to deepen the channel and remove obstructions in the Alabama River, in the State of Alabama—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. PUJO: A bill (H. R. 22327) to erect an extension to the post-office and federal court building at Alexandria, La.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 22328) for the erection of a new federal building for court, post-office, and other government purposes at Jefferson, Tex., and for the disposition of the present structure—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22329) for an addition or annex to the federal building at Paris, Tex., said addition or annex to consist of a separate post-office building on the site now owned by the United States—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22330) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Mount Pleasant, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22331) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Cooper, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22332) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Mount Vernon, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22333) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Daingerfield, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22334) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Atlanta, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22335) to provide for the erection of a federal building at Pittsburg, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 22336) to provide for opening a channel at Rogers City, Mich.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 22337) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Perry, in the State of Iowa—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HENRY of Texas: A bill (H. R. 22338) to prohibit dealing in future contracts on agricultural products by forbidding the use of mail and interstate commerce facilities and to prevent sending fictitious prices made on exchanges—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LAFEAN: A bill (H. R. 22339) to construct a Lincoln memorial highway from the White House, Washington, D. C., to the battlefield of Gettysburg, Gettysburg, Pa.—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 22340) relating to injured employees on the Isthmian Canal—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. GUERNSEY: Resolution (H. Res. 441) to pay Frank C. Merritt a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia: Resolution (H. Res. 442) providing for the payment of three additional messengers in the House post-office—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. RAINEY: Resolution (H. Res. 443) providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the purchase of the Panama Canal property—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. CLARK of Florida: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 198) providing for a joint committee to investigate and report concerning a permanent government for the District of Columbia, etc.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 199) proposing an amendment to the Constitution giving to Congress the power to establish uniform laws regulating marriages and divorces throughout the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ALEXANDER of New York: A bill (H. R. 22341) granting a pension to Mabel Hasty and Edwin Hasty—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22342) granting an increase of pension to John Fidinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22343) granting an increase of pension to John Lanyon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22344) granting an increase of pension to Harley Demming—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALLEN: A bill (H. R. 22345) granting an increase of pension to John A. Flint—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22346) granting an increase of pension to Joel M. Sawyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22347) granting an increase of pension to James H. Pike—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22348) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin M. Redlon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: A bill (H. R. 22349) to correct the military record of James Brown, late Company H, United States Infantry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22350) granting a pension to Nettie Metzgar, formerly Nettie Hoe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22351) granting an increase of pension to John Arris, late Company K, Seventy-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry—to the Commitee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22352) granting an increase of pension to John Israel, late Company B, Sixty-second Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22353) granting an increase of pension to George W. Powell, Company H, Sixth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 22354) for the relief of the heirs of Lawrence Smith, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 22355) granting an increase of pension to William Eich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22356) granting an increase of pension to Amos Chipman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22357) granting an increase of pension to William J. Heany—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22358) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo M. Bartholomew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BEALE of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 22359) granting a pension to Jane Barr—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22360) granting a pension to Martha A. Bollman—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22361) granting an increase of pension to John Marshall—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22362) granting an increase of pension to John C. Cribbs—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22363) granting an increase of pension to George D. Hamm—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22364) granting an increase of pension to John Lukecart—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22365) granting an increase of pension to William E. Weckerly—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BOOHER: A bill (H. R. 22366) granting an increase of pension to John Garrett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22367) granting an increase of pension to John T. Walters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22368) to correct the military record of Otis B. Vanfleet—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 22369) granting an increase of pension to Christian G. Walter—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22370) granting an increase of pension to Margaret T. Brower—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22371) granting an increase of pension to Lewis S. Whitaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22372) granting an increase of pension to Harrison C. Pembleton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22373) granting an increase of pension to Louisa Conklin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22374) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22375) granting an increase of pension to Lewis Grant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22376) granting an increase of pension to Henry J. Vredenburgh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22377) granting an increase of pension to Gilbert Theal—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22378) granting an increase of pension to Almira Goetchius—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22379) granting an increase of pension to Nelson S. Bowdish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22380) granting an increase of pension to Jesse F. Camp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22381) granting an increase of pension to Rosina W. Ostrander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22382) granting an increase of pension to John M. Detrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22383) granting an increase of pension to Charles C. Mullen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: A bill (H. R. 22384) granting an increase of pension to Henry A. Rothrock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22385) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Brinker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22386) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hunt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22387) granting an increase of pension to Tilghman Rhoad—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22388) granting an increase of pension to Charles Schortz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22389) granting an increase of pension to Dwight H. Flint—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22390) granting an increase of pension to Charles Somers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22391) granting an increase of pension to Solomon Lilly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22392) granting an increase of pension to Sanford Jacoby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22393) granting an increase of pension to Willoughby D. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22394) granting a pension to George Deufel—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22395) granting a pension to Howard S. Gardner—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22396) granting a pension to Sophia Eichelberger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 22397) granting an increase of pension to James L. Mayers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22398) granting an increase of pension to Joseph M. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22399) granting an increase of pension to George Cantrell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22400) granting an increase of pension to John McArdle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22401) granting an increase of pension to Silas Flournoy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22402) granting an increase of pension to James A. Lemon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22403) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Potter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22404) granting an increase of pension to Joseph R. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22405) granting an increase of pension to Milton W. Jeffries—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22406) granting an increase of pension to P. A. Cobb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22407) granting an increase of pension to William Lee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22408) granting a pension to Charles F. Isbell—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22409) granting a pension to Tide Owens—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22410) granting a pension to R. S. B. Nave—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22411) for the relief of William Gardner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BUTLER: A bill (H. R. 22412) granting a pension to James A. Finney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22413) granting an increase of pension to Franklin Weidler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22414) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22415) granting an increase of pension to John McCausland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 22416) granting a pension to Harriet J. Morris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22417) granting an increase of pension to Margaret A. Fay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22418) granting an increase of pension to Michael J. Daley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 22419) granting an increase of pension to David Sleeth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22420) granting an increase of pension to William F. Langston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22421) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Ingram—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDWELL: A bill (H. R. 22422) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22423) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22424) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22425) granting an increase of pension to William F. Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22426) granting an increase of pension to John Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22427) granting an increase of pension to Christian Ulrici—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22428) granting an increase of pension to John C. Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22429) granting an increase of pension to Benoni Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: A bill (H. R. 22430) granting an increase of pension to Dora E. Atkinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22431) granting an increase of pension to Ellsworth A. Mapes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22432) granting an increase of pension to James Crosswhite—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22433) granting an increase of pension to James M. Nicholas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22434) granting an increase of pension to William R. Wooten—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CANDLER: A bill (H. R. 22435) for the relief of the estate of Enos Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CAPRON: A bill (H. R. 22436) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Henry Jewett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22437) granting an increase of pension to Samuel E. Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22438) granting an increase of pension to Henry S. Sharpe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22439) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Y. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22440) granting an increase of pension to Joseph L. Straight—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22441) granting an increase of pension to Bradford A. Gavitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22442) granting a pension to Caroline M. Marsh—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CASSEL: A bill (H. R. 22443) to provide for the revision of the military record of Horace L. Haldeman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22444) to remove the charge of desertion against Henry Dimler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22445) to correct the military record of George W. Stape—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22446) for the relief of Emaline Johns—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22447) for the relief of George J. Diller—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22448) for the relief of John G. Stauffer & Son—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22449) granting a pension to Mary Gembe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22450) granting a pension to Lizzie S. Engroff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22451) granting a pension to Mary J. Light Lawrence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22452) granting a pension to Edward R. Paschall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22453) granting a pension to Samuel Bard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22454) granting a pension to Robert R. Clendenin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22455) granting a pension to John Zellers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22456) granting a pension to Anna E. Siple—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22457) granting a pension to Thomas Whitson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22458) granting a pension to George Ochs—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22459) granting a pension to David Graeff—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22460) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah F. Kline—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22461) granting an increase of pension to William Thomas Coleman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22462) granting an increase of pension to John E. Metzger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22463) granting an increase of pension to Samupel J. Hogentogler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22464) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Rhoades—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22465) granting an increase of pension to William Filby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22466) granting an increase of pension to John M. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22467) granting an increase of pension to Samuel L. Hartman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22468) granting an increase of pension to George F. Steinheiser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22469) granting an increase of pension to William T. Wiley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22470) granting an increase of pension to John H. Hegener—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22471) granting an increase of pension to George W. Shriner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22472) for the relief of the Columbia National Bank, of Columbia, Pa.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22473) for the relief of parties from whom cigars were seized on account of bearing counterfeit stamps—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 22474) granting a pension to Pernetta J. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22475) granting a pension to Sarah P. Dobbins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22476) granting a pension to William G. Potts—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22477) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Patrick—to the Committee no Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22478) granting an increase of pension to Theodore Pridemore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22479) granting an increase of pension to James N. Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22480) granting a pension to Jesse M. Kimberlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22481) granting an increase of pension to Wilson Watkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22482) granting an increase of pension to David F. Beyers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22483) granting an increase of pension to Caleb J. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22484) granting an increase of pension to Richard Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22485) granting an increase of pension to John W. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22486) granting an increase of pension to William H. Grant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22487) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Hopkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22488) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Stogsdill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22489) granting an increase of pension to John S. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22490) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22491) granting an increase of pension to Elias W. Ecker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22492) granting an increase of pension to William H. Power—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22493) granting an increase of pension to John Keene—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22494) granting an increase of pension to Milton Harrold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22495) granting an increase of pension to J. M. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22496) granting an increase of pension to Elmore F. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22497) granting a pension to Howard Boling—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22498) granting an increase of pension to Samuel S. Weaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COLE: A bill (H. R. 22499) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. L. Meredith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 22500) granting a pension to Charles S. Swain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22501) granting an increase of pension to George W. Lenoir—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22502) granting an increase of pension to Nathan Sternberg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22503) granting an increase of pension to William Gilligan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 22504) granting an increase of pension to Nancy Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22505) granting an increase of pension to John H. Ormsby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRAPER: A bill (H. R. 22506) granting an increase of pension to George Hecock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22507) granting an increase of pension to Ornaldo H. Ramsdell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22508) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth M. Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22509) granting an increase of pension to Antoinette M. Barnhart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22510) granting an increase of pension to Patrick H. Conway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22511) granting an increase of pension to James Knight—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22512) granting an increase of pension to Brooks B. Martis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22513) granting an increase of pension to Francis Weiss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22514) granting an increase of pension to Jacob F. Bradt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22515) granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Carr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DUREY: A bill (H. R. 22516) granting a pension to Charles P. Lounsbury—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 22517) granting a pension to Amanda M. McKenney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22518) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Matteson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22519) granting an increase of pension to Ezer D. Largent—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22520) granting an increase of pension to Eli Fields—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORNES: A bill (H. R. 22521) granting a pension to Anna T. O'Connell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22522) granting an increase of pension to Erastus Barry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22523) granting an increase of pension to David Koch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 22524) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Sanders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22525) granting an increase of pension to William W. Thayer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22526) granting an increase of pension to Wellington Harder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22527) granting an increase of pension to William Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22528) granting an increase of pension to William Agnew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULTON: A bill (H. R. 22529) granting a pension to John R. Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22530) for the relief of Sarah Caroline Russell—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 22531) granting a pension to Matthew F. Gibney—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22532) granting an increase of pension to Edward Upton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22533) granting a pension to John S. Lafleur—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GARRETT: A bill (H. R. 22534) granting an increase of pension to R. H. Naurey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GILLETT: A bill (H. R. 22535) for the relief of Charles A. Caswell—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22536) granting a pension to Sarah A. Cardwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22537) granting a pension to Lilly B. Parkhurst—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22538) granting a pension to Frank J. Kendrew—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22539) granting an increase of pension to Monroe Snow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22540) granting an increase of pension to John Buchanan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22541) granting an increase of pension to Nahan E. Harvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22542) granting an increase of pension to Edwin H. Atwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22543) granting an increase of pension to Denis Healy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22544) granting an increase of pension to Isadore L. Gaboury—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GODWIN: A bill (H. R. 22545) granting an increase of pension to Lee M. Shanefelter—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GOULDEN: A bill (H. R. 22546) for the relief of Peter Gouker—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22547) for the relief of John Sullivan—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22548) granting a pension to Anna M. Tucker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A bill (H. R. 22549) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Ingram—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 22550) granting an increase of pension to Thomas W. Devaney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22551) granting an increase of pension to John Coppock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22552) granting an increase of pension to Robert W. Gibbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22553) granting an increase of pension to Christian Schaick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22554) granting an increase of pension to Josiah D. Mater—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22555) granting an increase of pension to William C. Maupin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22556) granting an increase of pension to Isaac A. Pearce—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22557) granting an increase of pension to James Eldridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22558) granting an increase of pension to Christopher C. Roddy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22559) granting an increase of pension to John T. Chiles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22560) granting an increase of pension to William D. Hudgens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22561) granting an increase of pension to Thomas C. Blevins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22562) granting an increase of pension to Wesley Owens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22563) granting an increase of pension to Samuel B. Montgomery—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22564) granting a pension to Alford McConnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions

Also, a bill (H. R. 22565) granting a pension to Elizabeth Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22566) granting a pension to Joseph A. Bray—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22567) granting a pension to John L. Johnson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22568) granting a pension to Daniel Cahill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HASKINS: A bill (H. R. 22569) granting an increase of pension to Levi E. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22570) granting an increase of pension to Charles C. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAWLEY: A bill (H. R. 22571) granting an increase of pension to George W. Hayden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22572) granting an increase of pension to George W. Peters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAY: A bill (H. R. 22573) granting an increase of pension to Reuben A. Finnell—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HELM: A bill (H. R. 22574) granting an increase of pension to John J. Burnett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HEPBURN: A bill (H. R. 22575) granting an increase of pension to Andrew S. Johnston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22576) granting an increase of pension to James H. Easley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22577) granting an increase of pension to De Witt C. Holmes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22578) granting a pension to Harvey E. Blackburn—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22579) granting a pension to Mary A. Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22580) granting a pension to Minnie Landers—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: A bill (H. R. 22581) granting a pension to Matilda C. Lyman—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22582) granting a pension to Nancy A. Watkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUFF: A bill (H. R. 22583) granting an increase of pension to Lewis Keefer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22584) granting an increase of pension to John Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22585) granting an increase of pension to Adam Bruner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22586) granting an increase of pension to Matthew G. Burkholder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22587) granting an increase of pension to Wilson Kennedy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22588) granting an increase of pension to Samuel C. Burkholder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22589) granting an increase of pension to Lewis Peters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22590) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan H. Fleming—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22591) granting an increase of pension to George H. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22592) granting an increase of pension to Andrew McMurry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22593) granting a pension to Samuel S. Jamison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 22594) granting an increase of pension to James S. Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22595) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Fuller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 22596) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Summey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22597) granting an increase of pension to Robert J. McKee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22598) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Upham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22599) granting an increase of pension to William Christy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22600) granting an increase of pension to John W. Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22601) granting an increase of pension to John M. Cochran—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22602) granting an increase of pension to F. Loehle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22603) granting a pension to Victor S. Blair—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22604) granting a pension to Adolphus E. Edwards—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 22605) granting a pension to H. R. Lett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22606) granting a pension to J. K. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22607) granting a pension to Andrew J. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22608) granting an increase of pension to Louis Hebert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22609) granting an increase of pension to Jay Lane—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22610) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Stamps—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 22611) granting an increase of pension to William R. Ingalls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KIMBALL: A bill (H. R. 22612) to reimburse certain citizens of the city of Versailles, Ky., for losses sustained by donation of money for a public building—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22613) granting an increase of pension to Eveline Aikin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22614) granting an increase of pension to Richard Vaughn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22615) granting an increase of pension to William E. Oldham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KINKAID: A bill (H. R. 22616) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Flower—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22617) granting an increase of pension to Dyer A. Conklin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KIPP: A bill (H. R. 22618) granting an increase of pension to Edwin S. Rolls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22619) granting an increase of pension to John Kloz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22620) granting an increase of pension to George L. Forbes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22621) granting an increase of pension to Edward Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22622) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah E. Vancise—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22623) granting an increase of pension to Lyman Beers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22624) granting an increase of pension to Asa H. Patrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22625) granting an increase of pension to Franklin Granger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22626) granting a pension to Harry A. Caskey—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22627) granting an increase of pension to Enos H. Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22628) granting an increase of pension to Nelson Northrop—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22629) granting an increase of pension to Harry H. Aumick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22630) granting an increase of pension to Horace H. Vail—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22631) granting an increase of pension to Woodford C. May—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22632) granting an increase of pension to William H. Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22633) granting an increase of pension to John Marley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22634) granting an increase of pension to Daniel H. Dornsife—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22635) granting an increase of pension to William Spangenburg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22636) granting an increase of pension to Henry Forbes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22637) granting an increase of pension to John Mann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22638) granting a pension to Ambrose G. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22639) granting an increase of pension to James P. Chaffee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22640) granting an increase of pension to Martin T. Horton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22641) granting an increase of pension to Isaac B. Decker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22642) granting an increase of pension to George Viall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22643) granting an increase of pension to Freeman N. Dixon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22644) granting an increase of pension to Weston Russell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22645) granting an increase of pension to Josephine Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22646) granting an increase of pension to John Hartman, alias John Simmins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22647) granting an increase of pension to Morton Brandemere—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22648) granting an increase of pension to Charles N. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22649) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas J. Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22650) granting an increase of pension to John Henley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22651) granting an increase of pension to Watson C. Hull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22652) granting an increase of pension to Ward Haines—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22653) granting an increase of pension to Perry Kipp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 22654) for the relief of James Parker—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22655) for the relief of William Coad—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22656) granting a pension to Thomas Gill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KÜSTERMANN: A bill (H. R. 22657) granting an increase of pension to August Krause—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22658) granting an increase of pension to Pulaski Fraker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22659) granting an increase of pension to George M. Rickaby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22660) granting an increase of pension to William Styers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAFEAN: A bill (H. R. 22661) granting an increase of pension to William H. Zeigler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22662) granting an increase of pension to Joshua S. Kemp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22663) granting an increase of pension to Lewis I. Renaut—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22664) granting an increase of pension to James Spealman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22665) granting an increase of pension to James Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22666) granting an increase of pension to John Cline—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22667) granting an increase of pension to James J. Poleman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22668) to correct the military record of Peter Stough—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LINDSAY: A bill (H. R. 22669) granting an increase of pension to John Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22670) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Wittmann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22671) granting an increase of pension to John A. Walsh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22672) granting an increase of pension to Matthew Grau, alias John A. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22673) granting an increase of pension to Adam Hartman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22674) granting an increase of pension to Gabriel Muneret—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22675) granting an increase of pension to Peter Becker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LONGWORTH: A bill (H. R. 22676) granting an increase of pension to John W. Mefford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 22677) granting a pension to Hubert Wheeler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22678) granting a pension to Sylvester C. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22679) granting a pension to Gilbert Stickles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 22680) granting a pension to Kate C. Simkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22681) granting a pension to Enos W. Ruland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOWDEN: A bill (H. R. 22682) granting an increase of pension to John A. Binninger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22683) granting an increase of pension to Charles L. Dyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22684) granting an increase of pension to Allen McClure—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22685) granting an increase of pension to Jasper N. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22686) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Gage—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22687) granting an increase of pension to Theodore Kundinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22688) granting an increase of pension to Henry R. Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22689) granting an increase of pension to Martin J. Klock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22690) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22691) granting an increase of pension to James B. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22692) granting an increase of pension to Simeon Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 22693) granting an increase of pension to William A. Myers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22694) granting an increase of pension to John M. Lukens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22695) granting an increase of pension to Lucien B. Doughty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22696) granting an increase of pension to John T. Williamson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22697) granting a pension to Emma Mattocks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 22698) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of William H. Gibson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22699) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of C. G. S. Mills—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22700) granting an increase of pension to John Brookbanks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MILLER: A bill (H. R. 22701) granting an increase of pension to Joseph G. Hutcheson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22702) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Klock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 22703) granting an increase of pension to George I. Graham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22704) granting an increase of pension to Annie M. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22705) granting a pension to Stephen Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22706) for the relief of Samuel D. Hawley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 22707) granting an increase of pension to James H. Cady—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22708) granting an increase of pension to Thomas B. T. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22709) granting an increase of pension to Mary L. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22710) for the relief of the heirs of Erban Powell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22711) for the relief of the estate of Robert Langford, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: A bill (H. R. 22712) granting an increase of pension to John Gallagher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NICHOLLS: A bill (H. R. 22713) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William H. Thomas—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22714) granting a pension to Etta C. Polhamus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22715) granting an increase of pension to Le Grand Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22716) granting an increase of pension to James Jeremiah—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22717) granting an increase of pension to George H. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22718) granting an increase of pension to Merritt Tompkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22719) granting an increase of pension to Charles L. Atwater—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22720) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan S. Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NYE: A bill (H. R. 22721) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Kennedy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OLCOTT: A bill (H. R. 22722) granting an increase of pension to Hastings Allaway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22723) for the relief of Tracey Edson—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: A bill (H. R. 22724) granting an increase of pension to James A. McAllister—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22725) granting an increase of pension to John H. Butcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22726) granting an increase of pension to Bladen A. Kendall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22727) granting an increase of pension to Cealica Gurley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22728) granting a pension to Julia A. Ragland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22729) granting a pension to Andrew R. Lewis—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22730) granting a pension to Lydia A. Swift—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PORTER: A bill (H. R. 22731) granting a pension to Nellie A. Lovell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PRINCE: A bill (H. R. 22732) granting an increase of pension to Ira G. Kinney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22733) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Yetter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22734) granting an increase of pension to William J. Lessig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22735) granting an increase of pension to James H. Conner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22736) granting an increase of pension to Isaac N. Coakley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A bill (H. R. 22737) granting a pension to Isaac N. Bynum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22738) granting a pension to David R. Bellomy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBINSON: A bill (H. R. 22739) for the relief of the trustees of the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22740) for the relief of Mrs. M. A. Hibbard—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22741) for the relief of the heirs of Azraih Mitchell—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 22472) granting an increase of pension to Philemon Deverux—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22743) granting an increase of pension to John Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22744) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Welker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22745) granting an increase of pension to William Minix—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22746) granting an increase of pension to Peter T. Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22747) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. McRaven—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22748) granting an increase of pension to John N. Pendergrass—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22749) granting an increase of pension to Milton G. Patillo—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22750) granting an increase of pension to James H. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22751) granting an increase of pension to Josiah Rayburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22752) granting an increase of pension to Brumit Rose—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22753) granting an increase of pension to Allen Sanders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22754) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Bivens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22755) granting an increase of pension to John A. Barnhouse—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22756) granting an increase of pension to John M. Bunn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22757) granting an increase of pension to Robert B. Coy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22758) granting an increase of pension to John H. Dye—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22759) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Forbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22760) granting an increase of pension to James N. Hamilton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22761) granting an increase of pension to Charles F. Hinrich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22762) granting an increase of pension to Peter S. Welsch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22763) granting an increase of pension to Delmus L. Wabington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22764) granting an increase of pension to Alfred Spence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22765) granting an increase of pension to Albert H. Hannaford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22766) granting an increase of pension to William McDonald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22767) granting a pension to William W. Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22768) granting a pension to Elias G. Friend—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22769) granting a pension to Joseph C. White—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22770) granting a pension to Thomas J. Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22771) granting a pension to Eliza Wall—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. RYAN: A bill (H. R. 22772) granting an increase of pension to William Fay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22773) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22774) granting an increase of pension to William H. Eldridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 22775) granting an increase of pension to Henry Carbon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22776) granting an increase of pension to Michael Stagg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22777) granting an increase of pension to George L. McCullum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22778) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22779) granting an increase of pension to John W. Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22780) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22781) granting an increase of pension to William A. Drew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22782) granting an increase of pension to Floyd Cornwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22783) granting an increase of pension to Amanda Blake—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22784) granting an increase of pension to David Detty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22785) granting a pension to Clara J. Kiser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22786) granting an increase of pension to Ulrich Levenberger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 22787) granting an increase of pension to Elijah J. Freeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEENERSON: A bill (H. R. 22788) granting a pension to Mary Gotham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 22789) granting a pension to John O'Donnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22790) granting a pension to Johanna Fruin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22791) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Sanders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22792) granting a pension to David H. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22793) granting an increase of pension to Charles C. Sater—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22794) granting a pension to Marjorie Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STURGISS: A bill (H. R. 22795) for the relief of Maj. James M. Burns—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 22796) granting an increase of pension to Ephraim Plumpton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22797) granting an increase of pension to Jason Lamprey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22798) granting an increase of pension to John Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22799) granting an increase of pension to William D. Wyman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22800) granting an increase of pension to John Bracey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22801) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. York—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22802) granting an increase of pension to Nahum Yeaton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22803) granting an increase of pension to John Orale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22804) granting an increase of pension to Valentine M. Currin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22805) granting an increase of pension to Augustus Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22806) granting an increase of pension to Lyman Wyman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22807) granting an increase of pension to John M. W. Emery—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22808) granting an increase of pension to James S. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22809) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas Stuber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22810) granting an increase of pension to Asa Dimmick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22811) granting an increase of pension to John L. Quimby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22812) granting an increase of pension to Horatio W. Longa—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: A bill (H. R. 22813) for the relief of Thomas Campbell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. THISTLEWOOD: A bill (H. R. 22814) granting an increase of pension to Charles G. Sanders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22815) granting an increase of pension to James N. McDaniel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22816) granting an increase of pension to William T. Freeze—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22817) granting an increase of pension to James H. Weatherby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22818) granting an increase of pension to Liberty G. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22819) granting an increase of pension to Ignatius O'Daniell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22820) granting an increase of pension to Alfred B. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22821) granting an increase of pension to E. C. Wafer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22822) granting an increase of pension to William Bolam—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22823) granting an increase of pension to John Gulley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22824) granting an increase of pension to Allen Patrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22825) granting an increase of pension to Aaron F. Youngblood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22826) granting an increase of pension to William Banks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22827) granting an increase of pension to William A. Fry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22828) granting an increase of pension to George N. Dennis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22829) granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Potter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22830) granting an increase of pension to William A. Ice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22831) granting an increase of pension to James W. Woodward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22832) granting a pension to Jackson T. Mygatt—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22833) granting a pension to Allie C. Glover—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22834) granting a pension to Jane Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22835) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Charles W. Cook—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22836) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Alfred Rinehart—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22837) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of John A. Lyons—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WANGER: A bill (H. R. 22838) granting a pension to Sarah Radcliffe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22839) granting a pension to Robert K. Stevenson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22840) granting an increase of pension to Conrad Maiser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WATSON: A bill (H. R. 22841) granting an increase of pension to Edward H. Wolfe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22842) granting an increase of pension to Jabez Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22843) granting an increase of pension to Samuel G. Vance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22844) granting an increase of pension to Martin Ottinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 22845) granting a pension to Euphoneous Carter—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22846) granting a pension to Daniel Cannon—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22847) granting an increase of pension to Harmon S. Gatlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22848) granting an increase of pension to Ben de Lemos—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22849) granting an increase of pension to Isapheny Harden—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22850) granting an increase of pension to Nancy Harmon—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22851) granting a pension to James T. Cloud—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22852) for the relief of Sarah Autrey—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22853) for the relief of William F. Nail—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22854) to carry into effect the findings of the Court of Claims in the matter of the claim of John Mantel—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22855) for the relief of Mrs. E. W. Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22856) for the relief of the heirs of Dr. Willis Calhoun, of Noxubee County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22857) for the relief of the estate of A. P. Gafford, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22858) for the relief of the estate of Robert Barber, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22859) for the relief of R. D. Johnston—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22860) for the relief of A. L. Hall—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22861) for the relief of John S. May—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22862) for the relief of Samuel T. Townsend—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22863) for the relief of John D. Toppin and George W. Beard, U. S. Navy, retired—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22864) for the relief of Lieut. Commander Henry A. Wiley, U. S. Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. WOODYARD: A bill (H. R. 22865) granting an increase of pension to Martin L. Willets—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22866) granting an increase of pension to Franklin T. Lockhart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22867) granting a pension to Ida M. Sterling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22868) granting an increase of pension to Augustus Gilmore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22869) granting an increase of pension to Henry Blair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22870) granting an increase of pension to Barney O. Flinn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22871) granting an increase of pension to Elam T. Heatherly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22872) granting an increase of pension to Jordan McKee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22873) granting an increase of pension to Eli W. Metcalf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22874) granting an increase of pension to Gideon Mason—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22875) granting an increase of pension to Daniel W. Bartlett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22876) granting an increase of pension to George W. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22877) granting an increase of pension to Abraham Hickman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22878) granting an increase of pension to Linden Batten—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAIR: Petition of citizens of Bluffton, Ind., against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ADAMSON: Papers to accompany bills for relief of John M. Strickland and Jesse J. Bull—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of New York: Petition of New York County Lawyers' Association, favoring S. 6973 (increase of salaries of United States judges)—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of William A. Sawyer and others, of Buffalo, N. Y., favoring the pensioning of members of the Military Telegraphers' Corps in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALLEN: Petition of Central Labor Union, of Biddeford and Saco, Me., for an act to prevent illiterate immigration and for better ship accommodations for immigrants—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Gifford Ramey (previously referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions)—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: Papers to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Lawrence Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BATES: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Lorenzo M. Bartholomew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: Petition of Newburgh Hat Finishers' Association, for an amendment to the Sherman antitrust law, Pearre anti-injunction bill, and extension of the eight-hour law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BURLESON: Petition of Federal Labor Union, No. 8786, against enactment of illiteracy test in immigration legislation and for better sanitary accommodations to steerage immigrants—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BURTON of Ohio: Petition of 130 citizens of Cleveland, Ohio, against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CANDLER: Papers to accompany bill for relief of B. H. Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CAPRON: Papers to accompany bills granting an increase of pension to Samuel E. Reynolds, Henry S. Shoop, and Joseph Henry Jewett, Company B, Eleventh Rhode Island Volunteers; Isaac Y. Taylor, Joseph L. Straight, and Bradford A. Gavitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bill granting pension to Caroline M. Marsh—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CLARK of Florida: Memorial of legislature of State of Florida, sessions of 1899 and 1905, asking for import duty on Egyptian cotton—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of C. P. Whitford, L. E. Cunningham, Oscar Blackwelden, C. B. Alston, and others, citizens of Florida, against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, for free jute bagging and steel cotton ties—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of James R. Powell and others, of Carleton, Fla., and Richard Mann and others, of McMeekin, Fla., for legislation pensioning United States military telegraphers who served in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COLE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Benjamin F. L. Meredith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: Petition of Thomas E. Brown & Son, Rowland Hunt, Glen Knitting Company, Thomas W. Buck Hosiery Company, Brown-Moore Hosiery Company, Lee Hosiery Mills, Harry C. Aberle & Co., National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, Thomas E. Brown, William B. Threapleton's Sons, German-American Hosiery Company, and Brown Knitting Company, against any reduction of the tariff on hosiery goods and underwear—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of assistant postmasters of Pennsylvania, in convention at Williamsport, favoring extension of the civil-service law over assistant postmasters—to the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

Also, petition of Albert Dippel, for protection of bookbinders—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURNETT: Soldier's affidavit in support of bill granting a pension to John J. Burnett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRAPER: Petition of Veteran Army of the Philippines, J. G. Harbord, department commander, asking legislation that will permit the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps to observe August 13 as a legal holiday—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. EDWARDS of Kentucky: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James R. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: Petition of J. G. Hibbard, department commander of Veteran Army of the Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Biscuit and Cracker Manufacturers' Association, in annual convention July 15 and 16, against a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FORNES: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of continuous service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of David Homer Bates and others, for legislation to pension members of the Telegraph Corps of the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: Petition of Patent Law Association of Chicago, favoring legislation increasing salaries of federal judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of William R. Prickett, of Edwardsville, Ill., favoring the Fuller bill (H. R. 19250), with certain amendments—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GARRETT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Richard H. Nanney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of A. G. Almond and Charles Henry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GOULDEN: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., National Corps Army and Navy Union, for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Petition of Paul Synnestredt, favoring legislation to increase salaries of federal judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of citizens of Pittsburg, Pa., for legislation pensioning members of the United States Telegraph Corps in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, favoring the Tirrell bill (H. R. 12405) and the Bacon bill (S. 5151), to prohibit liquor selling in Hawaii, etc.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of J. G. Harbard, of Veteran Army of Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HAY: Petition of citizens of Woodstock, Va., for law to pension members of United States Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Petitions of Local Union of Miners and Smelters, No. 249, of West Jordan, and Local Union of Miners and Smelters, No. 144, of Park City, Utah, for investigation and regulation of the Treadwell Mining Company, of Douglas Island, Alaska—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Also, petition of operators and miners of Bingham Canyon, Utah, against reduction of duties on lead and lead ores—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUFF: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Jonathan H. Fleming, Lewis Peters, Samuel C. Burkholder, Wilson Kennedy, Mathew G. Burkholder, Adam Bruner, John Adams, Lewis Keefer, and Samuel S. Jamison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Andrew McMurray and George H. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: Papers to accompany bills for the relief of James Parker and William Coad—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, papers to accompany bill granting a pension to Thomas Gill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KIPP: Petition of G. E. Cromwell and others, for legislation pensioning members of United States Military Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LLOYD: Petition of citizens of Queen City, Mo., against passage of Sunday law—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MADDEN: Petition of several hundred citizens of Chicago, asking legislation to provide pensions for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Papers to accompany bill granting an increase of pension to Thomas B. F. Anderson, of Chattanooga, Tenn.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bills in re civil-war claims of estate of Robert Langford, deceased; estate of Alex O. Smith, deceased, and heirs of Erban. Powell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers to accompany bill granting a pension to Mary L. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of W. F. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petitions of J. K. P. Marshall and others, of Cleveland, Tenn., and William Street and others, of Chattanooga, Tenn., for legislation pensioning members of the United States Military Telegraphers' Corps of the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Hartford Matherly, James H. Cady, and Joshua E. Carlton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NYE: Petition of citizens of the State of Minnesota, against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. OLCOTT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Hastings Allaway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Paper to accompany H. R. 175, for pension to United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army in the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bill securing legislation to promote efficiency in the army, to disseminate useful military knowledge among the people of the United States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Cealica Gurley, Lydia A. Swift, Bladen A. Kendall, Evan H. Pritchard (H. R. 21245), John H. Butcher, James A. McAllister, and Julia A. Ragland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bill for relief of Andrew R. Lewis—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of J. N. Bynum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of David R. Bellamy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBINSON: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Nancy E. Williams (H. R. 7262), J. H. Coburn (H. R. 21619), and Guy S. McMickle (H. R. 13408)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany H. R. 21174, a bill appropriating $50,000 for protection of the banks of the Arkansas River at Douglas, Ark.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of John H. Avery and others, for legislation pensioning members of the Telegraph Corps of the United States Army in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of William W. Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RYAN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James Cupps—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of New York County Lawyers' Association, favoring increase of salaries of United States circuit and district court judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. SCOTT: Petition of citizens of Blue Mound, Kans., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of citizens of Pleasanton, Kans., for legislation pensioning members of United States Telegraph Corps who served in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of D. L. Greenfield and others, of New York, for legislation pensioning the members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STURGISS: Petition of Huntington Chamber of Commerce, favoring Senate bill 4825, providing for establishment of the Appalachian-White Mountain National Forest Reservation—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. THISTLEWOOD: Petition of citizens of southern Illinois, Twenty-fifth Congressional District, against any parcels-post legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of citizens of Cairo, Ill., against S. 3940, for the proper observance of Sundays in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WANGER: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy after twenty-five years' actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. YOUNG: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., for retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, December 8, 1908.

The Senate met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Edward E. Hale.

JAMES P. CLARKE, a Senator from the State of Arkansas; MORGAN G. BULKELEY, a Senator from the State of Connecticut; WILLIAM J. STONE, a Senator from the State of Missouri; FRANK B. GARY, a Senator from the State of South Carolina; ALFRED B. KITTREDGE, a Senator from the State of South Dakota; and JOHN W. DANIEL, a Senator from the State of Virginia, appeared in their seats to-day.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

SENATOR FROM IOWA.

Mr. DOLLIVER presented the credentials of ALBERT B. CUMMINS, chosen by the legislature of the State of Iowa a Senator from that State for the unexpired portion of the term of the late Senator WILLIAM B. ALLISON, ending March 3, 1911, which were read and ordered to be filed.

Mr. DOLLIVER. Mr. CUMMINS is present and ready to take the oath of office.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator-elect will present himself at the Vice-President's desk and take the oath prescribed by law.

Mr. CUMMINS was escorted to the Vice-President's desk by Mr. DOLLIVER, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him, he took his seat in the Senate.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

William J. Browning, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives, appeared and delivered the following message:

Mr. President, I am directed by the House of Representatives to inform the Senate that a quorum of the House of Representatives has assembled, and that the House is ready to proceed to business.

Also that a committee of three Members has been appointed by the Speaker, on the part of the House of Representatives, to join a committee of the Senate to wait upon the President of the United States, and to inform him that a quorum of the two Houses has assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may have to make, and that Mr. PAYNE, Mr. MCKINLEY of Illinois, and Mr. CLARK of Missouri have been appointed members of the committee on the part of the House.

The message further communicated to the Senate the intelligence of the deaths of Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, late a Representative from the State of New York; of Hon. LLEWELLYN POWERS, late a Representative from the State of Maine; of Hon. WILLIAM H. PARKER, late a Representative from the State of South Datoka; and of Hon. ARIOSTO A. WILEY, late a Representative from the State of Alabama, and transmitted resolutions of the House thereon.

The message also transmitted resolutions of the House on the death of Hon. WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, late a Senator from the State of Iowa.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. ALDRICH, Mr. GALLINGER, and Mr. TELLER, the committee appointed to wait upon the President of the United States, appeared; and

Mr. ALDRICH said: Mr. President, the committees appointed by the Senate and the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that the two Houses have assembled and were ready to receive any communication he should be pleased to make to them, beg leave to report that they have discharged that duty and that the President will at once communicate in writing with the two Houses.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

Mr. M. C. Latta, one of the secretaries of the President of the United States, appeared and said: Mr. President, I am directed by the President of the United States to deliver to the Senate a message in writing.

The message was received from the secretary and handed to the Vice-President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which will be read by the Secretary.

The Secretary [Mr. Charles G. Bennett] read the message, as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

FINANCES.

The financial standing of the Nation at the present time is excellent, and the financial management of the Nation's interests by the Government during the last seven years has shown the most satisfactory results. But our currency system is imperfect, and it is earnestly to be hoped that the Currency Commission will be able to propose a thoroughly good system which will do away with the existing defects.

During the period from July 1, 1901, to September 30, 1908, there was an increase in the amount of money in circulation of $902,991,399. The increase in the per capita during this period was $7.06. Within this time there were several occasions when it was necessary for the Treasury Department to come to the relief of the money market by purchases or redemptions of United States bonds; by increasing deposits in national banks; by stimulating additional issues of national bank notes, and by facilitating importations from abroad of gold. Our imperfect currency system has made these proceedings necessary, and they were effective until the monetary disturbance in the fall of 1907 immensely increased the difficulty of ordinary methods of relief. By the middle of November the available working balance in the Treasury had been reduced to approximately $5,000,000. Clearing house associations throughout the country had been obliged to resort to the expedient of issuing clearing house certificates, to be used as money. In this emergency it was determined to invite subscriptions for $50,000,000 Panama Canal bonds, and $100,000,000 three per cent certificates of indebtedness authorized by the act of June 13, 1898. It was proposed to re-deposit in the national banks the proceeds of these issues, and to permit their use as a basis for additional circulating notes of national banks. The moral effect of this procedure was so great that it was necessary to issue only $24,631,980 of the Panama Canal bonds and $15,436,500 of the certificates of indebtedness.

During the period from July 1, 1901, to September 30, 1908, the balance between the net ordinary receipts and the net ordinary expenses of the Government showed a surplus in the four years 1902, 1903, 1906, and 1907, and a deficit in the years 1904, 1905, 1908, and a fractional part of the fiscal year 1909. The net result was a surplus of $99,283,413.54. The financial operations of the Government during this period, based upon these differences between receipts and expenditures, resulted in a net reduction of the interest-bearing debt of the United States from $987,141,040 to $897,253,990, notwithstanding that there had been two sales of Panama Canal bonds amounting in the aggregate to $54,631,980, and an issue of 3 per cent certificates of indebtedness under the act of June 13, 1898, amounting to $15,436,500. Refunding operations of the Treasury Department under the act of March 14, 1900, resulted in the conversion into 2 per cent consols of 1930 of $200,309,400 bonds bearing higher rates of interest. A decrease of $8,687,956 in the annual interest charge resulted from these operations.

In short, during the seven years and three months there has been a net surplus of nearly one hundred millions of receipts over expenditures, a reduction of the interest-bearing debt by ninety millions, in spite of the extraordinary expense of the Panama Canal, and a saving of nearly nine millions on the annual interest charge. This is an exceedingly satisfactory showing, especially in view of the fact that during this period the Nation has never hesitated to undertake any expenditure that it regarded as necessary. There have been no new taxes and no increases of taxes; on the contrary some taxes have been taken off; there has been a reduction of taxation.

CORPORATIONS.

As regards the great corporations engaged in interstate business, and especially the railroads, I can only repeat what I have already again and again said in my messages to the Congress. I believe that under the interstate clause of the Constitution the United States has complete and paramount right to control all agencies of interstate commerce, and I believe that the National Government alone can exercise this right with wisdom and effectiveness so as both to secure justice from, and to do justice to, the great corporations which are the most important factors in modern business. I believe that it is worse than folly to attempt to prohibit all combinations as is done by the Sherman anti-trust law, because such a law can be enforced only imperfectly and unequally, and its enforcement works almost as much hardship as good. I strongly advocate that instead of an unwise effort to prohibit all combinations, there shall be substituted a law which shall expressly permit combinations which are in the interest of the public, but shall at the same time give to some agency of the National Government full power of control and supervision over them. One of the chief features of this control should be securing entire publicity in all matters which the public has a right to know, and furthermore, the power, not by judicial but by executive action, to prevent or put a stop to every form of improper favoritism or other wrongdoing.

The railways of the country should be put completely under the Interstate Commerce Commission and removed from the domain of the anti-trust law. The power of the Commission should be made thoroughgoing, so that it could exercise complete supervision and control over the issue of securities as well as over the raising and lowering of rates. As regards rates, at least, this power should be summary. The power to investigate the financial operations and accounts of the railways has been one of the most valuable features in recent legislation. Power to make combinations and traffic agreements should be explicitly conferred upon the railroads, the permission of the Commission being first gained and the combination or agreement being published in all its details. In the interest of the public the representatives of the public should have complete power to see that the railroads do their duty by the public, and as a matter of course this power should also be exercised so as to see that no injustice is done to the railroads. The shareholders, the employees and the shippers all have interests that must be guarded. It is to the interest of all of them that no swindling stock speculation should be allowed, and that there should be no improper issuance of securities. The guiding intelligences necessary for the successful building and successful management of railroads should receive ample remuneration; but no man should be allowed to make money in connection with railroads out of fraudulent over-capitalization and kindred stock-gambling performances; there must be no defrauding of investors, oppression of the farmers and business men who ship freight, or callous disregard of the rights and needs of the employees. In addition to this the interests of the shareholders, of the employees, and of the shippers should all be guarded as against one another. To give any one of them undue and improper consideration is to do injustice to the others. Rates must be made as low as is compatible with giving proper returns to all the employees of the railroad, from the highest to the lowest, and proper returns to the shareholders; but they must not, for instance, be reduced in such fashion as to necessitate a cut in the wages of the employees or the abolition of the proper and legitimate profits of honest shareholders.

Telegraph and telephone companies engaged in interstate business should be put under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is very earnestly to be wished that our people, through their representatives, should act in this matter. It is hard to say whether most damage to the country at large would come from entire failure on the part of the public to supervise and control the actions of the great corporations, or from the exercise of the necessary governmental power in a way which would do injustice and wrong to the corporations. Both the preachers of an unrestricted individualism, and the preachers of an oppression which would deny to able men of business the just reward of their initiative and business sagacity, are advocating policies that would be fraught with the gravest harm to the whole country. To permit every lawless capitalist, every law-defying corporation, to take any action, no matter how iniquitous, in the effort to secure an improper profit and to build up privilege, would be ruinous to the Republic and would mark the abandonment of the effort to secure in the industrial world the spirit of democratic fair-dealing. On the other hand, to attack these wrongs in that spirit of demagogy which can see wrong only when committed by the man of wealth, and is dumb and blind in the presence of wrong committed against men of property or by men of no property, is exactly as evil as corruptly to defend the wrongdoing of men of wealth. The war we wage must be waged against misconduct, against wrongdoing wherever it is found; and we must stand heartily for the rights of every decent man, whether he be a man of great wealth or a man who earns his livelihood as a wage-worker or a tiller of the soil.

It is to the interest of all of us that there should be a premium put upon individual initiative and individual capacity and an ample reward for the great directing intelligences alone competent to manage the great business operations of to-day. It is well to keep in mind that exactly as the anarchist is the worst enemy of liberty and the reactionary the worst enemy of order, so the men who defend the rights of property have most to fear from the wrongdoers of great wealth, and the men who are championing popular rights have most to fear from the demagogues who in the name of popular rights would do wrong to oppress honest business men, honest men of wealth; for the success of either type of wrongdoer necessarily invites a violent reaction against the cause the wrongdoer nominally upholds. In point of danger to the Nation there is nothing to choose between on the one hand the corruptionist, the bribe-giver, the bribe-taker, the man who employs his great talent to swindle his fellow-citizens on a large scale, and, on the other hand, the preacher of class hatred, the man who, whether from ignorance or from willingness to sacrifice his country to his ambition, persuades well-meaning but wrong-headed men to try to destroy the instruments upon which our prosperity mainly rests. Let each group of men beware of and guard against the shortcomings to which that group is itself most liable. Too often we see the business community in a spirit of unhealthy class consciousness deplore the effort to hold to account under the law the wealthy men who in their management of great corporations, whether railroads, street railways, or other industrial enterprises, have behaved in a way that revolts the conscience of the plain, decent people. Such an attitude can not be condemned too severely, for men of property should recognize that they jeopardize the rights of property when they fail heartily to join in the effort to do away with the abuses of wealth. On the other hand, those who advocate proper control on behalf of the public, through the State, of these great corporations, and of the wealth engaged on a giant scale in business operations, must ever keep in mind that unless they do scrupulous justice to the corporation, unless they permit ample profit, and cordially encourage capable men of business so long as they act with honesty, they are striking at the root of our national wellbeing; for in the long run, under the mere pressure of material distress, the people as a whole would probably go back to the reign of an unrestricted individualism rather than submit to a control by the State so drastic and so foolish, conceived in a spirit of such unreasonable and narrow hostility to wealth, as to prevent business operations from being profitable and therefore to bring ruin upon the entire business community and ultimately upon the entire body of citizens.

The opposition to Government control of these great corporations makes its most effective effort in the shape of an appeal to the old doctrine of States' rights. Of course there are many sincere men who now believe in unrestricted individualism in business, just as there were formerly many sincere men who believed in slavery—that is, in the unrestricted right of an individual to own another individual. These men do not by themselves have great weight, however. The effective fight against adequate Government control and supervision of individual, and especially of corporate, wealth engaged in interstate business is chiefly done under cover; and especially under cover of an appeal to States' rights. It is not at all infrequent to read in the same speech a denunciation of predatory wealth fostered by special privilege and defiant of both the public welfare and law of the land, and a denunciation of centralization in the Central Government of the power to deal with this centralized and organized wealth. Of course the policy set forth in such twin denunciations amounts to absolutely nothing, for the first half is nullified by the second half. The chief reason, among the many sound and compelling reasons, that led to the formation of the National Government, was the absolute need that the Union, and not the several States, should deal with interstate and foreign commerce; and the power to deal with interstate commerce was granted absolutely and plenarily to the Central Government and was exercised completely as regards the only instruments of interstate commerce known in those days—the waterways, the highroads, as well as the partnerships of individuals who then conducted all of what business there was. Interstate commerce is now chiefly conducted by railroads; and the great corporation has supplanted the mass of small partnerships or individuals. The proposal to make the National Government supreme over, and therefore to give it complete control over, the railroads and other instruments of interstate commerce is merely a proposal to carry out to the letter one of the prime purposes, if not the prime purpose, for which the Constitution was founded. It does not represent centralization. It represents merely the acknowledgment of the patent fact that centralization has already come in business. If this irresponsible outside business power is to be controlled in the interest of the general public it can only be controlled in one way; by giving adequate power of control to the one sovereignty capable of exercising such power—the National Government. Forty or fifty separate state governments can not exercise that power over corporations doing business in most or all of them; first, because they absolutely lack the authority to deal with interstate business in any form; and second, because of the inevitable conflict of authority sure to arise in the effort to enforce different kinds of state regulation, often inconsistent with one another and sometimes oppressive in themselves. Such divided authority can not regulate commerce with wisdom and effect. The Central Government is the only power which, without oppression, can nevertheless thoroughly and adequately control and supervise the large corporations. To abandon the effort for National control means to abandon the effort for all adequate control and yet to render likely continual bursts of action by State legislatures, which can not achieve the purpose sought for, but which can do a great deal of damage to the corporation without conferring any real benefit on the public.

I believe that the more farsighted corporations are themselves coming to recognize the unwisdom of the violent hostility they have displayed during the last few years to regulation and control by the National Government of combinations engaged in interstate business. The truth is that we who believe in this movement of asserting and exercising a genuine control, in the public interest, over these great corporations have to contend against two sets of enemies, who, though nominally opposed to one another, are really allies in preventing a proper solution of the problem. There are, first, the big corporation men, and the extreme individualists among business men, who genuinely believe in utterly unregulated business—that is, in the reign of plutocracy; and, second, the men who, being blind to the economic movements of the day, believe in a movement of repression rather than of regulation of corporations, and who denounce both the power of the railroads and the exercise of the Federal power which alone can really control the railroads. Those who believe in efficient national control, on the other hand, do not in the least object to combinations; do not in the least object to concentration in business administration. On the contrary, they favor both, with the all important proviso that there shall be such publicity about their workings, and such thoroughgoing control over them, as to insure their being in the interest, and not against the interest, of the general public. We do not object to the concentration of wealth and administration; but we do believe in the distribution of the wealth in profits to the real owners, and in securing to the public the full benefit of the concentrated administration. We believe that with concentration in administration there can come both the advantage of a larger ownership and of a more equitable distribution of profits, and at the same time a better service to the commonwealth. We believe that the administration should be for the benefit of the many; and that greed and rascality, practiced on a large scale, should be punished as relentlessly as if practiced on a small scale.

We do not for a moment believe that the problem will be solved by any short and easy method. The solution will come only by pressing various concurrent remedies. Some of these remedies must lie outside the domain of all government. Some must lie outside the domain of the Federal Government. But there is legislation which the Federal Government alone can enact and which is absolutely vital in order to secure the attainment of our purpose. Many laws are needed. There should be regulation by the National Government of the great interstate corporations, including a simple method of account keeping, publicity, supervision of the issue of securities, abolition of rebates and of special privileges. There should be short time franchises for all corporations engaged in public business; including the corporations which get power from water rights. There should be National as well as State guardianship of mines and forests. The labor legislation hereinafter referred to should concurrently be enacted into law.

To accomplish this, means of course a certain increase in the use of—not the creation of—power by the Central Government. The power already exists; it does not have to be created; the only question is whether it shall be used or left idle—and meanwhile the corporations over which the power ought to be exercised will not remain idle. Let those who object to this increase in the use of the only power available, the national power, be frank, and admit openly that they propose to abandon any effort to control the great business corporations and to exercise supervision over the accumulation and distribution of wealth; for such supervision and control can only come through this particular kind of increase of power. We no more believe in that empiricism which demands absolutely unrestrained individualism than we do in that empiricism which clamors for a deadening socialism which would destroy all individual initiative and would ruin the country with a completeness that not even an unrestrained individualism itself could achieve. The danger to American democracy lies not in the least in the concentration of administrative power in responsible and accountable hands. It lies in having the power insufficiently concentrated, so that no one can be held responsible to the people for its use. Concentrated power is palpable, visible, responsible, easily reached, quickly held to account. Power scattered through many administrators, many legislators, many men who work behind and through legislators and administrators, is impalpable, is unseen, is irresponsible, can not be reached, can not be held to account. Democracy is in peril wherever the administration of political power is scattered among a variety of men who work in secret, whose very names are unknown to the common people. It is not in peril from any man who derives authority from the people, who exercise it in sight of the people, and who is from time to time compelled to give an account of its exercise to the people.

LABOR.

There are many matters affecting labor and the status of the wage-worker to which I should like to draw your attention, but an exhaustive discussion of the problem in all its aspects is not now necessary. This administration is nearing its end; and, moreover, under our form of government the solution of the problem depends upon the action of the States as much as upon the action of the Nation. Nevertheless, there are certain considerations which I wish to set before you, because I hope that our people will more and more keep them in mind. A blind and ignorant resistance to every effort for the reform of abuses and for the readjustment of society to modern industrial conditions represents not true conservatism but an incitement to the wildest radicalism; for wise radicalism and wise conservatism go hand in hand, one bent on progress, the other bent on seeing that no change is made unless in the right direction. I believe in a steady effort, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say in steady efforts in many different directions, to bring about a condition of affairs under which the men who work with hand or with brain, the laborers, the superintendents, the men who produce for the market and the men who find a market for the articles produced, shall own a far greater share than at present of the wealth they produce, and be enabled to invest it in the tools and instruments by which all work is carried on. As far as possible I hope to see a frank recognition of the advantages conferred by machinery, organization, and division of labor, accompanied by an effort to bring about a larger share in the ownership by wage-worker of railway, mill, and factory. In farming, this simply means that we wish to see the farmer own his own land; we do not wish to see the farms so large that they become the property of absentee landlords who farm them by tenants, nor yet so small that the farmer becomes like a European peasant. Again, the depositors in our savings banks now number over one-tenth of our entire population. These are all capitalists, who through the savings banks loan their money to the workers—that is, in many cases to themselves—to carry on their various industries. The more we increase their number, the more we introduce the principles of cooperation into our industry. Every increase in the number of small stockholders in corporations is a good thing, for the same reasons; and where the employees are the stockholders the result is particularly good. Very much of this movement must be outside of anything that can be accomplished by legislation; but legislation can do a good deal. Postal savings banks will make it easy for the poorest to keep their savings in absolute safety. The regulation of the national highways must be such that they shall serve all people with equal justice. Corporate finances must be supervised so as to make it far safer than at present for the man of small means to invest his money in stocks. There must be prohibition of child labor, diminution of woman labor, shortening of hours of all mechanical labor; stock watering should be prohibited, and stock gambling so far as is possible discouraged. There should be a progressive inheritance tax on large fortunes. Industrial education should be encouraged. As far as possible we should lighten the burden of taxation on the small man. We should put a premium upon thrift, hard work, and business energy; but these qualities cease to be the main factors in accumulating a fortune long before that fortune reaches a point where it would be seriously affected by any inheritance tax such as I propose. It is eminently right that the Nation should fix the terms upon which the great fortunes are inherited. They rarely do good and they often do harm to those who inherit them in their entirety.

PROTECTION FOR WAGEWORKERS.

The above is the merest sketch, hardly even a sketch in outline, of the reforms for which we should work. But there is one matter with which the Congress should deal at this session. There should no longer be any paltering with the question of taking care of the wageworkers who, under our present industrial system, become killed, crippled, or worn out as part of the regular incidents of a given business. The majority of wage-workers must have their rights secured for them by State action; but the National Government should legislate in thoroughgoing and far-reaching fashion not only for all employees of the National Government, but for all persons engaged in interstate commerce. The object sought for could be achieved to a measurable degree, as far as those killed or crippled are concerned, by proper employers' liability laws. As far as concerns those who have been worn out, I call your attention to the fact that definite steps toward providing old-age pensions have been taken in many of our private industries. These may be indefinitely extended through voluntary association and contributory schemes, or through the agency of savings banks, as under the recent Massachusetts plan. To strengthen these practical measures should be our immediate duty; it is not at present necessary to consider the larger and more general governmental schemes that most European governments have found themselves obliged to adopt.

Our present system, or rather no system, works dreadful wrong, and is of benefit to only one class of people—the lawyers. When a workman is injured what he needs is not an expensive and doubtful lawsuit, but the certainty of relief through immediate administrative action. The number of accidents which result in the death or crippling of wageworkers, in the Union at large, is simply appalling; in a very few years it runs up a total far in excess of the aggregate of the dead and wounded in any modern war. No academic theory about "freedom of contract" or "constitutional liberty to contract" should be permitted to interfere with this and similar movements. Progress in civilization has everywhere meant a limitation and regulation of contract. I call your especial attention to the bulletin of the Bureau of Labor which gives a statement of the methods of treating the unemployed in European countries, as this is a subject which in Germany, for instance, is treated in connection with making provision for worn out and crippled workmen.

Pending a thoroughgoing investigation and action there is certain legislation which should be enacted at once. The law, passed at the last session of the Congress, granting compensation to certain classes of employees of the Government, should be extended to include all employees of the Government and should be made more liberal in its terms. There is no good ground for the distinction made in the law between those engaged in hazardous occupations and those not so engaged. If a man is injured or killed in any line of work, it was hazardous in his case. Whether 1 per cent or 10 per cent of those following a given occupation actually suffer injury or death ought not to have any bearing on the question of their receiving compensation. It is a grim logic which says to an injured employee or to the dependents of one killed that he or they are entitled to no compensation because very few people other than he have been injured or killed in that occupation. Perhaps one of the most striking omissions in the law is that it does not embrace peace officers and others whose lives may be sacrificed in enforcing the laws of the United States. The terms of the act providing compensation should be made more liberal than in the present act. A year's compensation is not adequate for a wage-earner's family in the event of his death by accident in the course of his employment. And in the event of death occurring, say, ten or eleven months after the accident, the family would only receive as compensation the equivalent of one or two months' earnings. In this respect the generosity of the United States towards its employees compares most unfavorably with that of every country in Europe—even the poorest.

The terms of the act are also a hardship in prohibiting payment in cases where the accident is in any way due to the negligence of the employee. It is inevitable that daily familiarity with danger will lead men to take chances that can be construed into negligence. So well is this recognized that in practically all countries in the civilized world, except the United States, only a great degree of negligence acts as a bar to securing compensation. Probably in no other respect is our legislation, both State and National, so far behind practically the entire civilized world as in the matter of liability and compensation for accidents in industry. It is humiliating that at European international congresses on accidents the United States should be singled out as the most belated among the nations in respect to employers' liability legislation. This Government is itself a large employer of labor, and in its dealings with its employees it should set a standard in this country which would place it on a par with the most progressive countries in Europe. The laws of the United States in this respect and the laws of European countries have been summarized in a recent bulletin of the Bureau of Labor, and no American who reads this summary can fail to be struck by the great contrast between our practices and theirs—a contrast not in any sense to our credit.

The Congress should without further delay pass a model employers' liability law for the District of Columbia. The employers' liability act recently declared unconstitutional, on account of apparently including in its provisions employees engaged in intrastate commerce as well as those engaged in interstate commerce, has been held by the local courts to be still in effect so far as its provisions apply to the District of Columbia. There should be no ambiguity on this point. If there is any doubt on the subject, the law should be reenacted with special reference to the District of Columbia. This act, however, applies only to employees of common carriers. In all other occupations the liability law of the District is the old common law. The severity and injustice of the common law in this matter has been in some degree or another modified in the majority of our States, and the only jurisdiction under the exclusive control of the Congress should be ahead and not behind the States of the Union in this respect. A comprehensive employers' liability law should be passed for the District of Columbia.

I renew my recommendation made in a previous message that half-holidays be granted during summer to all wage-workers in Government employ.

I also renew my recommendation that the principle of the eight-hour day should as rapidly and as far as practicable be extended to the entire work carried on by the Government; the present law should be amended to embrace contracts on those public works which the present wording of the act seems to exclude.

THE COURTS.

I most earnestly urge upon the Congress the duty of increasing the totally inadequate salaries now given to our Judges. On the whole there is no body of public servants who do as valuable work, nor whose moneyed reward is so inadequate compared to their work. Beginning with the Supreme Court the Judges should have their salaries doubled. It is not befitting the dignity of the Nation that its most honored public servants should be paid sums so small compared to what they would earn in private life that the performance of public service by them implies an exceedingly heavy pecuniary sacrifice.

It is earnestly to be desired that some method should be devised for doing away with the long delays which now obtain in the administration of justice, and which operate with peculiar severity against persons of small means, and favor only the very criminals whom it is most desirable to punish. These long delays in the final decisions of cases make in the aggregate a crying evil; and a remedy should be devised. Much of this intolerable delay is due to improper regard paid to technicalities which are a mere hindrance to justice. In some noted recent cases this over-regard for technicalities has resulted in a striking denial of justice, and flagrant wrong to the body politic.

At the last election certain leaders of organized labor made a violent and sweeping attack upon the entire judiciary of the country, an attack couched in such terms as to include the most upright, honest and broad-minded judges, no less than those of narrower mind and more restricted outlook. It was the kind of attack admirably fitted to prevent any successful attempt to reform abuses of the judiciary, because it gave the champions of the unjust judge their eagerly desired opportunity to shift their ground into a championship of just judges who were unjustly assailed. Last year, before the House Committee on the Judiciary, these same labor leaders formulated their demands, specifying the bill that contained them, refusing all compromise, stating they wished the principle of that bill or nothing. They insisted on a provision that in a labor dispute no injunction should issue except to protect a property right, and specifically provided that the right to carry on business should not be construed as a property right; and in a second provision their bill made legal in a labor dispute any act or agreement by or between two or more persons that would not have been unlawful if done by a single person. In other words, this bill legalized blacklisting and boycotting in every form, legalizing, for instance, those forms of the secondary boycott which the anthracite coal strike commission so unreservedly condemned; while the right to carry on a business was explicitly taken out from under that protection which the law throws over property. The demand was made that there should be trial by jury in contempt cases, thereby most seriously impairing the authority of the courts. All this represented a course of policy which, if carried out, would mean the enthronement of class privilege in its crudest and most brutal form, and the destruction of one of the most essential functions of the judiciary in all civilized lands.

The violence of the crusade for this legislation, and its complete failure, illustrate two truths which it is essential our people should learn. In the first place, they ought to teach the workingman, the laborer, the wageworker, that by demanding what is improper and impossible he plays into the hands of his foes. Such a crude and vicious attack upon the courts, even if it were temporarily successful, would inevitably in the end cause a violent reaction and would band the great mass of citizens together, forcing them to stand by all the judges, competent and incompetent alike, rather than to see the wheels of justice stopped. A movement of this kind can ultimately result in nothing but damage to those in whose behalf it is nominally undertaken. This is a most healthy truth, which it is wise for all our people to learn. Any movement based on that class hatred which at times assumes the name of "class consciousness" is certain ultimately to fail, and if it temporarily succeeds, to do far-reaching damage. "Class consciousness," where it is merely another name for the odious vice of class selfishness, is equally noxious whether in an employer's association or in a workingman's association. The movement in question was one in which the appeal was made to all workingmen to vote primarily, not as American citizens, but as individuals of a certain class in society. Such an appeal in the first place revolts the more high-minded and far-sighted among the persons to whom it is addressed, and in the second place tends to arouse a strong antagonism among all other classes of citizens, whom it therefore tends to unite against the very organization on whose behalf it is issued. The result is therefore unfortunate from every standpoint. This healthy truth, by the way, will be learned by the socialists if they ever succeed in establishing in this country an important national party based on such class consciousness and selfish class interest.

The wageworkers, the workingmen, the laboring men of the country by the way in which they repudiated the effort to get them to cast their votes in response to an appeal to class hatred, have emphasized their sound patriotism and Americanism. The whole country has cause to feel pride in this attitude of sturdy independence, in this uncompromising insistence upon acting simply as good citizens, as good Americans, without regard to fancied—and improper—class interests. Such an attitude is an object-lesson in good citizenship to the entire nation.

But the extreme reactionaries, the persons who blind themselves to the wrongs now and then committed by the courts on laboring men, should also think seriously as to what such a movement as this portends. The judges who have shown themselves able and willing effectively to check the dishonest activity of the very rich man who works iniquity by the mismanagement of corporations, who have shown themselves alert to do justice to the wageworker, and sympathetic with the needs of the mass of our people, so that the dweller in the tenement houses, the man who practices a dangerous trade, the man who is crushed by excessive hours of labor, feel that their needs are understood by the courts—these judges are the real bulwark of the courts; these judges, the judges of the stamp of the President-elect, who have been fearless in opposing labor when it has gone wrong, but fearless also in holding to strict account corporations that work iniquity, and far-sighted in seeing that the workingman gets his rights, are the men of all others to whom we owe it that the appeal for such violent and mistaken legislation has fallen on deaf ears, that the agitation for its passage proved to be without substantial basis. The courts are jeoparded primarily by the action of these Federal and State judges who show inability or unwillingness to put a stop to the wrongdoing of very rich men under modern industrial conditions, and inability or unwillingness to give relief to men of small means or wageworkers who are crushed down by these modern industrial conditions; who, in other words, fail to understand and apply the needed remedies for the new wrongs produced by the new and highly complex social and industrial civilization which has grown up in the last half century.

The rapid changes in our social and industrial life which have attended this rapid growth have made it necessary that, in applying to concrete cases the great rule of right laid down in our Constitution, there should be a full understanding and appreciation of the new conditions to which the rules are to be applied. What would have been an infringement upon liberty half a century ago may be the necessary safeguard of liberty to-day. What would have been an injury to property then may be necessary to the enjoyment of property now. Every judicial decision involves two terms—one, an interpretation of the law; the other, the understanding of the facts to which it is to be applied. The great mass of our judicial officers are, I believe, alive to these changes of conditions which so materially affect the performance of their judicial duties. Our judicial system is sound and effective at core, and it remains, and must ever be maintained, as the safeguard of those principles of liberty and justice which stand at the foundation of American institutions; for, as Burke finely said, when liberty and justice are separated, neither is safe. There are, however, some members of the judicial body who have lagged behind in their understanding of these great and vital changes in the body politic, whose minds have never been opened to the new applications of the old principles made necessary by the new conditions. Judges of this stamp do lasting harm by their decisions, because they convince poor men in need of protection that the courts of the land are profoundly ignorant of and out of sympathy with their needs, and profoundly indifferent or hostile to any proposed remedy. To such men it seems a cruel mockery to have any court decide against them on the ground that it desires to preserve "liberty" in a purely technical form, by withholding liberty in any real and constructive sense. It is desirable that the legislative body should possess, and wherever necessary exercise, the power to determine whether in a given case employers and employees are not on an equal footing, so that the necessities of the latter compel them to submit to such exactions as to hours and conditions of labor as unduly to tax their strength; and only mischief can result when such determination is upset on the ground that there must be no "interference with the liberty to contract"—often a merely academic "liberty," the exercise of which is the negation of real liberty.

There are certain decisions by various courts which have been exceedingly detrimental to the rights of wageworkers. This is true of all the decisions that decide that men and women are, by the Constitution, "guaranteed their liberty" to contract to enter a dangerous occupation, or to work an undesirable or improper number of hours, or to work in unhealthy surroundings; and therefore can not recover damages when maimed in that occupation and can not be forbidden to work what the legislature decides is an excessive number of hours, or to carry on the work under conditions which the legislature decides to be unhealthy. The most dangerous occupations are often the poorest paid and those where the hours of work are longest; and in many cases those who go into them are driven by necessity so great that they have practically no alternative. Decisions such as those alluded to above nullify the legislative effort to protect the wage-workers who most need protection from those employers who take advantage of their grinding need. They halt or hamper the movement for securing better and more equitable conditions of labor. The talk about preserving to the misery-hunted beings who make contracts for such service their "liberty" to make them, is either to speak in a spirit of heartless irony or else to show an utter lack of knowledge of the conditions of life among the great masses of our fellow-countrymen, a lack which unfits a judge to do good service just as it would unfit any executive or legislative officer.

There is also, I think, ground for the belief that substantial injustice is often suffered by employees in consequence of the custom of courts issuing temporary injunctions without notice to them, and punishing them for contempt of court in instances where, as a matter of fact, they have no knowledge of any proceedings. Outside of organized labor there is a widespread feeling that this system often works great injustice to wageworkers when their efforts to better their working condition result in industrial disputes. A temporary injunction procured ex parte may as a matter of fact have all the effect of a permanent injunction in causing disaster to the wage-workers' side in such a dispute. Organized labor is chafing under the unjust restraint which comes from repeated resort to this plan of procedure. Its discontent has been unwisely expressed, and often improperly expressed, but there is a sound basis for it, and the orderly and law-abiding people of a community would be in a far stronger position for upholding the courts if the undoubtedly existing abuses could be provided against.

Such proposals as those mentioned above as advocated by the extreme labor leaders, contain the vital error of being class legislation of the most offensive kind, and even if enacted into law I believe that the law would rightly be held unconstitutional. Moreover, the labor people are themselves now beginning to invoke the use of the power of injunction. During the last ten years, and within my own knowledge, at least fifty injunctions have been obtained by labor unions in New York City alone, most of them being to protect the union label (a "property right"), but some being obtained for other reasons against employers. The power of injunction is a great equitable remedy, which should on no account be destroyed. But safeguards should be erected against its abuse. I believe that some such provisions as those I advocated a year ago for checking the abuse of the issuance of temporary injunctions should be adopted. In substance, provision should be made that no injunction or temporary restraining order issue otherwise than on notice, except where irreparable injury would otherwise result; and in such case a hearing on the merits of the order should be had within a short fixed period, and, if not then continued after hearing, it should forthwith lapse. Decisions should be rendered immediately, and the chance of delay minimized in every way. Moreover, I believe that the procedure should be sharply defined, and the judge required minutely to state the particulars both of his action and of his reasons therefor, so that the Congress can, if it desires, examine and investigate the same.

The chief lawmakers in our country may be, and often are, the judges, because they are the final seat of authority. Every time they interpret contract, property, vested rights, due process of law, liberty, they necessarily enact into law parts of a system of social philosophy; and as such interpretation is fundamental, they give direction to all law-making. The decisions of the courts on economic and social questions depend upon their economic and social philosophy; and for the peaceful progress of our people during the twentieth century we shall owe most to those judges who hold to a twentieth century economic and social philosophy and not to a long outgrown philosophy, which was itself the product of primitive economic conditions. Of course a judge's views on progressive social philosophy are entirely second in importance to his possession of a high and fine character; which means the possession of such elementary virtues as honesty, courage, and fairmindedness. The judge who owes his election to pandering to demagogic sentiments or class hatreds and prejudices, and the judge who owes either his election or his appointment to the money or the favor of a great corporation, are alike unworthy to sit on the bench, are alike traitors to the people; and no profundity of legal learning, or correctness of abstract conviction on questions of public policy, can serve as an offset to such shortcomings. But it is also true that judges, like executives and legislators, should hold sound views on the questions of public policy which are of vital interest to the people.

The legislators and executives are chosen to represent the people in enacting and administering the laws. The judges are not chosen to represent the people in this sense. Their function is to interpret the laws. The legislators are responsible for the laws; the judges for the spirit in which they interpret and enforce the laws. We stand aloof from the reckless agitators who would make the judges mere pliant tools of popular prejudice and passion; and we stand aloof from those equally unwise partisans of reaction and privilege who deny the proposition that, inasmuch as judges are chosen to serve the interests of the whole people, they should strive to find out what those interests are, and, so far as they conscientiously can, should strive to give effect to popular conviction when deliberately and duly expressed by the lawmaking body. The courts are to be highly commended and staunchly upheld when they set their faces against wrongdoing or tyranny by a majority; but they are to be blamed when they fail to recognize under a government like ours the deliberate judgment of the majority as to a matter of legitimate policy, when duly expressed by the legislature. Such lawfully expressed and deliberate judgment should be given effect by the courts, save in the extreme and exceptional cases where there has been a clear violation of a constitutional provision. Anything like frivolity or wantonness in upsetting such clearly taken governmental action is a grave offense against the Republic. To protest against tyranny, to protect minorities from oppression, to nullify an act committed in a spasm of popular fury, is to render a service to the Republic. But for the courts to arrogate to themselves functions which properly belong to the legislative bodies is all wrong, and in the end works mischief. The people should not be permitted to pardon evil and slipshod legislation on the theory that the court will set it right; they should be taught that the right way to get rid of a bad law is to have the legislature repeal it, and not to have the courts by ingenious hair-splitting nullify it. A law may be unwise and improper; but it should not for these reasons be declared unconstitutional by a strained interpretation, for the result of such action is to take away from the people at large their sense of responsibility and ultimately to destroy their capacity for orderly self restraint and self government. Under such a popular government as ours, founded on the theory that in the long run the will of the people is supreme, the ultimate safety of the Nation can only rest in training and guiding the people so that what they will shall be right, and not in devising means to defeat their will by the technicalities of strained construction.

For many of the shortcomings of justice in our country our people as a whole are themselves to blame, and the judges and juries merely bear their share together with the public as a whole. It is discreditable to us as a people that there should be difficulty in convicting murderers, or in bringing to justice men who as public servants have been guilty of corruption, or who have profited by the corruption of public servants. The result is equally unfortunate, whether due to hairsplitting technicalities in the interpretation of law by judges, to sentimentality and class consciousness on the part of juries, or to hysteria and sensationalism in the daily press. For much of this failure of justice no responsibility whatever lies on rich men as such. We who make up the mass of the people can not shift the responsibility from our own shoulders. But there is an important part of the failure which has specially to do with inability to hold to proper account men of wealth who behave badly.

The chief breakdown is in dealing with the new relations that arise from the mutualism, the interdependence of our time. Every new social relation begets a new type of wrongdoing—of sin, to use an old-fashioned word—and many years always elapse before society is able to turn this sin into crime which can be effectively punished at law. During the lifetime of the older men now alive the social relations have changed far more rapidly than in the preceding two centuries. The immense growth of corporations, of business done by associations, and the extreme strain and pressure of modern life, have produced conditions which render the public confused as to who its really dangerous foes are; and among the public servants who have not only shared this confusion, but by some of their acts have increased it, are certain judges. Marked inefficiency has been shown in dealing with corporations and in re-settling the proper attitude to be taken by the public not only towards corporations, but towards labor, and towards the social questions arising out of the factory system, and the enormous growth of our great cities.

The huge wealth that has been accumulated by a few individuals of recent years, in what has amounted to a social and industrial revolution, has been as regards some of these individuals made possible only by the improper use of the modern corporation. A certain type of modern corporation, with its officers and agents, its many issues of securities, and its constant consolidation with allied undertakings, finally becomes an instrument so complex as to contain a greater number of elements that, under various judicial decisions, lend themselves to fraud and oppression than any device yet evolved in the human brain. Corporations are necessary instruments of modern business. They have been permitted to become a menace largely because the governmental representatives of the people have worked slowly in providing for adequate control over them.

The chief offender in any given case may be an executive, a legislature, or a judge. Every executive head who advises violent, instead of gradual, action, or who advocates ill-considered and sweeping measures of reform (especially if they are tainted with vindictiveness, and disregard for the rights of the minority) is particularly blameworthy. The several legislatures are responsible for the fact that our laws are often prepared with slovenly haste and lack of consideration. Moreover, they are often prepared, and still more frequently amended during passage, at the suggestion of the very parties against whom they are afterwards enforced. Our great clusters of corporations, huge trusts and fabulously wealthy multimillionaires, employ the very best lawyers they can obtain to pick flaws in these statutes after their passage; but they also employ a class of secret agents who seek, under the advice of experts, to render hostile legislation innocuous by making it unconstitutional, often through the insertion of what appear on their face to be drastic and sweeping provisions against the interests of the parties inspiring them; while the demagogues, the corrupt creatures who introduce blackmailing schemes to "strike" corporations, and all who demand extreme, and undesirably radical, measures, show themselves to be the worst enemies of the very public whose loud-mouthed champions they profess to be. A very striking illustration of the consequences of carelessness in the preparation of a statute was the employers' liability law of 1906. In the cases arising under that law, four out of six courts of first instance held it unconstitutional; six out of nine justices of the Supreme Court held that its subject-matter was within the province of congressional action; and four of the nine justices held it valid. It was, however, adjudged unconstitutional by a bare majority of the court—five to four. It was surely a very slovenly piece of work to frame the legislation in such shape as to leave the question open at all.

Real damage has been done by the manifold and conflicting interpretations of the interstate commerce law. Control over the great corporations doing interstate business can be effective only if it is vested with full power in an administrative department, a branch of the Federal executive, carrying out a Federal law; it can never be effective if a divided responsibility is left in both the States and the Nation; it can never be effective if left in the hands of the courts to be decided by lawsuits.

The courts hold a place of peculiar and deserved sanctity under our form of government. Respect for the law is essential to the permanence of our institutions; and respect for the law is largely conditioned upon respect for the courts. It is an offense against the Republic to say anything which can weaken this respect, save for the gravest reason and in the most carefully guarded manner. Our judges should be held in peculiar honor; and the duty of respectful and truthful comment and criticism, which should be binding when we speak of anybody, should be especially binding when we speak of them. On an average they stand above any other servants of the community, and the greatest judges have reached the high level held by those few greatest patriots whom the whole country delights to honor. But we must face the fact that there are wise and unwise judges, just as there are wise and unwise executives and legislators. When a president or a governor behaves improperly or unwisely, the remedy is easy, for his term is short; the same is true with the legislator, although not to the same degree, for he is one of many who belong to some given legislative body, and it is therefore less easy to fix his personal responsibility and hold him accountable therefor. With a judge, who, being human, is also likely to err, but whose tenure is for life, there is no similar way of holding him to responsibility. Under ordinary conditions the only forms of pressure to which he is in any way amenable are, public opinion, and the action of his fellow judges. It is the last which is most immediately effective, and to which we should look for the reform of abuses. Any remedy applied from without is fraught with risk. It is far better, from every standpoint, that the remedy should come from within. In no other nation in the world do the courts wield such vast and far-reaching power as in the United States. All that is necessary is that the courts as a whole should exercise this power with the farsighted wisdom already shown by those judges who scan the future while they act in the present. Let them exercise this great power not only honestly and bravely, but with wise insight into the needs and fixed purposes of the people, so that they may do justice, and work equity, so that they may protect all persons in their rights, and yet break down the barriers of privilege, which is the foe of right.

FORESTS.

If there is any one duty which more than another we owe it to our children and our children's children to perform at once, it is to save the forests of this country, for they constitute the first and most important element in the conservation of the natural resources of the country. There are of course two kinds of natural resources. One is the kind which can only be used as part of a process of exhaustion; this is true of mines, natural oil and gas wells, and the like. The other, and of course ultimately by far the most important, includes the resources which can be improved in the process of wise use; the soil, the rivers, and the forests come under this head. Any really civilized nation will so use all of these three great national assets that the nation will have their benefit in the future. Just as a farmer, after all his life making his living from his farm, will, if he is an expert farmer, leave it as an asset of increased value to his son, so we should leave our national domain to our children, increased in value and not worn out. There are small sections of our own country, in the East and in the West, in the Adirondacks, the White Mountains, and the Appalachians, and in the Rocky Mountains, where we can already see for ourselves the damage in the shape of permanent injury to the soil and the river systems which comes from reckless deforestation. It matters not whether this deforestation is due to the actual reckless cutting of timber, to the fires that inevitably follow such reckless cutting of timber, or to reckless and uncontrolled grazing, especially by the great migratory bands of sheep, the unchecked wandering of which over the country means destruction to forests and disaster to the small home makers, the settlers of limited means.

Shortsighted persons, or persons blinded to the future by desire to make money in every way out of the present, sometimes speak as if no great damage would be done by the reckless destruction of our forests. It is difficult to have patience with the arguments of these persons. Thanks to our own recklessness in the use of our splendid forests, we have already crossed the verge of a timber famine in this country, and no measures that we now take can, at least for many years, undo the mischief that has already been done. But we can prevent further mischief being done; and it would be in the highest degree reprehensible to let any consideration of temporary convenience or temporary cost interfere with such action, especially as regards the National Forests which the nation can now, at this very moment, control.

All serious students of the question are aware of the great damage that has been done in the Mediterranean countries of Europe, Asia, and Africa by deforestation. The similar damage that has been done in Eastern Asia is less well known. A recent investigation into conditions in North China by Mr. Frank N. Meyer, of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, has incidentally furnished in very striking fashion proof of the ruin that comes from reckless deforestation of mountains, and of the further fact that the damage once done may prove practically irreparable. So important are these investigations that I herewith attach as an appendix [a] to my message certain photographs showing present conditions in China. They show in vivid fashion the appalling desolation, taking the shape of barren mountains and gravel-and-sand-covered plains, which immediately follows and depends upon the deforestation of the mountains. Not many centuries ago the country of northern China was one of the most fertile and beautiful spots in the entire world, and was heavily forested. We know this not only from the old Chinese records, but from the accounts given by the traveler, Marco Polo. He, for instance, mentions that in visiting the provinces of Shansi and Shensi he observed many plantations of mulberry trees. Now there is hardly a single mulberry tree in either of these provinces, and the culture of the silkworm has moved farther south, to regions of atmospheric moisture. As an illustration of the complete change in the rivers, we may take Polo's statement that a certain river, the Hun Ho, was so large and deep that merchants ascended it from the sea with heavily laden boats; today this river is simply a broad sandy bed, with shallow, rapid currents wandering hither and thither across it, absolutely unnavigable. But we do not have to depend upon written records. The dry wells, and the wells with water far below the former watermark, bear testimony to the good days of the past and the evil days of the present. Wherever the native vegetation has been allowed to remain, as, for instance, here and there around a sacred temple or imperial burying ground, there are still huge trees and tangled jungle, fragments of the glorious ancient forests. The thick, matted forest growth formerly covered the mountains to their summits. All natural factors favored this dense forest growth, and as long as it was permitted to exist, the plains at the foot of the mountains were among the most fertile on the globe, and the whole country was a garden. Not the slightest effort was made, however, to prevent the unchecked cutting of the trees, or to secure reforestation. Doubtless for many centuries the tree-cutting by the inhabitants of the mountains worked but slowly in bringing about the changes that have now come to pass; doubtless for generations the inroads were scarcely noticeable. But there came a time when the forest had shrunk sufficiently to make each year's cutting a serious matter, and from that time on the destruction proceeded with appalling rapidity; for of course each year of destruction rendered the forest less able to recuperate, less able to resist next year's inroad. Mr. Meyer describes the ceaseless progress of the destruction even now, when there is so little left to destroy. Every morning men and boys go out armed with mattock or ax, scale the steepest mountain sides, and cut down and grub out, root and branch, the small trees and shrubs still to be found. The big trees disappeared centuries ago, so that now one of these is never seen save in the neighborhood of temples, where they are artificially protected; and even here it takes all the watch and care of the tree-loving priests to prevent their destruction. Each family, each community, where there is no common care exercised in the interest of all of them to prevent deforestation, finds its profit in the immediate use of the fuel which would otherwise be used by some other family or some other community. In the total absence of regulation of the matter in the interest of the whole people, each small group is inevitably pushed into a policy of destruction which can not afford to take thought for the morrow. This is just one of those matters which it is fatal to leave to unsupervised individual control. The forests can only be protected by the State, by the Nation; and the liberty of action of individuals must be conditioned upon what the State or Nation determines to be necessary for the common safety.

The lesson of deforestation in China is a lesson which mankind should have learned many times already from what has occurred in other places. Denudation leaves naked soil; then gullying cuts down to the bare rock; and meanwhile the rock-waste buries the bottomlands. When the soil is gone, men must go; and the process does not take long.

This ruthless destruction of the forests in northern China has brought about, or has aided in bringing about, desolation, just as the destruction of the forests in central Asia aid in bringing ruin to the once rich central Asian cities; just as the destruction of the forests in northern Africa helped towards the ruin of a region that was a fertile granary in Roman days. Shortsighted man, whether barbaric, semi-civilized, or what he mistakenly regards as fully civilized, when he has destroyed the forests, has rendered certain the ultimate destruction of the land itself. In northern China the mountains are now such as are shown by the accompanying photographs, absolutely barren peaks. Not only have the forests been destroyed, but because of their destruction the soil has been washed off the naked rock. The terrible consequence is that it is impossible now to undo the damage that has been done. Many centuries would have to pass before soil would again collect, or could be made to collect, in sufficient quantity once more to support the old-time forest growth. In consequence the Mongol Desert is practically extending eastward over northern China. The climate has changed and is still changing. It has changed even within the last half century, as the work of tree destruction has been consummated. The great masses of arboreal vegetation on the mountains formerly absorbed the heat of the sun and sent up currents of cool air which brought the moisture-laden clouds lower and forced them to precipitate in rain a part of their burden of water. Now that there is no vegetation, the barren mountains, scorched by the sun, send up currents of heated air which drive away instead of attracting the rain clouds, and cause their moisture to be disseminated. In consequence, instead of the regular and plentiful rains which existed in these regions of China when the forests were still in evidence, the unfortunate inhabitants of the deforested lands now see their crops wither for lack of rainfall, while the seasons grow more and more irregular; and as the air becomes drier certain crops refuse longer to grow at all. That everything dries out faster than formerly is shown by the fact that the level of the wells all over the land has sunk perceptibly, many of them having become totally dry. In addition to the resulting agricultural distress, the watercourses have changed. Formerly they were narrow and deep, with an abundance of clear water the year around; for the roots and humus of the forests caught the rainwater and let it escape by slow, regular seepage. They have now become broad, shallow stream beds, in which muddy water trickles in slender currents during the dry seasons, while when it rains there are freshets, and roaring muddy torrents come tearing down, bringing disaster and destruction everywhere. Moreover, these floods and freshets, which diversify the general dryness, wash away from the mountain sides, and either wash away or cover in the valleys, the rich fertile soil which it took tens of thousands of years for Nature to form; and it is lost forever, and until the forests grow again it can not be replaced. The sand and stones from the mountain sides are washed loose and come rolling down to cover the arable lands, and in consequence, throughout this part of China, many formerly rich districts are now sandy wastes, useless for human cultivation and even for pasture. The cities have been of course seriously affected, for the streams have gradually ceased to be navigable. There is testimony that even within the memory of men now living there has been a serious diminution of the rainfall of northeastern China. The level of the Sungari River in northern Manchuria has been sensibly lowered during the last fifty years, at least partly as the result of the indiscriminate cutting of the forests forming its watershed. Almost all the rivers of northern China have become uncontrollable, and very dangerous to the dwellers along their banks, as a direct result of the destruction of the forests. The journey from Pekin to Jehol shows in melancholy fashion how the soil has been washed away from whole valleys, so that they have been converted into deserts.

In northern China this disastrous process has gone on so long and has proceeded so far that no complete remedy could be applied. There are certain mountains in China from which the soil is gone so utterly that only the slow action of the ages could again restore it; although of course much could be done to prevent the still further eastward extension of the Mongolian Desert if the Chinese Government would act at once. The accompanying cuts from photographs show the inconceivable desolation of the barren mountains in which certain of these rivers rise—mountains, be it remembered, which formerly supported dense forests of larches and firs, now unable to produce any wood, and because of their condition a source of danger to the whole country. The photographs also show the same rivers after they have passed through the mountains, the beds having become broad and sandy because of the deforestation of the mountains. One of the photographs shows a caravan passing through a valley. Formerly, when the mountains were forested, it was thickly peopled by prosperous peasants. Now the floods have carried destruction all over the land and the valley is a stony desert. Another photograph shows a mountain road covered with the stones and rocks that are brought down in the rainy season from the mountains which have already been deforested by human hands. Another shows a pebbly river-bed in southern Manchuria where what was once a great stream has dried up owing to the deforestation in the mountains. Only some scrub wood is left, which will disappear within a half century. Yet another shows the effect of one of the washouts, destroying an arable mountain side, these washouts being due to the removal of all vegetation; yet in this photograph the foreground shows that reforestation is still a possibility in places.

[a] Not printed in RECORD.

What has thus happened in Northern China, what has happened in Central Asia, in Palestine, in North Africa, in parts of the Mediterranean countries of Europe, will surely happen in our country if we do not exercise that wise forethought which should be one of the chief marks of any people calling itself civilized. Nothing should be permitted to stand in the way of the preservation of the forests, and it is criminal to permit individuals to purchase a little gain for themselves through the destruction of forests when this destruction is fatal to the wellbeing of the whole country in the future.

INLAND WATERWAYS.

Action should be begun forthwith, during the present session of the Congress, for the improvement of our inland waterways—action which will result in giving us not only navigable but navigated rivers. We have spent hundreds of millions of dollars upon these waterways, yet the traffic on nearly all of them is steadily declining. This condition is the direct result of the absence of any comprehensive and far-seeing plan of waterway improvement. Obviously we can not continue thus to expend the revenues of the Government without return. It is poor business to spend money for inland navigation unless we get it.

Inquiry into the condition of the Mississippi and its principal tributaries reveals very many instances of the utter waste caused by the methods which have hitherto obtained for the so-called "improvement" of navigation. A striking instance is supplied by the "improvement" of the Ohio, which, begun in 1824, was continued under a single plan for half a century. In 1875 a new plan was adopted and followed for a quarter of a century. In 1902 still a different plan was adopted and has since been pursued at a rate which only promises a navigable river in from twenty to one hundred years longer.

Such shortsighted, vacillating, and futile methods are accompanied by decreasing water-borne commerce and increasing traffic congestion on land, by increasing floods, and by the waste of public money. The remedy lies in abandoning the methods which have so signally failed and adopting new ones in keeping with the needs and demands of our people.

In a report on a measure introduced at the first session of the present Congress, the Secretary of War said: "The chief defect in the methods hitherto pursued lies in the absence of executive authority for originating comprehensive plans covering the country or natural divisions thereof." In this opinion I heartily concur. The present methods not only fail to give us inland navigation, but they are injurious to the army as well. What is virtually a permanent detail of the corps of engineers to civilian duty necessarily impairs the efficiency of our military establishment. The military engineers have undoubtedly done efficient work in actual construction, but they are necessarily unsuited by their training and traditions to take the broad view, and to gather and transmit to the Congress the commercial and industrial information and forecasts, upon which waterway improvement must always so largely rest. Furthermore, they have failed to grasp the great underlying fact that every stream is a unit from its source to its mouth, and that all its uses are interdependent. Prominent officers of the Engineer Corps have recently even gone so far as to assert in print that waterways are not dependent upon the conservation of the forests about their headwaters. This position is opposed to all the recent work of the scientific bureaus of the Government and to the general experience of mankind. A physician who disbelieved in vaccination would not be the right man to handle an epidemic of smallpox, nor should we leave a doctor skeptical about the transmission of yellow fever by the Stegomyia mosquito in charge of sanitation at Havana or Panama. So with the improvement of our rivers; it is no longer wise or safe to leave this great work in the hands of men who fail to grasp the essential relations between navigation and general development and to assimilate and use the central facts about our streams.

Until the work of river improvement is undertaken in a modern way it can not have results that will meet the needs of this modern nation. These needs should be met without further dilly-dallying or delay. The plan which promises the best and quickest results is that of a permanent commission authorized to coordinate the work of all the Government departments relating to waterways, and to frame and supervise the execution of a comprehensive plan. Under such a commission the actual work of construction might be entrusted to the reclamation service; or to the military engineers acting with a sufficient number of civilians to continue the work in time of war; or it might be divided between the reclamation service and the corps of engineers. Funds should be provided from current revenues if it is deemed wise—otherwise from the sale of bonds. The essential thing is that the work should go forward under the best possible plan, and with the least possible delay. We should have a new type of work and a new organization for planning and directing it. The time for playing with our waterways is past. The country demands results.

NATIONAL PARKS.

I urge that all our National parks adjacent to National forests be placed completely under the control of the forest service of the Agricultural Department, instead of leaving them as they now are, under the Interior Department and policed by the army. The Congress should provide for superintendents with adequate corps of first-class civilian scouts, or rangers, and further, place the road construction under the superintendent instead of leaving it with the War Department. Such a change in park management would result in economy and avoid the difficulties of administration which now arise from having the responsibility of care and protection divided between different departments. The need for this course is peculiarly great in the Yellowstone Park. This, like the Yosemite, is a great wonderland, and should be kept as a national playground. In both all wild things should be protected, and the scenery kept wholly unmarred.

I am happy to say that I have been able to set aside in various parts of the country small, well-chosen tracts of ground to serve as sanctuaries and nurseries for wild creatures.

DENATURED ALCOHOL.

I had occasion in my message of May 4, 1906, to urge the passage of some law putting alcohol, used in the arts, industries, and manufactures, upon the free list; that is, to provide for the withdrawal free of tax of alcohol which is to be denatured for those purposes. The law of June 7, 1906, and its amendment of March 2, 1907, accomplished what was desired in that respect, and the use of denatured alcohol, as intended, is making a fair degree of progress and is entitled to further encouragement and support from the Congress.

PURE FOOD.

The pure food legislation has already worked a benefit difficult to overestimate.

INDIAN SERVICE.

It has been my purpose from the beginning of my administration to take the Indian Service completely out of the atmosphere of political activity, and there has been steady progress toward that end. The last remaining stronghold of politics in that service was the agency system, which had seen its best days and was gradually falling to pieces from natural or purely evolutionary causes, but, like all such survivals, was decaying slowly in its later stages. It seems clear that its extinction had better be made final now, so that the ground can be cleared for larger constructive work on behalf of the Indians, preparatory to their induction into the full measure of responsible citizenship. On November 1 only eighteen agencies were left on the roster; with two exceptions, where some legal questions seemed to stand temporarily in the way, these have been changed to superintendencies, and their heads brought into the classified civil service.

SECRET SERVICE.

Last year an amendment was incorporated in the measure providing for the Secret Service, which provided that there should be no detail from the Secret Service and no transfer therefrom. It is not too much to say that this amendment has been of benefit only, and could be of benefit only, to the criminal classes. If deliberately introduced for the purpose of diminishing the effectiveness of war against crime it could not have been better devised to this end. It forbade the practices that had been followed to a greater or less extent by the executive heads of various departments for twenty years. To these practices we owe the securing of the evidence which enabled us to drive great lotteries out of business and secure a quarter of a million of dollars in fines from their promoters. These practices have enabled us to discover some of the most outrageous frauds in connection with the theft of government land and government timber by great corporations and by individuals. These practices have enabled us to get some of the evidence indispensable in order to secure the conviction of the wealthiest and most formidable criminals with whom the Government has to deal, both those operating in violation of the anti-trust law and others. The amendment in question was of benefit to no one excepting to these criminals, and it seriously hampers the Government in the detection of crime and the securing of justice. Moreover, it not only affects departments outside of the Treasury but it tends to hamper the Secretary of the Treasury himself in the effort to utilize the employees of his department so as to best meet the requirements of the public service. It forbids him from preventing frauds upon the customs service, from investigating irregularities in branch mints and assay offices, and has seriously crippled him. It prevents the promotion of employees in the Secret Service, and this further discourages good effort. In its present form the restriction operates only to the advantage of the criminal, of the wrongdoer. The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the Congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by Secret Service men. Very little of such investigation has been done in the past; but it is true that the work of the Secret Service agents was partly responsible for the indictment and conviction of a Senator and a Congressman for land frauds in Oregon. I do not believe that it is in the public interest to protect criminals in any branch of the public service, and exactly as we have again and again during the past seven years prosecuted and convicted such criminals who were in the executive branch of the Government, so in my belief we should be given ample means to prosecute them if found in the legislative branch. But if this is not considered desirable a special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the Secret Service force in investigating members of Congress. It would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done, and strive to prevent or at least to hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the Government.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

I again renew my recommendation for postal savings banks, for depositing savings with the security of the Government behind them. The object is to encourage thrift and economy in the wage-earner and person of moderate means. In fourteen States the deposits in savings banks as reported to the Comptroller of the Currency amount to $3,590,245,402, or 98.4 per cent of the entire deposits, while in the remaining 32 States there are only $70,308,543, or 1.6 per cent, showing conclusively that there are many localities in the United States where sufficient opportunity is not given to the people to deposit their savings. The result is that money is kept in hiding and unemployed. It is believed that in the aggregate vast sums of money would be brought into circulation through the instrumentality of the postal savings banks. While there are only 1,453 savings banks reporting to the Comptroller there are more than 61,000 post-offices, 40,000 of which are money order offices. Postal savings banks are now in operation in practically all the great civilized countries with the exception of the United States.

PARCEL POST.

In my last annual message I commended the Postmaster-General's recommendation for an extension of the parcel post on the rural routes. The establishment of a local parcel post on rural routes would be to the mutual benefit of the farmer and the country storekeeper, and it is desirable that the routes, serving more than 15,000,000 people, should be utilized to the fullest practicable extent. An amendment was proposed in the Senate at the last session, at the suggestion of the Postmaster-General, providing that, for the purpose of ascertaining the practicability of establishing a special local parcel post system on the rural routes throughout the United States, the Postmaster-General be authorized and directed to experiment and report to the Congress the result of such experiment by establishing a special local parcel post system on rural delivery routes in not to exceed four counties in the United States for packages of fourth-class matter originating on a rural route or at the distributing post office for delivery by rural carriers. It would seem only proper that such an experiment should be tried in order to demonstrate the practicability of the proposition, especially as the Posmaster-General estimates that the revenue derived from the operation of such a system on all the rural routes would amount to many million dollars.

EDUCATION.

The share that the National Government should take in the broad work of education has not received the attention and the care it rightly deserves. The immediate responsibility for the support and improvement of our educational systems and institutions rests and should always rest with the people of the several States acting through their state and local governments, but the Nation has an opportunity in educational work which must not be lost and a duty which should no longer be neglected.

The National Bureau of Education was established more than forty years ago. Its purpose is to collect and diffuse such information "as shall aid the people of the United States in the establishment and maintenance of efficient school systems and otherwise promote the cause of education throughout the country." This purpose in no way conflicts with the educational work of the States, but may be made of great advantage to the States by giving them the fullest, most accurate, and hence the most helpful information and suggestion regarding the best educational systems. The Nation, through its broader field of activities, its wider opportunity for obtaining information from all the States and from foreign countries, is able to do that which not even the richest States can do, and with the distinct additional advantage that the information thus obtained is used for the immediate benefit of all our people.

With the limited means hitherto provided, the Bureau of Education has rendered efficient service, but the Congress has neglected to adequately supply the bureau with means to meet the educational growth of the country. The appropriations for the general work of the bureau, outside education in Alaska, for the year 1909 are but $87,500—an amount less than they were ten years ago, and some of the important items in these appropriations are less than they were thirty years ago. It is an inexcusable waste of public money to appropriate an amount which is so inadequate as to make it impossible properly to do the work authorized, and it is unfair to the great educational interests of the country to deprive them of the value of the results which can be obtained by proper appropriations.

I earnestly recommend that this unfortunate state of affairs as regards the national educational office be remedied by adequate appropriations. This recommendation is urged by the representatives of our common schools and great state universities and the leading educators, who all unite in requesting favorable consideration and action by the Congress upon this subject.

CENSUS.

I strongly urge that the request of the Director of the Census in connection with the decennial work so soon to be begun, be complied with and that the appointments to the census force be placed under the civil service law, waiving the geographical requirements as requested by the Director of the Census. The supervisors and enumerators should not be appointed under the civil service law, for the reasons given by the Director. I commend to the Congress the careful consideration of the admirable report of the Director of the Census, and I trust that his recommendations will be adopted and immediate action thereon taken.

REDISTRIBUTION OF BUREAUS.

It is highly advisable that there should be intelligent action on the part of the Nation on the question of preserving the health of the country. Through the practical extermination in San Francisco of disease-bearing rodents our country has thus far escaped the bubonic plague. This is but one of the many achievements of American health officers; and it shows what can be accomplished with a better organization than at present exists.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

The dangers to public health from food adulterations and from many other sources, such as the menace to the physical, mental and moral development of children from child labor, should be met and overcome. There are numerous diseases, which are now known to be preventable, which are, nevertheless, not prevented. The recent International Congress on Tuberculosis has made us painfully aware of the inadequacy of American public health legislation. This Nation can not afford to lag behind in the world-wide battle now being waged by all civilized people with the microscopic foes of mankind, nor ought we longer to ignore the reproach that this Government takes more pains to protect the lives of hogs and of cattle than of human beings. The first legislative step to be taken is that for the concentration of the proper bureaus into one of the existing departments. I therefore urgently recommend the passage of a bill which shall authorize a redistribution of the bureaus which shall best accomplish this end.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

I recommend that legislation be enacted placing under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce and Labor the Government Printing Office. At present this office is under the combined control, supervision, and administrative direction of the President and of the Joint Committee on Printing of the two Houses of the Congress. The advantage of having the 4,069 employees in this office and the expenditure of the $5,761,377.57 appropriated therefor supervised by an executive department is obvious, instead of the present combined supervision.

SOLDIERS' HOMES.

All Soldiers' Homes should be placed under the complete jurisdiction and control of the War Department.

INDEPENDENT BUREAUS AND COMMISSIONS.

Economy and sound business policy require that all existing independent bureaus and commissions should be placed under the jurisdiction of appropriate executive departments. It is unwise from every standpoint, and results only in mischief, to have any executive work done save by the purely executive bodies, under the control of the President; and each such executive body should be under the immediate supervision of a Cabinet Minister.

STATEHOOD.

I advocate the immediate admission of New Mexico and Arizona as States. This should be done at the present session of the Congress. The people of the two Territories have made it evident by their votes that they will not come in as one State. The only alternative is to admit them as two, and I trust that this will be done without delay.

INTERSTATE FISHERIES.

I call the attention of the Congress to the importance of the problem of the fisheries in the interstate waters. On the Great Lakes we are now, under the very wise treaty of April 11th of this year, endeavoring to come to an international agreement for the preservation and satisfactory use of the fisheries of these waters which can not otherwise be achieved. Lake Erie, for example, has the richest fresh water fisheries in the world; but it is now controlled by the statutes of two Nations, four States, and one Province, and in this Province by different ordinances in different counties. All these political divisions work at cross purposes, and in no case can they achieve protection to the fisheries, on the one hand, and justice to the localities and individuals on the other. The case is similar in Puget Sound.

But the problem is quite as pressing in the interstate waters of the United States. The salmon fisheries of the Columbia River are now but a fraction of what they were twenty-five years ago, and what they would be now if the United States Government had taken complete charge of them by intervening between Oregon and Washington. During these twenty-five years the fishermen of each State have naturally tried to take all they could get, and the two legislatures have never been able to agree on joint action of any kind adequate in degree for the protection of the fisheries. At the moment the fishing on the Oregon side is practically closed, while there is no limit on the Washington side of any kind, and no one can tell what the courts will decide as to the very statutes under which this action and nonaction result. Meanwhile very few salmon reach the spawning grounds, and probably four years hence the fisheries will amount to nothing; and this comes from a struggle between the associated, or gill-net, fishermen on the one hand, and the owners of the fishing wheels up the river. The fisheries of the Mississippi, the Ohio, and the Potomac are also in a bad way. For this there is no remedy except for the United States to control and legislate for the interstate fisheries as part of the business of interstate commerce. In this case the machinery for scientific investigation and for control already exists in the United States Bureau of Fisheries. In this as in similar problems the obvious and simple rule should be followed of having those matters which no particular State can manage taken in hand by the United States; problems, which in the seesaw of conflicting State legislatures are absolutely unsolvable, are easy enough for the Congress to control.

FISHERIES AND FUR SEALS.

The federal statute regulating interstate traffic in game should be extended to include fish. New federal fish hatcheries should be established. The administration of the Alaskan fur-seal service should be vested in the Bureau of Fisheries.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

This Nation's foreign policy is based on the theory that right must be done between nations precisely as between individuals, and in our actions for the last ten years we have in this matter proven our faith by our deeds. We have behaved, and are behaving, towards other nations, as in private life an honorable man would behave towards his fellows.

LATIN-AMERICAN REPUBLICS.

The commercial and material progress of the twenty Latin-American Republics is worthy of the careful attention of the Congress. No other section of the world has shown a greater proportionate development of its foreign trade during the last ten years and none other has more special claims on the interest of the United States. It offers to-day probably larger opportunities for the legitimate expansion of our commerce than any other group of countries. These countries will want our products in greatly increased quantities, and we shall correspondingly need theirs. The International Bureau of the American Republics is doing a useful work in making these nations and their resources better known to us, and in acquainting them not only with us as a people and with our purposes towards them, but with what we have to exchange for their goods. It is an international institution supported by all the governments of the two Americas.

PANAMA CANAL.

The work on the Panama Canal is being done with a speed, efficiency and entire devotion to duty, which make it a model for all work of the kind. No task of such magnitude has ever before been undertaken by any nation; and no task of the kind has ever been better performed. The men on the Isthmus, from Colonel Goethals and his fellow commissioners through the entire list of employees who are faithfully doing their duty, have won their right to the ungrudging respect and gratitude of the American people.

OCEAN MAIL LINES.

I again recommend the extension of the ocean mail act of 1891 so that satisfactory American ocean mail lines to South America, Asia, the Philippines, and Australasia may be established. The creation of such steamship lines should be the natural corollary of the voyage of the battle fleet. It should precede the opening of the Panama Canal. Even under favorable conditions several years must elapse before such lines can be put into operation. Accordingly I urge that the Congress act promptly where foresight already shows that action sooner or later will be inevitable.

HAWAII.

I call particular attention to the Territory of Hawaii. The importance of those islands is apparent, and the need of improving their condition and developing their resources is urgent. In recent years industrial conditions upon the islands have radically changed. The importation of coolie labor has practically ceased, and there is now developing such a diversity in agricultural products as to make possible a change in the land conditions of the Territory, so that an opportunity may be given to the small land owner similar to that on the mainland. To aid these changes, the National Government must provide the necessary harbor improvements on each island, so that the agricultural products can be carried to the markets of the world. The coastwise shipping laws should be amended to meet the special needs of the islands, and the alien contract labor law should be so modified in its application to Hawaii as to enable American and European labor to be brought thither.

We have begun to improve Pearl Harbor for a naval base and to provide the necessary military fortifications for the protection of the islands, but I can not too strongly emphasize the need of appropriations for these purposes of such an amount as will within the shortest possible time make those islands practically impregnable. It is useless to develop the industrial conditions of the islands and establish there bases of supply for our naval and merchant fleets unless we insure, as far as human ingenuity can, their safety from foreign seizure.

One thing to be remembered with all our fortifications is that it is almost useless to make them impregnable from the sea if they are left open to land attack. This is true even of our own coast, but it is doubly true of our insular possessions. In Hawaii, for instance, it is worse than useless to establish a naval station unless we establish it behind fortifications so strong that no landing force can take them save by regular and long-continued siege operations.

THE PHILIPPINES.

Real progress toward self-government is being made in the Philippine Islands. The gathering of a Philippine legislative body and Philippine assembly marks a process absolutely new in Asia, not only as regards Asiatic colonies of European powers but as regards Asiatic possessions of other Asiatic powers; and, indeed, always excepting the striking and wonderful example afforded by the great Empire of Japan, it opens an entirely new departure when compared with anything which has happened among Asiatic powers which are their own masters. Hitherto this Philippine legislature has acted with moderation and self-restraint, and has seemed in practical fashion to realize the eternal truth that there must always be government, and that the only way in which any body of individuals can escape the necessity of being governed by outsiders is to show that they are able to restrain themselves, to keep down wrongdoing and disorder. The Filipino people, through their officials, are therefore making real steps in the direction of self-government. I hope and believe that these steps mark the beginning of a course which will continue till the Filipinos become fit to decide for themselves whether they desire to be an independent nation. But it is well for them (and well also for those Americans who during the past decade have done so much damage to the Filipinos by agitation for an immediate independence for which they were totally unfit) to remember that self-government depends, and must depend, upon the Filipinos themselves. All we can do is to give them the opportunity to develop the capacity for self-government. If we had followed the advice of the foolish doctrinaires who wished us at any time during the last ten years to turn the Filipino people adrift, we should have shirked the plainest possible duty and have inflicted a lasting wrong upon the Filipino people. We have acted in exactly the opposite spirit. We have given the Filipinos constitutional government; a government based upon justice; and we have shown that we have governed them for their good and not for our aggrandizement. At the present time, as during the past ten years, the inexorable logic of facts shows that this Government must be supplied by us and not by them. We must be wise and generous; we must help the Filipinos to master the difficult art of self-control, which is simply another name for self-government. But we can not give them self-government save in the sense of governing them so that gradually they may, if they are able, learn to govern themselves. Under the present system of just laws and sympathetic administration, we have every reason to believe that they are gradually acquiring the character which lies at the basis of self-government, and for which, if it be lacking, no system of laws, no paper constitution, will in any wise serve as a substitute. Our people in the Philippines have achieved what may legitimately be called a marvelous success in giving to them a government which marks on the part of those in authority both the necessary understanding of the people and the necessary purpose to serve them disinterestedly and in good faith. I trust that within a generation the time will arrive when the Philippines can decide for themselves whether it is well for them to become independent, or to continue under the protection of a strong and disinterested power, able to guarantee to the islands order at home and protection from foreign invasion. But no one can prophesy the exact date when it will be wise to consider independence as a fixed and definite policy. It would be worse than folly to try to set down such a date in advance, for it must depend upon the way in which the Philippine people themselves develop the power of self-mastery.

PORTO RICO.

I again recommend that American citizenship be conferred upon the people of Porto Rico.

CUBA.

In Cuba our occupancy will cease in about two months' time; the Cubans have in orderly manner elected their own governmental authorities, and the island will be turned over to them. Our occupation on this occasion has lasted a little over two years, and Cuba has thriven and prospered under it. Our earnest hope and one desire is that the people of the island shall now govern themselves with justice, so that peace and order may be secure. We will gladly help them to this end; but I would solemnly warn them to remember the great truth that the only way a people can permanently avoid being governed from without is to show that they both can and will govern themselves from within.

JAPANESE EXPOSITION.

The Japanese Government has postponed until 1917 the date of the great international exposition, the action being taken so as to insure ample time in which to prepare to make the exposition all that it should be made. The American commissioners have visited Japan and the postponement will merely give ampler opportunity for America to be represented at the exposition. Not since the first international exposition has there been one of greater importance than this will be, marking as it does the fiftieth anniversary of the ascension to the throne of the Emperor of Japan. The extraordinary leap to a foremost place among the nations of the world made by Japan during this half century is something unparalleled in all previous history. This exposition will fitly commemorate and signalize the giant progress that has been achieved. It is the first exposition of its kind that has ever been held in Asia. The United States, because of the ancient friendship between the two peoples, because each of us fronts on the Pacific, and because of the growing commercial relations between this country and Asia, takes a peculiar interest in seeing the exposition made a success in every way.

I take this opportunity publicly to state my appreciation of the way in which in Japan, in Australia, in New Zealand, and in all the States of South America, the battle fleet has been received on its practice voyage around the world. The American Government can not too strongly express its appreciation of the abounding and generous hospitality shown our ships in every port they visited.

THE ARMY.

As regards the Army I call attention to the fact that while our junior officers and enlisted men stand very high, the present system of promotion by seniority results in bringing into the higher grades many men of mediocre capacity who have but a short time to serve. No man should regard it as his vested right to rise to the highest rank in the Army any more than in any other profession. It is a curious and by no means creditable fact that there should be so often a failure on the part of the public and its representatives, to understand the great need, from the standpoint of the service and the Nation, of refusing to promote respectable, elderly incompetents. The higher places should be given to the most deserving men without regard to seniority; at least seniority should be treated as only one consideration. In the stress of modern industrial competition no business firm could succeed if those responsible for its management were chosen simply on the ground that they were the oldest people in its employment; yet this is the course advocated as regards the Army, and required by law for all grades except those of general officer. As a matter of fact, all of the best officers in the highest ranks of the Army are those who have attained their present position wholly or in part by a process of selection.

The scope of retiring boards should be extended so that they could consider general unfitness to command for any cause, in order to secure a far more rigid enforcement than at present in the elimination of officers for mental, physical or temperamental disabilities. But this plan is recommended only if the Congress does not see fit to provide what in my judgment is far better; that is, for selection in promotion, and for elimination for age. Officers who fail to attain a certain rank by a certain age should be retired—for instance, if a man should not attain field rank by the time he is 45 he should of course be placed on the retired list. General officers should be selected as at present, and one-third of the other promotions should be made by selection, the selection to be made by the President or the Secretary of War from a list of at least two candidates proposed for each vacancy by a board of officers from the arm of the service from which the promotion is to be made. A bill is now before the Congress having for its object to secure the promotion of officers to various grades at reasonable ages through a process of selection, by boards of officers, of the least efficient for retirement with a percentage of their pay depending upon length of service. The bill, although not accomplishing all that should be done, is a long step in the right direction; and I earnestly recommend its passage, or that of a more completely effective measure.

The cavalry arm should be reorganized upon modern lines. This is an arm in which it is peculiarly necessary that the field officers should not be old. The cavalry is much more difficult to form than infantry, and it should be kept up to the maximum both in efficiency and in strength, for it can not be made in a hurry. At present both infantry and artillery are too few in number for our needs. Especial attention should be paid to development of the machine gun. A general service corps should be established. As things are now the average soldier has far too much labor of a nonmilitary character to perform.

NATIONAL GUARD.

Now that the organized militia, the National Guard, has been incorporated with the Army as a part of the national forces, it behooves the Government to do every reasonable thing in its power to perfect its efficiency. It should be assisted in its instruction and otherwise aided more liberally than heretofore. The continuous services of many well-trained regular officers will be essential in this connection. Such officers must be specially trained at service schools best to qualify them as instructors of the National Guard. But the detailing of officers for training at the service schools and for duty with the National Guard entails detaching them from their regiments which are already greatly depleted by detachment of officers for assignment to duties prescribed by acts of the Congress.

A bill is now pending before the Congress creating a number of extra officers in the Army, which if passed, as it ought to be, will enable more officers to be trained as instructors of National Guard and assigned to that duty. In case of war it will be of the utmost importance to have a large number of trained officers to use for turning raw levies into good troops.

There should be legislation to provide a complete plan for organizing the great body of volunteers behind the Regular Army and National Guard when war has come. Congressional assistance should be given those who are endeavoring to promote rifle practice so that our men, in the services or out of them, may know how to use the rifle. While teams representing the United States won the rifle and revolver championships of the world against all comers in England this year, it is unfortunately true that the great body of our citizens shoot less and less as time goes on. To meet this we should encourage rifle practice among schoolboys, and indeed among all classes, as well as in the military services, by every means in our power. Thus, and not otherwise, may we be able to assist in preserving the peace of the world. Fit to hold our own against the strong nations of the earth, our voice for peace will carry to the ends of the earth. Unprepared, and therefore unfit, we must sit dumb and helpless to defend ourselves, protect others, or preserve peace. The first step—in the direction of preparation to avert war if possible, and to be fit for war if it should come—is to teach our men to shoot.

THE NAVY.

I approve the recommendations of the General Board for the increase of the Navy, calling especial attention to the need of additional destroyers and colliers, and above all, of the four battleships. It is desirable to complete as soon as possible a squadron of eight battleships of the best existing type. The North Dakota, Delaware, Florida, and Utah will form the first division of this squadron. The four vessels proposed will form the second division. It will be an improvement on the first, the ships being of the heavy, single caliber, all big gun type. All the vessels should have the same tactical qualities, that is, speed and turning circle, and as near as possible these tactical qualities should be the same as is in the four vessels before named now being built.

I most earnestly recommend that the General Board be by law turned into a General Staff. There is literally no excuse whatever for continuing the present bureau organization of the Navy. The Navy should be treated as a purely military organization, and everything should be subordinated to the one object of securing military efficiency. Such military efficiency can only be guaranteed in time of war if there is the most thorough previous preparation in time of peace—a preparation, I may add, which will in all probability prevent any need of war. The Secretary must be supreme, and he should have as his official advisers a body of line officers who should themselves have the power to pass upon and coordinate all the work and all the proposals of the several bureaus. A system of promotion by merit, either by selection or by exclusion, or by both processes, should be introduced. It is out of the question, if the present principle of promotion by mere seniority is kept, to expect to get the best results from the higher officers. Our men come too old, and stay for too short a time, in the high command positions.

Two hospital ships should be provided. The actual experience of the hospital ship with the fleet in the Pacific has shown the invaluable work which such a ship does, and has also proved that it is well to have it kept under the command of a medical officer. As was to be expected, all of the anticipations of trouble from such a command have proved completely baseless. It is as absurd to put a hospital ship under a line officer as it would be to put a hospital on shore under such a command. This ought to have been realized before, and there is no excuse for failure to realize it now.

Nothing better for the Navy from every standpoint has ever occurred than the cruise of the battle fleet around the world. The improvement of the ships in every way has been extraordinary, and they have gained far more experience in battle tactics than they would have gained if they had stayed in the Atlantic waters. The American people have cause for profound gratification, both in view of the excellent condition of the fleet as shown by this cruise, and in view of the improvement the cruise has worked in this already high condition. I do not believe that there is any other service in the world in which the average of character and efficiency in the enlisted men is as high as is now the case in our own. I believe that the same statement can be made as to our officers, taken as a whole; but there must be a reservation made in regard to those in the highest ranks—as to which I have already spoken—and in regard to those who have just entered the service; because we do not now get full benefit from our excellent naval school at Annapolis. It is absurd not to graduate the midshipmen as ensigns; to keep them for two years in such an anomalous position as at present the law requires is detrimental to them and to the service. In the academy itself, every first classman should be required to turn to serve as petty officer and officer; his ability to discharge his duties as such should be a prerequisite to his going into the line, and his success in commanding should largely determine his standing at graduation. The Board of Visitors should be appointed in January, and each member should be required to give at least six days' service, only from one to three days' to be performed during June week, which is the least desirable time for the board to be at Annapolis so far as benefiting the Navy by their observations is concerned.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, Tuesday, December 8, 1908.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message will be printed and lie on the table.

HULL CITY PLACER MINING CLAIM.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate of the United States:

In response to Senate resolution No. 207, of May 29, 1908, as follows:

"Whereas on the 5th day of February, 1898, patent was issued to W. S. Montgomery and others for the Hull City placer mining claim, situate in the Pueblo (Colo.) land district; and

"Whereas it is alleged said patent was secured through bribery, perjury, and subornation of perjury, and other wrongful acts on the part of those securing said patent; and

"Whereas the attention of the Interior Department and Department of Justice has been called to the aforesaid charges and proof of said wrongful acts furnished said departments, and no action has been taken thereon: Therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior and the Attorney-General of the United States be, and they are hereby, directed to transmit to the Senate of the United States all correspondence of every kind and description between any officer, agent, or employee of the United States Government and any other person or persons whomsoever, pertaining or appertaining to said matter."

I transmit herewith a communication from the Attorney-General, which sets forth all the facts of any importance contained in the correspondence called for by the resolution. There are a great number of documents, altogether too many for the department to be able to copy with its present force of clerks. To have these documents copied would, in my judgment, necessitate a wasteful expenditure of public money which ought not to be incurred until the attention of the Senate has been specifically called to the facts. If after consideration of the facts the Senate feels that the documents should be copied, an appropriation should be made for that purpose.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

JUVENILE COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the Second Annual Report of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, with accompanying papers, for the consideration of the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

RELATIONS WITH COLOMBIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate:

I transmit herewith the accompanying papers in response to the resolution of the Senate of May 5, 1908, requesting the President, if not in his judgment incompatible with the interests of the public service, to communicate to the Senate all correspondence since January 18, 1904, relative to any further request by Colombia for arbitration, if such request was made, and any response of this Government thereto.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

PLAZUELA SUGAR COMPANY, PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of a franchise granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to the Plazuela Sugar Company the right to construct, maintain, and operate a pier on the sea front at 'Palmas Altas,' in the municipal district of Manati."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES IN PANAMA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the report of the special commission appointed by me to investigate conditions of labor and housing of government employees on the Isthmus of Panama. The commission made careful and extended inspection of the workshops and living quarters of the employees and conferred with representatives from all classes of workmen employed by the Isthmian Canal Commission and the Panama Railroad. After a thorough investigation the commission state that "The general sentiment of the workers was expressed in the words of a mechanic in one of the conferences which we held with representatives of different trades: 'We want it understood that we are American citizens and that we are proud to have a share in this great work. We believe the Government is treating us right, and we are as much interested to see this thing a success as anyone.' This spirit of loyalty and interest in the work was evinced on many occasions and should be accounted an asset of the highest value to the Government in the accomplishment of its colossal task. The American people are entitled to just pride in the standard set by their Government for the treatment of the workers and the loyal service which has been the appropriate result."

The commission expresses the hope that "the liberal and progressive policy adopted in civil administration, in education, and in the care and treatment of employees of all races will be maintained and that progress and improvement will be the watchword to the end." I am glad that the official reports previously received are confirmed by these unprejudiced investigators.

The commission submitted valuable recommendations regarding minor defects of the service. Such of these as come under executive authority I have ordered put into effect as far as possible. But I would call the attention of the Congress to the recommendation that the liberal housing policy of the administration be continued as an essential condition of the industrial efficiency of the employees.

I especially urge your favorable consideration of the recommendation to make a more liberal provision for employees permanently disabled in work on the Isthmian Canal. In the event of permanent disablement those engaged in this great national enterprise should receive as generous treatment as is accorded to those who have been disabled in the defense of their country. After faithful and hazardous service these workers should not, when disabled, become public charges in almshouses or burdens upon relatives unable to provide for their support.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

VOLUNTEER ARMY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the draft of a bill intended to replace the present law under which the United States in time of emergency would proceed to raise a volunteer army. What we now have on the statute books was placed there piecemeal and hurriedly, partly on the eve of the war with Spain and partly after hostilities had actually commenced.

Everyone familiar with the existing law is aware that it is faulty and wholly inadequate to a speedy and proper organization of a volunteer force, and that in part it has become obsolete through recent legislation affecting the organized militia. This proposed measure was drawn up under the supervision of the Chief of Staff and has the hearty approval of the War Department. It is a carefully prepared draft embodying as much of the existing law as seems wise and designed to afford the complete machinery by which, should we be confronted with a foreign war, the executive power could proceed at once to transform enthusiastic and patriotic citizens into efficient and organized soldiers. Happily there is at present no cloud upon our horizon, but that very fact affords us the best opportunity to proceed with deliberation and care in the preparation of laws adequate and indispensable for our possible war needs.

This measure would not call for a dollar's expenditure during the years of peace, and its enactment into law now would merely be to place at the disposition of the executive power machinery whereby, should war threaten, the means to wage it could be swiftly brought into being. To do this, however, requires not merely adequate legislative provision. Grounded upon the law there must be a vast mass of detail wrought into a comprehensive plan and ready upon the instant to be set into motion. The Congress has provided a General Staff Corps and built for the War College a permanent and beautiful home, and the next logical step is to pass a comprehensive volunteer act to the end that the existing agencies may work out in advance the details of its execution.

The proposed bill is elastic: Under its provisions a force of 2,000,000 men could be raised as well as one of 50,000. In making a volunteer army a sufficient staff is indispensable at the start, since without it organization can not proceed. This bill provides for this need and for every other matter connected with raising a volunteer force which it is thought wise to incorporate in the law. It was prepared under the direction of Mr. Taft when Secretary of War, and has, therefore, the approval of the gentleman who is to be my successor as Commander in Chief, and I trust it may commend itself to the favorable consideration of the Congress as it has to mine.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

JOINT INAUGURAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. KNOX, from the Committee on Rules, reported the following concurrent resolution, which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That a joint committee consisting of three Senators and three Representatives, to be appointed by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, respectively, is authorized to make the necessary arrangements for the inauguration of the President-elect of the United States on the 4th day of March next.

BILL INTRODUCED.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 7274) to create in the War and Navy departments, respectively, a roll to be known as the "Civil war officers' annuity honor roll," to authorize placing thereon with pay certain surviving officers who served in the Volunteer or Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States in the civil war, and who are not now on the retired list of the Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVES PARKER, WILEY, AND POWERS.

Mr. GAMBLE. Mr. President, I submit the resolution which I send to the desk and ask for its adoption.

The resolution was read, considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. WILLIAM H. PARKER, late a Representative from the State of South Dakota.

Mr. JOHNSTON submitted the following resolution, which was read, considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. ARIOSTO A. WILEY, late a Representative from the State of Alabama.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, I venture to inquire if there are other resolutions of a similar nature to be offered. If not, in behalf of the senior Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE], I offer the following resolutions.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions submitted by the Senator from New Hampshire will be read by the Secretary.

The resolutions were read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. LLEWELLYN POWERS, late a Representative from the State of Maine.

Resolved, That as an additional mark of respect to the memory of those Representatives whose deaths have been announced the Senate do now adjourn.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolutions submitted by the Senator from New Hampshire.

The resolutions were unanimously agreed to; and (at 2 o'clock p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, December 9, 1908, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 8, 1908.

SUPERVISING INSPECTOR OF STEAM VESSELS.

Daniel J. Dougherty, of Pennsylvania, who was appointed August 7, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be supervising inspector of steam vessels for the seventh district, in the Steamboat-Inspection Service, Department of Commerce and Labor.

CONSULS-GENERAL.

John P. Bray, of North Dakota, lately consul-general at Melbourne, to be consul-general of the United States of class 4 at Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Hector de Castro, of New York, lately consul-general at Rome, to be consul-general of the United States of class 5 at Zurich, Switzerland, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Adam Lieberknecht, declined transfer.

Ernest L. Harris, of Illinois, lately consul of class 6 at Smyrna, to be consul-general of the United States of class 6 at Smyrna, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John Edward Jones, of the District of Columbia, lately consul of class 6 at Winnipeg, to be consul-general of the United States of class 5 at Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Paul Nash, of New York, lately consul at Rheims, to be consul-general of the United States of class 6 at Budapest, Hungary, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Frank Dyer Chester, resigned.

James A. Smith, of Vermont, lately consul-general of class 5 at Boma, to be consul-general of the United States of class 5 at Genoa, Italy, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Hunter Sharp, of North Carolina, lately consul of class 3 at Kobe, to be consul-general of the United States of class 4 at Moscow, Russia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Samuel Smith, recalled.

Robert P. Skinner, of Ohio, lately consul-general of class 4 at Marseille, to be consul-general of the United States of class 2 at Hamburg, Germany, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Hugh Pitcairn, recalled.

George N. West, of the District of Columbia, lately consul of class 7 at Sydney, Nova Scotia, to be consul-general of the United States of class 5 at Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice L. Edwin Dudley, recalled.

Horace Lee Washington, of the District of Columbia, lately consul-general at large, to be consul-general of the United States of class 4 at Marseille, France, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Robert P. Skinner, promoted to be consul-general of class 2 at Hamburg.

CONSULS.

Joseph M. Authier, of Rhode Island, lately consul of class 9 at St. Hyacinthe, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Guadeloupe, West Indies, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice G. Jarvis Bowens, resigned.

George B. Anderson, of the District of Columbia, lately consul of class 9 at Antigua, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Martinique, West Indies, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Chester W. Martin, promoted to be consul of class 7 at Barbados.

George A. Bucklin, jr., of Oklahoma, lately consul of class 9 at Glauchau, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

William Bardel, of New York, lately consul at Bamberg, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rheims, France, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Paul Nash, promoted to be consul-general of class 6 at Budapest.

Robert S. S. Bergh, of North Dakota, lately consul of class 7 at Mainz, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Belgrade, Servia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Maxwell K. Moorhead, transferred and appointed to be consul of class 8 at Acapulco.

David R. Birch, of Pennsylvania, lately consul at Genoa, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Alexandria, Egypt, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Orlando H. Baker, of Iowa, lately consul at Sydney, New South Wales, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Sandakan, British North Borneo, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Lester Maynard, promoted to be consul of class 6 at Vladivostok.

Wallace C. Bond, of Wyoming, lately consul of class 8 at Aden, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Karachi, India, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Chapman Coleman, of Kentucky, lately consul at Roubaix, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rome, Italy, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Edward A. Creevey, of Connecticut, lately consul of class 7 at Colombo, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at St. Michaels, Azores, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice John F. Jewell, transferred and appointed to be consul of class 7 at Melbourne.

Arthur J. Clare, of the District of Columbia, lately consul of class 7 at Barbados, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Georgetown, Guiana, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Selah Merrill, transferred and appointed consul of class 8 at Stettin.

William Coffin, of Kentucky, lately consul of class 9 at Maskat, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Tripoli, Tripoli, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Frederick D. Cloud, of Iowa, lately a student interpreter at the legation to China, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Antung, China, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Herando de Soto, of California, lately consul at Warsaw, to be consul of the United States of Class 7 at Riga, Russia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Alexander Heingartner, promoted to be consul at Batum.

Harry P. Dill, of Maine, lately consul of class 8 at Port Hope, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Orillia, Ontario, Canada, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Ernest A. Wakefield, promoted to be consul of class 6 at Rangoon.

Frank C. Denison, of Vermont, lately consul of class 9 at Woodstock, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Fernie, British Columbia, Canada, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John Fowler, of Massachusetts, lately consul-general at Chefoo, to be consul of the United States of class 4 at Chefoo, China, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Percival Gassett, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Jeres de la Frontera, Spain, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Hilary S. Brunot, resigned.

Arthur Garrels, of Missouri, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Zanzibar, Zanzibar, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Calvin F. Smith, resigned.

Edwin N. Gunsaulus, of Ohio, lately consul of class 6 at Rimouski, to be consul of the United States of class 3 at Johannesburg, Transvaal, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Michael J. Hendrick, of New York, lately consul of class 9 at Belleville, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Gustave Beutelspacher, resigned.

Arminius T. Haeberle, of Missouri, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Manzanillo, Mexico, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Carl F. Deichman, promoted to be consul of class 7 at Tamsui.

Joseph E. Haven, of Illinois, lately consul of class 8 at Crefeld, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Roubaix, France, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Chapman Coleman, promoted to be consul of class 6 at Rome.

Alexander Heingartner, of Ohio, lately consul at Riga, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Batum, Russia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice William W. Masterson, promoted to be consul of class 7 at Harput.

Percival Heintzleman, of Pennsylvania, lately a student interpreter at the legation to China, assigned to duty in the Division of Far Eastern Affairs, Department of State, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Swatow, China, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Thomas W. Haskins, deceased.

George N. Ifft, of Idaho, lately consul of class 7 at Annaberg, to be consul of the United States of class 5 at Warsaw, Russia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Hernando de Soto, promoted to be consul at Riga.

John F. Jewell, of Illinois, lately consul of class 7 at St. Michaels, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Melbourne, Australia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice John P. Bray, transferred and appointed to be consul-general at Sydney, New South Wales.

George H. Jackson, of Connecticut, lately consul of class 8 at La Rochelle, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Cognac, France, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Douglas Jenkins, of South Carolina, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at St. Pierre, St. Pierre Island, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Charles M. Freeman, transferred and appointed to be consul of class 9 at Durango.

Jesse B. Jackson, of Ohio, lately consul of class 8 at Alexandretta, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Aleppo, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John E. Kehl, of Ohio, lately consul of class 8 at Stettin, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Sydney, Nova Scotia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice George N. West, promoted to be consul-general of class 5 at Vancouver.

Will L. Lowrie, of Illinois, lately consul of class 8 at Weimar, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Erfurt, Germany, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

C. Ludlow Livingston, of Pennsylvania, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Salina Cruz, Mexico, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Alphonse J. Lespinasse, of New York, lately consul of class 9 at Tuxpam, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Frontera, Mexico, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

William W. Masterson, of Kentucky, lately consul of class 8 at Batum, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Harput, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Evan E. Young, promoted to be consul of class 6 at Saloniki.

Chester W. Martin, of Michigan, lately consul of class 8 at Martinique, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Barbados, West Indies, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Arthur J. Clare, promoted to be consul of class 6 at Georgetown.

Robert E. Mansfield, of Indiana, lately consul of class 6 at Lucerne, to be consul of the United States of class 4 at St. Gall, Switzerland, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Silas C. McFarland, promoted to be consul-general at large.

Samuel E. Magill, of Illinois, lately consul-general at San Salvador, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Guadalajara, Mexico, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Frederick M. Ryder, of Connecticut, lately consul of class 6 at San Juan del Norte, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rimouski, Quebec, Canada, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Edwin N. Gunsaulus, promoted to be consul of class 3 at Johannesburg.

Samuel C. Reat, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Port Louis, Mauritius, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Theodosius Botkin, transferred and appointed to be consul of class 9 at Campbellton.

James W. Ragsdale, of California, lately consul-general at St. Petersburg, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at St. Petersburg, Russia, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John E. Rowen, of Iowa, lately consul of class 9 at Port Stanley, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Punta Arenas, Chile, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Augustus G. Seyfert, of Pennsylvania, lately consul of class 8 at Collingwood, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Owen Sound, Ontario, Canada, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John H. Snodgrass, of West Virginia, lately consul of class 3 at Pretoria, to be consul of the United States of class 3 at Kobe, Japan, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Hunter Sharp, promoted to be consul-general of class 4 at Moscow.

Nathaniel B. Stewart, of Georgia, lately consul of class 9 at Castellamare di Stabia, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Madras, India, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Clarence Rice Slocum, of New York, lately consul of class 8 at Zittau, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Fiume, Hungary, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Ralph J. Totten, of Tennessee, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William H. Gale, promoted to be consul of class 8 at Malta.

William C. Teichmann, of Missouri, lately consul of class 8 at Eibenstock, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Colombo, Ceylon, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Edward A. Creevey, transferred and appointed to be consul of class 7 at St. Michaels.

Ernest A. Wakefield, of Maine, lately consul of class 8 at Orillia, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rangoon, India, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Evan E. Young, of South Dakota, lately consul of class 7 at Harput, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Saloniki, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

First Lieut. Francis Adelbert Levis to be captain in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 25, 1908, in place of Worth Gwynn Ross, promoted. Mr. Levis is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. Benjamin Little Brockway to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from January 22, 1908, in place of Frederick Jules Haake, promoted. Mr. Brockway is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. John Boedeker to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from March 9, 1908, in place of George Metcalf Daniels, promoted. Mr. Boedeker is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. Harold Dale Hinckley to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from January 1, 1908, in place of George Creighton Carmine, promoted. Mr. Hinckley is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. Charles Frederic Howell to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 7, 1908, in place of Detlef Frederick Argentino de Otte, promoted. Mr. Howell is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. William Henry Munter to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 22, 1908, in place of Francis Saltus Van Boskerck, promoted. Mr. Munter is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. John Lovejoy Maher to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 25, 1908, in place of Francis Adelbert Levis, promoted. Mr. Maher is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. William Ambrose O'Malley to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from October 26, 1908, in place of Colin Samuel Craig, deceased. Mr. O'Malley is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. Henry William Pope to be first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from December 15, 1907, in place of Charles Thomas Brian, retired. Mr. Pope is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Wales Alfred Benham to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from January 22, 1908, in place of Benjamin Little Brockway, promoted. Mr. Benham is now serving under a temporary commission issued during a recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Joseph Tillotson Drake to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from September 4, 1907, in place of James Freeman Hottel, promoted. Mr. Drake is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. John Jenkins Hutson to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Hutson is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Raymond Lockwood Jack to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from March 9, 1908, in place of John Boedeker, promoted. Mr. Jack is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Chester Hardy Jones to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Jones is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. John Farrell McGourty to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 7, 1908, in place of Charles Frederic Howell, promoted. Mr. McGourty is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Fred Arthur Nichols to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Nichols is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Philip Francis Roach to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from January 1, 1908, in place of Harold Dale Hinckley, promoted. Mr. Roach is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Thomas Andrew Shanley to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from December 15, 1907, in place of Henry William Pope, promoted. Mr. Shanley is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Charles Frederic Seiter to be second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Seiter is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

First Lieut. of Engineers Frederick Elias Owen to be senior engineer in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 1, 1908, in place of John Richard Dally, retired. Mr. Owen is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. of Engineers John Irvin Bryan to be first lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 1, 1908, in place of Frederick Elias Owen, promoted. Mr. Bryan is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers John Thomas Carr to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Carr is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Clarence James Curtiss to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Curtiss is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Webb Cudworth Maglathlin to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 25, 1908, in place of Charles Augustus Wheeler, promoted. Mr. Maglathlin is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Whitney Matthews Prall to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 1, 1908, in place of John Irvin Bryan, promoted. Mr. Prall is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Albert Frank Patterson to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Patterson is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Frederick Harvey Young to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. Mr. Young is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Frank Everett Bagger, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Bagger is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Alvan Hovey Bixby, of Massachusetts, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Bixby is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Martin Augustus Doyle, of Virginia, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Doyle is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Philip Bently Eaton, of Connecticut, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Eaton is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Norman Brierley Hall, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Hall is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Sydney Baxter Orne, of Maine, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Orne is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Hugh Burton Robinson, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Robinson is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Cadet Engineer Thomas Homer Yeager, of Virginia, to be third lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States. Mr. Yeager is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

John R. Willis, of Alaska, to be collector of customs for the district of Alaska, in the Territory of Alaska, in place of Clarence L. Hobart, resigned. This appointment to take effect not earlier than December 31, 1908.

Walter T. Blake, of California, to be collector of customs for the district of San Diego, in the State of California, in place of Frank W. Barnes, deceased.

Sherman T. Newton, of New Hampshire, to be collector of customs for the district of Portsmouth, in the State of New Hampshire. (Reappointment.)

John F. O'Brien, of New York, to be collector of customs for the district of Champlain, in the State of New York, in place of Walter C. Witherbee, resigned. Mr. O'Brien is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Charles A. Judson, of Ohio, to be collector of customs for the district of Sandusky, in the State of Ohio. Mr. Judson's term of office expired April 29, 1908, and he held over under his commission dated April 30, 1904, until September 29, 1908, when he was reappointed by a temporary commission, under which he is now serving.

William D. Crum, of South Carolina, to be collector of customs for the district of Charleston, in the State of South Carolina. (Reappointment.)

SURVEYORS OF CUSTOMS.

J. Frank Taylor, of Kentucky, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky, in place of William G. Dearing, resigned. Mr. Taylor is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Oscar I. Robbins, of Ohio, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Dayton, in the State of Ohio. Mr. Robbins's term of office expired April 29, 1908, and he held over under his commission dated April 30, 1904, until September 1, 1908, when he was reappointed by a temporary commission, under which he is now serving.

PASSED ASSISTANT SURGEONS, MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Asst. Surg. George L. Collins to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Collins is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Harvey G. Ebert to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Ebert is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Herbert M. Manning to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Manning is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Norman Roberts to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Roberts is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Ernest A. Sweet to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 28, 1908. Mr. Sweet is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Robert D. Spratt to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Spratt is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Frederick C. Smith to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Smith is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. Thomas W. Salmon to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 9, 1908. Mr. Salmon is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Asst. Surg. William M. Wightman to be passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from July 25, 1908. Mr. Wightman is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

ASSISTANT SURGEONS, MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Randolph M. Grimm, of Virginia, to be assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Brimm is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Paul Preble, of Maine, to be assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Preble is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Joseph R. Ridlon, of Maine, to be assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Ridlon is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF CHARITIES.

George E. Hamilton, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia for the term of three years from July 1, 1908, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Charles P. Neill, retired.

Myer Cohen, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia for the term of three years from July 1, 1908, to which office he was reappointed during the last recess of the Senate.

George W. Cook, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia for the term ending June 30, 1910, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice George M. Lightfoot, resigned.

COMMISSIONER OF LABOR.

Charles P. Neill, of the District of Columbia, to be Commissioner of Labor, Department of Commerce and Labor. To take effect February 1, 1909. (Reappointment.)

ASSISTANT TREASURERS.

Gideon C. Bantz, of Maryland, to be assistant treasurer of the United States, in place of James F. Meline, deceased. Mr. Bantz is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

George S. Terry, of New York, to be assistant treasurer of the United States, in place of Hamilton Fish, resigned.

DEPUTY ASSISTANT TREASURER.

William H. Gibson, of Pennsylvania, to be deputy assistant treasurer of the United States, in place of Gideon C. Bantz, promoted. Mr. Gibson is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

DEPUTY COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

Willis J. Fowler, of Indiana, to be Deputy Comptroller of the Currency. New office created by act of Congress approved May 22, 1908. Mr. Fowler is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

MELTER AND REFINER OF THE MINT.

Edwin R. Leach, of California, to be melter and refiner of the mint of the United States at San Francisco, Cal., in place of Charles M. Gorham, resigned. Mr. Leach is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

GENERAL APPRAISER OF MERCHANDISE.

Roy H. Chamberlain, of Iowa, to be general appraiser of merchandise, in place of Wilbur F. Lunt, deceased. Mr. Chamberlain is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Wanton A. Shippee, of California, to be collector of internal revenue for the fourth district of California, in place of Henry C. Bell, deceased. Mr. Shippee is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Malcolm J. McLeod, of Michigan, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of Michigan, in place of David Meginnity, resigned. Mr. McLeod is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Bernhard Bettmann, of Ohio, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of Ohio, in place of Herman F. Cellarius, resigned. Mr. Bettmann is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

ENVOYS EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY.

H. Percival Dodge, of Massachusetts, lately envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Honduras and Salvador, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Salvador, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Philip M. Brown, of Massachusetts, lately secretary of the embassy at Constantinople, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Honduras, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice William B. Sorsby, resigned.

William L. Merry, of California, lately envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Nicaragua and Costa Rica, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Costa Rica, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

James F. Stutesman, of Indiana, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Bolivia, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William B. Sorsby, appointed envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Honduras.

MINISTER RESIDENT AND CONSUL-GENERAL.

Hoffman Philip, of New York, lately secretary of the legation and consul-general at Tangier, to be minister resident and consul-general of the United States to Abyssinia, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

Lewis Einstein, of New York, lately second secretary of the embassy at Constantinople, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Constantinople, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Philip M. Brown, promoted to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Honduras.

John W. Garrett, of Maryland, lately second secretary of the embassy at Berlin, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Rome, Italy, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice R. S. Reynolds Hitt, transferred and appointed secretary of the embassy at Berlin.

R. S. Reynolds Hitt, of Illinois, lately secretary of the embassy at Rome, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Berlin, Germany, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Spencer F. Eddy, promoted to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic.

Henry L. Janes, of Wisconsin, lately secretary of the legation at Santiago, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice George L. Lorillard, transferred and appointed secretary of the legation at Lisbon.

William F. Sands, of the District of Columbia, lately secretary of the legation at Guatemala, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Mexico, Mexico, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice John Gardner Coolidge, promoted to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Nicaragua.

SECOND SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

Joseph C. Grew, of Massachusetts, lately third secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg, to be second secretary of the embassy of the United States at Berlin, Germany, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice John W. Garrett, promoted to be secretary of the embassy at Rome.

John Van A. MacMurray, of New Jersey, lately secretary of the legation and consul-general at Bangkok, to be second secretary of the embassy of the United States at St. Petersburg, Russia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Irwin B. Laughlin, transferred and appointed secretary of the legation to Greece and Montenegro.

A. Campbell Turner, of Missouri, lately second secretary of the legation at Habana, to be second secretary of the embassy at Mexico, Mexico, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Paxton Hibben, transferred and appointed secretary of the legation at Bogota.

William Blumenthal, of New York, lately third secretary of the embassy at Paris, to be second secretary of the embassy of the United States at Constantinople, Turkey, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Lewis Einstein, promoted to be secretary of the embassy at Constantinople.

THIRD SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

Leland Harrison, of Illinois, to be third secretary of the embassy of the United States at Tokyo, Japan, to which office he was appointed during the recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Henry Coleman May, of the District of Columbia, lately secretary of the legation at Panama, to be third secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg, Russia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Joseph C. Grew, promoted to be second secretary of the embassy at Berlin.

Arthur Orr, of Illinois, lately third secretary of the embassy at Berlin, to be third secretary of the embassy of the United States at London, England, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice U. Grant Smith, promoted to be secretary of the legation at Santiago.

SECRETARIES OF LEGATIONS.

Frederic Ogden de Billier, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Teheran, Persia, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Hugh S. Gibson, of California, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

John H. Gregory, jr., of Louisiana, lately secretary of the legation to Honduras and Salvador, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Managua, Nicaragua, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Paxton Hibben, of Indiana, lately second secretary of the embassy at Mexico, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Bogota, Colombia, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice William Heimké, promoted to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Guatemala.

Philip M. Hoefele, of Missouri, former third secretary of the embassy at Mexico, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pennsylvania, lately second secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg, to be secretary of the legation to Greece and Montenegro, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Stanton Sickles.

George L. Lorillard, of Rhode Island, lately secretary of the embassy at Rio de Janeiro, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Lisbon, Portugal, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Thomas Ewing Moore.

Jacob Sleeper, of Massachusetts, lately secretary of the legation at Caracas, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Berne, Switzerland, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Paul Grand d'Hauteville, resigned.

U. Grant Smith, of Pennsylvania, lately third secretary of the embassy at London, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Santiago, Chile, to which office he was promoted during the last recess of the Senate, vice Henry L. Janes, promoted to be secretary of the embassy at Rio de Janeiro.

Algernon Sartoris, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of the legation at Guatemala, Guatemala, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William F. Sands, promoted to be secretary of the embassy at Mexico.

George T. Weitzel, of Missouri, lately secretary of the legation to Nicaragua and Costa Rica, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Panama, Panama, to which office he was transferred during the last recess of the Senate, vice Henry Coleman May, transferred and appointed third secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg.

SECOND SECRETARY OF LEGATION.

G. Cornell Tarler, of New York, to be second secretary of the legation of the United States at Habana, Cuba, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice A. Campbell Turner, promoted to be second secretary of the embassy at Mexico.

SECRETARY OF LEGATION AND CONSUL-GENERAL.

Arthur Hugh Frazier, of Pennsylvania, to be secretary of the legation and consul-general of the United States at San Salvador, Salvador, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

COMMISSIONERS-GENERAL AT TOKYO.

Francis B. Loomis, of Ohio, to be a commissioner-general of the United States to the national exposition to be held at Tokyo in the year 1912, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved May 22, 1908, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Francis D. Millet, of New York, to be a commissioner-general of the United States to the national exposition to be held at Tokyo in the year 1912, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved May 22, 1908, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Frederick J. V. Skiff, of Illinois, to be a commissioner-general of the United States to the national exposition to be held at Tokyo in the year 1912, under the provision of the act of Congress approved May 22, 1908, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

COMMISSIONER-GENERAL OF IMMIGRATION.

Daniel J. Keefe, of Michigan, who was appointed December 1, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be Commissioner-General of Immigration in the Department of Commerce and Labor.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Robert G. Valentine, of Holliston, Mass., who was appointed November 30, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs, vice Charles F. Larrabee, resigned.

INDIAN INSPECTORS.

Z. Lewis Dalby, of Roanoke, Va., who was appointed June 1, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be an Indian inspector, vice Cyrus Beede, term expired.

Samuel F. O'Fallon, of Oregon, Mo., who was appointed June 1, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be an Indian inspector, vice J. George Wright, transferred, and Clinton H. Scovell, temporary appointee.

Will M. Tipton, of Los Angeles, Cal., who was appointed June 1, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be an Indian inspector, vice James E. Jenkins, resigned, and James W. Du Bois Gould, temporary appointee.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONER.

Martin A. Knapp, of New York, to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner for the term of seven years from July 1, 1909. This is a reappointment.

JUDGE OF THE UNITED STATES COURT FOR CHINA.

Rufus H. Thayer, of the District of Columbia, to be judge of the United States court for China, vice Lebbeus R. Wilfley, resigned.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEYS-GENERAL.

James A. Fowler, of Tennessee, to be Assistant Attorney-General, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Edward T. Sanford, appointed judge of the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee.

Wade H. Ellis, of Ohio, to be assistant to the Attorney-General, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Milton D. Purdy, appointed judge, Minnesota.

DISTRICT JUDGES.

Milton Dwight Purdy, of Minnesota, to be United States district judge for the district of Minnesota, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William Lochren, resigned. (Mr. Purdy was nominated at the first session of the Sixtieth Congress and failed of confirmation.)

John E. Sater, of Ohio, to be United States district judge for the southern district of Ohio, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate under the provisions of the act approved February 25, 1907, entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of an additional district judge in and for the southern district of the State of Ohio." (Judge Sater was nominated at the first session of the Sixtieth Congress and failed of confirmation.)

Oscar R. Hundley, of Alabama, to be United States district judge for the northern district of Alabama, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, under the provisions of the act approved February 25, 1907, entitled "An act providing for a United States judge for the northern judicial district of Alabama." (Judge Hundley was nominated at the first session of the Sixtieth Congress and failed of confirmation.)

UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS.

Edward E. Wagner, of South Dakota, to be United States attorney for the district of South Dakota, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice James D. Elliott, who failed of confirmation at the second session of the Fifty-ninth Congress. (Mr. Wagner was nominated at the first session of the Sixtieth Congress and failed of confirmation.)

Curg H. Lingenfelter, of Idaho, to be United States attorney for the district of Idaho, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Norman M. Ruick, removed.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS.

Shadrach L. Hodgin, of Idaho, to be United States marshal for the district of Idaho, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Ruel Rounds, removed.

Henry K. Love, of Iowa, to be United States marshal for the district of Alaska, division No. 3, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice George G. Perry, removed.

SECRETARY OF WAR.

Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, to be Secretary of War, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William H. Taft, resigned.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, to be Secretary of the Navy, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Victor H. Metcalf, resigned.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Herbert Livingstone Satterlee, of New York, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, vice Truman H. Newberry, appointed Secretary of the Navy.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF PORTO RICO.

Luis Sanchez Morales, of Porto Rico, to be a member of the executive council of Porto Rico for the term of four years from January 17, 1909, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved April 12, 1900. This is a reappointment.

Rafael del Valle, of Porto Rico, to be a member of the executive council of Porto Rico for the term of four years from January 10, 1909, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved April 12, 1900. This is a reappointment.

COMMISSIONER OF IMMIGRATION.

Graham L. Rice, of Wisconsin, to be commissioner of immigration at the Port of San Juan, P. R., Department of Commerce and Labor, to take effect December 15, 1908. (Reappointment.)

PUBLIC PRINTER.

Samuel B. Donnelly, of New York, to be Public Printer, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice John S. Leech, resigned.

EXAMINER IN CHIEF.

Frank C. Skinner, of Missouri, now a principal examiner, to be an examiner in chief in the Patent Office, vice Levin H. Campbell, resigned.

REGISTERS OF THE LAND OFFICE.

Nathan H. Alexander, of Montgomery, Ala., who was appointed June 1, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Montgomery, Ala., vice Robert D. Johnston, resigned.

Frank H. Parker, of Phoenix, Ariz., who was appointed October 12, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Phoenix, Ariz., vice Lyman W. Wakefield, resigned.

Robert N. Dunn, of Idaho, whose term will expire December 15, 1908, to be register of the land office at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. (Reappointment.)

Lester Bartlett, of Buffalo, Minn., who was appointed September 28, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Cass Lake, Minn., vice Egbert S. Oakley, resigned.

Matthew R. Wilson, of Livingston, Mont., who was appointed November 9, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Bozeman, Mont., vice Burgess W. Marshall, temporary appointee, resigned.

Thomas C. Tillotson, of Lower Penasco, N. Mex., who was appointed October 12, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Roswell, N. Mex., vice Howard Leland, deceased.

Cyrus C. Carpenter, of Sisseton, S. Dak., who was appointed June 19, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Lemmon, S. Dak., to fill original vacancy.

RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Jesse W. Freeman, of Berryville, Ark., who was appointed October 29, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be receiver of public moneys at Harrison, Ark., vice William F. Reeves, resigned.

Charles E. Arnold, of Phoenix, Ariz., who was appointed November 11, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be receiver of public moneys at Phoenix, Ariz., vice Fen S. Hildreth, resigned.

Andrew P. Adolphson, of Leadville, Colo., who was appointed June 11, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be receiver of public moneys at Leadville, Colo., vice Lutian Q. Hobbs, deceased.

Edwin G. Coleman, of Flandreau, S. Dak., who was appointed June 19, 1908, during the recess of the Senate, to be receiver of public moneys at Lemmon, S. Dak., to fill original vacancy.

SURVEYOR-GENERAL.

William L. Distin, of Quincy, Ill., whose term will expire December 14, 1908, to be surveyor-general of Alaska. (Reappointment.)

SECOND ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Joseph Stewart, of Missouri, to be Second Assistant Postmaster-General, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice James T. McCleary, resigned.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

Capt. Joseph T. Davidson, quartermaster, to be quartermaster with the rank of major, from April 25, 1908, vice Crabbs, retired from active service.

MEDICAL CORPS.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Edward Champe Carter, Medical Corps, from April 23, 1908, vice Crampton, promoted.

Maj. William Stephenson, Medical Corps, from May 1, 1908, vice Powell, retired from active service.

Maj. Henry P. Birmingham, Medical Corps, to be lieutenant-colonel from April 23, 1908, vice Torney, promoted.

NOTE.—The above-named officer was nominated to the Senate on May 18, 1908, and confirmed on May 21, 1908, for promotion to a vacancy created on May 1, 1908, by the retirement of Lieut. Col. Junius L. Powell, Medical Corps, but by reason of the failure of two of his seniors to pass satisfactory examinations for promotion Major Birmingham became entitled to promotion from April 23, 1908.

To be majors.

Capt. James R. Church, Medical Corps, from May 1, 1908, vice Stephenson, promoted.

Capt. Joseph H. Ford, Medical Corps, from May 20, 1908, vice Hallock, retired from active service.

Capt. Percy M. Ashburn, Medical Corps, from June 24, 1908, vice Kieffer, retired from active service.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. Smith S. Leach, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Sears, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Dan C. Kingman, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Marshall, appointed Chief of Engineers.

Lieut. Col. William M. Black, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Symons, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Walter L. Fisk, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Hoxie, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. William C. Langfitt, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Leach, promoted.

Maj. James C. Sanford, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Kingman, promoted.

Maj. Hiram M. Chittenden, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Black, promoted.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Fisk, promoted.

To be majors.

Capt. Charles W. Kutz, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Langfitt, promoted.

Capt. Meriwether L. Walker, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Sanford, promoted.

Capt. Robert R. Raymond, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Chittenden, promoted.

Capt. William B. Ladue, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Fitch, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. George R. Spalding, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Kutz, promoted.

First Lieut. Elliott J. Dent, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Walker, promoted.

First Lieut. William G. Caples, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Raymond, promoted.

First Lieut. Henry C. Jewett, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Ladue, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Roger G. Powell, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Spalding, promoted.

Second Lieut. John N. Hodges, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Dent, promoted.

Second Lieut. Arthur R. Ehrnbeck, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Caples, promoted.

Second Lieut. Harold S. Hetrick, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Jewett, promoted.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

Capt. Edward P. O'Hern, Ordnance Department, to be major from October 31, 1908, vice Fuller, retired from active service.

CHAPLAINS.

Chaplain Halsey C. Gavitt, First Cavalry, to be chaplain with the rank of major from October 27, 1908.

Chaplain Henry A. Brown, Corps of Engineers, to be chaplain with the rank of major from November 12, 1908.

CAVALRY ARM.

Lieut. Col. James B. Hickey, unassigned, to be colonel from November 15, 1908, vice Godwin, Fourteenth Cavalry, retired from active service.

Maj. William D. Beach, Fifteenth Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel from November 15, 1908, vice Taylor, Fourth Cavalry, detailed as adjutant-general.

Capt. William F. Flynn, Eighth Cavalry, to be major from November 15, 1908, vice Beach, Fifteenth Cavalry, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. Alvan C. Gillem, Fifth Cavalry, from September 21, 1908, vice Heidt, Eleventh Cavalry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. William B. Cowin, Third Cavalry, from November 15, 1908, vice Flynn, Eighth Cavalry, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Sidney D. Maize, Third Cavalry, from May 18, 1908, vice Lusk, Twelfth Cavalry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. William S. Barriger, Fifteenth Cavalry, from July 1, 1908, vice Jordan, Eighth Cavalry, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. Ralph M. Parker, Eleventh Cavalry, from July 30, 1908, vice Dixon, Fifth Cavalry, detailed in the Signal Corps.

Second Lieut. John H. Howard, Ninth Cavalry, from August 2, 1908, vice Mangum, Eighth Cavalry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. John K. Hume, Fourteenth Cavalry, from September 21, 1908, vice Gillem, Fifth Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Matt C. Bristol, Thirteenth Cavalry, from November 15, 1908, vice Cowin, Third Cavalry, promoted.

FIELD ARTILLERY ARM.

First Lieut. Morris E. Locke, First Field Artillery, to be captain from August 25, 1908, vice Overton, Third Field Artillery, retired from active service.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Fred T. Cruse, Third Field Artillery, from July 1, 1908, vice Kean, First Field Artillery, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. James P. Marley, First Field Artillery, from July 20, 1908, vice Roemer, Sixth Field Artillery, deceased.

Second Lieut. Waldo C. Potter, Fifth Field Artillery, from August 25, 1908, vice Locke, First Field Artillery, promoted.

Second Lieut. Harry Pfeil, Fifth Field Artillery, from September 17, 1908, vice Selfridge, First Field Artillery, deceased.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. George L. Anderson, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Cummins, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. William H. Coffin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Homer, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Albert Todd, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Stewart, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Charles L. Phillips, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Woodward, detailed as inspector-general.

Maj. Charles J. Bailey, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Coffin, promoted.

Maj. Clarence P. Townsley, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Todd, promoted.

To be majors.

Capt. William C. Davis, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Phillips, promoted.

Capt. Frank G. Mauldin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Bailey, promoted.

Capt. Daniel W. Ketcham, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Townsley, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. James A. Thomas, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 13, 1908, vice Marshall, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. John C. Ohnstad, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Mauldin, promoted.

First Lieut. Clarence M. Condon, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 21, 1908, vice Macon, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Curtis G. Rorebeck, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 28, 1908, vice Vance, retired from active service.

First Lieut. James D. Watson, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 29, 1908, vice Applewhite, retired from active service.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. John E. Townes, jr., Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Gatewood, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. Robert E. Vose, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Wilhelm, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. Dean Hall, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Mahaffey, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. John S. Williams, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 13, 1908, vice Thomas, promoted.

Second Lieut. George Ruhlen, jr., Coast Artillery Corps, from July 27, 1908, vice Scott, resigned.

Second Lieut. John E. Mort, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Ohnstad, promoted.

Second Lieut. Junnius Pierce, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 21, 1908, vice Condon, promoted.

Second Lieut. Henry W. T. Eglin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 28, 1908, vice Rorebeck, promoted.

Second Lieut. Halvor G. Coulter, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 29, 1908, vice Watson, promoted.

INFANTRY ARM.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. William H. C. Bowen, Eighteenth Infantry, from July 1, 1908, vice Allen, Twelfth Infantry, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Henry E. Robinson (since retired from active service), detailed adjutant-general, from October 24, 1908, vice Smith, Eighth Infantry, appointed brigadier-general.

Lieut. Col. Charles W. Mason, Twenty-ninth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Robinson, unassigned, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Alexis R. Paxton, Thirteenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Augur, Twenty-fourth Infantry, deceased.

Maj. Zerah W. Torrey, detailed inspector-general, from July 1, 1908, vice Bowen, Eighteenth Infantry, promoted.

Maj. James B. Jackson, Eleventh Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice Hardin, Twenty-sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

Maj. Reuben B. Turner, Eighth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Mason, Twenty-ninth Infantry, promoted.

Maj. Daniel A. Frederick, Twenty-second Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Jones, Nineteenth Infantry, detailed as adjutant-general.

To be majors.

Capt. Beaumont B. Buck, Sixteenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Paxton, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Capt. William F. Martin, Fifth Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Purssell, Eighteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Capt. Evan M. Johnson, jr., Eighth Infantry, from July 3, 1908, vice Bundy, Sixth Infantry, detailed as inspector-general.

Capt. Frank McIntyre (major, Bureau of Insular Affairs) from July 18, 1908, vice Jackson, Eleventh Infantry, promoted.

Capt. David J. Baker, jr., Ninth Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice McIntyre, detailed in the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

Capt. Benjamin A. Poore, Sixth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Frederick, Twenty-second Infantry, promoted.

Capt. James H. McRae, Third Infantry, from October 31, 1908, vice Leonhaeuser, Sixteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

To be captains.

First Lieut. Ernest E. Haskell, Twenty-ninth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Laws, Twenty-fourth Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Jack Hayes, Sixteenth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Stone, Twenty-second Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. William H. Waldron, detailed in the Signal Corps, from April 3, 1908, vice Ford, Fifth Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. Joseph K. Partello, Fifth Infantry, from April 24, 1908, vice Parmerter, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Leon L. Roach, Sixteenth Infantry, from May 9, 1908, vice Smiley, Fifteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Horace P. Hobbs, Seventeenth Infantry, from May 15, 1908, vice Devore, Twenty-third Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Louis J. Van Schaick, Fourth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Buck, Sixteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. George S. Tiffany, Twenty-first Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Martin, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Edgar A. Myer, Eleventh Infantry, from July 3, 1908, vice Lawton, Nineteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Arthur M. Shipp, Twentieth Infantry, from July 3, 1908, vice Johnson, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Joseph W. Beacham, jr., Twenty-seventh Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice Baker, Ninth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Francis J. McConnell, Seventeenth Infantry, from July 24, 1908, vice Shelton, Eleventh Infantry, detailed in the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

First Lieut. Richard P. Rifenberick, jr., Twenty-ninth Infantry, from September 8, 1908, vice Moore, Fifteenth Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Graham L. Johnson, Eleventh Infantry, from September 16, 1908, vice Walton, Sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Charles E. Hay, jr., Twenty-fourth Infantry, from October 2, 1908, vice Chiles, Eleventh Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Robert H. Wescott, Sixteenth Infantry, from October 19, 1908, vice Parker, Twenty-fourth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. George W. Wallace, Twentieth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Poore, Sixth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Paul Hurst, Third Infantry, from October 31, 1908, vice McRae, Third Infantry, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Gilbert H. Stewart, detailed first lieutenant in the Ordnance Department, from November 24, 1907, vice Mullen, Twenty-first Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Edward J. Moran, Twenty-seventh Infantry, from November 24, 1907, vice Gibert, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. John R. McGinness, Sixth Infantry, from December 5, 1907, vice Wilson, Twenty-second Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. Henry M. Nelly, Twentieth Infantry, from December 11, 1907, vice De Funiak, Eleventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Frederick F. Black, Tenth Infantry, from December 23, 1907, vice Armstrong, Sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. James M. Hobson, jr., Twenty-seventh Infantry, from December 23, 1907, vice McCoy, Twenty-seventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. David H. Bower, Twelfth Infantry, from December 28, 1907, vice Townsend, Twenty-third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Hiram M. Cooper, Tenth Infantry, from January 1, 1908, vice Brewer, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Benjamin F. Miller, Twenty-seventh Infantry, from January 27, 1908, vice Parsons, Twentieth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Louis Soléliac, Sixteenth Infantry, from February 13, 1908, vice Ball, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles M. Blackford, Sixth Infantry, from March 5, 1908, vice Smith, Eighteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Walter O. Boswell, Sixteenth Infantry, from March 8, 1908, vice Doster, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Deshler Whiting, Ninth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Price, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Gulielmus V. Heidt, Sixth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Warfield, Thirtieth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Samuel J. Sutherland, Thirteenth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice McCaskey, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edmund B. Iglehart, Third Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Lang, Fifteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Emory S. Adams, Fourteenth Infantry, from March 15, 1908, vice Dockery, Third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ralph W. Drury, Ninth Infantry, from March 16, 1908, vice Thomas, Seventeenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. John C. Fairfax, Twenty-first Infantry, from March 18, 1908, vice Elliott, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Fred C. Miller, Twenty-third Infantry, from March 24, 1908, vice Freeman, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles L. Mitchell, Twenty-fourth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Hunt, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Alfred Brandt, Twenty-fifth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Haskell, Twenty-ninth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Robert John West, Twenty-sixth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Hayes, Sixteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Seeley A. Wallen, Twenty-fifth Infantry, from April 15, 1908, vice Lewis, Eighteenth Infantry, detailed in the Signal Corps.

Second Lieut. Archibald G. Hutchinson, Third Infantry, from April 24, 1908, vice Partello, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Odiorne H. Sampson, Second Infantry, from May 15, 1908, vice Hobbs, Seventeenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles G. Sturtevant, Ninth Infantry, from June 5, 1908, vice Smith, Sixteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Albert Hardman, Twelfth Infantry, from June 7, 1908, vice Vredenburgh, Eleventh Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. William E. Holliday, Seventeenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Van Schaick, Fourth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Frank B. Kobes, Fourteenth Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Tiffany, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

TO BE RETIRED.

With the rank of brigadier-general.

Under the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 23, 1904, I nominate Col. James B. Hickey, cavalry, unassigned, to be placed on the retired list of the army, with the rank of brigadier-general from the date on which he shall be retired from active service.

Col. Edward A. Godwin, retired, with rank from November 15, 1908.

With the rank of captain.

First Lieut. Samuel T. Weirick, retired, with rank from June 18, 1908.

First Lieut. James Reagles, retired, with rank from September 12, 1908.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

GENERAL OFFICER.

Col. Frederick A. Smith, Eighth Infantry, to be brigadier-general from October 24, 1908, vice Reade, retired from active service.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

Col. William L. Marshall, Corps of Engineers, to be Chief of Engineers, with the rank of brigadier-general from July 2, 1908, vice Mackenzie, retired from active service.

Under the provisions of an act of Congress approved May 27, 1908, I nominate the officers of the late Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry for reappointment in the Porto Rico Regiment of Infantry of the United States Army.

To be captains.

Capt. Stewart McC. Decker, with rank from July 1, 1904.
Capt. Frank L. Graham, with rank from July 2, 1904.
Capt. John M. Field, with rank from July 3, 1904.
Capt. Edwin J. Griffith, with rank from July 4, 1904.
Capt. Ralph E. Gambell, with rank from July 5, 1904.
Capt. Miles K. Taulbee, with rank from July 6, 1904.
Capt. Orval P. Townshend, with rank from July 7, 1904.
Capt. Laurance Angel, with rank from November 20, 1906.
Capt. Frank C. Wood, with rank from November 21, 1906.
Capt. Emil J. Huebscher, with rank from November 22, 1906.
Capt. William S. Woodruff, with rank from November 23, 1906.

To be first lieutenants.

First Lieut. Abram I. Miller, with rank from July 1, 1904.
First Lieut. Samuel S. Bryant, with rank from November 30, 1904.
First Lieut. William H. Armstrong, with rank from December 1, 1904.
First Lieut. Henry C. Rexach, with rank from April 1, 1905.
First Lieut. Pedro J. Parra, with rank from February 23, 1906.
First Lieut. Teofio Marxuach, with rank from November 20, 1906.
First Lieut. Eduardo Iriarte, with rank from November 21, 1906.
First Lieut. Jaime Nadal, with rank from November 22, 1906.
First Lieut. Eugenio C. de Hostos, with rank from November 23, 1906.
First Lieut. Felix Emmanuelli, with rank from August 25, 1907.

To be second lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Pascual Lopez, with rank from March 3, 1905.
Second Lieut. Louis S. Emmanuelli, with rank from March 4, 1905.
Second Lieut. Daniel Rodriguez, with rank from January 17, 1906.

MEDICAL CORPS.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from June 13, 1908.

John Raymond Barber, of Oregon, vice Godfrey, deceased.

Joseph Arliss Worthington, of Arkansas, vice Newgarden, promoted.

Mahlon Ashford, of the District of Columbia, vice Williamson, resigned.

Edward Godfrey Huber, of Missouri, vice Edwards, resigned.

John Sioussa Lambie, jr., of Pennsylvania, vice Reilly, retired from active service.

Arthur Newman Tasker, of the District of Columbia, vice Straub, promoted.

Howard McCrum Snyder, of Wyoming, vice Stark, promoted.

Calvin Duvall Cowles, jr., at large, vice Lynch, promoted.

Garfield Lesley McKinney, of Pennsylvania, vice Kulp, promoted.

Hiram Alfred Phillips, of Kentucky, vice Munson, promoted.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from June 16, 1908.

Contract Surg. Samuel T. Weirick (since retired from active service), vice Roberts, retired from active service.

MEDICAL RESERVE CORPS.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from July 5, 1908.

Orlando Wood Sherwin, of Vermont.
Robert F. Weir, of New York.
Theodore Andrews McGraw, of Michigan.
Harry C. Yarrow, of the District of Columbia.
Walter S. Thorne, of California.
Frank Pierce Foster, of New York.
Edmond Souchon, of Louisiana.
Louis Favrot Reynaud, of Louisiana.
Reginald Heber Fitz, of Massachusetts.
Henry O. Walker, of Michigan.
Joseph D. Bryant, of New York.
John Allan Wyeth, of New York.
Francis Parker Kinnicutt, of New York.
James Cornelius Wilson, of Pennsylvania.
A. Alexander Smith, of New York.
Virgil Pendleton Gibney, of New York.
Frederick Cheever Shattuck, of Massachusetts.
Charles Beylard G. de Nancrede, of Michigan.
J. Henry Carstens, of Michigan.
Thomas Waterman Huntington, of California.
William Tillinghast Bull, of New York.
Frederic Shepard Dennis, of New York.
J. William White, of Pennsylvania.
Myles Standish, of Massachusetts.
Victor Clarence Vaughan, of Michigan.
Robert Abbe, of New York.
Sanger Brown, of Illinois.
Roswell Park, of New York.
William Stewart Halsted, of Maryland.
George Henry Simmons, of Illinois.
William Thomas Councilman, of Massachusetts.
Frank Billings, of Illinois.
Alvah Hunt Doty, of New York.
Harry Mitchell Sherman, of California.
Samuel Jason Mixter, of Massachusetts.
Richard Hickman Harte, of Pennsylvania.
William M. Conant, of Massachusetts.
Carl Beck, of New York.
John H. Musser, of Pennsylvania.
Charles Sumner Bacon, of Illinois.
William Gilman Thompson, of New York.
Robert Tuttle Morris, of New York.
Harvey Gilmer Mudd, of Missouri.
John Benjamin Murphy, of Illinois.
Andrew J. McCosh, of New York.
John C. Munro, of Massachusetts.
Thomas Darlington, of New York.
George Edmund de Schweinitz, of Pennsylvania.
Paul Emile Archinard, of Louisiana.
Theobald Smith, of Massachusetts.
Edward Martin, of Pennsylvania.
Samuel Treat Armstrong, of New York.
Alexander Crever Abbott, of Maryland.
Samuel Lloyd, of New York.
Charles Locke Scudder, of Massachusetts.
Henry Baird Favill, of Illinois.
Rudolph Matas, of Louisiana.
Barton Cooke Hirst, of Pennsylvania.
Arthur D. Bevan, of Illinois.
Charles Williamson Richardson, of the District of Columbia.
Alexander Lambert, of New York.
William Bradley Coley, of New York.
Charles Bingham Penrose, of Pennsylvania.
Angus McLean, of Michigan.
Malcolm La Salle Harris, of Illinois.
Hobart Amory Hare, of Pennsylvania.
George David Stewart, of New York.
Simon Flexner, of New York.
John Miller Turpin Finney, of Maryland.
James G. Mumford, of Massachusetts.
Franklin Greene Balch, of Massachusetts.
William Sydney Thayer, of Maryland.
George W. Crile, of Ohio.
John Chalmers Da Costa, of Pennsylvania.
Emmet Rixford, of California.
Robert Grier Le Conte, of Pennsylvania.
Charles Gabriel Levison, of California.
Emil Otto Jellinek, of California.
Isadore Dyer, of Louisiana.
John Bapst Blake, of Massachusetts.
William Fitch Cheney, of California.
Lewis Atterbury Conner, of New York.
Farrar Cobb, of Massachusetts.
John G. Clark, of Pennsylvania.
Joseph Colt Bloodgood, of Maryland.
Herbert C. Moffitt, of California.
William Edward Schroeder, of Illinois.
Albert John Ochsner, of Illinois.
Albert Edward Halstead, of Illinois.
Richard Clarke Cabot, of Massachusetts.
Alfred Stengel, of Pennsylvania.
Wallace Irving Terry, of California.
William Henry Haskin, of New York.
Harvey Cushing, of Maryland.
David Linn Edsall, of Pennsylvania.
John Wilson Shiels, of California.
John Taylor Bottomley, of Massachusetts.
Frederic A. Washburn, of Massachusetts.
Charles Louis Mix, of Illinois.
Charles Harrison Frazier, of Pennsylvania.
John Heysham Gibbon, of Pennsylvania.
James Farnandis Mitchell, of the District of Columbia.
John Joseph Archinard, of Louisiana.
Walter Clarke Howe, of Massachusetts.
Bertram Francis Alden, of California.
Albert Joshua Houston, of California.
William Pepper, of Pennsylvania.
Francis Denison Patterson, of Pennsylvania.
David Cheever, of Massachusetts.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from July 7, 1908.

Contract Surg. William F. de Niedman, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Leonard Knight Graves, of New York.
Contract Surg. Ira Christopher Brown, of New York.
Contract Surg. S. Chase de Krafft, of Maryland.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hadra, of Texas.
Contract Surg. John Robert Hereford, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Albert H. Eber, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Isaac Williams Brewer, of New York.
Contract Surg. Joseph Lipscomb Sanford, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. Charles Henry Stearns, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. George Sellers Wallace, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. George Henry Richardson, of California.
Contract Surg. James K. Stockard, of North Carolina.
Contract Surg. Frank E. Artaud, of Louisiana.
Contract Surg. Waller Holladay Dade, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. William H. Tukey, of Maine.
Contract Surg. Wilson Murray, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Clark Ingersoll Wertenbaker, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Elmer Seth Tenney, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. James Stewart Kennedy, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Walter Whitney, of Georgia.
Contract Surg. Frederick Morgan Barney, of New York.
Contract Surg. Albert Leonard Miller, of Wisconsin.
Contract Surg. J. Marchal Wheate, of Idaho.
Contract Surg. Harold Leroy Coffin, of Washington.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hessler Sparrenberger, of New Jersey.
Contract Surg. Henry W. Eliot, of Connecticut.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion McCallum, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. George Washington Daywalt, of California.
Contract Surg. Thomas W. Jackson, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. William O. Cutliffe, of New York.
Contract Surg. Michael Edward Hughes, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Donald Paul McCord, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Henry du Rest Phelan, of California.
Contract Surg. Luke Baker Peck, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. James Botterell Pascoe, at large.
Contract Surg. Thomas S. Lowe, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Ernest Kinloch Johnstone, of California.
Contract Surg. Julius Cæsar Le Hardy, of Georgia.
Contract Surg. Arthur Richard Jarrett, of New York.
Contract Surg. John Patrick Kelly, of Florida.
Contract Surg. Charles Everett MacDonald, of New York.
Contract Surg. James B. Ferguson, of Minnesota.

Contract Surg. Wallace Edgar Sabin, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Jesse P. Truax, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. J. Samuel White, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Thomas Gabriel Holmes, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Victor Egbert Watkins, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. Herbert Ira Harris, of New York.
Contract Surg. William Robert Sim George, of Texas.
Contract Surg. James William Hart, of West Virginia.
Contract Surg. Leonard Samuel Hughes, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Elias Hull Porter, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. George Newlove, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Edward Bailey, of Washington.
Contract Surg. James Christopher Dougherty, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles Lee Baker, of West Virginia.
Contract Surg. H. Newton Kieruff, of California.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hubbell Mills, of New York.
Contract Surg. David Durward Hogan, of Wisconsin.
Contract Surg. Edwin Wambaugh Patterson, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. John Findley Leeper, of Wyoming.
Contract Surg. Leonard Philip Bell, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. John Newton Merrick, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Benjamin Beckham Warriner, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. William James Enders, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Thomas Benton McCown, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Madison Harlan Bowman, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Harry Hill Van Kirk, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Clarance Fitzhugh Dickenson, of California.
Contract Surg. Charles Wilson Johnson, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Fred T. Koyle, of New York.
Contract Surg. Robert E. Sievers, at large.
Contract Surg. Wilmont E. Brown, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion Wall, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Alpha M. Chase, of Colorado.
Contract Surg. Frank C. Griffis, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Ernest Frederick Slater, of South Carolina.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion Wells, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. George Fitzpatrick Adair, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. Clemens Wesley McMillan, of Texas.
Contract Surg. Clarence Albert Treuholtz, of California.
Contract Surg. George Ruben Clayton, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. James Kennedy Ashburn, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Alva Rufus Hull, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. Oscar Franklin Davis, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Rodney D. Smith, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Wallace Ernest Parkman, of California.
Contract Surg. Preston S. Kellogg, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Joseph Wooding Love, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. George Bass Tuttle, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Samuel Alexander Springwater, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Polk Duncan Brown, of Tennessee.
Contract Surg. Joseph Pinquard, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Harrison Warder Stuckey, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Everett Allen Anderson, of North Dakota.
Contract Surg. Marion Fraser Marvin, of Florida.
Contract Surg. Frederic Elmer Jenkins, of Maryland.
Contract Surg. John Michael Hewitt, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Ernest Eugene Roberts, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. Frank Suggs, of Arkansas.
Contract Surg. William Eugene Hall, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. James Rudolph Mount, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Edgar James Farrow, of California.
Contract Surg. George B. Jones, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Albion McDowell Coffey, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. W. Church Griswold, of New York.
Contract Surg. Herbert William Yemans, of New York.
Contract Surg. John MacIntosh Shepherd, of New York.
Contract Surg. Edward H. Jordan, of Colorado.
Contract Surg. Robert Lemmon, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. George Elliot Chamberlain, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. Luis G. de Quevedo, of Porto Rico.
Contract Surg. Thomas Carl Walker, of North Carolina.
Contract Surg. Henry C. Bierbower, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Oswald Frederick Henning, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Hermon Erwin Hasseltine, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. George French Campbell, of Wyoming.
Contract Surg. William H. Myers, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Charles H. Halliday, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Charles Travis Dulin, of Washington.
Contract Surg. Leon Carre Garcia, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Samuel Brown McPheeters, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Clarence Cameron Kress, at large.
Contract Surg. George Thomas Tyler, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles W. Cullen, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Daniel Warwick Harmon, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. George W. Cook, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Edgar Clyde Jones, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. George Philip Stallman, of New York.
Contract Surg. Fred J. Conzelmann, of New York.
Contract Surg. Herbert Cody Woolley, of New York.
Contract Surg. Edmund William Bayley, of Minnesota.
Contract Surg. Andrew Victor Stephenson, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. Daniel Parker Card, of New York.
Contract Surg. Raphael John Wren, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Sylvester Francis O'Day, of New York.
Contract Surg. Lee Roy Dunbar, of New York.
Contract Surg. George Trotter-Tyler, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Arthur C. Delacroix, of New York.
Contract Surg. Harlow Comstock McLeod, of New York.
Contract Surg. Henry Freeman Lincoln, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. William Hope Smith, of Texas.
Contract Surg. Herbert Lentz Freeland, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Chauncey Leonard Chase, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Arnold Dwight Tuttle, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles Arthur Tetrault, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Dayton Carroll Wiggin, of New Hampshire.
Contract Surg. William Meade Archer, jr., of Virginia.
Contract Surg. James Connallin Magee, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Elsworth Wilson, of Oklahoma.
Contract Surg. Howard Priest, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Percy G. Drake, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. James I. Thorne, at large.
Contract Surg. Joseph Edward Bastion, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Henry Reuben Weston, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. George Gorgas Craig, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. William Henry Pomeroy, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Zotique Rousseau, of New York.
Contract Surg. Julian Augustus Mead, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. William Hull Ramsey, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. Samuel C. Stanton, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Carlisle F. Ferrin, of Connecticut.
William Richard Dear, of the District of Columbia.
Eben Clayton Hill, of Maryland.
Armin Mueller, of Wisconsin.
Rozier Clagett Bayly, of Virginia.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 9, 1908.

First Lieut. James Reagles (since retired from active service), vice Jean, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Francis A. Halliday (since retired from active service), vice Kirby-Smith, resigned.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 14, 1908.

Henry Clay Coburn, of the District of Columbia.
John Brockenbrough Harvie Waring, of Virginia.
Charles Edward Doerr, of Ohio.
Frederick Starr Wright, of New York.
Ralph Harvard Goldthwaite, of Massachusetts.
Donald Miner, of New Jersey.
Robert William Kerr, of Rhode Island.
Norman Lincoln McDiarmid, of Ohio.
James Arthur Wilson, of Michigan.
Addison Dimmitt Davis, of South Dakota.
Corydon Goodrich Snow, of Illinois.
Morrison Clay Stayer, of Pennsylvania.
George Dawson Heath, jr., of South Carolina.
Richard Augustine Kearny, of Louisiana.
Alexander Dwight Parce, of Missouri.
Henry Fuller Philips, of Texas.
Thomas James Leary, of Pennsylvania.
William Stephens Shields, of Pennsylvania.
George Hudson McLellan, of Ohio.
Clarence Elmer Fronk, of Missouri.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from September 15, 1908.

First Lieut. William L. Hart, vice Chidester, resigned.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 23, 1908.

Howard Andrew Knox, of Massachusetts.
Ralph Waldo Newton, of Massachusetts.
Nelson Walton Wilson, of New York.
Edgar Robinson McGuire, of New York.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

James Clinton Ballard, of Mississippi.
James Edward Maloney, of New York.
Thomas Madden Foley, of the District of Columbia.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 29, 1908.

Joseph August Pargon, of Oregon.
Maurice Buchsbaum, of Oklahoma.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 30, 1908.

Frank Salter Nicholson, of Nebraska.
Charles D. W. Colby, of North Carolina.
Charles Allen Betts, of Washington.
Ziba Lindley Henry, of Ohio.
Walter Fundenberg Leech, of West Virginia.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 2, 1908.

James Andrew Egan, of Illinois.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 5, 1908.

Lester Winslow Lord, of New Hampshire.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 27, 1908.

William Ward Plummer, of New York.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from October 31, 1908.

Edmund Douglas Shortlidge, of Delaware.
Llewellyn Powell Williamson, of Missouri.
John Ryan Devereux, of the District of Columbia.
Walter Clifford Chidester, of Ohio.
Reynold Marvin Kirby-Smith, of Tennessee.
Samuel Ernest Lambert, of Alabama.
James Franklin Edwards, of Pennsylvania.
William Evans Richards, of Mississippi.
Edward Warwick Pinkham, of Massachusetts.
Clarence Beacom Millhoff, of Pennsylvania.
Howard Walter Beal, of Maine.
Jerome Stuart Chaffee, of New York.

CHAPLAINS.

To be chaplains with the rank of first lieutenant.

WITH RANK FROM JUNE 9, 1908.

Rev. Walter Kenyon Lloyd, of Arkansas, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Clinton Herby Snyder, of Ohio, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Frederick Lawrence Kunnecke, of Maryland, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Edward Russell Chase, of Maine, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Laurence Leo Denning, of Ohio, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Michael Gabriel Doran, of New York, to fill an original vacancy.

WITH RANK FROM JUNE 29, 1908.

Rev. Stephen Richard Wood, of California, vice Steward, Twenty-fifth Infantry, retired from active service.

WITH RANK FROM SEPTEMBER 22, 1908.

Rev. Stanley Clayton Ramsden, of New Jersey, vice Brockmann, Twenty-seventh Infantry resigned.

CAVALRY ARM.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Herbert Hamlin White, of Idaho.
Chauncey St. Claire McNeill, of West Virginia.
John Pullman, of New York.
Frank Keet Ross, of Pennsylvania.
Herman Kobbé, of California.
John Ashley Warden, of Texas.
John Caffery Walker, jr., of Texas.
Victor McDowell Whitside, of the District of Columbia.

FIELD ARTILLERY.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Edward Postell King, jr., of Georgia.
Kenneth Sheild Perkins, of Virginia.
Robert George Kirkwood, of Illinois.
Harold Everett Marr, of Maine.
Joseph Wright Rumbough, of Virginia.
William McCleave, of Montana.
Allan Clay McBride, of Maryland.
Joe Reese Brabson, of Tennessee.
Leonard Craig Sparks, of Washington.
John Alden Crane, of Maryland.
Albert Kenny Craven Palmer, of Maine.
Frederick Almyron Prince, of Illinois.
Marshall Magruder, of the District of Columbia.
Truby Cheney Martin, of Kansas.
Wilbur Rogers, of Kansas.
Louis Roberts Dougherty, of California.
Samuel Roland Hopkins, of Maryland.
Frederick Warren Stewart, at large.
Joseph Taylor Clement, of Florida.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from June 9, 1908.

Robert Ross Welshimer, of Illinois, late midshipman United States Navy.

William Whinery Hicks, of Alabama, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from July 1, 1908.

Eugene Bonfils Walker, of California, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 4, 1908.

Louis David Pepin, of Minnesota.
Karl F. Baldwin, of Ohio.
Charles Kleber Wing, jr., of North Dakota.
Robert Octavious Edwards, of Virginia.
Everett Martin Balcom, of New Hampshire.
Guy Agard Mix, of New York.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

John Henry Pirie, of Texas.
George Rothwell Norton, of Massachusetts.
Eugene Reybold, of Delaware.
Wilmot Alfred Danielson, of Iowa.
Hugo Ernest Pitz, of Iowa.
Thomas Clair Cook, of Ohio.
Olin Harrington Longino, of Georgia.
Peter Hill Ottosen, of Iowa.
Edgar Hall Thompson, of Rhode Island.
Samuel Harvey McLeary, of Porto Rico.
John Norton Reynolds, of the District of Columbia.
Lewis Edward Goodier, jr., of New York.
Rufus Foote Maddux, of Kentucky.
Herbert Austin McCune, of Iowa.
Lincoln Beaumont Chambers, of Oregon.
Willis Craig Knight, of Washington.
John Robert Ellis, of Arkansas.
John Mather, of Connecticut.
Chester Raymond Snow, of New Jersey.
Robert Emmett Mason Goolrick, of Virginia.
Walter Putney Boatwright, of Virginia.
John Piper Smith, of Pennsylvania.
Harry Read Vaughan, of Georgia.
Abney Payne, of West Virginia.
Edwin Kennedy Smith, of Tennessee.
Clarence Talmage Marsh, of North Carolina.
John Blackwell Maynard, of Virginia.
Isaac Edwin Titus, of Ohio.
Jacob Frank, of Vermont.
Warren Reigle Bell, of Pennsylvania.
Arthur Griffith Campbell, of Virginia.
John Thomas Rowe, of Virginia.
Frederick Le Roy Martin, of Indiana.

To be second lieutenant, with rank from October 1, 1908.

Sergt. Harold Lincoln Gardiner, One hundred and ninth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

INFANTRY ARM.

To be second lieutenant, with rank from June 9, 1908.

Alva Lee, of Wyoming, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from August 29, 1908.

Corp. Roy Walter Winton, Company H, Twenty-sixth Infantry.

Sergt. Frederick Caldwell Phelps, Sixth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Q. M. Sergt. James Luke Frink, Troop H, Thirteenth Cavalry.

Sergt. John Burges Johnson, Company B, Hospital Corps.

Q. M. Sergt. Edmund Russell Andrews, One hundred and eighteenth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Master Gunner Spencer Montgomery Smith, Coast Artillery Corps.

Sergt. Joseph Albert Rogers, Company G, Ninth Infantry.

Sergt. Walter Richard Taliaferro, One hundred and tenth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Squadron Sergt. Maj. Henry John Damm, Third Cavalry.

Master Gunner Max Robert Wainer, Coast Artillery Corps.

Sergt. Emmett Wilbur Smith, Company I, Twenty-eighth Infantry.

Sergt. Charles Thorpe Griffith, Troop H, Thirteenth Cavalry.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 4, 1908.

Robert Henry Willis, jr., of South Carolina.
Charles Elting Coates, of Pennsylvania.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Martin Conrad Shallenberger, of Nebraska.
William Baldridge Loughborough, at large.
James Wallace Peyton, of Virginia.
Oral Eugene Clark, of Michigan.
Robert Coker, of Massachusetts.
Marcel Selby Keene, of Maryland.
William Ferguson Hoey, jr., of Delaware.
John Hale Stutesman, of Indiana.
William Willis Boddie, of North Carolina.
William Gladstone Langwill, of Iowa.
James Anthony Sarratt, of South Carolina.
Frank Melvin Kennedy, of Illinois.
John Thomas Harris, of West Virginia.
Albert Sidney Johnston Tucker, of Virginia.
Marion Ogilvie French, of New York.
George William Carlyle Whiting, of Virginia.
George Robbins Simpson, of Virginia.
Charles Winslow Elliott, of Minnesota.
James Douglas Rivet, of Massachusetts.
George Richard Koehler, of New Jersey.
James Alfred Merritt, of Maryland.
Oliver Seth Wood, of Arkansas.
Alexander Warner Cleary, of New York.
Allen Mitchell Burdett, of Georgia.
Herbert Clarence Fooks, of Maryland.
John Register Emory, jr., of Virginia.
Jacob Herman Rudolph, of Wisconsin.
Elbe Allen Lathrop, of Minnesota.
Raymond Ceward Baird, of Iowa.
Matthew Addison Palen, of California.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Capt. John K. Barton to be Engineer in Chief and Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, in the Department of the Navy, with the rank of rear-admiral, vice Engineer in Chief Charles W. Rae, deceased.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles W. Densmore, to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Ensign Clarence S. Vanderbeck to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Clarence S. Vanderbeck to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Kirby B. Crittenden to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 1st day of November, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Lieut. Henry T. Baker to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 18th day of November, 1907, vice Lieut. Commander William B. Fletcher, promoted.

The following-named lieutenants (junior grade) to be lieutenants in the navy from the 3d day of February, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

William W. Smyth,
John S. Arwine, jr., and
Butler Y. Rhodes.

Lieut. Commander John M. Ellicott to be a commander in the navy from the 24th day of April, 1908, vice Commander York Noel, deceased.

Lieut. Commander Charles W. Dyson to be a commander in the navy from the 15th day of May, 1908, vice Commander Frank F. Fletcher, promoted.

Commander Frank E. Beatty to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Charles P. Perkins, retired.

Commander Moses L. Wood to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Theodoric Porter, retired.

Commander Robert M. Doyle to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. George L. Dyer, retired.

Commander Wythe M. Parks to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Charles W. Bartlett, retired.

Commander Frank H. Bailey, an additional number in grade, to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, with Capt. Wythe M. Parks, promoted.

Commander William B. Caperton to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Henry Morrell, retired.

Commander James T. Smith to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. John M. Robinson, retired.

Commander George S. Willits to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Robert G. Denig, retired.

Commander Walter F. Worthington to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. George H. Peters, retired.

Commander William N. Little to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. William C. Eaton, retired.

Lieut. Commander Harry George to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Frank E. Beatty, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Frederick L. Chapin to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Moses L. Wood, promoted.

Lieut. Commander William C. Herbert to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Robert M. Doyle, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Alexander S. Halstead to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Wythe M. Parks, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Harry A. Field to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander William B. Caperton, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Chester M. Knepper to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander James T. Smith, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Clarence S. Williams to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander George S. Willits, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Frank K. Hill to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Walter F. Worthington, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Roger Welles to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander William N. Little, promoted.

Lieut. Commander John D. McDonald to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Horace W. Harrison, retired.

Lieut. Commander Hilary P. Jones, jr., to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Percival J. Werlich, retired.

Lieut. Commander William R. Shoemaker to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander John L. Gow, retired.

Lieut. Commander Charles M. Fahs to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Harry Hall, retired.

Lieut. Commander Charles P. Plunkett to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander James G. Doyle, retired.

Capt. John E. Pillsbury to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Charles M. Thomas, deceased.

Capt. Adolph Marix, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, with Capt. John E. Pillsbury, promoted.

Capt. Raymond P. Rodgers, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Adolph Marix, promoted.

Commander Frank H. Eldridge to be a captain in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. John E. Pillsbury, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Volney O. Chase to be a commander in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Frank H. Eldridge, promoted.

Capt. Royal R. Ingersoll to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Richardson Clover, retired.

Capt. Seaton Schroeder, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Royal R. Ingersoll, promoted.

Capt. Richard Wainwright, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Seaton Schroeder, promoted.

Capt. Thomas C. McLean to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral William T. Burwell, retired.

Commander Templin M. Potts to be a captain in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Thomas C. McLean, promoted.

Lieut. Commander George R. Slocum to be a commander in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Templin M. Potts, promoted.

Commander Burns T. Walling to be a captain in the navy from the 20th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Henry McCrea, deceased.

The following-named ensigns to be lieutenants (junior grade) in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Charles H. Bullock,
Hugh McL. Walker,

John Grady,
Arthur C. Kail, and
Robert W. Kessler.

The following-named lieutenants (junior grade) to be lieutenants in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Charles H. Bullock,
Hugh McL. Walker, and
John Grady.

Capt. William J. Barnette to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral William S. Cowles, retired.

Commander Clifford J. Boush to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Capt. William J. Barnette, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Joseph Strauss to be a commander in the navy from the 3d day of September, 1908, vice Commander James H. Sears, promoted.

Capt. Edwin K. Moore to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral John P. Merrell, retired.

Capt. John A. Rodgers, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, with Capt. Edwin K. Moore, promoted.

Commander Abraham E. Culver to be a captain in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Capt. Edwin K. Moore, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Robert L. Russell to be a commander in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Commander Abraham E. Culver, promoted.

Capt. James D. Adams to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral James H. Dayton, retired.

Commander Henry T. Mayo to be a captain in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Capt. James D. Adams, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Harrison A. Bispham to be a commander in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Commander Henry T. Mayo, promoted.

Capt. Gottfried Blocklinger to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Albert R. Couden, retired.

Lieut. Commander Armistead Rust to be a commander in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, vice Commander Charles C. Rogers, promoted.

Ensign Edgar G. Oberlin to take rank as an ensign in the navy from the 31st day of January, 1907, to correct the date from which he takes rank as confirmed on May 14, 1908.

Midshipman Sylvester H. Lawton, jr., to be an ensign in the navy from the 31st day of January, 1907, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

The following-named midshipmen to be ensigns in the navy from the 13th day of February, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

George S. Bryan,
Edward S. Moses,
Milo F. Draemel,
Isaac C. Shute,
Henry G. Fuller,
Andrew S. Hickey,
Francis M. Robinson,
John F. Connor,
Charles C. Hartigan,
William H. Booth,
Charles S. McWhorter,
Douglas W. Fuller,
Herbert E. Emerson,
George E. Lake,
Albert S. Rees,
Fred F. Rogers,
Lynn B. Bernheim,
Wilfred E. Clarke,
Garrett K. Davis,
William B. Howe,
Hamilton F. Glover,
Herndon B. Kelly,
Arthur A. Garcelon, jr., and
Jefferson B. Goldman.

Gunner James J. Manning and Boatswain Benjamin J. Greene to be ensigns in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved March 3, 1901, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1903, and April 27, 1904.

I nominate the following-named assistant surgeons to be passed assistant surgeons in the navy from the dates set opposite their names, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Milton E. Lando, October 26, 1907;
Judson L. Taylor, December 17, 1907;
Paul R. Stalnaker, May 3, 1908; and
George S. Hathaway, August 1, 1908.

Passed Asst. Surg. John J. Snyder to be a surgeon in the navy from the 4th day of April, 1908, vice Surg. John E. Page, retired.

Passed Asst. Surg. Edward M. Blackwell to be a surgeon in the navy from the 4th day of April, 1908, vice Surg. John M. Moore, dismissed.

Passed Asst. Surg. George F. Freeman to be a surgeon in the navy from the 2d day of August, 1908, vice Surg. John F. Urie, retired.

Medical Inspector Lucien G. Heneberger to be a medical director in the navy from the 2d day of September, 1908, vice Medical Director Walter A. McClurg, retired.

Surg. Henry T. Percy to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 2d day of September, 1908, vice Medical Inspector Lucien G. Heneberger, promoted.

Surg. James D. Gatewood to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 18th day of September, 1908, vice Medical Inspector John M. Steele, retired.

Surg. Oliver Diehl to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 11th day of October, 1908, vice Medical Inspector Clement Biddle, retired.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 15th day of June, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

David G. Allen, a citizen of Georgia;
Lindsay C. Whiteside, a citizen of Pennsylvania;
Chandler W. Smith, a citizen of Pennsylvania; and
George C. Thomas, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 15th day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Joseph R. Phelps, a citizen of Massachusetts;
George B. Crow, a citizen of Missouri; and
Alfred L. Clifton, a citizen of Delaware.

Harry W. B. Turner, a citizen of California, to be an assistant surgeon in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Reginald B. Henry, a citizen of New York, and Harry A. Giltner, a citizen of Indiana, to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 10th day of September, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date.

Lloyd P. Shippen, a citizen of Maryland, and Lucius W. Johnson, a citizen of Pennsylvania, to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 17th day of September, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 3d day of October, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

John B. Pollard, a citizen of Virginia;
Arthur H. Dodge, a citizen of Rhode Island;
George F. Cottle, a citizen of New York; and
William L. Mann, jr., a citizen of Texas.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 12th day of October, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Roy Cuthbertson, a citizen of Michigan;
George B. Whitmore, a citizen of New York;
John A. B. Sinclair, a citizen of Virginia; and Donald H. Noble, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

Passed Asst. Paymaster George P. Auld to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of December, 1906, vice Paymaster Dexter Tiffany, jr., resigned.

Paymaster William J. Littell to be a pay inspector in the navy from the 5th day of April, 1908, vice Pay Inspector Charles S. Williams, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster John A. B. Smith, jr., to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of April, 1908, vice Paymaster William J. Littell, promoted.

Paymaster Martin McM. Ramsay to be a pay inspector in the navy from the 2d day of May, 1908, vice Pay Inspector Thomas J. Cowie, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster Felix R Holt to be a paymaster in the navy from the 2d day of May, 1908, vice Paymaster Martin McM. Ramsay, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster Emmett C. Gudger to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Paymaster Walter L. Wilson, retired.

The following-named assistant paymasters in the navy to be passed assistant paymasters in the navy from the dates set opposite their names, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Fred W. Holt, October 23, 1907;
Walter D. Sharp, October 23, 1907;
Raymond B. Westlake, October 23, 1907;
Gordon A. Helmicks, October 23, 1907;
John M. Hancock, October 23, 1907;
Graham M. Adee, October 23, 1907;
George R. Crapo, October 23, 1907;
Thom Williamson, jr., October 23, 1907;
William N. Hughes, October 23, 1907;
Howard H. Alkire, November 30, 1907;
John N. Jordan, January 6, 1908;
Harold W. Browning, March 15, 1908;
Benjamin H. Brooke, July 8, 1908;
Thomas J. Bright, July 8, 1908;
Emory D. Stanley, July 8, 1908;
Lewis W. L. Jennings, July 8, 1908;
Brantz Mayer, July 8, 1908;
Swinton L. Bethea, July 8, 1908;
William G. Neill, July 8, 1908;
Harry E. Collins, July 8, 1908;
John H. Gunnell, July 8, 1908;
Emmett H. Tebeau, July 8, 1908;
Charles E. Parsons, July 8, 1908;
William J. Hine, July 8, 1908;
Francis J. Daly, July 8, 1908; and
Roland W. Schumann, July 8, 1908.

The following-named citizens to be assistant paymasters in the navy from the 23d day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

William R. Van Buren, a citizen of New York;
Raymond E. Corcoran, a citizen of South Carolina;
Elwood A. Cobey, a citizen of Maryland;
Spencer E. Dickinson, a citizen of California;
Robert S. Chew, jr., a citizen of the District of Columbia;
Russell Van De W. Bleecker, a citizen of New York; and
Thomas R. Le Compte, a citizen of Maryland.

Ensign Allan J. Chantry, jr., to be an assistant naval constructor in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

The following-named boatswains in the navy to be chief boatswains in the navy from the dates set opposite their names upon the completion of six years' service in present grade:

Daniel Montague, June 15, 1904;
John Winn, November 5, 1907;
John Eberwine, March 11, 1908;
August Wohltman, March 11, 1908;
John A. Riley, March 11, 1908;
William Martin, March 11, 1908; and
Harry G. Jacklin, July 5, 1908.

The following-named gunners to be chief gunners in the navy from the dates set opposite their names upon the completion of six years' service in present grade:

August C. Steinbrenner, August 1, 1906;
Leonard Roll, March 11, 1908;
Isaiah Wilbur, March 11, 1908; and
George A. Messing, March 11, 1908.

Major, Assistant Adjutant and Inspector Rufus H. Lane to be an assistant adjutant and inspector in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of lieutenant-colonel from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Captain, Assistant Quartermaster William B. Lemly to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Major, Assistant Quartermaster Charles L. McCawley, promoted.

Captain, Assistant Quartermaster Henry L. Roosevelt to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Captain, Asst. Paymaster William G. Powell to be an assistant paymaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

First Lieut. Logan Tucker to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of captain from the 28th day of September, 1908, vice Captain, Asst. Quartermaster Edwin A. Jonas, retired.

Second Lieut. Edward H. Conger to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of March, 1908, vice First Lieut. Cleyburn McCauley, retired.

Capt. Philip M. Bannon to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Edward R. Lowndes, retired.

First Lieut. William H. Pritchett to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Philip M. Bannon, promoted.

Second Lieut. Jeter R. Horton to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William H. Pritchett, promoted.

Lieut. Col. Lincoln Karmany to be a colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Maj. John A. Lejeune to be a lieutenant-colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Lieut. Col. Lincoln Karmany, promoted.

Maj. Eli K. Cole to be a lieutenant-colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Capt. Newt H. Hall to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. John A. Lejeune, promoted.

Capt. Henry Leonard to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Smedley D. Butler, an additional number in grade.

Capt. George C. Thorpe to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Henry Leonard, an additional number in grade.

Capt. Charles S. Hill to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Capt. Henry C. Davis to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress on that date.

First Lieut. William G. Fay to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Henry Leonard, promoted.

First Lieut. Robert Y. Rhea to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. George C. Thorpe, promoted.

First Lieut. Thomas Holcomb, jr., to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Henry C. Davis, promoted.

The following-named first lieutenants to be captains in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill vacancies created by an act of Congress approved on that date:

Edward A. Greene,
Edward B. Manwaring,
Thomas M. Clinton,
Hamilton D. South,
James T. Buttrick,
Giles Bishop, jr.,
James K. Tracy,
Arthur J. O'Leary,
Berton W. Sibley,
Frank F. Robards,
William Brackett,
Chandler Campbell,
William L. Redles,
Woodell A. Pickering,
Charles T. Westcott, jr., and
Franklin S. Wiltse.

Second Lieut. Henry N. Manney, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frank C. Lander, promoted.

Second Lieut. Clifford P. Meyer to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Thomas H. Brown, promoted.

Second Lieut. Franklin B. Garrett to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William G. Fay, promoted.

Second Lieut. Calvin B. Matthews to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Eli T. Fryer, promoted.

Second Lieut. Arthur A. Racicot, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Edward A. Greene, promoted.

Second Lieut. Tom D. Barber to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Hamilton D. South, promoted.

Second Lieut. Hermann T. Vulte to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. James T. Buttrick, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edward W. Sturdevant, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Giles Bishop, jr., promoted.

Second Lieut. Andrew B. Drum to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. James K. Tracy, promoted.

Second Lieut. Victor I. Morrison to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Ellis B. Miller, promoted.

Second Lieut. Maurice E. Shearer to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Arthur J. O'Leary, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ward Ellis to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Berton W. Sibley, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles A. Lutz to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William Brackett, promoted.

Second Lieut. Calhoun Ancrum to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Chandler Campbell, promoted.

Second Lieut. David M. Randall to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William L. Redles, promoted.

Second Lieut. John R. Henley to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Charles T. Westcott, jr., promoted.

Second Lieut. Henry S. Green to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Franklin S. Wiltse, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ralph L. Shepard to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frederick A. Ramsey, promoted.

The following-named second lieutenants in the United States Marine Corps to be first lieutenants in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill vacancies created in that grade by an act of Congress approved on that date:

Howard W. Stone,
Bennet Puryear, jr.,
William W. Buckley,
William C. Wise, jr.,
William D. Smith,
Harold B. Pratt, and
Randolph Coyle.

First Lieut. Frederick A. Ramsey to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

First Lieut. John A. Hughes to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Harold C. Reisinger, appointed captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Philip H. Torrey to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Earl H. Ellis, promoted.

Second Lieut. Robert L. Denig to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. John A. Hughes, promoted.

Second Lieut. Logan Tucker to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frank Halford, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Charles S. McReynolds to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Walter E. Noa, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Charles F. B. Price to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Seth Williams, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. William C. Powers, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Davis B. Wills, appointed a captain, assistant paymaster.

Second Lieut. Russell H. Davis to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Edward W. Banker, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Sydney S. Lee to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Charles R. Sanderson, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Robert Tittoni to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William A. Howard, retired.

First Lieut. Thomas C. Turner to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of June, 1908, vice Capt. Henry O. Bisset, retired.

Second Lieut. Ross E. Rowell to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of June, 1908, vice First Lieut. Thomas C. Turner, promoted.

Capt. Smedley D. Butler to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Eli K. Cole, promoted.

Templin M. Potts, jr., a citizen of West Virginia, to be a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 10th day of March, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Clarke H. Wells, a citizen of the District of Columbia, to be a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 9th day of September, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

POSTMASTERS.

ALABAMA.

James A. Chambliss to be postmaster at Enterprise, Ala., in place of James A. Chambliss. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

William B. Dale to be postmaster at Camden, Ala., in place of William J. Leppert, resigned.

Daniel A. Ewing to be postmaster at Florala, Ala., in place of Theodore S. Lanz, resigned.

May T. Fowler to be postmaster at Uniontown, Ala., in place of May T. Fowler. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

A. W. Hawke to be postmaster at Samson, Ala. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

Henry L. Marsh to be postmaster at Abbeville, Ala. Office became presidential April 1, 1906.

James W. Pilgreen to be postmaster at Calera, Ala. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Thomas H. Stephens to be postmaster at Gadsden, Ala., in place of Thomas H. Stephens. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Byron Trammell to be postmaster at Dothan, Ala., in place of Byron Trammell. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Robert H. Trammell to be postmaster at Lockhart, Ala. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charley N. Thompson to be postmaster at Piedmont, Ala., in place of Charley N. Thompson. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

William Wagner to be postmaster at Atmore, Ala. Office became presidential October 1, 1906.

Newton L. Wilson to be postmaster at Blocton, Ala., in place of Newton L. Wilson. Incumbent's commission expired June 19, 1906.

Lea Woodruff to be postmaster at Demopolis, Ala., in place of Wiley F. Kennamer. Incumbent's commission expired December 19, 1907.

ARKANSAS.

James F. Burrus to be postmaster at Atkins, Ark. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Lyman S. Roach to be postmaster at Texarkana, Ark., in place of Lyman S. Roach. Incumbent's commission expires February 1, 1909.

J. E. Woodson to be postmaster at Hope, Ark., in place of James R. Gibson. Incumbent's commission expired February 23, 1908.

CALIFORNIA.

John M. Jolley to be postmaster at Oceanside, Cal., in place of John M. Jolley. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

James G. Mason to be postmaster at Menlo Park, Cal., in place of Jane E. Loveland, resigned.

Oscar L. Meek to be postmaster at Marysville, Cal., in place of John P. Swift, resigned.

Esther Murphy to be postmaster at Alhambra, Cal., in place of Frank B. Elwood, resigned.

Frederick B. Nichols to be postmaster at McCloud, Cal., in place of Frederick B. Nichols. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Nellie Pellet to be postmaster at Brawley, Cal. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

H. C. Trippett to be postmaster at Roseville, Cal. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

J. H. Williams to be postmaster at Compton, Cal., in place of Lorenzo A. Rockwell, removed.

COLORADO.

Francis M. Carman to be postmaster at Limon, Colo. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Henry W. Lance to be postmaster at Rocky Ford, Colo., in place of Henry W. Lance. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Griffith R. Lewis to be postmaster at Cripple Creek, Colo., in place of Daniel M. Sullivan. Incumbent's commission expired January 4, 1908.

Robert S. Lewis to be postmaster at Canon City, Colo., in place of Robert S. Lewis. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

CONNECTICUT.

John W. Cook to be postmaster at Beacon Falls, Conn. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Alexander B. Gardner to be postmaster at Milford, Conn., in place of Alexander B. Gardner. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Harvey S. Halligan to be postmaster at Seymour, Conn., in place of Wilbur W. Smith, deceased.

Nelson R. Jessup to be postmaster at Stamford, Conn., in place of Joshua A. Fessenden, deceased.

William L. Judson to be postmaster at Woodbury, Conn. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

William H. Kelsey to be postmaster at Clinton Conn., in place of William H. Kelsey. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Giles P. Lecrenier to be postmaster at Moodus, Conn. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charles H. Taylor to be postmaster at Georgetown, Conn. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

DELAWARE.

John R. Black to be postmaster at Milton, Del. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

FLORIDA.

Frank Vans Agnew to be postmaster at Kissimmee, Fla., in place of Willard L. Van Duzor, removed.

Charles E. Barnes to be postmaster at Plant City, Fla., in place of Eben B. Trask, resigned.

Newell B. Hull to be postmaster at Starke, Fla., in place of Newell B. Hull. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

Charles H. Jones to be postmaster at Quincy, Fla., in place of George A. W. Wendell, resigned.

GEORGIA.

John R. Barclay to be postmaster at Rome, Ga., in place of John R. Barclay. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

William T. Edwards to be postmaster at Canton, Ga., in place of William T. Edwards. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

George B. Grier to be postmaster at Dublin, Ga., in place of Clark Grier, resigned.

Helen D. Longstreet to be postmaster at Gainesville, Ga., in place of Helen D. Longstreet. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Henry M. Miller to be postmaster at Colquitt, Ga. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Thomas M. Scovill to be postmaster at Oglethorpe, Ga. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

HAWAII.

M. T. Lyons to be postmaster at Wailuku, Hawaii, in place of Vetle A. Vetlesen. Incumbent's commission expired November 17, 1907.

IDAHO.

Charles C. Moore to be postmaster at St. Anthony, Idaho, in place of Marcellus J. Gray, removed.

A. T. Shane to be postmaster at Idaho Falls, Idaho, in place of Ed F. Winn, removed.

Thomas C. White to be postmaster at St. Maries, Idaho. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

ILLINOIS.

John F. Ashwill to be postmaster at Toledo, Ill., in place of John F. Ashwill. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Henry C. Bogue to be postmaster at Vermont, Ill., in place of Henry C. Bogue. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

Theodore Boltenstern to be postmaster at Cambridge, Ill., in place of Swan J. Chilberg, resigned.

Orange L. Campbell to be postmaster at Knoxville, Ill., in place of Orange L. Campbell. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Frank J. Chapman to be postmaster at McLeansboro, Ill., in place of Augustus Gibson, deceased.

Albert S. Corl to be postmaster at North Crystal Lake, Ill. (late Munda), in place of Albert S. Corl. To change name of office.

Joel W. Ellis to be postmaster at Seneca, Ill., in place of Joel W. Ellis. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

John Holliday to be postmaster at Kirkwood, Ill., in place of John Holliday. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Henry C. Jones to be postmaster at Marion, Ill., in place of Henry C. Jones. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

William A. Kelly to be postmaster at West Frankfort, Ill. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Warren J. Lincoln to be postmaster at Mount Pulaski, Ill., in place of Warren J. Lincoln. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Robert L. Lutton to be postmaster at Clifton, Ill. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Henry P. Miller to be postmaster at Cobden, Ill., in place of Orlando E. Baldwin, resigned.

Robert J. Morray to be postmaster at Creal Springs, Ill. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Fred W. Pattee to be postmaster at Elburn, Ill., in place of Fred W. Pattee. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Edgar Rodee to be postmaster at Prophetstown, Ill., in place of Ansel B. Case, resigned.

Paul P. Shutt to be postmaster at Paris, Ill., in place of George W. Baber, deceased.

Frederick J. Simater to be postmaster at Minonk, Ill., in place of Alfred R. Wilcox, resigned.

William L. Spear to be postmaster at Rankin, Ill., in place of Samuel S. Irwin. Incumbent's commission expires January 9, 1909.

J. W. Thompson to be postmaster at Granite City, Ill., in place of Frank M. Cauger. Incumbent's commission expired November 17, 1907.

Charles G. Watrous to be postmaster at Waukegan, Ill., in place of Charles G. Watrous. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

INDIANA.

Joseph E. Gordon to be postmaster at Versailles, Ind., in place of Lewis A. Lee, resigned.

Charles E. Hillstrom to be postmaster at Chesterton, Ind., in place of Charles E. Hillstrom. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Charles Fremont Hoover to be postmaster at Akron, Ind. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Knode D. Porter to be postmaster at Hagerstown, Ind., in place of Knode D. Porter. Incumbent's commission expired January 4, 1908.

William E. Sholty to be postmaster at Windfall, Ind. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Phineas O. Small to be postmaster at Laporte, Ind., in place of Phineas O. Small. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Moses Specter to be postmaster at East Chicago, Ind., in place of Mary Ann Ross. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

IOWA.

Carlos G. Aldrich to be postmaster at Schaller, Iowa, in place of Charles G. Aldrich. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Martin A. Aasgaard to be postmaster at Lake Mills, Iowa, in place of Ferdinand A. Christensen. Incumbent's commission expired January 11, 1908.

George Banger to be postmaster at Laporte City, Iowa, in place of George Banger. Incumbent's commission expired January 11, 1908.

Charles O. Barry to be postmaster at Walker, Iowa. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Edgar O. Beanblossom to be postmaster at Whiting, Iowa, in place of Edgar O. Beanblossom. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Dennis Bittner to be postmaster at Olin, Iowa. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

William L. Comstock to be postmaster at Mechanicsville, Iowa, in place of William L. Comstock. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Hans Evenson to be postmaster at Calmar, Iowa. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Fred J. Fearis to be postmaster at Richland, Iowa. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

John H. Hunt to be postmaster at Allison, Iowa, in place of Lambert J. Rogers. Incumbent's commission expired November 17, 1907.

J. E. T. Johnson to be postmaster at Gowrie, Iowa, in place of Victor Nelson. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

Louis N. Kramer to be postmaster at McGregor, Iowa, in place of Alonzo C. Boyle, resigned.

Frank J. Mann to be postmaster at Burt, Iowa, in place of Lincoln Hall, resigned.

John C. Meredith to be postmaster at Allerton, Iowa, in place of Samuel H. Hedrix, resigned.

A. W. Sleeper to be postmaster at Sheldon, Iowa, in place of Joe Morton, resigned.

Lewis W. Sley to be postmaster at Oxford Junction, Iowa. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Charles Smith to be postmaster at Clarence, Iowa, in place of Charles Smith. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Charles M. Stevens to be postmaster at Williams, Iowa. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

L. H. Surber to be postmaster at Indianola, Iowa, in place of Evan B. Dowell. Incumbent's commission expired April 19, 1908.

Frank J. Tishenbanner to be postmaster at Gilmore City, Iowa, in place of Lyman Beers, resigned.

W. H. Vance to be postmaster at Winterset, Iowa, in place of Edward M. Smith, resigned.

KANSAS.

Eli A. Baum to be postmaster at Burden, Kans. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Orlando A. Cheney to be postmaster at Fort Scott, Kans., in place of Orlando A. Cheney. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Frank S. McKelvey to be postmaster at Gas, Kans., in place of Frank S. McKelvey. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Lewis Pickrell to be postmaster at Minneapolis, Kans., in place of Thomas E. Hurley, resigned.

KENTUCKY.

Charles Cowell to be postmaster at Earlington, Ky., in place of Charles G. Robinson, deceased.

George A. Harding to be postmaster at Campbellsville, Ky., in place of Thomas C. Taylor, removed.

H. G. Hicks to be postmaster at Olive Hill, Ky. Office became presidential January 1, 1907.

William H. Jones to be postmaster at Glasgow, Ky., in place of James F. Taylor, resigned.

William J. Manby to be postmaster at La Grange, Ky., in place of Joseph P. Bozarth. Incumbent's commission expired January 11, 1908.

John D. Littlejohn to be postmaster at Grayson, Ky. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

John W. Shields to be postmaster at Williamstown, Ky., in place of John W. Shields. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

William A. Wallace to be postmaster at Leitchfield, Ky., in place of Daniel O'Riley. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

LOUISIANA.

Philip P. Blanchard to be postmaster at White Castle, La., in place of Randolph Blanchard, resigned.

Joseph J. Lafargue to be postmaster at Donaldsonville, La., in place of John F. Terrio, deceased.

Theodore W. Schmidt to be postmaster at Patterson, La., in place of John A. Duplan, deceased.

Margarette L. Tatum to be postmaster at Gibsland, La. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

MAINE.

Edward B. Buck to be postmaster at Foxcroft, Me., in place of Edward B. Buck. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Freeman D. Dearth to be postmaster at Dexter, Me., in place of Freeman D. Dearth. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Charles B. Haskell to be postmaster at Pittsfield, Me., in place of Oramel Murray, deceased.

Charles A. Lang to be postmaster at Harrison, Me. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Frank W. Mallett to be postmaster at Fort Kent, Me. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charles F. Plumly to be postmaster at Lincoln, Me., in place of Charles F. Plumly. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

MARYLAND.

Ida E. Macfarlane to be postmaster at Mount Savage, Md. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Daniel R. Randall to be postmaster at Annapolis, Md., in place of Washington G. Tuck, deceased.

Asbury C. Riley to be postmaster at Snow Hill, Md., in place of Charles W. Farrow, removed.

Rose E. Walls to be postmaster at Millington, Md. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Samuel Atwell to be postmaster at Kingston, Mass., in place of Samuel Atwell. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

James S. Burbank to be postmaster at Mattapoisett, Mass. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Eunice Agnes Burtch to be postmaster at Sheffield, Mass. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Asa B. Fay to be postmaster at Northboro, Mass., in place of Asa B. Fay. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Harrison V. Hall to be postmaster at Wrentham, Mass. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

George E. Ricker to be postmaster at Merrimac, Mass., in place of George E. Ricker. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Joseph C. Sheehan to be postmaster at East Bridgewater, Mass., in place of Joseph C. Sheehan. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Charles J. Shepard to be postmaster at Waltham, Mass., in place of Charles J. Shepard. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Osgood L. Small to be postmaster at Sagamore, Mass. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

George M. Solomon to be postmaster at Hinsdale, Mass. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Elmer Standley to be postmaster at Beverly Farms, Mass., in place of Elmer Standley. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Marie E. White to be postmaster at South Hadley, Mass., in place of Marie E. White. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

William F. Wiley to be postmaster at Peabody, Mass., in place of William F. Wiley. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

MICHIGAN.

Eber S. Andrews to be postmaster at Williamston, Mich., in place of Eber S. Andrews. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Stuart Beatty to be postmaster at Utica, Mich. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Thomas H. Berryman to be postmaster at Mohawk, Mich. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Charles M. Butler to be postmaster at Morenci, Mich., in place of Charles M. Butler. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Theron D. Childs to be postmaster at Three Oaks, Mich., in place of Theron D. Childs. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

David J. Evans to be postmaster at Millington, Mich., in place of Henry B. Henderson, removed.

Charles W. Glover to be postmaster at Bear Lake, Mich. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Jens Hemingsen to be postmaster at Grant, Mich. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

A. M. Humphrey to be postmaster at Saline, Mich., in place of George Burkhart, resigned.

William F. Johnston to be postmaster at Roscommon, Mich. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Christopher C. Smith to be postmaster at Algonac, Mich., in place of Christopher C. Smith. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

William Trevarthen to be postmaster at South Range, Mich. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

MINNESOTA.

Marion G. Crawford to be postmaster at Lakefield, Minn., in place of Marion G. Crawford. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

F. E. Toomey to be postmaster at Scanlon, Minn., in place of Theodore G. Fasteen, removed.

James Walker to be postmaster at Ellsworth, Minn. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

MISSISSIPPI.

Dozier Anderson to be postmaster at Tupelo, Miss., in place of Dozier Anderson. Incumbent's commission expired April 1, 1906.

James N. Atkinson to be postmaster at Summit, Miss., in place of Lea Van Sample, removed.

Edward F. Brennan to be postmaster at Brookhaven, Miss., in place of Edward H. Thompson, removed.

Jasper F. Butler to be postmaster at Holly Springs, Miss., in place of Priscilla S. Scruggs, removed.

W. J. Price to be postmaster at Meridian, Miss., in place of Andrew J. Hyde, resigned.

Thomas Richardson to be postmaster at Port Gibson, Miss., in place of Thomas Richardson. Incumbent's commission expired February 18, 1908.

MISSOURI.

Henry A. Herkstroeter to be postmaster at Washington, Mo., in place of Albert C. Krog, resigned.

John W. Key to be postmaster at Mountain Grove, Mo., in place of John W. Key. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Iola W. Morsey to be postmaster at Warrenton, Mo., in place of Iola W. Morsey. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

William F. Norris to be postmaster at Perry, Mo. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Edwin W. Pritchett to be postmaster at Martinsburg, Mo. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

George Stoolfer to be postmaster at Skidmore, Mo., in place of Thomas L. Howden, removed.

James A. Williams to be postmaster at Crane, Mo. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

MONTANA.

Richard W. Garland to be postmaster at Malta, Mont. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

NEBRASKA.

Augustine A. Hyers to be postmaster at Havelock, Nebr., in place of Augustine A. Hyers. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Charles F. Leetham to be postmaster at St. Paul, Nebr., in place of Ches Chinn, resigned.

Charles W. Meeker to be postmaster at Imperial, Nebr. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Isaac Roush to be postmaster at Kimball, Nebr. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Clifton F. Stockwell to be postmaster at Bassett, Nebr. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Fay Whitfield to be postmaster at Peru, Nebr., in place of Fay Whitfield. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

NEVADA.

Herbert Badt to be postmaster at Wells, Nev. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Jessie E. Burnett to be postmaster at McGill, Nev. (late Smelter). Office became presidential October 1, 1908, and to change name of office.

George C. Fetterman to be postmaster at Caliente, Nev. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Fred L. Littell to be postmaster at Yerington, Nev. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Joseph H. Avery to be postmaster at Milton, N. H., in place of Joseph H. Avery. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

John H. Brown to be postmaster at Concord, N. H., in place of John H. Brown. Incumbent's commission expired December 7, 1908.

E. Bertram Pike to be postmaster at Pike, N. H., in place of Edwin B. Pike, deceased.

NEW JERSEY.

Frederick P. Baker to be postmaster at Millington, N. J., in place of Frederick P. Baker. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Albert M. Bradshaw to be postmaster at Lakewood, N. J., in place of Albert M. Bradshaw. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Frederick W. Bohlen to be postmaster at Maurer, N. J. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charles F. Burney to be postmaster at Bradley Beach, N. J. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Charles S. Day to be postmaster at New Market, N. J. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Thomas Graham to be postmaster at Point Pleasant, N. J., in place of Thomas Graham. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Arthur F. Stecher to be postmaster at Riverside, N. J., in place of August C. Stecher, deceased.

NEW MEXICO.

Robert Kellahin to be postmaster at Roswell, N. Mex., in place of Robert Kellahin. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Ira O. Wetmore to be postmaster at Carrizozo, N. Mex. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

NEW YORK.

Arthur C. Agan to be postmaster at Fayetteville, N. Y., in place of Arthur C. Agan. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

N. Austin Baker to be postmaster at Salem, N. Y., in place of N. Austin Baker. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Flora E. Bassett to be postmaster at Walton, N. Y., in place of Charles B. Bassett, deceased.

Thomas A. Braniff to be postmaster at New Brighton, N. Y., in place of John H. Eadie, deceased.

Robert P. Brown to be postmaster at West New Brighton, N. Y., in place of Robert P. Brown. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Thomas A. Chisholm to be postmaster at Fort Covington, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Orley W. Closson to be postmaster at Schuylerville, N. Y. (late Schuylersville), in place of Orley W. Closson, to change name of office.

William H. Clark to be postmaster at Nichols, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Henry E. Corwin to be postmaster at Bellport, N. Y. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

William Cowie to be postmaster at Syracuse, N. Y., in place of Dwight H. Bruce, deceased.

Fred A. Davis to be postmaster at Fort Edward, N. Y., in place of Fred A. Davis. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

Timothy Dinneen to be postmaster at St. Johnsville, N. Y., in place of James Fox. Incumbent's commission expired March 12, 1908.

Charles W. Fletcher to be postmaster at Montour Falls, N. Y., in place of Charles B. Ball, removed.

Horace B. Fromer to be postmaster at Hunter, N. Y., in place of Alfred E. Greene, deceased.

Lee V. Gardner to be postmaster at Centerville Station, N. Y. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

John F. Heim to be postmaster at Lancaster, N. Y., in place of John F. Heim. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

Durward B. Kelly to be postmaster at Griffin Corners, N. Y. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Annie Larrabee to be postmaster at Oyster Bay, N. Y., in place of Annie Larrabee. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

William J. McClure to be postmaster at Delanson, N. Y. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Jonathan B. Morey to be postmaster at Dansville, N. Y., in place of Frank J. McNeil. Incumbent's commission expired January 22, 1907.

Henry Morgan to be postmaster at Aurora, N. Y., in place of Christopher B. Morgan, resigned.

George Mumford to be postmaster at Milford, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Frederick B. Powell to be postmaster at Amityville, N. Y., in place of Frederick B. Powell. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

William Purcell to be postmaster at Scottsville, N. Y., in place of William Purcell. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

Frank Stumpf to be postmaster at Stillwater, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Alexander S. Taylor to be postmaster at Westbury, N. Y. (late Westbury Station), in place of Alexander S. Taylor, to change name of office.

Mortimer R. Tefft to be postmaster at Greenwich, N. Y., in place of Mortimer R. Tefft. Incumbent's commission expired December 17, 1907.

Frederick Torns to be postmaster at Lindenhurst, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charles K. Williams to be postmaster at Phoenix, N. Y., in place of Oscar E. Ward, deceased.

NORTH CAROLINA.

John M. Burrows to be postmaster at Ashboro, N. C. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Daniel E. Forrest to be postmaster at Efland, N. C. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Augusta Meares to be postmaster at Clarkton, N. C. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Benjamin O. Morris to be postmaster at Mocksville, N. C., in place of Edwin H. Morris, resigned.

Zach Stephenson to be postmaster at Clayton, N. C. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Perry Brown to be postmaster at Sherwood, N. Dak. Office became presidential July 1, 1906.

William T. Cameron to be postmaster at Aneta, N. Dak., in place of Bertha M. Gunderson. Incumbent's commission expired November 19, 1907.

Henry Engelter to be postmaster at New Salem, N. Dak., in place of Henry Engelter. Incumbent's commission expired January 25, 1908.

Alice Gilbertson to be postmaster at Towner, N. Dak., in place of Joseph L. Killion. Incumbent's commission expired December 19, 1907.

OHIO.

Harlow N. Aldrich to be postmaster at Elmore, Ohio, in place of Harlow N. Aldrich. Incumbent's commission expired January 27, 1908.

William S. Atkinson to be postmaster at Salem, Ohio, in place of Frederick T. Miles. Incumbent's commission expired March 8, 1908.

George C. Braden to be postmaster at Warren, Ohio, in place of John Campbell. Incumbent's commission expires January 20, 1909.

Edward H. Collins to be postmaster at Bedford, Ohio, in place of Charles B. Marble, deceased.

Selah S. Connell to be postmaster at West Carrollton, Ohio, in place of Selah S. Connell. Incumbent's commission expired February 13, 1906.

John Ellis to be postmaster at Massillon, Ohio, in place of Louis A. Koons. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

E. C. Gething to be postmaster at Hubbard, Ohio, in place of William M. Evans. Incumbent's commission expired February 29, 1908.

Herman C. Glander to be postmaster at West Alexandria, Ohio. Office became presidential January 1, 1907.

W. E. Halley to be postmaster at Greenville, Ohio, in place of Alonzo L. Jones. Incumbent's commission expired June 30, 1906.

Thomas L. Knauf to be postmaster at Calla, Ohio, in place of Thomas L. Knauf. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Henry M. Larkins to be postmaster at Sebring, Ohio, in place of Henry M. Larkins. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

James H. Muir to be postmaster at Pemberville, Ohio. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

John K. Niesz to be postmaster at Maumee, Ohio, in place of David H. Perrin, removed.

William C. Newell to be postmaster at Bainbridge, Ohio. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Lee G. Pennock to be postmaster at Urbana, Ohio, in place of Roger H. Murphy. Incumbent's commission expired March 13, 1907.

W. A. Ritter to be postmaster at Napoleon, Ohio, in place of Elmer A. Palmer. Incumbent's commission expired March 8, 1908.

Charles L. Thompson to be postmaster at Georgetown, Ohio, in place of Mary L. Thompson. Incumbent's commission expired March 3, 1907.

Henry S. Winsper to be postmaster at East Palestine, Ohio, in place of George B. Alaback. Incumbent's commission expired March 3, 1907.

OKLAHOMA.

Henry Amey to be postmaster at Fort Cobb, Okla. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Alfred M. Clark to be postmaster at Gage, Okla., in place of Alfred M. Clark. Incumbent's commission expired April 12, 1908.

Stephen A. Douglas to be postmaster at Ardmore, Okla., in place of Stephen A. Douglas. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1908.

Horace Gray to be postmaster at Tahlequah, Okla., in place of Robert B. Ross, resigned.

Ira A. Hill to be postmaster at Cherokee, Okla. Office became presidential October 1, 1905.

Alexander B. Holliday to be postmaster at Crescent, Okla. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Will Huston to be postmaster at Thomas, Okla., in place of William Thomas, resigned.

Walter F. McCague to be postmaster at Ralston, Okla. Office became presidential January 1, 1908.

Erastus G. McRee to be postmaster at Granite, Okla., in place of Thomas J. Molinari, resigned.

Downey Milburne to be postmaster at Coweta, Okla., in place of Adolphus D. Orcutt, resigned.

Alice M. Robertson to be postmaster at Muskogee, Okla., in place of Alice M. Robertson. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

George Ruddell to be postmaster at Weatherford, Okla., in place of Adolph Bollenbach. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

A. J. Thompson to be postmaster at Okarche, Okla., in place of Gustave A. Hall, resigned.

Merrel L. Thompson to be postmaster at Hartshorne, Okla., in place of Francis M. Savage. Incumbent's commission expired December 16, 1907.

John D. Wilkins to be postmaster at Pryor (late Pryor Creek), Okla., in place of Flavius J. Sullivan. Incumbent's commission expired November 17, 1907. To change name of office.

Benjamin F. Williams to be postmaster at Sayre, Okla., in place of Benjamin F. Williams. Incumbent's commission expired January 11, 1908.

OREGON.

John E. Loggan to be postmaster at Burns, Oreg., in place of Frank W. Welcome, removed.

Land B. Rutherford to be postmaster at Rainier, Oreg., in place of Lucien R. Farris, resigned.

Ben Weathers to be postmaster at Enterprise, Oreg., in place of W. T. Bell, resigned.

John C. Young to be postmaster at Portland, Oreg., in place of John W. Minto. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Marcellus J. B. Brooks to be postmaster at Driftwood, Pa. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Clara Brown to be postmaster at Linesville, Pa., in place of William E. Brown, deceased.

Frank M. Butterfield to be postmaster at New Milford, Pa., in place of Gardner C. Howell, removed.

Elmer D. Carl to be postmaster at Greencastle, Pa., in place of Elmer D. Carl. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Thomas J. Davis to be postmaster at Avoca, Pa. Office became presidential October 1, 1906.

Henry O. Garber to be postmaster at Berwyn, Pa., in place of Henry O. Garber. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

William S. Gleason to be postmaster at Johnsonburg, Pa., in place of William S. Gleason. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

John Gowland to be postmaster at Philipsburg, Pa., in place of John Gowland. Incumbent's commission expired December 7, 1908.

Ralph M. Lashelle, sr., to be postmaster at Centralia, Pa. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Timothy J. Leahy to be postmaster at Sayre, Pa., in place of George D. Bonfoey, removed.

Iddo M. Lewis to be postmaster at Rossiter, Pa. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Frank J. Roethline to be postmaster at Northampton, Pa., in place of Frank J. Roethline. Incumbent's commission expired March 3, 1907.

Royal A. Stratton to be postmaster at Conneaut Lake, Pa., in place of Royal A. Stratton. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

Albert H. Swing to be postmaster at Coatesville, Pa., in place of Albert H. Swing. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Frank M. Tiffany to be postmaster at Dalton, Pa. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

RHODE ISLAND.

Nathaniel H. Brown to be postmaster at East Greenwich, R. I., in place of Nathaniel H. Brown. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Hulda J. Fessenden to be postmaster at Saylesville, R. I., in place of Hulda J. Fessenden. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

Edward W. Jones to be postmaster at River Point, R. I., in place of Edward W. Jones. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

W. Clarence Clinkscales to be postmaster at Belton, S. C., in place of William C. Brown, resigned.

Allen T. Collins to be postmaster at Conway, S. C., in place of Benjamin G. Collins, resigned.

Alonzo M. Folger to be postmaster at Easley, S. C., in place of Alonzo M. Folger. Incumbent's commission expired April 27, 1908.

Arthur R. Garner to be postmaster at Timmonsville, S. C., in place of Arthur R. Garner. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Thomas Hester to be postmaster at Gaffney, S. C., in place of Alfred R. N. Folger. Incumbent's commission expired December 16, 1907.

Leila Jackson Huntley to be postmaster at Cheraw, S. C., in place of Mary L. Wells, resigned.

Louis Jacobs to be postmaster at Kingstree, S. C., in place of Louis Jacobs. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

J. R. Calder to be postmaster at Edgemont, S. Dak., in place of James A. Stewart, resigned.

Irene Fuller to be postmaster at Blunt, S. Dak. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Frank E. McLaughlin to be postmaster at Geddes, S. Dak., in place of William A. Lyons, resigned.

Marion H. Moore to be postmaster at Bellefourche, S. Dak., in place of Daniel J. Arnold, resigned.

Thomas T. Smith to be postmaster at Canton, S. Dak., in place of Thomas T. Smith. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Frank B. Williams to be postmaster at Hurley, S. Dak., in place of John J. Mansfield. Incumbent's commission expired November 17, 1907.

TENNESSEE.

William A. Anderson to be postmaster at Bellbuckle, Tenn., in place of Robert A. Espey, resigned.

James L. Cotham to be postmaster at Hohenwald, Tenn. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

John W. Jackson to be postmaster at Columbia, Tenn., in place of Archelaus M. Hughes, removed.

William T. Smythe to be postmaster at Mountain City, Tenn., in place of William T. Smythe. Incumbent's commission expires January 10, 1909.

TEXAS.

John D. Anderson to be postmaster at Miles, Tex. (late Miles Station), in place of John D. Anderson, to change name of office.

George W. Andruss to be postmaster at Rotan, Tex. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

W. L. Brown to be postmaster at Hamlin, Tex. Office became presidential June 1, 1908.

John Edwin Clarke to be postmaster at Knox City, Tex. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Harry H. Cooper to be postmaster at Nacogdoches, Tex., in place of Harry H. Cooper. Incumbent's commission expired January 20, 1907.

C. A. Cox to be postmaster at Lott, Tex., in place of J. M. Westmoreland, resigned.

David C. Dodge to be postmaster at Claude, Tex. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Christian Doss to be postmaster at Palacios, Tex. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

George C. Hopkins to be postmaster at Winnsboro, Tex., in place of Isham Russell. Incumbent's commission expired June 27, 1908.

J. S. House to be postmaster at Kingsville, Tex., in place of R. G. Flats, resigned.

Albert S. Jones to be postmaster at Kosse, Tex. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Robert B. Rentfro to be postmaster at Brownsville, Tex., in place of Joel B. Sharpe. Incumbent's commission expired January 27, 1908.

Joseph Stanley to be postmaster at Schulenburg, Tex., in place of George W. Hoeffert, removed.

Elisa Palacias Stockwell to be postmaster at San Diego, Tex., in place of Jose V. Palacios, resigned.

Ernest R. Williams to be postmaster at Hamilton, Tex., in place of Ernest R. Williams. Incumbent's commission expired January 22, 1907.

VERMONT.

Lyman P. Bailey to be postmaster at Putney, Vt., in place of Lyman P. Bailey. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

VIRGINIA.

William S. Gregory, jr., to be postmaster at Drakes Branch, Va. Office become presidential July 1, 1908.

Frederick I. Hanmer to be postmaster at Keysville, Va. Office became presidential April 1, 1907.

R. L. Hervey to be postmaster at Chase City, Va., in place of John M. Sloan, deceased.

Frank D. Lumpkin to be postmaster at Danville, Va., in place of Champ T. Barksdale. Incumbent's commission expired June 25, 1906.

Harry A. Sager to be postmaster at Herndon, Va. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

E. T. Sproles to be postmaster at Clinchport, Va. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

B. P. Wall to be postmaster at Pine Beach, Va. Office became presidential April 1, 1908.

WASHINGTON.

John W. Conn to be postmaster at Camas, Wash. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

George W. Edgerton to be postmaster at Puyallup, Wash., in place of George W. Edgerton. Incumbent's commission expired February 29, 1908.

Theo Hall to be postmaster at Medical Lake, Wash. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

A. C. Johansen to be postmaster at Enumclaw, Wash., in place of Maude Potter, resigned.

George F. Russell to be postmaster at Seattle, Wash., in place of George M. Stewart, removed.

WEST VIRGINIA.

J. W. Edwards to be postmaster at Welch, W. Va., in place of E. Leslie Long, resigned.

WISCONSIN.

Altie B. Barnard to be postmaster at Redgranite, Wis. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Fred A. Brandt to be postmaster at Sparta, Wis., in place of De Witt C. Beebe, deceased.

John L. Extrom to be postmaster at Tomahawk, Wis., in place of Ambrose K. Woodworth, deceased.

Isa Faulds to be postmaster at Arcadia, Wis., in place of George H. Dodge, deceased.

Ray Haggerty to be postmaster at Park Falls, Wis., in place of Anton J. Haas, resigned.

Robert Johnson to be postmaster at Mellen, Wis., in place of Robert Johnson. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

Asenath A. Kasson to be postmaster at Mattoon, Wis. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

George E. King to be postmaster at Winneconne, Wis. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

William Knelling to be postmaster at Shullsburg, Wis., in place of William Knelling. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1908.

Judson L. Marvin to be postmaster at Mauston, Wis., in place of William Case, deceased.

Thomas Stout, jr., to be postmaster at Clear Lake, Wis. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

WYOMING.

Frederick E. Davis to be postmaster at Wheatland, Wyo., in place of Frederick E. Davis. Incumbent's commission expires December 13, 1908.

William O'Connell to be postmaster at Kemmerer, Wyo., in place of Nora Sammon, resigned.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 8, 1908.

POSTMASTERS.

GEORGIA.

Helen D. Longstreet at Gainesville, Ga.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, December 8, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read.

NOTIFICATION OF THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, the committee appointed by the House to join a like committee on the part of the Senate to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of the two Houses has assembled and that Congress was ready to receive any communication he might have to make, report that they have performed that duty, and the President has replied that he would communicate to the Congress by a message in writing.

APPOINTMENTS ON COMMITTEES.

The SPEAKER. The Chair announces the following appointments to committees:

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HIGGINS, to the Committee on the Judiciary, in place of Mr. Littlefield.

Mr. MARTIN, to the Committee on Indian Affairs, in place of Mr. Parker, deceased.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I call for the regular order. While we are waiting for the message I think the House can proceed with business.

IMMIGRATION STATION, BOSTON, MASS.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York demands the regular order. The Chair lays before the House from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 13851) providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new immigration station thereon at the city of Boston, Mass., with a Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment was read.

Mr. BENNET of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment, agree to the conference asked for by the Senate, and that the Chair appoint the conferees.

The motion was agreed to.

The Speaker announced the following conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts, and Mr. BURNETT.

BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (H. R. 21052) to amend sections 11 and 13 of the act entitled "An act to establish a Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization and to provide uniform rule for the naturalization throughout the United States," with Senate amendments.

The Senate amendments were read.

Mr. BENNET of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, agree to the conference asked for by the Senate, and that the Chair appoint the conferees.

The motion was agreed to.

The Speaker announced the following conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. BENNET of New York, and Mr. BURNETT.

AMENDING SECTION 1 OF THE PASSENGER ACT OF 1882.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill S. 5083, to amend section 1 of the passenger act of 1882, with House amendments.

The amendments were read.

Mr. BENNET of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist on its amendments, and agree to the conference asked for by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced the following conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. BENNET of New York, and Mr. BURNETT.

The SPEAKER. The business on the Speaker's table having been disposed of so far as demanded, the Clerk will call the committees.

CALL OF COMMITTEES.

The Clerk called the committees.

REGULATION OF SHIPMENTS IN INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that we may return to the call of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] asks unanimous consent to return to the call of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Is there objection?

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I would like to know of the gentleman from Iowa what the purpose is.

Mr. HEPBURN. When the call was made, or when the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce was reached, the chairman of the committee was engaged upon another matter and did not notice that the committee was called. I desire to call up two bills reported to that committee.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. May I inquire of the gentleman what bills they are?

Mr. HEPBURN. One of them is a bill (H. R. 17228) to promote safe transportation in interstate commerce of explosives and other dangerous articles. The other is the bill H. R. 17979, requiring common carriers engaged in interstate and foreign commerce to make full report of all accidents to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Are those the only bills which it is the intention of the chairman to call up this morning?

Mr. HEPBURN. That is all I now think of.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. If the return to the call of the committee is confined to the two bills named, I would not object.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the motion.

FUTURE CONTRACTS ON AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for a change of reference. The bill H. R. 22338 was referred to the Committee on Agriculture, and I ask that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. HENRY] asks unanimous consent to change the reference of the bill introduced yesterday from the Committee on Agriculture to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. PAYNE. I think the title of the bill ought to be read, at least.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I will read the title of the bill. It is as follows:

A bill (H. R. 22338) to prohibit dealing in future contracts on agricultural products by forbidding the use of mail and interstate-commerce facilities, and to prevent sending fictitious prices made on exchanges.

I ask that that bill be changed from reference to the Committee on Agriculture to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. POLLARD. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Certainly.

Mr. POLLARD. I would like to inquire the gentleman's object in transferring the bill.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. My recollection is that this same bill was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and I have no particular object for changing the reference now except that it is a judicial question, and should go to that committee.

Mr. MANN. Has not the committee still jurisdiction of the bill?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. This changes the verbiage just a little bit, and I reintroduced it.

Mr. POLLARD. I would like to suggest to the gentleman to permit the matter to go over until to-morrow.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I do not know that it will stand any chance of passing at this session, but I happen to be a member of the Committee on the Judiciary, and I would like to have it before that committee, where it went last year.

Mr. POLLARD. I will have to object unless I can look into the bill.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I will let it go over so that the gentleman can look into it.

SEWELL COULSON.

Mr. CHANEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask unanimous consent to have printed as a House document, with the accompanying report, No. 629 (H. R. 1072), for the relief of the representatives of Sewell Coulson, deceased, the letter of the Attorney-General discussing the merits of the claim.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CHANEY] asks unanimous consent to have printed as a document a letter from the Attorney-General touching the bill referred to.

Mr. PAYNE. I would suggest to have it sent to the desk and have it read.

Mr. CHANEY. It is a request to have printed as a House document the letter of the Attorney-General in connection with Report No. 629 on bill H. R. 1072, made by the Committee on War Claims.

Mr. PAYNE. What is it about?

Mr. CHANEY. About the claim of the legal representatives of Sewell Coulson.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, we can not hear what is said.

Mr. CHANEY. Mr. Speaker, it is simply a request to have printed as a House document a letter of the Attorney-General of the United States addressed to the Committee on War Claims, for the use of the committee in connection with report No. 629 on H. R. 1072.

Mr. SULZER. What is the title of the bill?

Mr. CHANEY. For the relief of the legal representatives of Sewell Coulson, deceased.

Mr. PAYNE. I simply want to suggest to the gentleman that if it comes to the House over the Speaker's desk, it is already printed under the rule.

Mr. CHANEY. It is not in print now.

Mr. PAYNE. Well, it would be if it came as a letter addressed to the Speaker of the House.

Mr. CHANEY. It is a letter addressed to the Committee on War Claims.

Mr. SULZER. What did you say was the title of the bill?

Mr. CHANEY. For the relief of the legal representatives of Sewell Coulson, deceased.

Mr. SULZER. Let it be printed.

Mr. MANN. May I ask, Have not the Committee on War Claims authority to have printing done? If it can be done in that way, it would prevent the inauguration of a policy of having documents printed.

Mr. CHANEY. The Committee on War Claims might have printed it as a part of the report, but for some reason it was omitted, and there has been a request upon the part of several Members that this letter should be printed, to be used in connection with the report; and the report is now printed.

Mr. MANN. Can not that committee now, under order of the House, have such printing done as it may order?

Mr. CHANEY. Possibly so, but after advising with the Speaker we thought we should propose it now.

Mr. PAYNE. I suggest to the gentleman to wait until to-morrow, to see if it can not be done some other way.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman, for the present, objects.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Sundry messages, in writing, from the President of the United States were communicated to the House of Representatives by Mr. Latta, one his secretaries.

ANNUAL MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the annual message from the President of the United States, which was read.

[For text of message see Senate proceedings of this day.]

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the message and accompanying documents be referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union and printed.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

VOLUNTEER ARMY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the draft of a bill intended to replace the present law under which the United States in time of emergency would proceed to raise a volunteer army. What we now have on the statute books was placed there piecemeal and hurriedly, partly on the eve of the war with Spain and partly after hostilities had actually commenced.

Every one familiar with the existing law is aware that it is faulty and wholly inadequate to a speedy and proper organization of a volunteer force, and that in part it has become obsolete through recent legislation affecting the organized militia. This proposed measure was drawn up under the supervision of the Chief of Staff and has the hearty approval of the War Department. It is a carefully prepared draft embodying as much of the existing law as seems wise and designed to afford the complete machinery by which, should we be confronted with a foreign war, the executive power could proceed at once to transform enthusiastic and patriotic citizens into efficient and organized soldiers. Happily there is at present no cloud upon our horizon, but that very fact affords us the best opportunity to proceed with deliberation and care in the preparation of laws adequate and indispensable for our possible war needs.

This measure would not call for a dollar's expenditure during the years of peace and its enactment into law now would merely be to place at the disposition of the executive power machinery whereby, should war threaten, the means to wage it could be swiftly brought into being. To do this, however, requires not merely adequate legislative provision. Grounded upon the law there must be a vast mass of detail wrought into a comprehensive plan and ready upon the instant to be set in motion. The Congress has provided a General Staff Corps and built for the War College a permanent and beautiful home; and the next logical step is to pass a comprehensive volunteer act to the end that the existing agencies may work out in advance the details of its execution.

The proposed bill is elastic; under its provisions a force of 2,000,000 men could be raised as well as one of 50,000. In making a volunteer army a sufficient staff is indispensable at the start, since without it organization can not proceed. This bill provides for this need and for every other matter connected with raising a volunteer force which it is thought wise to incorporate in the law. It was prepared under the direction of Mr. Taft when Secretary of War and has, therefore, the approval of the gentleman who is to be my successor as Commander in Chief, and I trust it may commend itself to the favorable consideration of the Congress as it has to mine.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

LABOR CONDITIONS ON THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying documents, ordered to be printed and referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the report of the special commission appointed by me to investigate conditions of labor and housing of government employees on the Isthmus of Panama. The commission made careful and extended inspection of the workshops and living quarters of the employees, and conferred with representatives from all classes of workmen employed by the Isthmian Canal Commission and the Panama Railroad. After a thorough investigation the commission state that "the general sentiment of the workers was expressed in the words of a mechanic in one of the conferences which we held with representatives of different trades: "We want it understood that we are American citizens and that we are proud to have a share in this great work. We believe the Government is treating us right, and we are as much interested to see this thing a success as anyone.' This spirit of loyalty and interest in the work was evinced on many occasions, and should be accounted an asset of the highest value to the Government in the accomplishment of its colossal task. The American people are entitled to just pride in the standard set by their Government for the treatment of the workers and the loyal service which has been the appropriate result."

The commission expresses the hope that "the liberal and progressive policy adopted in civil administration, in education, and in the care and treatment of employees of all races will be maintained, and that progress and improvement will be the watchword to the end." I am glad that the official reports previously received are confirmed by these unprejudiced investigators.

The commission submitted valuable recommendations regarding minor defects of the service. Such of these as come under executive authority I have ordered put into effect as far as possible. But I would call the attention of the Congress to the recommendation that the liberal housing policy of the administration be continued as an essential condition of the industrial efficiency of the employees.

I especially urge your favorable consideration of the recommendation to make a more liberal provision for employees permanently disabled in work on the Isthmian Canal. In the event of permanent disablement those engaged in this great national enterprise should receive as generous treatment as is accorded to those who have been disabled in the defense of their country. After faithful and hazardous service these workers should not, when disabled, become public charges in almshouses or burdens upon relatives unable to provide for their support.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

PLAZUELA SUGAR COMPANY, PORTO RICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying documents, ordered to be printed and referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of a franchise granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to the Plazuela Sugar Company the right to construct, maintain, and operate a pier on the sea front at 'Palmas Altas,' in the municipal district of Manati."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. I ask for a change of reference of the bill H. R. 22320 and of the bill H. R. 22279 from the Committee on the Judiciary to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice. They are bills peculiarly cognizable, under the rule, by the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman forward the bills to the Clerk's desk, so that the Clerk may read the titles? The gentleman asks unanimous consent, as the Chair understands, for a change of reference as indicated. The Clerk will report the titles of the bills.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 22320) to fix the fees of court criers, bailiffs, and witnesses in attendance upon the United States courts in Alabama.

A bill (H. R. 22279) increasing the salaries paid to circuit and district court judges of the United States.

The SPEAKER. The request of the gentleman is to change the reference from the Committee on the Judiciary to the committee that he has indicated.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. As provided for in Rule XI of the House.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. I object to that change of reference, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York objects.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move a change of reference as already indicated by me. If the Speaker will hear me for a moment, Rule XI provides that all bills providing for the reduction or increase of the pay of officers shall be subjects within the jurisdiction of the nine standing committees on public expenditures in the several departments.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand that the motion is as yet before the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair was just trying to ascertain what the motion of the gentleman was.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. The motion is to refer to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice the bills whose titles have been read by the Clerk, instead of referring them to the Committee on the Judiciary. They belong to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, under the rules of this House.

The SPEAKER. Then the gentleman's motion is to change the reference from the Judiciary Committee to the committee indicated?

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Both bills to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice.

Mr. PAYNE. I make the point of order that they are not in order.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. I submit, Mr. Speaker, that the motion is in order. It is a privileged motion. The bills should have been referred to the committee having jurisdiction, under the express words of the rule.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will call the attention of the gentleman from New York making the motion to Rule XXII, clause 3:

> And corrections in case of error of reference may be made by the House without debate, in accordance with Rule XI, on any day immediately after the reading of the Journal, by unanimous consent, or on motion of a committee claiming jurisdiction, or on the report of the committee to which the bill has been erroneously referred.

The gentleman will find on page 282 of the Manual, the words which the Chair has read. It seems to the Chair that this is not immediately after the reading of the Journal.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. The Chair will recall that I rose and addressed the Chair, but that the President's message having just been received, of course I could not be heard; but I did rise in my seat and address the Speaker for the purpose of asking this change in reference under the rules.

Mr. PAYNE. I trust my colleague did not mistake the reading of the message for the reading of the Journal.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. No, certainly not. No one could.

The SPEAKER. After the reading of the Journal there was also a call of committees. The Chair is of opinion that the gentleman's motion is not in order at this time, under the rules.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. Will the motion be in order to-morrow, immediately after the reading of the Journal?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will call the attention of the gentleman to the rule itself. It is very explicit and plain. It is so plain that it does not need any interpretation by the Chair.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. I call the attention of the Chair to the fact that in the past these bills, which are specially cognizable by the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, were usually referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and in order that there might be proper machinery provided for the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, they were given a clerk and all other facilities for doing this work, and the committee is prepared to do the work, and now has before it several bills——

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my colleague be allowed five minutes to make a speech.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I would like to know what these bills are.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection, the gentleman from New York will state what the bills relate to. Of course, this proceeding is by unanimous consent.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I understand that. I heard the reading of the rule, and I would like to know what the bills are, if there is no objection. I was not in the hall when the gentleman from New York made his statement.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. I have no objection to the Clerk reading the titles again.

Mr. PAYNE. What is the request—to have the bills read?

The SPEAKER. No; simply the titles.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 22320) to fix the fees of court criers, bailiffs, and witnesses in attendance upon the United States courts in Alabama.

A bill (H. R. 22279) increasing the salaries paid to circuit and district court judges of the United States.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Pending the motion of Mr. PAYNE, by unanimous consent, on the request of Mr. MCLAUGHLIN, Mr. DIEKEMA was given indefinite leave of absence on account of sickness in his family.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

By unanimous consent, Mr. GRAHAM was given leave to withdraw from the files of the House, without leaving copies, papers in the case of James Charles Cramer, Sixtieth Congress, no adverse report being made thereon.

ADJOURNMENT.

The motion of Mr. PAYNE was then agreed to; and accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for rent of buildings for the use of the Civil Service Commission, etc.—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Pepperells Cove, Maine—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the custodian of dies, rolls, and plates, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, submitting an estimate of appropriation for an additional distributer of stock—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for completion of irrigation system on the Zuñi Reservation, N. Mex.—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting a detailed statement of contingent expenses for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a report of disbursements for the year ended June 30, 1908, for colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts in the several States—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a statement as to the annual report for Porto Rico—to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a statement as to the annual report of the commissioner of education of Porto Rico—to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior submitting a change in estimates of appropriation for the Indian Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a copy of the annual report of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a statement as to the employment of persons in the meat-inspection service during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a report of the contingent expenses of the department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a combined statement of receipts and expenditures of the Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Ways and Means and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a copy of a report from the Chief of Engineers, report of a board of officers appointed to investigate the hydraulics of Mare Island Straits and approaches, with a view to improvement—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Alabama and Coosa rivers—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Biloxi Harbor, Mississippi—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of mouth of Brazos River, Texas—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Mystic River, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of New River, North Carolina—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of East River, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Oldmans Creek, New Jersey—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of a channel from Pass Cavallo to Port Lavaca, Tex.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of the defendants November 16, 1908, for nonprosecution—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of defendants May 14, 1908, for nonprosecution—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of the defendants May 14, 1908, for nonprosecution—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of defendants May 14, 1908, for nonprosecution—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the president of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, transmitting the annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committees on Appropriations and Military Affairs and ordered to be printed.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, the Committee on Invalid Pensions was discharged from the consideration of the bill (H. R. 16142) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Adams, and the same was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: A bill (H. R. 22879) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend an act to authorize the city of St. Louis, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River," approved January 23, 1908—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. FLOOD: A bill (H. R. 22880) to construct a highway from the station in the town of Appomattox, Va., to the battlefield of Appomattox and other points of interest near said battlefield—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: A bill (H. R. 22881) appropriating money for the improvement of the entrance to Humboldt Bay, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 22882) to provide for the erection of a public building at Newport, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LOWDEN: A bill (H. R. 22883) for permanent consular improvement and commercial enlargement—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 22884) more completely to accomplish the objects contemplated by section 3 of the act of April 12, 1900, chapter 191—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 22885) relating to deeds given by collectors and other officers of the United States Government under sundry acts of Congress providing for the sale of real estate for direct taxes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 22886) to donate certain lands in Baldwin County, Ala., for educational purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 22887) granting thirty working days' leave of absence in each year, without forfeiture of pay during such leave, to certain employees at United States arsenals, proving grounds, and supply stations—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22888) to protect migratory game birds of the United States—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 22889) authorizing the procuring of additional land for the site of the public building at Beatrice, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. CRAVENS: A bill (H. R. 22890) to provide for the erection of a public building at Nashville, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22891) for the enlargement of the federal building at Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22892) for the erection of a new federal building for court, post-office, and other governmental purposes at Texarkana, Ark-Tex., and for the disposition of the present structure—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22893) to provide for the erection of a public building at Mena, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22894) to provide for the erection of a public building at Van Buren, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FOSTER of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 22895) to establish a biological and fish-cultural station in the Twenty-third Congressional District of Illinois—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A bill (H. R. 22896) to make it unlawful for certain federal officeholders to serve as delegates in a convention called to nominate a President of the United States or other elective United States officer—to the Commitee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. HENRY of Texas: A bill (H. R. 22897) to establish a fish hatchery and fish station near Waco, Tex.—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 22898) to avoid the expenses of the Government exceeding its revenues—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 22899) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Seymour, in the State of Connecticut—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 22900) to appropriate money for a protecting wall on the Ohio River at Fort Massac Park, Pope County, Ill.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 22901) to amend section 6 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and acts amendatory thereof—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22902) to amend section 3 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and acts amendatory thereof—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also a bill (H. R. 22903) to amend section 6 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and acts amendatory thereof—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 22904) for the erection of a new federal building for court-house, post-office, and other governmental purposes at Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., and for the disposition of the present structure—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22905) for the enlargement of the federal building at Tekarkana, Ark.-Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. McMILLAN: Resolution (H. Res. 444) increasing salary of special messenger named in House resolution adopted by the House January 15, 1901—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. GILL: Resolution (H. Res. 445) requesting the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to furnish the House with information relative to the police force of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BOUTELL: Resolution (H. Res. 446) for the payment of a clerk to certain committees of the House—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: Resolution (H. Res. 447) requesting the Secretary of State to furnish the House with certain information—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. GILL: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 200) granting to the Fifth Regiment Maryland National Guard the use of the corridors of the court-house of the District of Columbia, upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the marshal of the District—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 201) to amend section 1608 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 22906) granting an increase of pension to William H. Fetter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ADAIR: A bill (H. R. 22907) granting a pension to Charles C. Studley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22908) granting a pension to James L. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22909) granting a pension to Jesse Ault—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22910) granting a pension to Jonas Siegrist—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ADAMSON: A bill (H. R. 22911) granting an increase of pension to Martin R. Gentry—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 22912) granting a pension to W. J. Prater—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22913) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ballew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22914) granting an increase of pension to William P. Sparks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22915) granting an increase of pension to Henry E. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22916) granting an increase of pension to Richard H. Swank—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ANSBERRY: A bill (H. R. 22917) granting an increase of pension to Lay W. Richardson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22918) granting an increase of pension to Emanual Reider—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22919) granting an increase of pension to James Snow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22920) granting an increase of pension to John M. Stuter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22921) granting an increase of pension to John B. Houtz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22922) granting an increase of pension to Adam Minsel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22923) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22924) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Divert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22925) granting an increase of pension to David Wineland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22926) granting an increase of pension to George Sharp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22927) granting an increase of pension to Oscar Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22928) granting an increase of pension to William T. Bennett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22929) granting an increase of pension to Moses M. Haver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22930) granting an increase of pension to Loren G. Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22931) granting an increase of pension to Gregory Dolt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22932) granting an increase of pension to Levi Hosler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22933) granting an increase of pension to George W. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22934) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Hunt, alias Hiram Mace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22935) granting an increase of pension to Fidelia Hale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22936) granting an increase of pension to Albert Kring—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22937) granting an increase of pension to William Hoover—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22938) granting an increase of pension to Aaron C. Lawrence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22939) granting an increase of pension to James Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22940) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Sence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22941) granting an increase of pension to Joseph S. Ash—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22942) granting an increase of pension to James H. Alexander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22943) granting an increase of pension to Henry Foss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22944) granting an increase of pension to Lydia A. Long—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22945) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Mase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22946) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Cowell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22947) granting an increase of pension to Henry Matson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22948) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22949) granting an increase of pension to William A. Hill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22950) granting an increase of pension to James Hoy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22951) granting an increase of pension to Milton B. Evers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22952) granting an increase of pension to William N. Clutter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22953) granting an increase of pension to Franklin H. Sullinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22954) granting a pension to Edward Kerns—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22955) granting a pension to Harry Van Holzer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22956) granting a pension to Fred F. Travis—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22957) granting a pension to Huldah E. Harden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22958) granting a pension to Lydia A. Stock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22959) granting a pension to Jefferson Elder—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: A bill (H. R. 22960) granting an increase of pension to David Creger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22961) granting an increase of pension to James B. Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22962) granting an increase of pension to Josiah Hensel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22963) granting an increase of pension to Anna Irvine—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22964) granting an increase of pension to Hiram H. Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22965) granting a pension to Eva B. Jones and children—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22966) granting a pension to W. E. Tyler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARCLAY: A bill (H. R. 22967) granting an increase of pension to Aaron B. Myers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22968) granting an increase of pension to Abram V. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 22969) for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of Martha McLeroy—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22970) for the relief of the estate of Calvin W. Battle, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22971) for the relief of the trustees of Timber Ridge Presbyterian Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BIRDSALL: A bill (H. R. 22972) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Rantz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22973) granting an increase of pension to George R. Haner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22974) granting an increase of pension to Andrew R. Ladd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 22975) to correct the military record of James H. Dunbar—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 22976) for the relief of the heirs of George Small, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 22977) granting a pension to Harriet Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22978) granting an increase of pension to William T. Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22979) granting an increase of pension to William Duffner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22980) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Radcliff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22981) granting a pension to George N. Puett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 22982) granting a pension to Addie Martha Beard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22983) granting an increase of pension to Albert A. Newman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22984) granting a pension to Mary M. Edmonds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22985) granting a pension to John H. Barbee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22986) granting a pension to Julia Ann Casey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 22987) to correct the military record of John W. Hayes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 22988) granting an increase of pension to John S. Reagan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22989) granting an increase of pension to George W. Gould—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22990) granting an increase of pension to George W. Kremer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22991) granting an increase of pension to John D. Mallory—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22992) granting an increase of pension to Irwin McCutcheon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22993) granting an increase of pension to William Newell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22994) granting an increase of pension to George W. Cable—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22995) granting an increase of pension to George W. Berkeybile—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COX of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 22996) granting an increase of pension to Henry Weatherholt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22997) granting an increase of pension to William Birth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22998) granting an increase of pension to William Newton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 22999) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. X. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23000) granting an increase of pension to Sarah J. Zimmerle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23001) granting an increase of pension to William Andrew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23002) granting an increase of pension to Levi N. Erwin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23003) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Parsons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23004) granting an increase of pension to Henry Berger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23005) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Roberson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23006) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CURRIER: A bill (H. R. 23007) granting an increase of pension to Israel Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23008) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Morrow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23009) granting an increase of pension to Charles Fairbanks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23010) granting a pension to Hamilton P. Chase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 23011) granting an increase of pension to William L. Sapp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DE ARMOND (by request): A bill (H. R. 23012) for the relief of the heirs of Robert J. Allen, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 23013) for the relief of the heirs of William F. Crenshaw, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23014) granting an increase of pension to Abner Gwinn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23015) granting an increase of pension to John Bridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23016) granting an increase of pension to John S. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23017) granting an increase of pension to Calvin F. Boxley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23018) granting a pension to Louisa M. Ferrier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23019) granting an increase of pension to Albert B. Hayden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23020) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Robbins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23021) granting an increase of pension to Henry D. Wrighter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23022) granting an increase of pension to Herman N. Payne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23023) granting an increase of pension to Charles Benedict—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23024) granting an increase of pension to John Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23025) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan E. Havens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23026) granting an increase of pension to Harvey Stearns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23027) granting an increase of pension to Marvin S. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23028) granting an increase of pension to William A. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23029) granting an increase of pension to Elbert F. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23030) granting an increase of pension to Charles Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23031) granting an increase of pension to Randal N. Bragg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23032) granting an increase of pension to Michael O'Brien—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23033) granting a pension to Eunice M. Stickle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23034) granting a pension to Almon Craver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23035) granting a pension to Levi F. Dean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23036) granting a pension to John W. Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23037) granting a pension to Edward Middleton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23038) for the relief of James A. Watson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23039) to correct the military record of Joel Townsend—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23040) to correct the military record of John Knapp—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23041) to correct the military record of Albert P. Bliven—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23042) granting an increase of pension to David A. Munson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: A bill (H. R. 23043) granting a pension to William Schaffer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23044) granting a pension to Julia A. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23045) granting an increase of pension to Henry Fuller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23046) granting an increase of pension to Levi M. King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23047) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 23048) for the relief of T. M. Rea—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23049) for the relief of W. F. Mitchell—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23050) granting a pension to James Huff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23051) granting a pension to W. L. Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23052) granting a pension to John H. Gray—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23053) granting an increase of pension to James C. Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23054) granting an increase of pension to James H. Gifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOCHT: A bill (H. R. 23055) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Gonder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23056) granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Chritzman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23057) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Schrawder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23058) granting an increase of pension to William A. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23059) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Flack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23060) granting an increase of pension to Jacob S. Shaffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23061) granting an increase of pension to David G. Stahl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 23062) granting an increase of pension to William Singleton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23063) granting an increase of pension to George K. Fairman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23064) granting an increase of pension to Henry Howe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23065) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Hefty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23066) granting a pension to Rebecca Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 23067) granting a pension to Ollie Arnold—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23068) granting an increase of pension to Adam R. Gay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23069) granting an increase of pension to Varnel G. Compton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23070) granting an increase of pension to John Wingert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23071) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Armiston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23072) granting an increase of pension to Jesse A. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23073) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Beard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23074) granting an increase of pension to William S. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23075) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Baltzell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23076) granting an increase of pension to T. M. Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23077) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Herrin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23078) granting an increase of pension to James W. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 23079) granting an increase of pension to Oliver D. Bemis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOWLER: A bill (H. R. 23080) granting a pension to Rosa S. Warne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23081) granting an increase of pension to William H. Lounsbury—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 23082) granting an increase of pension to Abraham J. Eastwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23083) granting an increase of pension to Silas B. Merchant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULTON: A bill (H. R. 23084) granting a pension to Absalom Cunningham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23085) granting a pension to Charles B. Hunt—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GILL: A bill (H. R. 23086) for the relief of Marshall Honeycutt and Ida May Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23087) for the relief of John O'Rourk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A bill (H. R. 23088) granting an increase of pension to Samuel L. Jamison—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23089) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Snodgrass—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILL: A bill (H. R. 23090) granting a pension to Emily F. Freeborn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 23091) granting an increase of pension to William Hubbard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 23092) granting an increase of pension to John W. Lamb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23093) granting an increase of pension to D. B. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23094) granting an increase of pension to Mahala C. Lydick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23095) granting an increase of pension to John T. Starkey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 23096) granting an increase of pension to Jessie Queen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23097) granting an increase of pension to William Lawson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23098) granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Pickens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23099) for the relief of the estate of Philip Null, deceased—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23100) to remove the charge of desertion against John Downs—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23101) granting a pension to George A. Womack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23102) holding and considering William Mullally to have been honorably discharged—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23103) holding and considering James Perrott, alias James Parrott, to have been honorably discharged—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KIMBALL: A bill (H. R. 23104) granting an increase of pension to David C. Coleman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 23105) granting an increase of pension to Freeman C. Moshier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KÜSTERMANN: A bill (H. R. 23106) granting an increase of pension to John Nieland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAFEAN: A bill (H. R. 23107) granting a pension to Margaret A. Manifold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAW: A bill (H. R. 23108) for the relief of the heirs of those killed by the explosion at Fort Lafayette February 19, 1903—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 23109) granting a pension to Henry C. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LLOYD: A bill (H. R. 23110) granting an increase of pension to S. G. Brock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 23111) granting a pension to William H. H. Tilghman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23112) granting an increase of pension to Spencer C. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOVERING: A bill (H. R. 23113) granting an increase of pension to Henry J. Earle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23114) granting an increase of pension to Harrison L. Higgins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23115) to amend the naval record of Jeremiah J. Hurley—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23116) to amend the military record of George A. Frost—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23117) granting an increase of pension to William W. Lindsey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 23118) granting a pension to Elmer E. King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 23119) granting an increase of pension to Alfred C. Hawley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 23120) granting a pension to Washington Mead—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23121) granting an increase of pension to John N. Hess—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MILLER: A bill (H. R. 23122) granting an increase of pension to Stephen A. Devers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23123) granting an increase of pension to John N. Raley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23124) for the relief of the estate of Mary A. Henderson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23125) for the relief of the estate of Casandra Smith, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23126) for the relief of the estate of Daniel C. Yarnell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NYE: A bill (H. R. 23127) to correct the military record of Sylvester D. Foss—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23128) to correct the military record of Silas Overmire—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23129) granting an increase of pension to Albert Gardner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23130) granting an increase of pension to Henry A. Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23131) granting an increase of pension to John McDonald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23132) granting an increase of pension to Rufus R. S. Mayo—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23133) for the relief of Sarah B. Schaeffer—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: A bill (H. R. 23134) granting an increase of pension to Edward Ayres—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PADGETT: A bill (H. R. 23135) for the relief of the estate of Banks C. Wells, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 23136) granting an increase of pension to Michael B. Van Buskirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PRAY: A bill (H. R. 23137) for the relief of Malcolm Gillis—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. ROBERTS: A bill (H. R. 23138) granting an increase of pension to Don F. Willis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23139) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Goodwin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23140) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Hartshorn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBINSON: A bill (H. R. 23141) granting an increase of pension to G. J. Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RAUCH: A bill (H. R. 23142) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Frushour—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 23143) granting an increase of pension to Josiah U. Luyster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23144) granting a pension to Myra E. Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23145) granting an increase of pension to Abram Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23146) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Bryant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23147) granting an increase of pension to John C. Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23148) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brookover, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23149) granting an increase of pension to August Bierwirth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERLEY: A bill (H. R. 23150) for the relief of Ann Ford Mattingly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23151) granting an increase of pension to Barbara Mehringer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 23152) granting an increase of pension to Edward W. Oliver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23153) granting an increase of pension to George E. Olcott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23154) granting an increase of pension to Morris G. Conkling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23155) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of J. W. Decker—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 23156) granting a pension to John J. Preston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 23157) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Sackett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23158) granting an increase of pension to William H. Darnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23159) granting a pension to James R. Hutton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23160) granting a pension to J. C. Predmore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23161) granting a pension to N. C. Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SNAPP: A bill (H. R. 23162) granting an increase of pension to Helen E. Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23163) granting an increase of pension to Theodore Breckenridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23164) granting an increase of pension to Laura Cranson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23165) granting an increase of pension to John W. Merchant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23166) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23167) granting an increase of pension to William Ridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23168) granting an increase of pension to Oliver M. Ober—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23169) granting an increase of pension to Leonard A. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23170) granting an increase of pension to Emory Post—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 23171) granting an increase of pension to Terrence McDonald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23172) granting an increase of pension to Michael Grogan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23173) granting an increase of pension to Frank B. Hitchcock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23174) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Hamilton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23175) granting an increase of pension to Edward E. Crandall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23176) granting an increase of pension to Pizarro S. Pullon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23177) granting an increase of pension to George L. Ballard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23178) granting an increase of pension to Jerome Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23179) granting an increase of pension to Bridget Mullens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 23180) granting an increase of pension to George V. Myers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: A bill (H. R. 23181) for the relief of Edmund F. Jenkins—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 23182) granting an increase of pension to John Riley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23183) granting an increase of pension to Henry Horch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23184) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Linenkugel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23185) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23186) granting an increase of pension to Anna N. Burnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23187) granting an increase of pension to Newton S. Haller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23188) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Strain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23189) granting an increase of pension to Nathan McGrew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23190) granting an increase of pension to John Macklin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23191) granting an increase of pension to William Burke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23192) granting an increase of pension to John C. Dawson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23193) granting an increase of pension to Charles T. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23194) granting an increase of pension to William Romosier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23195) granting an increase of pension to John D. Dean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23196) granting an increase of pension to Bessie P. August—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23197) granting an increase of pension to Orestes L. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23198) granting an increase of pension to John Egan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23199) granting an increase of pension to James A. Trimble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23200) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: A bill (H. R. 23201) granting an increase of pension to Jasper Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23202) granting an increase of pension to Jesse S. Clum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 23203) granting an increase of pension to William H. Dorrance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23204) granting an increase of pension to James Bolton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23205) granting an increase of pension to Edward Blanchard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23206) granting an increase of pension to Alfred N. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23207) granting an increase of pension to William H. Jay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 23208) to provide for the appointment and retirement of late Ensign John Tracey Edson as lieutenant in the United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23209) granting an increase of pension to Martha R. Griswold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23210) granting an increase of pension to John McEnany—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23211) granting an increase of pension to Frank S. Nickerson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23212) granting a pension to George S. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23213) granting a pension to Mary E. Libbey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23214) granting a pension to Charlotte A. Butters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23215) granting a pension to Patrick L. Farrell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 23216) granting a pension to Julius Jensen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23217) granting a pension to John W. Kolste—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23218) granting a pension to August Capelle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23219) granting a pension to May A. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23220) granting a pension to Rebecca Serles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23221) granting a pension to Conrad Herwig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23222) granting a pension to William H. Chapin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23223) granting a pension to Peter Medinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pension.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23224) granting a pension to James McMahone—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23225) granting an increase of pension to Herman Ecke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23226) granting an increase of pension to Franklin C. Mather—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23227) granting an increase of pension to Gottlieb Granold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23228) granting an increase of pension to Albert F. Pierce—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 23229) granting a pension to Martha Rebecca Young—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 23230) granting an increase of pension to Wilson Wightman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23231) granting an increase of pension to Frank C. Bruner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23232) granting an increase of pension to Lorenz Valentine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23233) granting an increase of pension to Myra J. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23234) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Evory—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23235) granting an increase of pension to Edwin N. Gifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23236) granting an increase of pension to Frederick A. Battey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of continuous service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of William H. Fetter and George Metz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of New Wilmington, for legislation to pension members of the Telegraph Corps of the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of J. G. Harbard, of Veteran Army of Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Rich. H. Swank, William A. Gibbany, and Henry E. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ANSBERRY: Petition of Oakwood and Brown townships, Ohio, against the Johnson Sunday bill (S. 3940)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Garrett H. Fowler and David Creger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Edith Wheaton and others, of Shreve, Ohio, against Johnson bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Timber Ridge Presbyterian Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BIRDSALL: Petition of Monday Afternoon Club, of Dubuque, Iowa, favoring Senate concurrent resolution No. 28, deploring acts of violence and inhumanity on the part of the Russian Government toward its subjects—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of citizens of Eldora, Iowa, favoring increase of salaries of federal judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of George Small—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURNETT: Petition of Mobile Chamber of Commerce, favoring S. 4825, for forest reservations in White Mountains and Southern Appalachian Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: Petition of E. V. Langon, against duty on zinc ore—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CHANEY: Petition of Dr. J. H. Bennett and others, of Farmersburg, Ind., and Samuel Rowe and others, of Linton, Ind., against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of George N. Puett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: Petition of Veteran Army of the Philippines, favoring legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., National Corps Army and Navy Union, for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. COX of Indiana: Petition of members of Grand Army of the Republic Post No. 436, for legislation affording general increase of civil-war soldiers' pensions—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAVIDSON: Petition of Military Order of the Loyal Legion of Wisconsin, favoring legislation to place volunteer officers of the civil war on the retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Oshkosh, Wis., favoring a nonpartisan tariff commission—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: Papers to accompany bills for relief of heirs of William L. Rowland and heirs of Robert J. Allen—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ESCH: Paper to accompany bills for relief of Julia A. Strong, Harry Fuller, Levi King, and Daniel Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Schaffer—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FLOYD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James L. Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Lewis A. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOCHT: Papers to accompany bills for relief of William H. Kough, Peter Godling, and J. H. Condon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: Petitions of Byron Hewitt, of Rockford, Ill., and G. W. Rohr and Malcolm Bruner, favoring Fuller bill (H. R. 19250), to establish volunteer officers' retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Albert E. Beatty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, favoring the Tirrell bill (H. R. 12405) and the Bacon bill (S. 5151), to prohibit liquor selling in Hawaii, etc.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HAGGOTT: Petition of citizens of Colorado, against S. 3940 (religious legislation in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HAMILL: Petition of citizens of Hudson County, N. J., for legislation pensioning United States military telegraphers who served in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARDWICK: Petition of Chamber of Commerce of Augusta, Ga., favoring Senate bill 4825, for forest reservations in White Mountains and Southern Appalachian Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HASKINS: Petition of John L. Bacon and others, of White River Junction, Vt., for legislation pensioning members of the United States Telegraph Corps in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of C. A. Thomson and others, of Windham County, Vt., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Combs Hendrickson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Atlantic Terra Cotta Company, of Rocky Hill, N. J., favoring removal of duty on plaster—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of residents of Matawan, N. J., for improvement of Matawan Creek—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Petition of Governor Cutler and other citizens of Utah, favoring a volunteer officers' retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of candy manufacturers of Provo, Utah, for reduction of tariff on chicle and other materials used in manufacture of candy—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Elizabeth F. Brubaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KIMBALL: Petition of sundry citizens of Lexington, Ky., asking that the act of June 27, 1890, relative to pensions be amended—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Freeman C. Moshier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEE: Papers to accompany bills for relief of David E. Tatum, heirs of Noah Fugate, estate of Howell Tatum, and heirs of John W. Gilliam—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LEVER: Petition of Columbia (S. C.) Chamber of Commerce, favoring H. R. 10457, for forest reservations in White Mountains and Southern Appalachian Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LOUD: Petition of citizens of Twining, Mich., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: Petition of citizens of Sadorus, Ill., against the passage of S. 3940, entitled "An act for the proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MANN: Memorial of Illinois Manufacturers' Association, adopted to discouraging measures tending to aggravate agitation against corporate interests, etc.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of retail shoe merchants in Chicago, against duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Arche Club, of Chicago, praying for the establishment of the White Mountain and Appalachian Mountain Forest Reserve—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Alfred C. Hawley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Patent Law Association, of Chicago, favoring increase of salaries of federal judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MILLER: Petition of citizens of Emporia, Kans., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Joshua E. Carlton and Susan A. Rail (previously referred to the Committee on Inavlid Pensions)—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of estate of Daniel C. Yarnell, Mary A. Henderson, Hampton Hudgens, and Casandra Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Edward Ayres—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PADGETT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of estate of Banks C. Mills—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PARSONS: Petition of citizens of New York City, asking legislation to provide pensions for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PRAY: Petition of citizens of Montana, for law to pension members of United States Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Butte Stationary Engineers' Local Union, No. 83, for legislation empowering investigation of the Treadwell Mining Company—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. ROBINSON: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Mrs. M. A. Hibbard, heirs of Azriah Mitchell, and trustees of Pleasant Hill Baptist Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RYAN: Papers to accompany bills for relief of William H. Eldridge, Charles H. Rice, and William Fay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George E. Olcott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: Petition of William H. Taylor and 73 others, against H. R. 4897, providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. TIRRELL: Petition of Moses C. Davis and others, against S. 3940, for religious legislation for the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of Katherine Hall and others, favoring H. R. 18445, for methods of treatment of tuberculosis—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of C. A. Cross & Co., favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEISSE: Petition of citizens of Wisconsin, against a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, December 9, 1908.

The Senate met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Edward E. Hale.

Mr. ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, a Senator from the State of Indiana, appeared in his seat to-day.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings, when, on request of Mr. KEAN, and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Journal stands approved.

REPORTS OF SECRETARY OF THE SENATE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Senate, transmitting, pursuant to law, a full and complete statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Senate of public moneys in his possession from July 1, 1907, to June 30, 1908, which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Senate, transmitting a full and complete account of all property, including stationery, belonging to the United States in his possession on the 7th day of December, 1908, which, with the accompanying paper, was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

REPORTS OF SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, transmitting a statement of the receipts from the sale of condemned property in his possession since December 2, 1907, which, with the accompanying paper, was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, giving a full and complete account of all property belonging to the United States in his possession on December 7, 1908, which, with the accompanying paper, was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PUBLIC PRINTER.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Public Printer, showing the operations of the Government Printing Office for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

CONSOLIDATION OF POWER PLANTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting, pursuant to law, reports as to the amount of money expended on consolidation of power plants since the authorization for such consolidation was given, etc., in detail for each navy-yard in the country, etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR OF VESSELS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to the vessels which will require general overhauling to the extent of $200,000 or more during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

EMPLOYEES OF WAR DEPARTMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement showing what officers or employees of the War Department have traveled on official business from Washington to points outside of the District of Columbia during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

EMPLOYEES OF INTERIOR DEPARTMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement showing what officers or employees of the Secretary's office, etc., have traveled on official business from Washington to points outside of the District of Columbia during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

PATENTS OBTAINED BY OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting, in response to a resolution of February 2, 1907, a list of the officers and employees of the Navy Department who have obtained patents in the United States or in foreign countries for inventions during their services, etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

RAPID CITY (MICH.) INDIAN SCHOOL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report relative to the improvement of the water system at the Rapid City Indian School, Michigan, etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

NONRESERVATION INDIAN SCHOOLS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement with respect to the possibility of disposing of any nonreservation Indian schools which, in his judgment, are no longer of value to the Indian Service, etc., which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

MARE ISLAND STRAITS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting, by direction of the President, the report of the board of army and navy officers appointed to investigate the question of the hydraulics of the Mare Island Straits and approaches thereto, etc., which, with the accompanying papers and illustrations, was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS OF DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which was referred to the the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed.

GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the annual report of the superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed.

ENDOWMENT OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report of the disbursements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, made in the States and Territories, providing for an increase in the annual appropriations for the endowment and support of agricultural colleges and the mechanic arts, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry and ordered to be printed.

MARITIME CANAL COMPANY OF NICARAGUA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, the annual report of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals and ordered to be printed.

LAWS OF PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting one copy each of the journals of the executive council of Porto Rico for the second session of the fourth legislative assembly and of the house of delegates and the executive council for the extraordinary session of the fourth legislative assembly, which was referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico.

EXPENDITURES OF DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, a detailed statement of the expenditures of the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and ordered to be printed.

TRAVEL OF AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement showing in detail the travel from Washington to points outside of the District of Columbia performed by officers and employees of the Department of Agriculture during the fiscal year 1908, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TRAVEL OF EMPLOYEES OF CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Librarian of Congress, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement of officers or employees of the Library of Congress who have traveled on official business from Washington to points outside of the District of Columbia during the fiscal year 1907–8, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Librarian of Congress, together with the annual report of the Superintendent of the Library building and grounds for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on the Library and ordered to be printed.

SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) ARMORY AND ROCK ISLAND (ILL.) ARSENAL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting, pursuant to law, statements submitted by the Chief of Ordnance, United States Army, of the expenditures, and of arms, components or arms and appendages fabricated, altered, and repaired during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, at the Springfield Armory, Springfield, Mass., and at the Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill., which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed.

LIST OF JUDGMENTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the chief clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting, pursuant to law, a statement of all judgments rendered by that court for the year ended December 5, 1908, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law and opinion filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims, set out in the annexed findings by the court relating to the vessel brig Caroline Wilmans, Daniel Jones, master, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims, set out in the annexed findings by the court relating to the vessel brig Atalanta, Stephen Griffith, master, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate communications from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the findings of fact and conclusions of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the annexed findings by the court in the following causes:

In the cause of the vessel schooner Betsey, James Peterson, master;

In the cause of the vessel brig Little Sarah, John Russell, master;

In the cause of the vessel brig Ariel, John Griffis, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Atlantic, Ebenezer Stanton, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Roebuck, Simon Kinsman, master;

In the cause of the vessel ship Antelope, B. Hillar, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Unity, Samuel Caznean, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Hope, Tarbox Moulton, master;

In the cause of the vessel snow Rover, Wilson Jacobs, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Swift, Joseph McCammon, master;

In the cause of the vessel ship Commerce, John Jones, master;

In the cause of the vessel ship Fame, John Rust, master;

In the cause of the vessel ship Mercury, Samuel Gilpatrick, master;

In the cause of the vessel brig Neptune, Seth Burnham, master;

In the cause of the vessel sloop Sally, William Smith, master;

In the cause of the vessel schooner Reliance, Joseph Chandler, master; and

In the causes of the vessels ships Kapperer, Blom, master; brig Young Frederick, Harder, master; ship Columbia Fortuna, Paverick, master; snow Gluckstern, Pagels, master; snow Fin Masken, Jorgenson, master.

The foregoing findings were, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

LINNEKIN V. THE UNITED STATES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the chief justice of the Court of Claims, requesting that the finding of facts, etc., in the case of Linnekin v. The United States, etc., be returned to the Court of Claims for further consideration, which was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

DISMISSAL OF CASES BY COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of defendants May 14, 1908, for nonprosecution, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a list of congressional cases dismissed on motion of the defendants November 16, 1908, for nonprosecution, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate communications from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting certified copies of the findings of fact filed by the court in the following causes:

In the cause of Esther H. Kautz, executrix of Albert Kautz, deceased, v. The United States;

In the cause of J. A. Shackleton v. The United States;

In the cause of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Macon, Mo., v. The United States;

In the cause of the trustees of Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, of Fredericksburg, Va., v. The United States;

In the cause of the trustees of the Glasgow graded common schools of Glasgow, Ky., v. The United States;

In the cause of the trustees of the Baptist Church of Paris, Ky., v. The United States; and

In the cause of Eliza Lethers, administratrix of Alfred Lethers, deceased, v. The United States.

The foregoing findings were, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

NATIONAL MONETARY COMMISSION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT reported that he had appointed Hon. A. J. HOPKINS to be a member on the part of the Senate of the National Monetary Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. William B. Allison.

CREDENTIALS.

Mr. FOSTER presented the credentials of SAMUEL D. MCENERY, chosen by the legislature of the State of Louisiana a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1909; which were read and ordered to be filed.

Mr. PAGE presented the credentials of WILLIAM P. DILLINGHAM, chosen by the legislature of the State of Vermont a Senator from that State for the term commencing March 4, 1909; which were read and ordered to be filed.

Mr. MONEY presented the credentials of JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS, chosen by the legislature of the State of Mississippi a Senator from that State for the term commencing March 4, 1911; which were read and ordered to be filed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. Browning, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House insists upon its amendments disagreed to by the Senate, to the bill (S. 5083) to amend section 1 of the passenger act of 1882; agrees to the conference asked for by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. BENNET of New York, and Mr. BURNETT of Alabama managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message also announced that the House insists upon its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 5 to the bill (H. R. 21052) to amend sections 11 and 13 of an act entitled "An act to establish a Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization and to provide uniform rule for the naturalization throughout the United States;" agrees to the conference asked for by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. BENNET of New York, and Mr. BURNETT of Alabama managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message further announced that the House insists upon its amendment to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 13851) providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new immigration station thereon at the city of Boston, Mass.; agrees to the conference asked for by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey, Mr. FRENCH of Idaho, and Mr. BURNETT of Alabama managers at the conference on the part of the House.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Missoula, Mont., and a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Spokane, Wash., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of the judges of the circuit and district courts of the United States, which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the city council of Clinton, Iowa, praying that an annual appropriation of $2,000,000 be made for the improvement of the Mississippi River, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Republican State Convention of the State of Washington, praying for the enactment of legislation authorizing the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate advances in freight rates before becoming effective, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented resolutions of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, favoring the enactment of legislation providing for the improvement of the rivers, harbors, and canals of the country, which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. PLATT presented a petition of sundry citizens of the State of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a memorial of J. F. Bingham Lodge, No. 155, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of New York City, N. Y., remonstrating against the adoption of certain proposed amendments to section 42 of the so-called "passenger act" of 1882, which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Army and Navy Union of the United States of America, praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy, which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the New York County Lawyers' Association, praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of circuit and district judges, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of sundry members of the Veteran Army of the Philippines, praying for the enactment of legislation permitting the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps of the United States serving in the Philippines to observe August 13 as a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day," which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. FRYE presented a petition of the Commandery of the State of Maine, Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of Portland, Me., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a volunteer retired list in the War and Navy departments for the surviving officers of the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the Bar Association of Penobscot County, Me., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of circuit and district court judges, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a petition of the New Hampshire Federation of Labor, of Keene, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for a modification of the Sherman antitrust law relative to injunctions, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the International Order of Good Templars, of Manchester, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the Paul Jones Club, of Portsmouth, N. H., praying that an appropriation be made to secure a more suitable burial place for the remains of John Paul Jones, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Milford, N. H., praying for the adoption of certain amendments to the so-called "Sherman antitrust law," which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the New Hampshire Baptist Convention, of Concord, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation to compel all railway companies to diminish as much as practicable the Sunday work of their employees, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a memorial of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association of the District of Columbia, remonstrating against any change being made in the present form of government of the District of Columbia, which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented a petition of sundry members of the street cleaning department of the District of Columbia, praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of certain employees of that department, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for a high-pressure water system in that city, which were referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of sundry officers of the civil war, of the State of Illinois, praying for the enactment of legislation to create a volunteer retired list in the War and Navy Departments for the surviving officers of the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Bureau, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEYBURN presented petitions of Local Unions Nos. 66, 45, 184, and 17, Silver City, Murray, Atlanta, and Wallace, United Mine Workers of America, all in the State of Idaho, praying that an investigation be made into the condition of mines operated by the Treadwell Mining Company, of Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. WARREN presented a petition of sundry surviving officers of the civil war, of the State of Wyoming, praying for the enactment of legislation to create a volunteer retired list in the War and Navy Departments for the surviving officers of the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of the State of Wyoming, praying for the enactment of legislation to create an industrial commission to investigate the condition of mines on Douglas Island, Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. WETMORE presented a petition of Local Lodge No. 119, International Association of Machinists, of Newport, R. I., praying for the enactment of legislation requiring the application of an illiteracy test to immigrants, and remonstrating against any further modification of the present immigration law, which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. CARTER presented petitions of sundry citizens of Billings, Mont., praying for the enactment of legislation to extend the time until May 1, 1909, to homesteaders in which to establish residence thereon in that State, which were referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. SCOTT presented a petition of sundry citizens of Thomas, W. Va., praying for the enactment of legislation whereby members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps, of the United States Army, may be placed on a parity as regards pension and homestead rights with soldiers of the other arms of the service, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of the chamber of commerce of Huntington, W. Va., and a petition of the board of trade of Clarksburg, W. Va., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the establishment of the Appalachian-White Mountain National Forest Reserve, which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HOPKINS presented a memorial of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, remonstrating against the enactment of any legislation tending to continue or aggravate the agitation against corporate interests, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. NELSON presented a memorial of the Business Men's Association, of Winona, Minn., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "parcel-post bill," which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of St. Paul, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation whereby members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army may be placed on a parity as regards pension and homestead rights with soldiers of the other arms of the service, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SUTHERLAND (for Mr. WARNER) presented petitions of sundry citizens of St. Louis, Weston, and Kansas City, all in the State of Missouri, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served during the civil war, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BURKETT presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 5690) granting an increase of pension to Thomas S. Wineteer, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 3214) granting a pension to John Kemmer, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented an affidavit to accompany the bill (S. 1090) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Dodd, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented an affidavit to accompany the bill (S. 1121) granting an increase of pension to Horace Perry, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 3211) granting an increase of pension to Charles F. M. Morgan, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Omaha, Nebr., praying that the members of the Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during the civil war be placed on the same basis as those who served in other branches of the service, with regard to pension and homestead rights, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of C. C. Jerome, of Lincoln, Nebr., praying for a revision of the tariff on books, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Commercial Club of Fremont, Nebr., and a petition of the Bar Association of Dodge County, Nebr., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of United States circuit and district judges, which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Auburn, Nebr., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served during the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of sundry members of the Veteran Army of the Philippines, praying for the enactment of legislation to establish August 13 as a national holiday in commemoration of the American occupation of the Philippines, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. GUGGENHEIM presented petitions of sundry citizens of Brookside, Coalcreek, and Garfield, all in the State of Colorado, praying that an investigation be made into the existing conditions of the Treadwell Mining Company of Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. LONG presented a petition of sundry citizens of Wichita, Kans., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served during the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Haviland, Kans., praying for the enactment of legislation to reduce the expenses of the army and navy, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. FLINT presented a petition of the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Riverside, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation authorizing the Department of Commerce and Labor to establish a permanent commission for the study of the child-labor problem, which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of the Humboldt Chamber of Commerce, of Eureka, Cal., praying that an appropriation be made for repairing and extending the twin jetties at the entrance of Humboldt Bay, in that State, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CLAY. I present the petition of Chappel Winfrey, of Dade County, Ga., with accompanying affidavits, praying that his war claim be referred to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the so-called "Tucker Act." The bill is pending before the Committee on Claims, and I move that the petition and affidavits be referred to that committee.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of the Humboldt Chamber of Commerce, of Eureka, Cal., praying that an appropriation be made for repairing and extending the twin jetties at the entrance of Humboldt Bay, in that State, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Santa Cruz, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to place members of the Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war on a parity with soldiers of the service in respect to pensions and homestead rights, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FORAKER presented petitions of sundry citizens of Ripley and Toledo, in the State of Ohio, praying for the enactment of legislation whereby members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army may be placed on a parity as regards pension and homestead rights with soldiers of the other arms of the service, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HALE presented a petition of the Maine State Board of Trade, praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the establishment of a national forest preserve within that State, which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

Mr. BROWN presented a petition of sundry citizens of Albion, Nebr., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GAMBLE presented the memorial of F. L. Wiley and 24 other citizens of Deadwood, S. Dak., and the memorial of A. C. Anderson and 21 other citizens of Lead, S. Dak., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation making the first day of the week a day of rest in the District of Columbia, which were referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. SMOOT presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 7149) granting a pension to Nannie M. Lowe, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a bill (S. 7275) granting a pension to Jesse Tyre, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7276) providing for the improvement, repair, and an addition to the public building at Pensacola, Fla., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. McLAURIN introduced a bill (S. 7277) for the protection of Marengo Bend, near Natchez, Miss., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7278) for the relief of Mary L. Fitzgerald, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FRYE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7279) granting a pension to Carlos Dinsmore;

A bill (S. 7280) granting an increase of pension to Josiah N. Eastman;

A bill (S. 7281) granting a pension to Elizabeth A. Nye;

A bill (S. 7282) granting an increase of pension to Rose E. Staples;

A bill (S. 7283) granting an increase of pension to John Lang;

A bill (S. 7284) granting an increase of pension to Richard Dearborn;

A bill (S. 7285) granting an increase of pension to Freeland Q. Andrews;

A bill (S. 7286) granting an increase of pension to Rufus E. Rounds;

A bill (S. 7287) granting an increase of pension to John M. Bryant;

A bill (S. 7288) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Hill;

A bill (S. 7289) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Storah;

A bill (S. 7290) granting an increase of pension to John French;

A bill (S. 7291) granting an increase of pension to Emma T. Nash;

A bill (S. 7292) granting an increase of pension to Lucy McKusick;

A bill (S. 7293) granting a pension to Emma K. Frank;

A bill (S. 7294) granting a pension to Susan B. Merrill;

A bill (S. 7295) granting an increase of pension to George P. Tucker; and

A bill (S. 7296) granting an increase of pension to John L. Rushton.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 7297) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Augustus W. Hawes, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 7298) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a Code of Law for the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1901, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7299) to resubdivide squares 37 and 38 of C. Wilhelmina Dobbins's addition to the city of Washington, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7300) granting an increase of pension to Henry M. Washburn;

A bill (S. 7301) granting an increase of pension to Anson Buxton;

A bill (S. 7302) granting an increase of pension to Henry L. Harris;

A bill (S. 7303) granting a pension to John A. Flanders; and

A bill (S. 7304) granting an increase of pension to Warren Abbott.

Mr. GALLINGER. I introduce a bill for reference to the Committee on the District of Columbia. I desire to state that it has been prepared by the corporation counsel of the District.

The bill (S. 7305) amendatory of existing laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CULLOM introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7306) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Banks;

A bill (S. 7307) granting an increase of pension to Alfred C. Hawley;

A bill (S. 7308) granting an increase of pension to William A. Ice; and

A bill (S. 7309) granting an increase of pension to Samuel W. Wallis.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7310) granting an increase of pension to Edward E. Brown;

A bill (S. 7311) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin V. Carey;

A bill (S. 7312) granting an increase of pension to James Clark;

A bill (S. 7313) granting an increase of pension to Orville T. Lee; and

A bill (S. 7314) granting an increase of pension to Arnold Rodgers.

Mr. PLATT introduced a bill (S. 7315) for the relief of certain surgeons, passed assistant surgeons, and assistant surgeons, United States Navy, retired, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7316) granting an increase of pension to Matilda Butt;

A bill (S. 7317) granting a pension to Florence Haggerty; and

A bill (S. 7318) granting an increase of pension to Harry H. Short.

Mr. HEYBURN introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7319) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Dalle;

A bill (S. 7320) granting an increase of pension to George W. Peck;

A bill (S. 7321) granting an increase of pension to William Thome;

A bill (S. 7322) granting an increase of pension to Ira S. Allen;

A bill (S. 7323) granting an increase of pension to James Kirby; and

A bill (S. 7324) granting an increase of pension to George D. Smith.

Mr. BEVERIDGE introduced a bill (S. 7325) for the relief of Cadmus E. Crabill, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7326) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Huntington, Ind., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (S. 7327) granting an increase of pension to Morrison Cayton;

A bill (S. 7328) granting an increase of pension to Rhoda J. Chase;

A bill (S. 7329) granting an increase of pension to Jemima Williams; and

A bill (S. 7330) granting an increase of pension to John Martindale.

Mr. McENERY introduced a bill (S. 7331) for the relief of the estate of Isabella Ann Fluker, deceased, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DIXON introduced a bill (S. 7332) granting an increase of pension to Franklin R. St. John, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BOURNE introduced a bill (S. 7333) granting an increase of pension to John W. Son, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7334) granting an increase of pension to Susan E. Baker; and

A bill (S. 7335) granting an increase of pension to Robert R. Bratton.

Mr. BOURNE introduced a bill (S. 7336) to correct the military record of Jeremiah McLaughlin, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. GUGGENHEIM introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7337) granting an increase of pension to Henry Butler; and

A bill (S. 7338) granting an increase of pension to Abraham Rhodes.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7339) granting an increase of pension to Harry B. Kerr;

A bill (S. 7340) granting an increase of pension to Marshall K. Ames;

A bill (S. 7341) granting an increase of pension to John Burns;

A bill (S. 7342) granting a pension to Oliver H. Perry;

A bill (S. 7343) granting an increase of pension to Matthew Paul;

A bill (S. 7344) granting a pension to Etta B. Stewart;

A bill (S. 7345) granting an increase of pension to Christian R. Shirey;

A bill (S. 7346) granting an increase of pension to Charles R. Crouch; and

A bill (S. 7347) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. McMahan.

Mr. BURKETT introduced a bill (S. 7348) authorizing the procuring of additional land for the site of the public building at Beatrice, Nebr., which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7349) to correct the military record of Charles Haskins, sr., which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7350) granting an increase of pension to Richard M. Johnson;

A bill (S. 7351) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Crouch;

A bill (S. 7352) granting an increase of pension to George W. Sisson;

A bill (S. 7353) granting an increase of pension to James W. Nauslar;

A bill (S. 7354) granting an increase of pension to Francis N. Brokaw;

A bill (S. 7355) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Presson;

A bill (S. 7356) granting an increase of pension to David C. Crawford;

A bill (S. 7357) granting a pension to Mildred E. Tigner;

A bill (S. 7358) granting an increase of pension to John Kraft; and

A bill (S. 7359) granting a pension to Anna A. Yule.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7360) to pension Michael Evans without deduction or rebate on account of former alleged overpayments or erroneous payments of pension;

A bill (S. 7361) granting an increase of pension to Howard G. Cleaveland;

A bill (S. 7362) granting an increase of pension to John C. Aaron;

A bill (S. 7363) granting an increase of pension to Alice E. Quillen;

A bill (S. 7364) granting an increase of pension to Lewis H. Laflin;

A bill (S. 7365) granting an increase of pension to John P. Miller;

A bill (S. 7366) granting an increase of pension to James K. Perry;

A bill (S. 7367) granting an increase of pension to James H. Valentine; and

A bill (S. 7368) granting an increase of pension to Hortense B. Follett.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE introduced a bill (S. 7369) reserving from entry and sale the mineral rights to coal and other materials mined for fuel, oil, gas, or asphalt upon or underlying the public lands of the United States, and providing for the sale of the surface of public lands underlaid with or containing coal or other minerals mined for fuel, oil, gas, or asphalt, and providing for the leasing of the mineral rights in such lands, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DAVIS. I introduce two bills, and ask that they lie on the table, subject to call.

The bill (S. 7370) to prohibit any person or corporation, for themselves or for or in the interest of any other person or corporation, directly or indirectly, from delivering, receiving, or transmitting, and from being interested in, or aiding in any manner, the receiving, delivering, or transmitting by mail, telegraph, telephone, or other means whatever, in any State, district, country, Territory, or place over which the sovereignty of the United States of America now exists, any message, information intelligence, letter, writing, card, device, sign, symbol, cipher, or other thing whatsoever, the subject of the senses, or any of them, whereby intelligence or information may be conveyed or understood, relating to or in any manner or form concerning any transaction or proposed or suggested transaction, scheme, or plan to speculate or gamble, or gain or lose sums of money called margins, which gains or losses, respectively, are made to depend upon the future increase or decrease of the market price of any product of the soil, provided that at the time of such transaction, proposed transaction, scheme, or plan for so speculating or gambling, any such product of the soil be the subject of interstate commerce, or the subject of commerce from or by and between the people of the United States of America and the people of any foreign country, was read twice by its title.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the bill will lie on the table, subject to call.

Mr. DAVIS introduced a bill (S. 7371) to suppress pools, trusts, and combinations in trade and to provide penalties for violations of its provisions, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the bill will lie on the table, subject to call.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 7372) to set apart certain lands in the State of Oregon as a public park, to be known as the "Saddle Mountain National Park," which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7373) to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands and to provide for the repayment of certain fees, purchase money, and commissions paid on void entries of public lands," which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

A bill (S. 7374) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Astoria, in the State of Oregon;

A bill (S. 7375) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Portland, in the State of Oregon; and

A bill (S. 7376) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building thereon at Oregon City, in the State of Oregon.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 7377) authorizing the creation of a land district in the State of South Dakota, to be known as the "Bellefourche land district," which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7378) to extend the time for the completion of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Yankton, S. Dak., by the Winnipeg, Yankton and Gulf Railroad Company, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs:

A bill (S. 7379) to authorize the sale and disposition of a portion of the surplus and unallotted lands in the Rosebud Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, and making appropriation and provision to carry the same into effect;

A bill (S. 7380) to authorize the sale and disposition of a portion of the surplus and unallotted lands in the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, and making appropriation and provision to carry the same into effect; and

A bill (S. 7381) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Interior to pay to the Flandreau tribe of Indians, in South Dakota, certain funds to the credit of said Indians.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (S. 7382) granting an increase of pension to Robert L. Wilson;

A bill (S. 7383) granting an increase of pension to Edwin B. Paddock; and

A bill (S. 7384) granting an increase of pension to Gilman Stevens.

Mr. SMOOT introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7385) granting an increase of pension to Melvin P. Miller;

A bill (S. 7386) granting an increase of pension to Adam Wingenfield;

A bill (S. 7387) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Loftis;

A bill (S. 7388) granting an increase of pension to Thomas D. Stevenson; and

A bill (S. 7389) granting an increase of pension to George W. Becker.

Mr. SMOOT introduced a bill (S. 7390) for the relief of Christina Rockwell, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DOLLIVER introduced a bill (S. 7391) to regulate the issue of securities by transportation, telegraph, and telephone companies engaged in interstate commerce, for the purpose of better protecting the people against unreasonable rates and charges, which was read twice by its title.

Mr. DOLLIVER. I ask that the bill lie on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the bill will lie on the table.

Mr. DU PONT introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7392) granting an increase of pension to Miers B. Betts; and

A bill (S. 7393) granting a pension to Samuel T. Henry.

Mr. KEAN introduced a bill (S. 7394) to correct the military record of Joseph A. Blanchard, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7395) granting a pension to William Shannon, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SUTHERLAND introduced a bill (S. 7396) for the exchange of certain lands situated in the Fort Douglas Military Reservation, State of Utah, for lands adjacent thereto, between the Mount Olivet Cemetery Association of Salt Lake City, Utah, and the Government of the United States, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7397) granting an increase of pension to Berdette M. Sperry; and

A bill (S. 7398) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Kerns.

Mr. CURTIS introduced a bill (S. 7399) to provide for the organization, regulation, and control of corporations, companies, and associations doing an interstate business, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also (for Mr. WARNER) introduced a bill (S. 7400) authorizing and directing the Postmaster-General to credit the accounts of Frank Wyman, postmaster at St. Louis, Mo., in the sum of $4,139.13, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (for Mr. WARNER) introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7401) granting an increase of pension to Marion Cunningham;

A bill (S. 7402) granting an increase of pension to Sarah F. Gillam;

A bill (S. 7403) granting an increase of pension to Sarah Dawson;

A bill (S. 7404) granting a pension to Heunetta Hordin; and

A bill (S. 7405) granting a pension to Robert Devling.

Mr. CURTIS (for Mr. WARNER) introduced a bill (S. 7406) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Angeline C. Burgert the sum of $157.72, the amount of her distributive share of the net proceeds of the sale of the Painesville and Youngstown Railroad applicable to bond No. 209, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CARTER introduced a bill (S. 7407) providing for the appointment of an inspector of mines for the district of Alaska, defining his powers and duties, fixing his compensation, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7408) to amend Article VI of an agreement between the Turtle Mountain band of Chippewa Indians and the United States, through the commissioners of the United States duly appointed for that purpose, on the 2d day of October, 1892, as modified and amended by act approved April 21, 1904, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7409) granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Baker; and

A bill (S. 7410) granting an increase of pension to Clark S. Devoe.

Mr. NELSON introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7411) granting an increase of pension to Berge Johnson;

A bill (S. 7412) granting an increase of pension to George A. Kogle; and

A bill (S. 7413) granting an increase of pension to George W. Hawkins.

Mr. BULKELEY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7414) granting an increase of pension to Frederick M. Hart;

A bill (S. 7415) granting an increase of pension to Lyman H. Leach;

A bill (S. 7416) granting an increase of pension to George Soder;

A bill (S. 7417) granting an increase of pension to John Egan; and

A bill (S. 7418) granting a pension to Elizabeth Cook.

Mr. BURNHAM introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7419) granting an increase of pension to Charles N. Baker;

A bill (S. 7420) granting an increase of pension to James B. Herron;

A bill (S. 7421) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Mansfield;

A bill (S. 7422) granting an increase of pension to Oscar Perkins;

A bill (S. 7423) granting an increase of pension to Orrin W. Reed; and

A bill (S. 7424) granting an increase of pension to Ira H. Thurber.

Mr. WETMORE introduced a bill (S. 7425) granting an increase of pension to Peter D. Melville, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7426) granting an increase of pension to William A. Richardson;

A bill (S. 7427) granting an increase of pension to Ferdinand Brown;

A bill (S. 7428) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Sweet;

A bill (S. 7429) granting an increase of pension to John H. Richards;

A bill (S. 7430) granting an increase of pension to Charles B. Chandler;

A bill (S. 7431) granting an increase of pension to John J. Card, alias John Carder; and

A bill (S. 7432) granting an increase of pension to John Ackley.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7433) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Martien; and

A bill (S. 7434) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Behymer.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced a bill (S. 7435) granting an increase of pension to William P. Robbe, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 7436) to authorize the issuance of a patent to Fred C. and C. Helen Fisher for land located in the county of Fremont, State of Wyoming, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7437) granting an increase of pension to Alice D. Bainum, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DILLINGHAM introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7438) granting an increase of pension to Lucius Bigelow;

A bill (S. 7439) granting an increase of pension to Luman L. Grout;

A bill (S. 7440) granting an increase of pension to Edwin M. Haynes;

A bill (S. 7441) granting an increase of pension to Dana Fish;

A bill (S. 7442) granting an increase of pension to Francis L. Knapp; and

A bill (S. 7443) granting an increase of pension to Barney B. Mattimore.

Mr. DICK introduced a bill (S. 7444) for the establishment of a park at the intersection of Rhode Island avenue, North Capitol and U streets NW., Washington, D. C., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7445) granting an increase of pension to Daniel A. Grosvenor, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FLINT introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Commerce:

A bill (S. 7446) for the improvement of the harbor at San Diego, Cal.; and

A bill (S. 7447) directing the Secretary of the Treasury to reimburse the city of Coronado and the Coronado Beach Company for protecting property from the encroachment of the Pacific Ocean.

Mr. FLINT introduced a bill (S. 7448) to provide for an additional district judge for the southern district of California, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 7449) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Andrew A. St. John;

A bill (S. 7450) to correct the military record of Milton J. Arrington; and

A bill (S. 7451) to correct the military record of Charles R. Stevens.

Mr. FLINT introduced a bill (S. 7452) granting a pension to John T. Young, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7453) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Palmer;

A bill (S. 7454) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Slocum;

A bill (S. 7455) granting an increase of pension to Henry K. Haskell;

A bill (S. 7456) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Smith;

A bill (S. 7457) granting an increase of pension to Henry Tobin;

A bill (S. 7458) granting an increase of pension to Samuel McMurry;

A bill (S. 7459) granting an increase of pension to Francis I. Gardiner;

A bill (S. 7460) granting an increase of pension to James L. Fitzgerald;

A bill (S. 7461) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah J. Hannon;

A bill (S. 7462) granting an increase of pension to Lyman A. Holcomb;

A bill (S. 7463) granting an increase of pension to William Stein; and

A bill (S. 7464) granting a pension to Cora E. Ruttinger.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7465) granting an increase of pension to Albert S. Winchester;

A bill (S. 7466) granting an increase of pension to John Hopper;

A bill (S. 7467) granting an increase of pension to Caspar Wilky;

A bill (S. 7468) granting an increase of pension to William Murray;

A bill (S. 7469) granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. Driesbach;

A bill (S. 7470) granting an increase of pension to Alphonso L. Stacy; and

A bill (S. 7471) granting an increase of pension to Elisha Bridges.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 7472) transferring the Indian school at Morris, Minn., to the State of Minnesota for an agricultural school, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7473) for the relief of D. B. Curd; and

A bill (S. 7474) for the relief of the estate of W. R. Decker, deceased.

Mr. CLAY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7475) for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of E. Ann Lowry;

A bill (S. 7476) for the relief of the estate of Howell Tatum, deceased;

A bill (S. 7477) for the relief of the trustees of Timber Ridge Presbyterian Church; and

A bill (S. 7478) for the relief of Theodore L. Mitchell.

Mr RAYNER introduced a bill (S. 7479) for the relief of the heirs of Elizabeth A. Jarboe, deceased, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7480) granting a pension to Rebecca N. Ewers, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced a bill (S. 7481) for the relief of the estate of Seth Waters, deceased, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GORE introduced a bill (S. 7482) to remove the restrictions from the surplus lands of the Osage Indians in Oklahoma, to provide for the payment to certain members their share of the tribal funds, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 7483) to correct the military record of Orlando A. Stebbins, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7484) granting an increase of pension to William Quinlivan, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7485) for the relief of the widow and children of John W. Geering, of Vallejo, Cal., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. JOHNSTON introduced a bill (S. 7487) to parole United States prisoners, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7488) for the relief of the estate of John Allison, deceased, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MONEY. I ask leave to introduce a bill for the relief of the estate of J. M. Fortenberry, deceased, to correct a typographical error or misprint in Senate bill 290. I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Claims.

The bill (S. 7489) for the relief of the estate of J. M. Fortenberry, deceased, was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BROWN introduced a bill (S. 7490) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bettinger, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. LONG introduced a bill (S. 7491) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Walker, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7492) granting an increase of pension to James N. Titus;

A bill (S. 7493) granting an increase of pension to David F. Painter;

A bill (S. 7494) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Rankin;

A bill (S. 7495) granting an increase of pension to William T. Collins;

A bill (S. 7496) granting an increase of pension to William H. Weidner;

A bill (S. 7497) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Dice;

A bill (S. 7498) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Owen;

A bill (S. 7499) granting an increase of pension to Gilbert L. Holmes; and

A bill (S. 7500) granting an increase of pension to George T. Anderson.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 7501) establishing rate of pay for rural free carriers, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7502) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide revenue for the Government, and to encourage the industries of the United States, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7503) granting an increase of pension to James E. Herbert;

A bill (S. 7504) granting an increase of pension to Julius J. Kean;

A bill (S. 7505) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Thornton;

A bill (S. 7506) granting an increase of pension to Charles F. Chapman;

A bill (S. 7507) granting an increase of pension to Richard R. Davies;

A bill (S. 7508) granting an increase of pension to Evin K. Hegland, alias Evin Knudson; and

A bill (S. 7509) granting an increase of pension to W. O. Ward.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7510) granting an increase of pension to James Swinehart;

A bill (S. 7511) granting an increase of pension to E. F. Green; and

A bill (S. 7512) granting an increase of pension to Ira A. Silvernail.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 7513) to correct the military record of John Brown, alias George Brown, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. KITTREDGE (for Mr. SCOTT) introduced a bill (S. 7514) for the relief of the estate of Philip Null, deceased, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (for Mr. SCOTT) introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7515) granting an increase of pension to John S. Kenney;

A bill (S. 7516) granting an increase of pension to Peter Vandyke;

A bill (S. 7517) granting an increase of pension to Allen T. Landsess;

A bill (S. 7518) granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Cain;

A bill (S. 7519) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Hill; and

A bill (S. 7520) granting an increase of pension to William M. Pomroy.

Mr. KITTREDGE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7521) granting an increase of pension to Jay B. Sessions;

A bill (S. 7522) granting a pension to Charles H. Kibbee;

A bill (S. 7523) granting a pension to Frank D. Moore;

A bill (S. 7524) granting an increase of pension to Dilazon D. Holdridge;

A bill (S. 7525) granting an increase of pension to Marcus Daniels;

A bill (S. 7526) granting an increase of pension to William A. Menor;

A bill (S. 7527) granting an increase of pension to Rily J. Philbrook;

A bill (S. 7528) granting an increase of pension to John C. McMillan;

A bill (S. 7529) granting an increase of pension to John Larrabee;

A bill (S. 7530) granting an increase of pension to Tollef Olson Strand, alias Tollef Olson;

A bill (S. 7531) granting an increase of pension to Robert Hodges;

A bill (S. 7532) granting an increase of pension to Hamilton H. McLain;

A bill (S. 7533) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Washburn;

A bill (S. 7534) granting a pension to George P. Dix;

A bill (S. 7535) granting an increase of pension to Bradford H. Tripp;

A bill (S. 7536) granting an increase of pension to Marcellus B. Kent; and

A bill (S. 7537) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Shipley.

Mr. ANKENY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7538) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Davidson; and

A bill (S. 7539) granting an increase of pension to Joseph D. Holt.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7540) granting an increase of pension to Eben C. Thomas;

A bill (S. 7541) granting an increase of pension to William S. Harper; and

A bill (S. 7542) granting an increase of pension to Rowland Fisher, alias Thomas Smith.

Mr. BACON introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7543) for the relief of the heirs of Noah Fugate, deceased;

A bill (S. 7544) for the relief of Jesse J. Bull;

A bill (S. 7545) for the relief of the heirs of Augustus and Christine Rich, deceased; and

A bill (S. 7546) for the relief of Elizabeth A. C. Galloway.

Mr. BURROWS introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7547) granting an increase of pension to Wait B. Steenberg;

A bill (S. 7548) granting a pension to Ann Stearns, with accompanying papers; and

A bill (S. 7549) granting an increase of pension to Gustavus M. Gates, with accompanying papers.

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 7550) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Daniel Fleming, with an accompanying paper; and

A bill (S. 7551) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Cornelius Hardin.

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7552) granting an increase of pension to John Witcraft;

A bill (S. 7553) granting an increase of pension to George Richards;

A bill (S. 7554) granting a pension to Albert R. Huey; and

A bill (S. 7555) granting a pension to Albert S. Lowe.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7556) granting an increase of pension to George W. Palmer;

A bill (S. 7557) granting an increase of pension to Jacob M. Zartman;

A bill (S. 7558) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Reeser;

A bill (S. 7559) granting an increase of pension to David K. Mitchell; and

A bill (S. 7560) granting an increase of pension to John A. C. Jones.

Mr. LODGE introduced a bill (S. 7561) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Hartshorn, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 7562) granting an increase of pension to Robert A. Hare, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7563) granting an increase of pension to Adelbert Gardner, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEMENWAY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7564) granting an increase of pension to Hiram T. Grayson;

A bill (S. 7565) granting an increase of pension to George L. Masters;

A bill (S. 7566) granting an increase of pension to Lewis Sims;

A bill (S. 7567) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Geiger; and

A bill (S. 7568) granting an increase of pension to William W. Coker.

Mr. PILES introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7569) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Taylor;

A bill (S. 7570) granting an increase of pension to Fidelia A. Boyd;

A bill (S. 7571) granting an increase of pension to Robert Stewart;

A bill (S. 7572) granting an increase of pension to Ocran Dickinson;

A bill (S. 7573) granting an increase of pension to William H. Gifford;

A bill (S. 7574) granting an increase of pension to Eva A. Blanchard;

A bill (S. 7575) granting an increase of pension to August Brulot;

A bill (S. 7576) granting an increase of pension to Edward F. Parker;

A bill (S. 7577) granting an increase of pension to Sophia Ekstrand;

A bill (S. 7578) granting an increase of pension to James Brown;

A bill (S. 7579) granting an increase of pension to David A. Craddick; and

A bill (S. 7580) granting an increase of pension to William C. Shute.

Mr. CURTIS introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7581) granting an increase of pension to Eli W. Wilhite;

A bill (S. 7582) granting an increase of pension to Solomon S. Kirkpatrick;

A bill (S. 7583) granting an increase of pension to Andrew McMains;

A bill (S. 7584) granting a pension to Mary E. Ecclefield;

A bill (S. 7585) granting an increase of pension to David Detty;

A bill (S. 7586) granting a pension to Emilie J. Raff;

A bill (S. 7587) granting an increase of pension to John W. Riffe;

A bill (S. 7588) granting an increase of pension to William H. Scott;

A bill (S. 7589) granting an increase of pension to Norman A. Rupe;

A bill (S. 7590) granting an increase of pension to John D. C. Herriman;

A bill (S. 7591) granting an increase of pension to Wilson B. Hensy;

A bill (S. 7592) granting an increase of pension to James M. Nicholas;

A bill (S. 7593) granting an increase of pension to Hiram D. Brown;

A bill (S. 7594) granting an increase of pension to George D. Anderson;

A bill (S. 7595) granting a pension to Minnie D. Dobbins;

A bill (S. 7596) granting a pension to Eliza P. Tagart;

A bill (S. 7597) granting an increase of pension to Samuel T. Cromwell;

A bill (S. 7598) granting an increase of pension to Charles B. Fessenden, jr.; and

A bill (S. 7599) granting an increase of pension to Albert Hemming.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7600) granting a pension to Thomas Inman;

A bill (S. 7601) granting an increase of pension to A. F. Wade;

A bill (S. 7602) granting an increase of pension to Edward C. Smith;

A bill (S. 7603) granting an increase of pension to Robert E. Huff;

A bill (S. 7604) granting an increase of pension to Robert Hassey;

A bill (S. 7605) granting a pension to Eunice Inman;

A bill (S. 7606) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Radcliff; and

A bill (S. 7607) granting an increase of pension to John Brannan.

Mr. BRANDEGEE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7608) granting an increase of pension to Thomas B. Fish;

A bill (S. 7609) granting a pension to Mary A. Hill;

A bill (S. 7610) granting an increase of pension to Amos S. Hancox;

A bill (S. 7611) granting an increase of pension to James McEnany;

A bill (S. 7612) granting a pension to Mary Wilson;

A bill (S. 7613) granting an increase of pension to Thomas M. Lord;

A bill (S. 7614) granting an increase of pension to Francis McKeag;

A bill (S. 7615) granting an increase of pension to Esther A. Turner;

A bill (S. 7616) granting an increase of pension to Albert Leeds; and

A bill (S. 7617) granting a pension to Nora Davis.

Mr. BAILEY (by request) introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7618) for the relief of the estate of James B. Ogletree, deceased;

A bill (S. 7619) for the relief of the estate of J. W. Cumby, deceased; and

A bill (S. 7620) for the relief of the heirs or estate of William E. Crump, deceased.

Mr. HALE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7621) granting an increase of pension to John B. Hazen;

A bill (S. 7622) granting an increase of pension to John Harper;

A bill (S. 7623) granting an increase of pension to Ann Bacheller; and

A bill (S. 7624) granting an increase of pension to Wilson M. Mayo.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7625) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Dinsmore, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7626) for the relief of Lewis Myshrall, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7627) for the relief of John H. Butman, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 100) to amend section 1608 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. FLINT introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 101) to restore the status of the First Battalion Mountaineers, California Volunteers, who served during the late war of the rebellion, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. BACON introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 102) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States respecting the succession to the presidency in certain cases, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CARTER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 103) for the relief of certain settlers in the Lake Basin of the Billings (Mont.) land district, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

WILLIAM T. ROSSELL, JR., AND HARRY G. WEAVER.

Mr. JOHNSTON introduced a bill (S. 7486) authorizing the President to reinstate William T. Rossell, jr., and Harry G. Weaver as cadets in the United States Military Academy, which was read twice by its title.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I ask the leave of the Senate to have inserted in the RECORD the finding of the Secretary of War in this case. I desire to state the offenses these young men were charged with. The first charge was "requiring plebes or new cadets to catch ants." That is a very extraordinary and unusual thing, and one calculated to demoralize a new cadet. "Requiring them to brace or stand in a constrained position a long time and laying on of hands." This bracing was not considered cruel, and the laying on of hands was not violent. "Requiring them to clean his equipments." "Requiring them to put his tent in order." "Requiring them to wrestle with each other."

These are the serious offenses that are charged against these young men. When the Secretary of War came to consider the case, he said in regard to the offense:

> The act of Congress that forbids hazing and directs regulations to be made by the authorities of the academy does not prescribe what hazing is. This is not a technical term, and we can only ascertain the meaning of the word by reference to standard dictionaries. Webster's International Dictionary defines hazing: "To harass or annoy by playing abusive or shameful tricks upon; to humiliate by practical jokes—used especially of college students—as the sophomores hazed a freshman." The Century and Standard dictionaries give practically the same definition.

The Secretary says:

> Now, none of the acts shown to have been committed by these young men come within this definition of hazing. The evidence shows that while the offenders directed the plebes to "brace"—that is, stand at attention with their shoulders thrown back—rub buckles, clean guns, bring water from the spring, fall in at the first assembly call instead of five minutes later at the second call, still none of these acts can hardly be fairly brought within this definition. They all, undoubtedly, were improper interference with the plebes, constituting an assumption of authority over them in direct conflict with the regulations, for which severe punishment should be meted out.

The Secretary goes on to say—I will not read it all—

> This being so, I do not feel that it is just to extend the operations of this severe statute by implication, especially in view of the fact that, in my judgment, the offenses of which these young men were undoubtedly guilty can be adequately punished without resorting to the extreme penalty of expulsion.

But the Secretary finally recommended, following the recommendation of the superintendent at West Point, that two of these cadets be expelled and six were suspended for a year. This bill is to authorize the President to restore them.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that this is a very harsh punishment for a very small offense. I do not believe there is a Senator in this Chamber who would correct his boy for treating his brother in that way. There is no evidence whatever in the case, so far as I can ascertain, where anyone was hurt, where anyone was humiliated, where any damage was done to another. The punishment is excessive. These young men were in the first class, and their previous conduct had been excellent. I doubt if there is a Senator in this Chamber who has not submitted to much severer punishment than was shown to have been inflicted upon these cadets. Probably that is the reason we are here.

There is another thing. Hazing goes on everywhere in the world, in a way, and whilst I am opposed to inhumanity or brutality, I do not think we ought to set up an example at West Point which requires mothers to be there with their boys. We have hazing here in the Senate, as those of us who are juniors know—it is a very respectable, decent kind of hazing—by which those who have recently arrived are deprived of any choice of rooms or of assignment to committees and have to take positions at the foot or wherever they are placed. That is a mild form of hazing to which we must submit, and no one is complaining. We hope to remain here long enough to get out of this class.

I ask that the bill be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and that the paper containing the report of the Secretary of War be published in the RECORD and referred to that committee.

The bill was referred, with the accompanying paper, to the Committee on Military Affairs, and the paper was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DECISION IN CADETS' CASE.

[Army and Navy Journal, Aug. 29, 1908, p. 1438.]

The case of the West Point cadets charged with hazing reached a final conclusion on August 24, when Maj. Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth,

Adjutant-General, U. S. Army, forwarded letters to Cadets William T. Rossell, jr., and Harry T. Weaver, the suspended first-class men, informing them of their dismissal from the academy in pursuance of orders from the President and Secretary of War, and also sent letters to the six third-class men suspended from the academy, informing them that they had been suspended until June 15, 1909. The order in the cases of the cadets will not be published in the usual form because they are not officers of the army. So far as the War Department is concerned, this terminates the case of the cadets. Cadet Rossell is one of the honor men of the first class, and Washington press advices say he will endeavor, through Congress, to obtain permission to return to the academy in a lower class. The six suspended cadets are: George W. Chase, jr., of New York; James A. Gillespie, of Pennsylvania; Byron Q. Jones, of New York; William Nalle, jr., of Virginia; William W. Prude, of Alabama; and Isaac Spalding, of Oklahoma, all of the first class. This action of The Adjutant-General was taken in accordance with the following recommendation of Secretary Wright, which was approved by the President:

"Rossell and Weaver are the suspended first-class men. Rossell seems to have been a ringleader in interfering with the plebes, and, in at least one instance, and probably more, laid hands upon them, although not violently, and intimated, when objection was made, that the victim should either submit or fight. This probably brings him directly within the law, and I see no other course than that he should go. Weaver seems to have been not quite so pronounced in his behavior, although he was guilty of practically the same thing as Rossell. The remaining cadets are, I believe, third-class men. It seems to me that in dealing with these young men their difference in age and length of service in the academy should be given consideration. Rossell and Weaver, as first-class men, are much more matured, both in age and knowledge of the rules and consequences of their infraction, while the third-class men had just ceased to be plebes; and as they all say—and I have no doubt is the fact—were simply treating the newcomers just as they themselves had been treated, and probably, without any real reflection or perhaps knowledge of the gravity of their offenses as laid down in the rules. Under these circumstances I think a clear distinction should be drawn between the offenders belonging to the first and third classes.

"The act of Congress that forbids hazing and directs regulations to be made by the authorities of the academy does not prescribe what hazing is. This is not a technical term, and we can only ascertain the meaning of the word by reference to standard dictionaries. Webster's International Dictionary defines hazing: 'To harass or annoy by playing abusive or shameful tricks upon; to humiliate by practical jokes—used especially of college students; as the sophomores hazed a freshman.' The Century and Standard dictionaries give practically the same definition.

"Now, none of the acts shown to have been committed by these young men come within this definition of hazing. The evidence shows that while the offenders directed the plebes to 'brace'—that is, stand at attention with their shoulders thrown back, rub buckles, clean guns, bring water from the spring, fall in at the first assembly call, instead of five minutes later at the second call—still none of these acts can hardly be fairly brought within this definition. They all, undoubtedly, were improper interference with the plebes, constituting an assumption of authority over them in direct conflict with the regulations, for which severe punishment should be meted out.

"But the act of Congress which forbids hazing is extremely drastic in character, in that it provides that any cadet found guilty of hazing shall be summarily dismissed from the academy, and, in addition, shall not be reappointed to the corps of cadets or be eligible for appointment as a commissioned officer in the Army and Navy or Marine Corps until two years after the graduation of the class of which he was a member. This being so, I do not feel that it is just to extend the operations of this severe statute by implication, especially in view of the fact that, in my judgment, the offenses of which these young men were undoubtedly guilty can be adequately punished without resorting to the extreme penalty of expulsion. It is the certainty of punishment rather than the severity that deters the commission of offense. At the same time, it should be made very clear to all the young men at the academy that obedience to the regulations imposed and the observance of a proper deportment toward the younger members is exacted.

"I therefore recommend that Cadets Rossell and Weaver be dismissed from the academy, and that the other six be suspended, with loss of all pay and allowances, until June 15, 1909, when they will join the third class. This is the course recommended by Colonel Scott, and I am inclined to think, with him, that it will be better to have them remain in their homes during the year of suspension, rather than to go over the same course which they have just finished, which would be the case were they turned back a year and allowed to remain at the academy. He tells me that this is the usual procedure in such cases."

AMENDMENT TO OMNIBUS CLAIMS BILL.

Mr. DICK submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to House bill 15372, known as the "omnibus claims bill," which was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

TARIFF REPORTS, ETC.

Mr. ALDRICH. I present a series of reports upon tariff methods, with references to the debates in Congress from 1846 to 1897, prepared by Mr. George H. Boyd, superintendent of the Senate document room. The matter is mostly out of print, and I ask that it may be printed in document form for the use of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Finance.

There being no objection, the order was agreed to, as follows:

Ordered, That sundry documents and papers relative to tariff legislation, 1846–1897, reports on tariff acts, 1888, 1890, 1894, and 1897, be printed as one document for the use of the Senate and referred to the Committee on Finance.

JAMES A. KNIGHT.

On motion of Mr. FORAKER, it was Ordered, That there may be withdrawn from the files of the Senate all papers relating to the bill (S. 4479, Fifty-ninth Congress, first session) granting an honorable discharge to James A. Knight, there having been no adverse report on said bill.

EMPLOYMENT OF STENOGRAPHER.

Mr. CURTIS submitted the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Depredations be, and the same is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, at the rate of $1,200 per annum, said employment to continue during the Sixtieth Congress.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Mr. BURKETT. Mr. President, I have here a copy of an address delivered by a very prominent banker of Nebraska before the State Bankers' Association of that State upon the subject of postal savings banks. It is not a very long address, and I ask unanimous consent to have it printed in the RECORD. It is a very able address, written by one of our most prominent bankers, a man who has carefully studied the subject, and it contains a great deal of useful information, which will be helpful to us, I think, in view of the fact that we are soon going to take up the consideration of the postal savings-bank bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nebraska asks unanimous consent that the address referred to by him upon the subject of postal savings banks be printed in the RECORD without reading. Is there objection?

Mr. BACON. I do not, by the suggestion I am about to make, mean to indicate any hostility to the measure referred to, but I really think we ought not to load the RECORD. I should be very glad to have the address printed as a document, and in that form it would be more convenient.

Mr. CULLOM. I was going to make the suggestion that the address be printed as a document instead of being printed in the RECORD.

Mr. BACON. In the form of a document it would be more convenient for reference and examination by Senators than if printed in the RECORD.

Mr. BURKETT. My experience as to papers printed as documents is that Senators do not see them, but if printed in the RECORD—which is laid on Senators' desks and delivered at their houses each morning—they will be more likely to be glanced over. I do not want to violate any of the proprieties, I will say, of the Senate or of the RECORD, but I think I have observed heretofore that occasionally such addresses have been printed in the RECORD.

Mr. BACON. Yes; too many times that has occurred.

Mr. BURKETT. I suppose I could read this address, and it would then go into the RECORD; but I do not wish to do that.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. BURKETT]?

Mr. ALDRICH. If the motion of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM] is not to be put, I should like to know what is the request of the Senator from Nebraska?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that the Senator from Nebraska has the floor. Is there objection to his request?

Mr. ALDRICH. What is the request?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The request is that the address submitted by him on the subject of postal savings banks by a banker of Nebraska be printed in the RECORD without reading.

Mr. ALDRICH. Mr. President, I shall certainly object to that. That is a precedent that should not be established.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

Mr. BURKETT. Then I will ask to have the address read at the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the reading of the address?

Mr. CULLOM. I think the Senator had better consent to let it be printed as a document, for that is the most convenient form in which to have it and it will be just as much circulated in that shape as in any other.

Mr. BACON. There will be a number of speeches in the RECORD on the subject of postal savings banks. The Senator need not fear that the subject will not be aired sufficiently before we get a vote on it. I shall be very glad to read the speech, and I promise the Senator to do so, if he will have it printed as a document.

Mr. BURKETT. I will say that if this were a very long speech I would not have made the request that it be printed in the RECORD. As the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM] is going to object to that and really thinks it ought not to go into the RECORD, and as he has very kindly asked me to change my request so that the paper may be printed as a document, I am disposed to agree to the suggestion of the Senator from Illinois——

Mr. CULLOM. I hope the Senator will do that.

Mr. BURKETT. And ask to have the address printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. In the absence of objection, the paper submitted by the Senator from Nebraska will be printed as a public document.

MEMORIAL ADDRESSES ON THE LATE SENATOR PROCTOR.

Mr. DILLINGHAM. Mr. President, prior to the adjournment of the last session of Congress I gave notice that on Saturday next I would ask the Senate to consider resolutions commemorative of the life and character of my late colleague, the Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR. I desire now to withdraw that notice and to say that I will ask the Senate to consider those resolutions on Saturday, the 9th day of January next.

ANNUAL REPORT OF GOVERNOR OF PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Congress the annual report of the governor of Porto Rico for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

TELEPHONE LINES IN PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting a revocable permit to Pablo Calcerrada, his heirs, executors, and assigns, the right to construct, maintain, and operate a private telephone line to connect the three plantations of Latorre, Bartolo, and Mirasol, in the municipal district of Lares."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance repealing an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance granting to the municipality of Guayama the right to construct a telephone line between Guayama and Arroyo, and to operate the same for public purposes,' enacted December 2, 1902."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

RAILROADS IN PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting a revocable permit to the Insular Dock Company to connect its railway track on pier No. 2 with the track of the American Railroad Company lying along the bulkhead of the harbor of San Juan."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico November 5, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting to the Compania de los Ferrocarriles de Puerto Rico, its successors and assigns, the right to take forty (40) liters of water per minute from the 'Quebrada Ojo de Agua' near Rincon for the purpose of furnishing water for its locomotives."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

BRIDGE OVER BAYAMON RIVER, PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico October 29, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting to A. Monroig & Hijos, Sucesores, the right to construct an iron bridge over the Bayamon River, in the municipal district of Bayamon, barrio of Juan Sanchez."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

DISTRIBUTION AND SALE OF GAS IN SAN JUAN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to Arturo Rodriguez the right to construct, maintain, and operate a system for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of gas for light, heat, and power purposes in the municipality of San Juan."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance amending an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance granting to Arturo Rodriguez the right to construct, maintain, and operate a system for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of gas for light, heat, and power purposes in the municipality of San Juan.'"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

PUBLIC PIER IN HARBOR OF SAN JUAN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to A. A. David the right to build, maintain, and operate a public pier in the harbor of San Juan, at Catano."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

SAN JUAN LIGHT AND TRANSIT COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting the San Juan Light and Transit Company a revocable permit or privilege to change the location of that part of its railroad extending from the northeastern corner of the junction of Comercio and Tanca streets to a point in San Justo street north of its intersection with Recinto Sur street to a new location, as follows: Northerly along the most practicable route to Racinto Sur street, and thence along said street to San Justo street."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

R. SANCHEZ MONTALVO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of a franchise granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, November 5, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting R. Sanchez Montalvo, his heirs, successors, and assigns, the right to take and use 41 liters of water per second for industrial purposes from the brook Juan Gonzales, in the barrio Pallejas, in the municipal district of Adjuntas."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After seventeen minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 1 o'clock and 22 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, December 10, 1908, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 9, 1908.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

John T. Rich, of Michigan, to be collector of customs for the district of Huron, in the State of Michigan, in place of Lincoln Avery, removed.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

Cadet James Pine, of New York, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Cadet Michael John Ryan, of Colorado, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Cadet Edward Joseph Donohue, of New York, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Cadet Warner Kieth Thompson, of Iowa, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Cadet Joseph Raoul Besse, of North Dakota, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

Cadet William Francis Towle, of Massachusetts, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to fill an original vacancy.

ASSISTANT APPRAISER OF MERCHANDISE.

John D. McEwen to be assistant appraiser of merchandise in the district of New York, in the State of New York, in place of John D. Smith, resigned.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

MEDICAL CORPS.

Capt. Elmer A. Dean, Medical Corps, to be major from December 4, 1908, vice Kulp, retired from active service.

CAVALRY ARM.

Lieut. Col. Edward J. McClernand, First Cavalry, to be colonel from November 20, 1908, vice Bomus, Ninth Cavalry, retired from active service.

Maj. William A. Shunk, Eighth Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel from November 20, 1908, vice McClernand, First Cavalry, promoted.

Capt. Francis G. Irwin, Second Cavalry, to be major from November 20, 1908, vice Shunk, Eighth Cavalry, promoted.

First Lieut. Roger S. Fitch, First Cavalry, to be captain from November 20, 1908, vice Irwin, Second Cavalry, promoted.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

Lieut. Col. Adam Slaker, Coast Artillery Corps, to be colonel from December 8, 1908, vice Greenough, retired from active service.

Maj. George F. Barney, Coast Artillery Corps, to be lieutenant-colonel from December 8, 1908, vice Slaker, promoted.

Capt. Thomas B. Lamoreux, Coast Artillery Corps, to be major from December 8, 1908, vice Barney, promoted.

INFANTRY ARM.

Maj. John C. F. Tillson, Fourth Infantry, to be lieutenant-colonel from December 7, 1908, vice Torrey, Eighteenth Infantry, deceased.

Capt. Amos B. Shattuck, unassigned, to be major from December 7, 1908, vice Tillson, Fourth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Allen Parker, Twenty-sixth Infantry, to be captain from October 31, 1908, vice Ballou, Twelfth Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Jesse M. Holmes, Eighteenth Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice Beacham, Twenty-seventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Maynard A. Wells, Tenth Infantry, from July 24, 1908, vice McConnell, Seventeenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Hans O. Olsen, Eighteenth Infantry, from August 18, 1908, vice Stone, Third Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Charles A. Thuis, Twenty-third Infantry, from August 27, 1908, vice Hazzard, Seventh Infantry, wholly retired.

Second Lieut. Claremont A. Donaldson, Twenty-third Infantry, from September 8, 1908, vice Rifenberick, Twenty-ninth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Franklin T. Burt, Twenty-fourth Infantry, from September 16, 1908, vice Johnson, Eleventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Rutherfurd S. Hartz, Twenty-first Infantry, from September 28, 1908, vice Bloom, Fourth Infantry, deceased.

Second Lieut. Townsend Whelen, Thirtieth Infantry, from October 2, 1908, vice Hay, Twenty-fourth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles S. Hamilton, Thirteenth Infantry, from October 11, 1908, vice Pearce, Thirteenth Infantry, deceased.

Second Lieut. Joseph F. Ware, Twenty-first Infantry, from October 15, 1908, vice Gibert, Thirteenth Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. Harry L. Jordan, Eighth Infantry, from October 19, 1908, vice Wescott, Sixteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Dean Halford, Twenty-second Infantry, from October 27, 1908, vice Nettles, Twenty-first Infantry, retired from active service.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

MEDICAL RESERVE CORPS.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from November 11, 1908.

Alwin M. Guittard, of Ohio.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from November 24, 1908.

Felix Edward Ashcroft, of South Dakota.
Rhodric Winfield Browne, of Virginia.
Joseph Forrest Burnham, of Massachusetts.
John Tilden Burrus, of North Carolina.
George Abner Clotfelter, of Illinois.
George Peter Coopernail, of New York.
Guy Parker Dillon, of California.
Joseph Lewi Donhauser, of New York.
Edgar Francis Hamlin, of Rhode Island.
Hans Hansen, of Iowa.
James William Hartigan, of West Virginia.
Charles Byam Hollings, of Massachusetts.
Warren Edglie Kershner, of Maine.
George Christopher Kieffer, of Pennsylvania.
Fred Elsworth Lettice, of New York.
Charles James McGee, of Kansas.
William Marshall, jr., of Delaware.
Hugh Thomas Nelson, jr., of Virginia.
William Henry Steers, of New York.
Irwin Coleman Sutton, of Nebraska.
Ira Chestnut Young, of Missouri.
Herbert Homer Smith, of Kansas.
Herbert Holman Skinner, of Missouri.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from December 2, 1908.

Matthew J. Shields, of Pennsylvania.

CAVALRY ARM.

Claude De Busy Hunt, at large, to be second lieutenant, with rank from December 14, 1908.

APPOINTMENT, BY TRANSFER, IN THE ARMY.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

Second Lieut. Marcel Selby Keene, Twenty-fourth Infantry, to the Coast Artillery Corps, with rank from October 2, 1908.

PLACED ON THE RETIRED LIST OF THE ARMY.

Col. George G. Greenough, retired, with the rank of brigadier-general from December 8, 1908.

First Lieut. Francis A. Halliday, retired, with rank of captain from September 13, 1908.

PROMOTION IN THE NAVY.

Rear-Admiral Newton E. Mason, U. S. Navy, to be Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance in the Department of the Navy, with the rank of rear-admiral, for a term of four years from January 9, 1909.

MEMBERS OF THE PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

Under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 1, 1902, entitled "An act temporarily to provide for the administration of affairs of civil government in the Philippines, and for other purposes," as amended by the act of Congress approved May 11, 1908, increasing the membership of the Philippine Commission, I submit the following nominations:

W. Cameron Forbes, of Massachusetts, to be vice-governor of the Philippine Islands, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Henry Clay Ide, resigned.

Gregorio Araneta, of the Philippine Islands, to be a member of the Philippine Commission and secretary of finance and justice in the government of the Philippine Islands, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Henry Clay Ide, resigned.

Newton W. Gilbert, of Indiana, to be a member of the Philippine Commission, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill an original vacancy.

Rafael Palma, of the Philippine Islands, to be a member of the Philippine Commission, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Benito Legarda, resigned.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 9, 1908.

SECRETARY OF WAR.

Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, to be Secretary of War.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, to be Secretary of the Navy.

MINISTER RESIDENT AND CONSUL-GENERAL.

Hoffman Philip, of New York, to be minister resident and consul-general to Abyssinia.

POSTMASTERS.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

John H. Brown, at Concord, N. H.

WASHINGTON.

George H. Russell, at Seattle, Wash.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 9, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

ELECTION IN THE FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF LOUISIANA.

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House the following memorial:

The Clerk read as follows:

LAWRENCE, LA., December 4, 1908.

Hon. JOSEPH G. CANNON,
Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

SIR: I have the honor to present to you a memorial to the House of Representatives, contesting the right of ALBERT ESTOPINAL, who holds a certificate of election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. Adolph Meyer. I beg that you have it referred to the Committee on Elections, and that I be notified by said committee when to appear and make good my memorial.

I have the honor to be
Your obedient servant, H. C. WARMOTH.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, SIXTIETH CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Henry C. Warmoth, contestant, v. Albert Estopinal, contestee.

To the honorable the Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives, Sixtieth Congress of the United States:

The memorial of Henry C. Warmoth, a citizen of the United States of America, respectfully represents—

That on the 3d day of November, 1908 A. D., an election was held in the First Congressional District of the State of Louisiana for Member of your honorable body to represent the said district in the Sixtieth Congress of the United States to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. Adolph Meyer; and in said election your memorialist was the candidate of the Republican party; that opposed to his candidacy the name of Albert Estopinal appeared upon the official ballot prepared by the secretary of state for said election, and as a candidate of the Democratic party; that the said Estopinal has been declared elected and has been commissioned to a seat in your honorable body in pursuance of said election.

The memorialist alleges that he desires to contest the right of the said Albert Estopinal to a seat in the Sixtieth Congress of the United States upon the following grounds and for reasons, to wit:

The election of the contestee was brought about as the nominee of the Democratic party, and the votes cast for him at the election on November 3, 1908, for Member of Congress for the First Congressional District of Louisiana were so cast in pursuance of his nomination as the Democratic candidate, which nomination was procured at a primary election held in said district by said party on ——, 1908. Said primary election was ordered and held under the terms of act 49 of 1906, known as the "primary election law," which provides in section 9:

"Be it further enacted, etc., That the qualifications of the voters and candidates in all primaries held under this act shall be the same as now required by the constitution and election laws of this State for voters at general elections, subject to an additional political qualification which may be prescribed by the state central committees of the respective political parties coming under the provisions of this act. The representative state central committee of the respective political parties coming under the provisions of this act shall meet within sixty days after the promulgation of this act and then fix the said additional political qualifications as herein authorized."

Acting under the authority above stated, the state central committee of the Democratic party, at a meeting held in the city of New Orleans, July 28, 1906, took up this question and disposed of it as follows:

"On motion of Congressman DAVEY it was declared that the additional qualifications authorized under the primary election law should be that the participants in the Democratic primaries should be 'white Democrats.' Judge Porter wanted the qualifications amended to 'well-known white Democrats.' This was not urged and Congressman DAVEY'S motion prevailed."

On ——— the Democratic executive committee of the First Congressional District of the State of Louisiana met in the city of New Orleans, and under the authority of the law above quoted, and by direction of the Democratic state central committee in its enactment to nominate a Democrat candidate for Congress in said district, to wit:

"Be it resolved by the committee, That a primary election be held throughout the First Congressional District on ———, at which qualified Democratic electors, who shall also be white Democrats, shall vote for a Democrat nominee for Congress for the said district, and also for member from each parish forming said district to be a member of said committee, and also for members at large from the said district, who shall be members of the committee under provisions of the act 49 of 1906."

In the Democratic primary, so called, and held on ——— ———, 1908, the contestee became a candidate for the Democratic nomination, and was finally declared nominated as the Democratic candidate, and in accordance with said nomination, so procured, his name was placed on the official ballot as such Democratic candidate, he was so voted upon at the general congressional election of November 3, 1908, and as a result thereof has been officially declared elected to the Sixtieth Congress of the United States as Representative from the First Congressional District of Louisiana.

Now contestant further alleges that the said nomination was absolutely null, void, and of no effect because procured and made in pursuance of Act 49 of 1906, which in so far as section 9 is concerned is in contradiction and defiance of the constitution of the State of Louisiana and of the fifteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and therefore it is unconstitutional, null, and void; that this action of the state central committee of the Democratic party and of the first congressional committee of said party is likewise in contradition and defiance of the constitution of the State of Louisiana and the fifteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States; that accordingly every act leading up to the nomination of the contestee was null and void; that said nomination was null and void, and every ballot cast for the contestee at the election of November 3, 1908, was a null and void ballot, absolutely without effect, and should not have been counted in ascertaining the result of said election.

Now contestant further shows that he was regularly nominated as the candidate of the Republican party for Member of the Sixtieth Congress of the United States to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. Adolph Meyer; that said nomination was made in a perfectly legal and constitutional manner; that as such nominee he received many legal votes, legally cast throughout the district, and that as a partisan Democratic board has returned and allowed him a number of such votes for member of your honorable body as a result of said election of November 3, 1908, and that as the votes cast for the contestant were the only legal and valid votes cast in said election, contestant upon the face of the returns is entitled to the seat in the Sixtieth Congress of the United States to which the contestee has been returned.

The contestant further shows that the entire election machinery in the State of Louisiana, including the contest of party nominations, the preparation of ballots and the distribution of said ballots, the appointment of commissioners of election, the count and canvass of votes, the compilation and promulgation of returns—in fact, every detail—is vested by unequal, unjust, and unconstitutional laws in the hands of partisan Democrats and Democratic boards, with the result that the Republican and every other form of opposition is being gradually counted out and legislated out of existence in the State of Louisiana; that said unequal, unjust, and unconstitutional laws have declared, and the courts of Louisiana have maintained, the proposition that there is not even an appeal to the courts for redress from the action of said partisan boards, and it has become an accepted Democratic doctrine in Louisiana that there is no "going behind the returns;" that under these circumstances contestant is shut out from all redress except by memorial to the Congress of the United States.

Wherefore your memorialist prays that this contest, notice of which has been given as required by law and by the rules and regulations of your Committee on Elections, be taken cognizance of by the House of Representatives of the Sixtieth Congress of the United States; that after due proceedings had and a hearing as to the matters herein contained and recited, contestant be given a seat as Representative in Congress from the First Congressional District of the State of Louisiana over the said Albert Estopinal, contestee, with all the privileges, duties, and emoluments of a duly elected Member of Congress, and contestant further prays for general relief.

HENRY C. WARMOTH, Contestant.

DECEMBER 1, 1908.

By unanimous consent the memorial was referred to Election Committee No. 1.

RESIGNATION AND APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES.

The SPEAKER. Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts asks to be excused from service as manager of conference on the bill (H. R.

13851) providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new immigration station thereon at the city of Boston, Mass.

Without objection, the request will be granted.

There was no objection.

The Chair appointed Mr. FRENCH in place of Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts as manager on the part of the House.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted indefinitely to Mr. NORRIS on account of illness in his family.

THIRTEENTH DECENNIAL CENSUS.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 16954) to provide for the Thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. On a former occasion the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. FULLER, presided over the committee. The Chair will ask him to now assume the chair.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the census bill, with Mr. FULLER in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 7. That the additional clerks and other employees provided for in section 6 shall be subject to such noncompetitive examination as the Director of the Census may prescribe, the said examination to be conducted by the United States Civil Service Commission: Provided, That they shall be selected without regard to the law of apportionment or to the political party affiliations of the applicants, and that preference may be given to persons having previous experience in census work whose efficiency records are satisfactory to the said Director, who may, in his discretion, accept such records in lieu of said examination: And provided further, That employees in other branches of the departmental service who have had previous experience in census work may be transferred without examination to the Census Office to serve during the whole or a part of the decennial census period, and at the end of such service the employees so transferred shall be eligible to appointment to positions of similar grade in any department without examination: And provided further, That during the decennial census period and no longer the Director of the Census may fill vacancies in the permanent force of the Census Office by the promotion or transfer of clerks or other employees employed on the temporary force authorized by section 6 of this act: And provided further, That at the expiration of the decennial census period the term of service of all employees so transferred and of all other temporary officers and employees appointed under the provisions of this act shall terminate, and such officers and employees shall not thereafter be eligible to appointment or transfer into the classified service of the Government by virtue of their examination or appointment under this act.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 4, line 19, after the word "employees," insert "except messengers, assistant messengers, messenger boys, watchmen, unskilled laborers, and charwomen."

In line 20 strike out "non."

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, this amendment proposes, instead of the provision of the bill, that the selection of the clerks shall be by competitive examination. Now, this is an important question which I think interests the House, and I should like briefly to submit my reasons for the amendment which I have offered, but I can not do it in five minutes. I therefore ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for ten or fifteen minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GILLETT. This bill provides that no clerk shall be employed until he has successfully passed an examination, and it thereby recognizes and admits the value of an examination in determining fitness, and so far it is progressive and up-to-date; but the examination which it stipulates is not competitive, and therein it is, in my opinion, fundamentally and fatally defective.

I do not claim that a system of competitive examinations is ideal, that it always selects the best clerks; but I think it is infinitely preferable to the substitute which is offered in this bill or to any other which is practicable. The ideal method undoubtedly would be to leave the appointing officer absolutely free to select whatever assistants he pleased. Power ought to go with responsibility, and the head of a department or of a bureau who is responsible for the work accomplished by that bureau ought to have the unhampered power of selecting the agents through whom his work must be accomplished. Then, alone, can he be held strictly accountable for the work done and be entitled to either praise or blame according to the results. But we know that is impossible with our system of government; that if we should give theoretically a free hand to the appointing officers they would be compelled by outside influence to make appointments which they really did not desire; that it would be impossible for them to resist the pressure which would be brought against them and, therefore, some other system must be devised. What shall it be?

This bill leaves theoretically the appointment to the head of the bureau, but while the power is theoretically left to him, we know by long experience, and especially by the experience of the last census, that really he will have very little power of selection. We know that he will appoint, and it is intended that he shall appoint, not the clerks whom he thinks will best perform the work of the office, but the clerks whom members of Congress and other influential men press upon him. That system was tried ten years ago, and while contradictory statements are made as to its success and to its comparative efficiency, there is no question that men were appointed whom examination showed were not qualified. Under urgency from members of Congress, repeated examinations were held. If a favorite protégé failed once or twice, a third examination was arranged for him, such an examination as would meet the capacity of the applicant, and in this way under political pressure men were forced into the office who had been pronounced unfit by the regulations adopted.

So, while the kind of an examination which was required ten years ago and which it is now proposed to repeat accomplishes something and recognizes the growth of public opinion, and shows that the people will no longer permit clerkships to be allotted purely as congressional spoils without any regard to the merits of the applicants, still it is, I think, clearly inferior to a competitive examination. That at least gets the average material, and, I think, much better than the average material. The other does not. The other merely gets such material as members of Congress may choose to impose, and in their selection they are often not governed by the good of the service but by their own political needs.

But the advantage of selecting the force by competitive examination does not end with the original appointment. Under that system the force is constantly sifted, the best men are retained and the poorest men dropped. While the official does not have a free hand in selection, but has to take what the examination gives him, he is perfectly free subsequently; and he can, and his interests will compel him to, retain the men who are most capable and to drop out the others.

But under the system provided by this bill he is obliged to keep the men imposed upon him, regardless of their merits. The same influence which secured their appointment will be exerted with persistent effort to keep them in their places, and no matter how inferior their services or how gladly he would dismiss them, he is constrained by pressure to keep them, and so, instead of improving this force by weeding out the poor men and keeping the better ones, its condition remains the same and the poorest men with the influence back of them have the same chance of remaining as the best.

Moreover, the membership of Congress changes every two years, and then the new Member claims his proportion of clerks, and those whom his predecessor had appointed, and who, whatever their original qualifications, must have improved somewhat by two years' experience, are turned adrift and new men taken in their places. So that the system inevitably produces in the course of trial a poorer assortment of clerks than would exist under a competitive system where there was no selfish influence to either appoint or retain worthless clerks. The clerks who get in under competitive examination win their places by merit and by merit alone can they keep them. The others gain their places by patronage regardless of comparative merit, and by patronage they keep them whether with merit or without.

Moreover, not only does the system adopted in this bill prevent the selection of the best clerks originally and prevent the subsequent dropping of the poorest and retention of the best, but it also necessarily adds to the expense by making it difficult for the director to discharge clerks when they are no longer needed. Every Congressman, who ought to wish that the census work should be completed as quickly as possible, has, on the contrary, some selfish interest in the prolongation of the work and the increase of the force, and may be compelled to influence the director to retain superfluous clerks. A system is unfortunate which arrays a legislator's selfish interest against his public duty.

There is in this bill a clause which says that the clerks shall be appointed without regard to politics, and that has a lofty sound, but I understand that the real meaning of it for this census is only that they shall be divided equally among the Congressmen without regard to party. Ten years ago a Republican Member received more than a Democratic Member, but this year they are to be appointed without regard to politics, and the plan and arrangement is that each Member of Congress,

Republican or Democratic, shall receive the same number of appointments, except, undoubtedly, members of the Census Committee and some other special favorites who will get more than the regular allotment.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Will the gentleman guarantee that?

Mr. LANGLEY. May I ask the gentleman where he obtained that information?

Mr. GILLETT. I obtained it from Members of this House, who said that was the understanding. Does not the gentleman think that will be the execution of the law?

Mr. LANGLEY. I have no authority to say one way or the other.

Mr. GILLETT. Do you think it will not?

Mr. LANGLEY. I think the Democrats will have their share of appointments. I think they ought to have.

Mr. GILLETT. Exactly; I think they will.

Mr. LANGLEY. Not under your proposition.

Mr. GILLETT. Under my proposition there would really be no politics in it. Neither Republicans nor Democrats would be able to appoint their men. The gentleman from Kentucky does not deny my proposition, and while I can not state it authoritatively, I believe and I think you all understand that it is the expectation this year that every Member of Congress will have the same number.

It seems to me this is an even more ignominious division than the old time-honored principle, "to the victors belong the spoils." Now the phrasing should be, "to Congress belong the spoils." The committee does not dare to live up to the old precept and allot the force entirely to the Republicans, because in that case the Democrats, not getting anything, would all vote against it, and enough Republicans who do not believe in the spoils system would join them to defeat it, so now they adopt the new maxim and say in this bill they shall be allotted equally to all without regard to politics. The old doctrine had at least something courageous about it. Demoralizing to the public service it was, but it was the result of a contest and was the reward of a hard-fought victory. But this doctrine is just as demoralizing and has no element of courage about it. It does not seize the spoils as an incident of victory, but it mean-spiritedly divides the booty evenly between the two parties. It is a selfish combination between two opponents not to fight longer but to temporarily drop their animosity in order that they may safely rob a third party, the indefensible public. It is like two unscrupulous lawyers pretending to contest, but really robbing a fat estate.

I can imagine a veteran of the old system, brought up under the doctrine that to the victors belong the spoils, appropriating the patronage mercilessly when he wins and suffering uncomplainingly when he loses, taking his medicine without complaining and when he wins forcing the medicine with a strong hand unsparingly upon his foe; I can imagine such a one looking with some contempt upon this degenerate scheme. This is not a contest; there is no risk, no courage here. It is "heads I win; tails you lose." The opposing forces call a temporary truce and enter into a treaty of barter and sale. Instead of fighting for the spoils they divide them peaceably between them and the public pays the bill. This is a degenerate relic of the old spoils system; it shows an encouraging fear to carry it out in its pristine vigor but a desire to accomplish much the same result without letting the public suspect it, and I hope it will not succeed.

The constant reciprocal influence of the legislative and executive departments is most demoralizing. The selection of clerks by competitive examination greatly lessens it. A department officer constantly desires legislation for his department. He can not, as he ought, be independent and stand up for the public interest when Congressmen assail him with requests about appointments if all the time he knows that he must go before them with other requests, and that by offending them now he will lay up enemies against his future legislation. Nor can a Congressman legislate fairly and impartially for a department when he is asking of that department favors in the way of patronage which will leave him under a sense of obligation or a sense of resentment. This whole system of interference by Congress in the distribution of offices by a department is improper, injures legislation, injures executive action by the department, takes away both from Congress and from the executive the sense of duty which alone should actuate their conduct, and necessarily compels them in their action to be influenced by selfish motives.

And there is another objection to this system. We are appointing a commissioner for the important and exacting work of the census because he is supposed to have special qualifications for that difficult task, and then we impose upon him, whose time ought to be free for the absorbing problems before him, the duty of distributing the patronage. We make him a mere agent to meet us and hear our claims and decide whether this or that clerk shall be appointed and take from him for such petty but worrying questions strength and time that should be given to his great problems. The last Director of the Census said that the first year and a half of his time was nearly all absorbed by the distribution of patronage to members of Congress. Every director is opposed to it and avows that it interferes with the success of the bureau. Experience and theory alike denounce it, and I trust the vote of this House will follow the lessons of experience.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, the Committee on the Census recommend the adoption or the passage of the bill providing for the appointment of clerks and employees of the Census Office under a noncompetitive examination. There has been a good deal of criticism of the bill by civil-service reform associations throughout the country. The President in his message of yesterday recommended that the appointment of these clerks be put under the civil-service law, modified so as to exclude the rule of geographical apportionment. The civil-service law requires clerks to be appointed in the classified service according to the rule of apportionment, and if the civil-service law should apply to the selection of these clerks none of them would be appointed from the District of Columbia, from Virginia, Maryland, and adjoining States, because all these locations now have more than their lawful quota in the classified service.

Mr. GILLETT. Will the gentleman allow a suggestion?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Yes.

Mr. GILLETT. My amendment does not provide anything about that. It leaves the bill just as you have it exactly.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I know that. I am talking about the recommendation of the President. And the result would be that if the House should adopt the recommendation of the President and place the appointment of all the clerks—and the provision only refers to the clerks of the Census Office, perhaps amounting to thirty-two hundred or thirty-three hundred in all—under the civil-service law, with the elimination or the abolition of the rule of geographic apportionment, that, of course, would allow applicants in the District of Columbia and States adjoining to be considered, and it would in all probability result in the appointment of almost all of that force of clerks from the District of Columbia and adjoining States. That is a proposition I want to submit to the members of the Committee of the Whole for their consideration.

The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] informs us that there are probably four or five hundred men and women in the District of Columbia now who served very efficiently in the preparation or in the administration of the Twelfth Census law, a record of whose efficiency is now in the Census Office, and the bill is so framed that these clerks may be appointed in the office without any examination at all.

This work, gentlemen must bear in mind, is largely emergency work. These appointments are for a temporary period only. The average tenure of services of the temporary clerks will probably not exceed two years. Under the bill the salaries run from $600, the minimum, to $1,000, the maximum, and naturally most of the clerks, under almost any system of appointment, would come from locations comparatively near to the city of Washington, because for a temporary service of that character, with such limited emoluments, it seems to me it would be exceedingly difficult to secure enough clerks in the office if they were appointed under the civil-service law without modification.

Mr. SULZER and Mr. PARSONS rose.

Mr. SULZER. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I will first yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER].

Mr. SULZER. I wish to ask the gentleman from Indiana what objections there are to placing all of these appointments under the present civil-service law, rules, and regulations?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I am explaining some of the objections. One is that under the small salaries paid and the temporary period of appointment it would be practically impossible to secure sufficient appointments under the civil-service law, including the rule of geographical apportionment.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the time of the gentleman may be extended for five minutes.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to proceed for fifteen minutes, if necessary.

Mr. SULZER. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman may proceed for fifteen minutes more.

There was no objection.

Mr. SULZER. You were answering my question.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. There is another objection.

Mr. PARSONS. Will the gentleman, before he passes from that point, answer this question: Does the Director of the Census consider that that would be an objection?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Which?

Mr. PARSONS. That you could not get a sufficient number of employees if they were appointed through a competitive examination.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, I presume that may be reckoned among the objections that the Director of the Census has to appointing these clerks under the civil-service law. The Director of the Census does not believe that the clerks ought to be appointed under the civil-service law, but he does believe that they ought to be appointed under a competitive examination rather than a noncompetitive examination. That is the attitude of the director.

Mr. PARSONS. May I ask this question: Why, if his recommendation in regard to the appointments is really competitive, the examination is not to be competitive?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Here are the Representatives of all the congressional districts from all over this country responsible for legislation, and I expect every man here, when the time comes, to vote his convictions on the question. The Committee on Census in making the report on the bill made it this way. I have no personal pride in the matter; neither has the committee. This is the business of the country, to be conducted by the country's Representatives, and it is to be presumed that each Representative will discharge his duty in regard to this matter as he thinks it ought to be discharged.

Mr. MADDEN. Will the gentleman permit me?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I yield to an interruption.

Mr. MADDEN. The appointments once made under the plan proposed by the bill now under discussion, when the term of service expires will there be any way of getting them off the pay roll?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The bill expressly provides that when the term of service expires they shall quit the service; that they shall not be eligible to transfer or to reappointment or to appointment in any branch of the classified service because of their appointment or examination for the service in the Census Office. The bill is plain and clear upon that question, and is self-operative.

Mr. MADDEN. One more question.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MADDEN. If the appointments are made under a competitive examination, known as the present civil-service rules, when the term of service expires is there any rule of law whereby the head of any department can eliminate the person so appointed from continuance on the pay roll?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. If the clerks are selected under the civil-service law, they will have a classified status, will be eligible to transfer and reappointment under the civil-service law and the rules and regulations in pursuance thereof.

Mr. OLMSTED. And they will all stay in the service.

Mr. MANN. Would it not be just as practical in the law to provide for the severance from the service of these people whether appointed under one method or the other?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, of course, you can abolish the civil-service law.

Mr. MANN. The civil service will be abolished under this method of appointment.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I am discussing the questions and conclusions the reform associations throughout the country are discussing, with a view of showing the utter impracticability of complying with their suggestions. I want to show, if I can, that these associations do not understand the situation; they do not know, in the main, what they are talking about when it comes to the selection of this force under the civil-service law.

Mr. MANN. While I agree with them largely, I agree with the gentleman—they seldom know what they are talking about.

Mr. GILLETT. I know the gentleman does not wish to befog the House, but I think the discussion is misleading the Members. The gentleman is aware, if the House is not, that my amendment does not provide that they shall go into the classified service, but it simply provides that they shall be selected by a noncompetitive examination, leaving them in every other respect exactly as the bill does. So the objection——

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I will do the gentleman the justice to say that he is right about it, and he occupies, in my judgment, the only defensible position of the merit system in the public service that is at all applicable to the selection of clerks for the Census Office.

Mr. GILLETT. I thank the gentleman. I simply desired to have that matter understood.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. It is the only defensible proposition, in my judgment, that can be submitted for the selection of these clerks under the merit system.

Mr. GILLETT. Inasmuch as the gentleman was opposing the other proposition, which is not mine, I was afraid that the House would think that the amendment now pending was the amendment which the gentleman was combating.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I am directing my remarks in part to the gentleman's amendment and in part to the recommendation of the President in his message that was read yesterday.

Mr. PARSONS. The last proviso to this section provides that the term of these employees, however appointed, shall expire at the end of the census period.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Yes.

Mr. PARSONS. So that if you allow their appointment as the result of a competitive examination you do not put them under the civil-service law, but under this proviso you still leave it so that when the census period is over they go out of the service.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, if it were permitted to stand in that form it would be a modification of the civil-service law to that extent. Now, the President in his message recommends the modification of that law only to the extent of the abrogation of the rule of geographical apportionment. If we should follow his recommendation, every clerk and employee appointed to the Census Office would have a classified status, would be eligible to reappointment for a year after his separation from the service, eligible to transfer at any time during his service there, under the law and regulations; and I think most Members of Congress have had sufficient experience to know what that would mean. Recognizing the fact that their service in the Census Office would be temporary only, many of them would be prompted by motives of self-interest to seek transfers into the classified service in other branches of the Government, where their tenure would be permanent. They would seek this during their service in the Census Office.

I believe this force should understand that their tenure is temporary; that when the term ceases they will no longer have any connection with the public service and no special status that will allow them to enter into the classified service.

Mr. SULZER. How long, approximately, will this term of office be?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The average will probably be two years. Now, in relation to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] that the examinations be competitive instead of noncompetitive. The result of that amendment would be to abrogate practically the President's recommendation respecting the geographical apportionment rule. Competitive examinations mean competitive selection. It leaves no discretion with the Director of the Census, but he must select those upon the eligible register in accordance with their relative grades. If the examinations are to be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, as the bill provides, they may be held in all parts of the country.

The work in the Census Office is all emergency work. Appointments must be made without any sort of delay if the best and most economical results are to be obtained. When there is need for an addition to the clerical force in the Census Office the director will have no discretion. He can not make his appointments "immediately available," if I may use that term, but he must take them from the eligible list. Those with highest grades might be in California; they might be in Oregon; they might be in Maine; they might be scattered all over the United States, and he would be compelled to wait a week or two weeks or an indefinite period for them to come. Under the civil-service law the Census Office a year or two ago had need for an assistant engineer.

It asked the Civil Service Commission for eligibles, and the names of three men were certified, one of whom lived in St. Louis, one in South Dakota, and the other in Utah. The appointment officer selected the man closest to the city of Washington, the man in St. Louis. He was notified, and they waited two months before he arrived and reported for duty, in a position that paid $60 per month.

Now, if we want to put the temporary census work under a system of that character and continue this service indefinitely, we have the right and the power to do it, but my idea is that while there are objections, that the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] has so well pointed out, to the appointments of that official force under a noncompetitive examination, it does impose a great responsibility upon the director and gives him a free hand.

The Director of the Census is responsible for the great work he will have to do, and the highest motive that will prompt him will be to make a record of having taken the census in the most approved and economical manner. Some criticism has been made as to the appointment of the clerks in the Twelfth Census. The Twelfth Census was the most complete, trustworthy, and economical census that has ever been taken in the history of this country. Some criticism has likewise been made in regard to the permanent Census Office created by Congress which placed the entire force under the civil-service law. Congress did that, and only did what the President had done repeatedly for the last twenty-five or thirty years. President Cleveland covered 3,000 clerks and employees in the Government Printing Office into the classified service without examination. Congress made the Census Office a permanent bureau.

They had records of efficiency; the clerks had demonstrated, not by a scholastic civil-service examination, but by several years' actual experience, their efficiency, and it was altogether a proper thing, a thing in the line with the merit system of the public service, to provide that those clerks who possessed a satisfactory record of efficiency should be put into the classified service. There is objection, I confess again, to the noncompetitive examination system, because there will be more or less of pressure brought upon the Director of the Census, but the director, I think, has the courage and the virtue to appoint no one but competent clerks in the office. People talk about the character of the census work. That depends in the main upon the work of the enumerators in the field, the men who do the actual counting.

Most of the work in the Census Office here is of a mechanical nature, conducted by mechanical devices, such as electrical punching machines, sorting machines, and tabulating machines, with which it is almost impossible to make a mistake. Then the Director of the Census contemplates putting the force in the office upon what is known as the "piece-price" basis, a policy which would require a further modification of the civil-service law to do. It will result in the saving to the Government of three or four hundred thousand dollars during the work of the temporary period. Taking everything into consideration, I believe that the recommendation of the committee is wise, that the force in the office should be appointed under a noncompetitive examination, which shall be prescribed by the Director of the Census, and the examinations be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, because it has the necessary machinery with which to conduct the examinations. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. WALDO Mr. Chairman, I wish to offer an amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. There is an amendment already pending. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, if there is to be no further debate, I would like to say just a word or two.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be again reported.

There was no objection, and the amendment was again reported.

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman to explain his amendment.

Mr. GILLETT. That is what I want to do.

Mr. MADDEN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. GILLETT. Certainly.

Mr. MADDEN. I want to know what is meant by messengers and assistant messengers.

Mr. GILLETT. It is the same as the ordinary messenger service in every department.

Mr. MADDEN. To what does it apply?

Mr. GILLETT. Oh, we all know what messenger work is.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman explain what his amendment does?

Mr. GILLETT. That is what I was going to do. I fear from the remarks of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], which had been directed partly at my amendment and partly at other recommendations, that the House does not appreciate exactly what my amendment provides. I wish that it should, because it seems to me that many of the suggestions of the gentleman which may have seemed to the House plausible and forcible will be found not to apply to this amendment. The amendment provides that the word "non" in line 20 be stricken out. In other words, it provides that the clerical force employed here in Washington shall be selected by competitive examinations. That is all it provides. Otherwise, it leaves the bill exactly as the committee has reported it. Therefore the argument which the gentleman made about locality or about delay does not at all apply to my amendment.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. GILLETT. Yes.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. If the gentleman's amendment is adopted, it takes away from the Director of the Census all discretion. He must select the applicant upon the eligible list whose grade is the highest.

Mr. GILLETT. Certainly.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Suppose he lived in San Francisco, Cal.?

Mr. GILLETT. Yes.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Does not that involve in a way the question of delay and geographical apportionment?

Mr. GILLETT. No, Mr. Chairman; I do not think it does, and I think the illustration used on that point by the gentleman was absurd. The gentleman said that a man was in St. Louis and that it took him two months to get to Washington. That was not a case of geography. It might have taken him two months if he had been in the south end here. That was a case of stupidity or misfortune on the part of that man.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Suppose the appointments were being made after a noncompetitive examination. The office could get the applicant who is immediately available.

Mr. GILLETT. Yes.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. It could get one who could begin the service without delay, and our argument is that this is all emergency service and there ought to be no more delays than are absolutely necessary.

Mr. GILLETT. Yes, Mr. Chairman, it is an emergency service, but he does not mean by that he wants it the very next minute. Now, the way these eligible rolls are provided is they do not wait to have an examination made when they find they want a man. They have examinations made months in advance and the eligible lists all over the country are before them months or weeks in advance and when they want a man and they have to get him in twenty-four or forty-eight hours they can get a man. So it seems to me that the suggestion of the gentleman is not pertinent in this connection.

Mr. WASHBURN. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. GILLETT. If the gentleman will allow me to answer one or two other suggestions which were made. The gentleman also argues that there are employees of the last census here in Washington whom he would want and who ought to be employed. I agree with the gentleman. I think that the Director of the Census ought to have the power to employ these, and my amendment does not at all conflict with the committee's provision allowing that. It allows the Director of the Census, just as this bill does, to call upon these employees without examination. Further, the gentleman stated his bill allowed the director a free hand and the competitive examination did not. It is unnecessary to argue that to this House. Every Member of this House who was here in the last census knows that the director did not have any free hand at all. He has to take the men and he will take the two or four men that every Member of Congress presents to him and he will not use a free hand. Under my system he does have a free hand to this extent: If he gets a man under the competitive system who is a poor man, he has a free hand to weed him out and drop him, but under your system he can not do that, because the same pressure that put him in will keep him there. So he will not have any free hand under either system in appointment, but under my system he will have a free hand after he gets them there to drop the poor ones, and under your system the poor ones are quite as liable to have pressure and influence behind them as the good ones.

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes to present the views of the Director of the Census. Mr. Chairman, in view of what the gentleman from Massachusetts has said, and in view of the argument or statement of the gentleman from Indiana, who has implicit confidence in the Director of the Census and his good judgment, I beg to call the attention of the gentleman from Indiana and the House to what the Director of the Census himself says on this very proposition in his report, an advance copy of which we received last night. Speaking of this section, he says:

But it does not relieve him—

That is, the Director of the Census—

from the overwhelming pressure to obtain clerkships—

That is what the gentleman from Massachusetts spoke about—which has heretofore proved the most vexatious and difficult task connected with the decennial work, occupying during the first year and a half the time and thought of the director that ought to be wholly given to the enormous and difficult work for which he is responsible. A noncompetitive examination means that every one of the many thousands who will pass the examinations will have an equal right to appointment and that personal and political pressure must in the end, as always before, become the determining factor with regard to the great body of these temporary employments. I can not too earnestly urge that the Director of the Census be relieved from this unfortunate situation. If these clerks can be obtained as needed in the order certified from a competitive examination, a better service will be secured than will otherwise be possible, and the efficiency of the force will be greatly increased and the cost of the census correspondingly reduced.

The Director of the Census wishes to be relieved from this burden. It would destroy the efficiency of the force; it would increase the cost of taking the census, and, in his judgment, is inexpedient. He makes it so inexpedient that it becomes our duty to vote for the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. LANGLEY. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin. Certainly.

Mr. LANGLEY. Is the gentleman aware that the present Director of the Census did not make the twelfth census appointments; that Governor Merriam, who was the director, and who made those appointments, was and is of the opinion these temporary clerks ought not to be subjected to a competitive examination nor placed in the classified service?

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I would like to dispute that statement. I think the gentleman is mistaken, and although I do not like to use private conversation here, I would like to be cited to some statement of Governor Merriam's to that effect. I know he believes exactly the opposite.

Mr. LANGLEY. I know personally that that was his opinion; and my recollection is that in his testimony before the committee during the hearings last session he made some statement of that character.

Mr. GILLETT. I know personally that he has stated that was not his opinion.

Mr. HAY. Mr. Chairman, I think that the committee ought to know that when this bill was being prepared the then Director of the Census and the last Director of the Census were both before the Committee on the Census and made extended statements upon the subject which we have now under consideration. Governor Merriam stated in terms that in his judgment the best way to obtain a temporary force was by noncompetitive examination. [Applause]. He also stated that as a result of that mode of obtaining clerks there had been obtained in the Census Office a set of clerks which compare favorably with the clerks in any department of this Government.

Mr. North, the present Director of the Census, while he qualified some statements which he made with regard to it, did not object to the method proposed in this bill. Now, the method proposed in the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] will not relieve the Director of the Census of the onerous duties which he says he will have to undertake if we have a noncompetitive examination. If there is a competitive examination, and if there is one place to fill, for example, and 10 persons pass the examination successfully, the Director of the Census, under the language of the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] will have to select from those 10, and the same personal pressure and the same political influence can be brought to bear in favor of those who pass a competitive examination as those who pass a noncompetitive examination.

Mr. GILLETT. Will the gentleman allow a correction there?

Mr. HAY. Certainly.

Mr. GILLETT. Of course the competitive examination means that the top man is taken. So he will not have to be selected.

Mr. HAY. It does not mean that at all. The civil-service law says that, but this is not the civil-service law.

Mr. GILLETT. No; the gentleman is mistaken. The civil-service law says he shall take one of the first three, but this does not say that. In this the top man will get it.

Mr. HAY. How does the gentleman know that?

Mr. GILLETT. That is what "competitive" means.

Mr. HAY. Competitive examination means, of course, that half a dozen people may pass the examination and all pass the examination. You can not take away, without a special act, from an appointing power the right of the Director of the Census to appoint any man on the eligible list that he pleases to appoint. He will have a right to appoint any man on the eligible list.

Mr. GILLETT. Then neither law is good for anything, if that is so.

Mr. HAY. I think the law which is proposed, which has been thoroughly considered, and which has been found in the past to work well, ought to be made a law now, and it is not necessary for me to go over the reasons so ably given by the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. WALDO. If the gentleman please, if the amendment still leaves this bill so that the director may appoint whoever he sees fit, why does he oppose the amendment?

Mr. HAY. Because it will place upon the Director of the Census a great deal more labor than the present provision will do, and because there is no necessity or reason for it.

Mr. WALDO. In what way does the gentleman believe that this will impose any further labor on the director than a noncompetitive examination?

Mr. HAY. Because the director will have to be all the time calling for competitive examinations to be held by the civil service. If he can have a noncompetitive examination covering all these appointments at once, there will be no necessity for having them all the time.

Mr. WALDO. We have had a great deal of trouble adopting a civil-service law, for the purpose of not only relieving officials from tremendous pressure, but also for the purpose of securing a better class of government employees, without regard to political affiliations.

It seems to me that this bill, as proposed by the committee, is a direct violation of the civil-service law—an attempt to repeal it in part; that it will be of no use to the census; on the contrary, it will give us a poorer class of employees. It will permit the employment of practically anyone who can secure sufficient political influence to bring pressure to bear upon the Director of the Census. That is the very thing that we have been trying to prevent in all branches of the Government. For that reason I hope that the amendment may prevail.

Mr. PARSONS. Mr. Chairman, I hope that the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts will prevail. I have listened to the various arguments stated by the gentlemen in favor of the provision of the bill, and have heard none made that seemed to have any convincing merits, unless it be that to have a competitive examination would involve delay. But I understand that the reason we are passing this bill so early is so that the Census Bureau can make full preparation for taking the census, and part of that preparation will be to enable the examinations to be held, so that the list of people eligible can be prepared in ample time, and that wipes away the argument respecting delay.

As I recollect the testimony before the Committee on the Census, the Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor favors the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Massachusetts. So does the Director of the Census, and I think we owe it to them, the men who are responsible for having as perfect a census as can be got, to give them, who ought to know, the best system of selection that they favor. I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. ROBINSON. Mr. Chairman, I desire to make some reply to my friend from New York. My recollection of the hearings had before the Committee on the Census is that it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of that committee that the best way to secure the force demanded for this work, which is a temporary one, is that provided for by this bill. In the limited time which I have to discuss this subject, I am not assuming to go into the reasons that drive me to the conclusion, but I want to say, in reply to my friend from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT], who has suggested that some Democrats under this provision would be permitted to recommend appointments, that I thank him for that guaranty, and in reply to his statement that this is but a repetition of the old doctrine, "to the victor belongs the spoils," I want to call his attention to the fact, and this House's attention to the fact, with no sense of disrespect or meaning discourtesy to the Civil Service Commission, that that doctrine has applied in a large degree since the days of Andrew Jackson and does apply to a large degree during the days of Theodore Roosevelt. The appointment of a Commissioner of Immigration was said before the election to have been promised to one man, and it was denied. Now, the first appointment made after the election was the gentleman whom it had been charged was to be appointed in consideration of his fight on Gompers—"to the victor belongs the spoils," you see. But gentlemen repudiate the doctrine and at the same time apply it. But, gentlemen of the committee, I repeat the conviction that the hearings show that the best way to secure this temporary force is in this manner, and it is no argument, to my conviction, that gentlemen on that side of the House or on this side of the House may be permitted to make recommendations. Whenever I become so inane and so lacking in confidence in myself that I can not suggest a clerk under the provisions of law, then I am ready to retire and let the clerk take the position of Congressman for my district. Whenever you talk about competitive examinations being held, let me say to you if you had competitive examinations for Congress, high-school graduates, cadets, boys, and girls would come to Congress and retire one gentleman I know at least. I thank you. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. BURLESON. Mr. Chairman, the issue presented by this amendment is quite simple and should be easily understood. It is whether the service to be rendered by the clerks and other employees will be more efficient, whether it will be more economically performed if appointed under the bill as reported by the committee or if appointed under the plan proposed by the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Now, I appeal to the common sense as well as the recollection of the Members of Congress who were here when the Twelfth Census was taken. Do you believe that more efficient clerks can be secured if every Member of this House can go to the Director of the Census and urge the appointment of two or three clerks and secure their appointment, or can more efficient clerks be secured if they are appointed after competitive examination?

Let every Member now answer, upon his conscience, if he proposes to be guided by his conscience in voting upon this amendment. Mr. Chairman, we all know that we have but little time and less inclination to acquaint ourselves with the qualifications of the persons who may apply to us for appointment as clerks in the Census Office. We know, furthermore, that we will probably recommend the first two of our honest constituents who will apply to us without a proper knowledge of the qualifications they possess for the duties that they will be called upon to discharge in the event of their appointment. Now, it has no bearing on this question, one way or the other, whether these people will all be appointed from the District of Columbia and Virginia, if this amendment is adopted, or whether they will be taken from all over the country.

The question is, Will they be more efficient if selected under the plan suggested by the gentleman from Massachusetts, or more efficient if selected as this bill provides for their selection? I think about this there can be no doubt. We know more efficiency can be had as a result of competition.

Now, another point, Mr. Chairman. Will it be more economical to have these employees selected in accordance with the plan embodied in the bill, or under the plan proposed by the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts? No one will doubt that, if this bill goes through, every Member of Congress will be called upon, whether he wants to do it or not, and will be urged to recommend to the Director of the Census the appointment of two or three or more clerks. The Census Director may say, "But, my dear sir, these clerks are not needed just now." We all know that the services of all these clerks will not be needed when the census work is first undertaken. A percentage of them will be needed the first six months, a larger percentage the second six months, and a still larger percentage the third six months, and so on; but the pressure upon the Director of the Census and the appointment clerk will be so fierce that he will be compelled to appoint for every Member of Congress an equal number of clerks, whether their serivces are needed or not at that particular time, and every gentleman here knows that that will be the history of it if this bill passes as it is drawn.

Now, can any gentleman here say that this census work will be more economically done if the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts is rejected? There can be but one answer to the question. The adoption of the amendment will make for economy. Gentlemen, these are small clerkships, positions of small consequence—$600 places. Surely it can not be a matter of vital concern to Members of Congress whether they are given the privilege of appointing two $600 clerks; but it is a matter of great concern, it is a matter of the gravest concern to every Member of Congress that this great census be taken efficiently; that it be taken accurately, and that it be done in the most economical manner. The basis of representation for membership of this House, for our seats upon this floor, depends upon the accuracy of the work to be done by the Census Bureau. Mr. Chairman, under the spoils system, which was in vogue during the taking of the Eleventh Census, this important work was not done as accurately and as carefully as it should be done. It is a fact that there have been sections of this country where the work of the Census Department resulted in padding the enumerators' rolls in order to increase representation. I do not hesitate to say that this is the best census bill ever brought before the Congress, but at the same time I assert that in my opinion this item sought to be amended is vicious and should be changed. If Director North can be given his way, if he can control the selection of his force, we will have a more accurate, a more efficient, and a more economical census than has ever been taken before in the history of our country. [Applause.] I sincerely hope the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts will be adopted.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I have just a few words to say. I shall vote for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT]. It is in line with real civil service. An experience of years in public life has convinced me of the efficiency of the merit system, and for one I shall never do anything to break it down. I believe the adoption of this amendment will facilitate the work of the Census Bureau and be for the best interests of the Government. These clerks should be appointed under the competitive system. It will be fair to all. It will be best for all. We can trust the Director of the Census Bureau to provide that these examinations shall speedily be held all over this country and in ample time to get the very best clerks the country can produce for this service. I attach no importance whatever to the objections of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] to this amendment. They are untenable and, it seems to me, farfetched. I am in favor of true civil service—in a real merit system of appointment—as the best method of selection thus far devised. Hence, I hope the amendment will be adopted in the interest of the best service, in the interest of all the people of the country, and for the most efficient work in securing the next census.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I would like to ask the gentleman from Indiana, the chairman of the committee, a question: Where in the bill is the expression "decennial census period" defined?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. In section 2 of the bill. It there defines the words "decennial census period," and in another section provides that the temporary clerks appointed under the provisions of law shall be in the public service no longer.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I understand that, but whereabouts in section 2 is the definition?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. At the beginning.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I beg the gentleman's pardon, but I had not noticed it.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, while I do not like the exact form of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT], I take it that if that amendment should be adopted, in some way the bill would finally be perfected so as to cover what the House has expressed itself in favor of. The real question after all is the efficiency of taking the census. Every Member of this House knows perfectly well that already he has been appealed to by a number of persons for employment as clerk in the Census Office. These people who come to us needing employment, anxious for position, as a rule are not the best gifted for the work. While we would desire to appoint them, we owe to the people at large the responsibility of taking the census in the best form and of giving to the country the most efficient service possible.

While I do not believe that the civil-service system, so called, is the ideal way of making appointments, yet in practice it works far better than making appointments through the recommendation of Members of Congress, as much as they may desire to give the very best people recommendations.

Now, I can understand why my friends on the other side of the aisle might have had some hesitancy in voting for this amendment before election, but I can assure them that in the division of spoils in the Census Bureau, if this amendment be not adopted, in the end the people on this side of the aisle will receive a larger quota than the gentlemen on my left. And you will stand a better show for your constituents, putting them up for competitive examination side by side with ours; and if your desire is to obtain their employment in the District of Columbia for this work, then you ought to vote for the amendment purely on the spoils theory. If you desire an efficient service for the Government, you ought to vote for the amendment on that ground. [Applause.]

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Chairman, I assume that the thing in which we are all the most interested is to have the business of the Government conducted along the most efficient lines with due regard to the proper economy of expenditure of the public funds.

If the proper methods were pursued in the conduct of the business of the Government the heads of all the departments would be given a free hand in the selection and discharge of the men employed in those departments. Inasmuch as that can not be, perhaps the most successful way after that is the one now employed. The work of taking the census is perhaps as important as any work that comes under the jurisdiction of the Government. This work should be done as quickly as possible, as accurately as possible, and as economically as possible. Now, whether the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] is the best way to make these appointments or whether some other method could be employed that is better, I am not prepared to say.

But it seems that the suggestion made by him meets the case from a business view point better than any suggestion that has been offered from any other source. I have no desire as a Member of Congress to ask the department heads for any places for my constituents, but I believe that every American citizen has the right to appeal to the Representative of the territory in which they live for employment in the government service, for, after all, Members of Congress are only the servants of the people; and after they are elected they ought not to become so high toned that the people can not appeal to them for the things they want or think they ought to have. What is needed in the taking of the census is to save as much time as possible and as much money as can be saved, and at the same time get the best census that can be had with the money expended and the men employed, and I believe that inasmuch as we have not yet reached that stage of courage where we are willing to give a free hand to the Director of the Census to employ such men and women as he pleases, the next best thing for us to do is to adopt the amendment providing for competitive examinations, and that such appointments as may be made shall be made from the lists of those who have passed these competitive examinations.

Mr. McGUIRE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] states that all Members of Congress have been appealed to by persons seeking employment, and that a good many of those persons seeking employment are incompetent. That is always the case. However, Mr. Chairman, the fact that persons may appeal to the Members of Congress and in this way seek employment is no evidence of itself that the person seeking employment is incompetent. I take this to be true for the reason that not only the gentleman from Illinois, but every person upon this floor has quite recently appealed to the people of this country for employment, and the fact that that has been done is no evidence, at least as to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN], judging from his able services in the past, is incompetent. I do not believe that a Member of Congress should shirk his duty to his constituency. One of the duties of every Member on this floor is to see to it, so far as he is able, that his district has its due share of representation in this Government, and by a competitive examination there are many sections of this country seldom reached. By a noncompetitive examination every district in the country and every State will be reached with a representation. [Applause.] Thereby the service may not be improved, but the efficiency of the service, in my judgment, will not be diminished, but will be more in conformity with the policy and duties of a free government, to have every community represented and fairly and honestly represented. [Applause.]

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, the contentions in connection with this proposition all hinge around the question of whether or not examinations shall be competitive or noncompetitive. The bill as proposed by the committee provides for an examination of applicants for positions in the Census department and in the taking of the census. The amendment merely provides that the examination shall be upon a competitive basis. As one member of the committee, I am opposed to that amendment for two reasons, first, because under the method provided by the committee greater opportunity is given to the Census Bureau to organize rapidly for the taking of the census during 1910 than would be possible under the amendment; and, secondly, because I realize that those points that are brought out in a competitive examination do not show all of the qualifications that are necessary for the work. [Applause.] A man may be able to pass a competitive examination and stand at the head of the list and yet his disposition be such that he would be incompetent to perform the labor. What should be required is, first, that an examination shall be passed to show that the men who are applicants are competent, and then permit the chief of the bureau to make a selection from amongst all of those that so qualify, so that he can get men who are energetic enough and whose disposition generally is such that they are competent to perform the office. I am opposed to the amendment. [Applause.]

Mr. LANGLEY. Mr. Chairman, I had not intended to participate in the debate on this section, and I shall do so now for a few minutes only. I had an experience as the appointment officer of the Twelfth Census which enables me to speak with some authority on this subject. Gentlemen who are advocating this amendment seem to proceed upon the theory that Members of Congress are inclined to recommend the appointment of persons who are inefficient and unworthy of appointment. That was not my experience. [Applause.] With but few exceptions, I found that Members of Congress recommended applicants who were representative citizens of their districts. [Applause.]

And I undertake to say further that the force of clerks obtained in that manner was as efficient and faithful as any employees in any bureau or department of the Government obtained through civil-service channels. [Applause.]

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Will the gentleman permit an interruption?

Mr. LANGLEY. Certainly.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Right in that connection I want to quote from a statement made by Director North to the committee in reference to the efficiency of the force of clerks and the force that is in the office now. He said:

When the temporary office was made permanent the aim was to obtain of the thirty-five hundred clerks the most efficient of those clerks, and as a rule that was successfully accomplished, and as a result of that I believe that I can truly say, and I believe that I am duty bound to say, that at the present moment, in my judgment, the clerical force of the Census Office is the most efficient clerical force anywhere in the city of Washington.

Now, those were selected by Congressmen.

Mr. LANGLEY. I am obliged to the gentleman from Indiana for calling my attention to this statement. Not only that, Mr. Chairman, but I want to say in justice to the hundreds of employees who were not retained in the permanent office, because there was not room for them, that they were also an excellent body of clerks. I have in my mind a number of instances in which the best clerks did not pass the highest examination. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. BURLESON], who is favoring this amendment, will recall the case of one of his constituents, who succeeded in passing only after three trials and who subsequently became one of our most efficient clerks. There seems to be an impression that under the provisions of this section, as reported by the committee, there will not be a proper test of efficiency. There will be such a test, however, because the examination will be prescribed by the director, who will fix the minimum per cent that applicants must attain before they will be considered for appointment, and the examination will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, which will insure absolute fairness, presumably, to all applicants. This is a decided step in advance of the Twelfth Census law in this respect.

Mr. GILLETT. May I ask the gentleman how that man happened to get three examinations?

Mr. LANGLEY. Because he was near enough to the passing point to entitle him to a reexamination under the rules which the director had prescribed.

Mr. GILLETT. Do you mean to indicate that there was not any pressure by his Congressman?

Mr. LANGLEY. In that particular instance I do not recall that there was.

Mr. GILLETT. What was the rule, may I ask? Do you mean to say that a man who came pretty near passing one examination could try again?

Mr. LANGLEY. I do not recall the rules in detail. If the applicant's examination indicated that he was likely to make an efficient employee in certain branches of the work, that fact was considered as a very material point by the examiner in passing upon his application for reexamination.

Mr. OLMSTED. And, if the gentleman will permit, do I understand that under the regular civil-service rules persons are not permitted to take more than one examination? I know of one stenographer who took three before he got in.

Mr. LANGLEY. Exactly so. I know of a number of instances in which persons who barely passed the census examination were much more efficient in the census work than persons who were appointed by the director on strength of a much higher rating by the Civil Service Commission, which was accepted in lieu of the census examination.

Mr. GILLETT. Of course in the case suggested by the gentleman from Pennsylvania the man waits and studies and prepares himself to come again. Of course that does not apply in this case. There was not much interval in these three examinations, I take it.

Mr. LANGLEY. Usually not over two weeks—that is, if I correctly recall the practice of——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. MANN. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman may have five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that the gentleman from Kentucky may have five minutes more. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. LANGLEY. I was just proceeding to say, Mr. Chairman, that a purely clerical test does not bring out all of the points that the Director of the Census may desire to consider in connection with appointment, and I think it would seriously handicap the work of the office if the proposition of the gentleman from Massachusetts should be adopted, so that the director would be prevented from appointing entirely efficient applicants who have passed a test which he regards as satisfactory and is compelled to appoint persons who are in reality less adapted to his work, merely because they happened to secure a higher rating in the examination. We did not have much difficulty in meeting the pressure that was brought to bear in connection with appointments in the Census Office during the Twelfth Census period, and I think the difficulty in that respect in carrying on the work has been greatly exaggerated by gentlemen who are advocating this amendment. My observation was that the privilege which Members of Congress had in aiding in the selection of the clerical force of the Twelfth Census was an advantage rather than a disadvantage to the service, and I think it would be a mistake to adopt the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Massachusetts, the effect of which would be to deprive them entirely of any voice in the matter.

Mr. GILLETT. May I ask the gentleman if the Director of the Census, Mr. Merriam, did not say that nearly all of his time for a year and a half was taken up by Members of Congress about appointments?

Mr. LANGLEY. The gentleman must be mistaken. The proportion he mentions is altogether too large; as the appointment clerk of the census, I relieved the director of a large part of this pressure.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield to a question?

Mr. LANGLEY. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. Permit me to testify in that regard that the only gentleman I ever saw was the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. LANGLEY] whose efficient service at the time adds now very largely to the value of his opinion.

Mr. LANGLEY. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. MANN. Under this proposition, both propositions, I understand, contemplate the same examination by the Civil Service Commission.

Mr. LANGLEY. Yes.

Mr. MANN. Which, under this authorization, can not be monkeyed with, as each one takes the examination?

Mr. LANGLEY. The effect of it would be that the applicant would present himself to the Civil Service Commission for examination, and if he passed his name would be certified to the director as an eligible for appointment.

Mr. MANN. The same examination is given in every case?

Mr. LANGLEY. Yes; I do not take it that this amendment would interfere with that.

Mr. MANN. The amendment provides the same thing.

Mr. LANGLEY. But it would interfere with the Members of Congress having anything whatever to say regarding the persons who should be appointed.

Mr. MANN. The question is really who shall designate and how they shall be designated for examination.

Mr. LANGLEY. Subject, of course, to the condition that they must pass the examination required by the director.

Mr. MANN. There is nothing in the amendment and there is nothing in the bill which suggests how people shall be designated. Even under the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] it might be provided that no one could be examined unless he should be designated.

Mr. LANGLEY. I take it that that would be a question for the Director of the Census to provide for by prescribing suitable rules and regulations. The bill implies that power.

Mr. MANN. Now, one more question. Does the gentleman think that they would be likely to get a better or less efficient service by having the bulk of the employees selected from territory surrounding Washington, or from the city of Washington, or by scattering employees throughout the country, familiar with the different parts of the country?

Mr. LANGLEY. In regard to that, I will say I am so strongly in favor of "scattering" them that I would be willing to yield a little on the other proposition. [Laughter.] I think the bill as reported by the committee is entirely workable, and that the Director of the Census, by having this margin for exercising his discretion, can select a more efficient force of clerks. And I base that opinion on my own actual experience and observation while in charge of the Twelfth Census appointments.

Mr. PARSONS. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. LANGLEY. Certainly.

Mr. PARSONS. The gentleman stated that where the competitive system existed there were questions the director might wish to ask an applicant that he could not ask now.

Mr. LANGLEY. I merely desired to emphasize what the gentleman from Pennsylvania said, to the effect that a written examination was not always the best test, especially of the applicant's fitness for work of this kind, and that an applicant might have talents in certain directions that a scholastic test alone would not develop. This is peculiarly true in the Census Office, where the work, as has already been stated, is of a temporary and emergency character. [Applause.]

Mr. FOWLER. Mr. Chairman, now as to the question of representation of all parts of the country, it ought to be distinctly understood that these examinations that will be held throughout the United States for this work will not be given until next July, and the object of passing this bill now is to make ready for the beginning of the work.

I do not know of the examinations the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. LANGLEY], as appointment clerk, made on the recommendations on the part of Members, nor that Mr. Merriam made, but I doubt very much whether anyone recommended by Members of this House to these gentlemen were rejected because of examinations they made of these men, unless they found them utterly useless and unfit. Therefore the recommendations that went to the gentleman as appointment clerk and to the commissioner were of themselves virtually mandatory, and they regarded them as such.

Mr. LANGLEY. Will the gentleman yield to me for a moment?

Mr. FOWLER. Certainly.

Mr. LANGLEY. I am sure the gentleman does not want to leave a wrong impression as to what I said.

Mr. FOWLER. Certainly not.

Mr. LANGLEY. I tried to state, and the records of the office will bear me out, that there were hundreds and hundreds of cases where men and women were examined and failed to pass and were never appointed, although they were indorsed by some of the strongest men in public life.

Mr. FOWLER. That only bears out what I was going to say—that if they were utterly unfit to fill any of these offices, it showed a want of competency upon the part of Members of the House.

Mr. LANGLEY. Not "utterly unfit," but not up to the standard required.

Mr. FOWLER. Now, the fact is, in the first place, that you will be providing for examinations which shall be held throughout the length and breadth of the land. Now, in the next place, if all these appointments are made from all parts of the country through examinations, when they once are in the service they can be immediately discharged if unfit. On the other hand, the gentleman knows from experience that when a clerk is once in through the recommendation of a Member, the persistency on the part of the Member is so great that it is almost impossible to discharge him when once in the service.

Mr. LANGLEY. The gentleman is certainly mistaken.

Mr. FOWLER. The gentleman from Oklahoma remarked that this was a privilege that he and any other Member ought to have to serve their country by serving some one they wanted to recommend. Now, I take it our duty is to serve our country as against anyone that may be in our particular district, and the question now to decide is whether, in the first place, the service will be better, and in the second instance, whether the service will not be more economical.

Mr. HEPBURN. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. FOWLER. Certainly.

Mr. HEPBURN. I certainly agree with you about serving your country, but suppose that you had the power to recommend some one, could you not make such a recommendation as would still enable you to serve your country? [Applause.] Are you obliged, if you had that power, to recommend some scalawag who would rob the country of the salary he would receive?

Mr. FOWLER. No.

Mr. HEPBURN. If the gentleman will permit a second question, then why are you so anxious to protect yourself from the possibility of appointing a scalawag? [Laughter.]

Mr. FOWLER. I do not care to save myself from responsibility on that question, for we have no scalawags in my district. [Laughter.] But the idea I had on that question was that there are but one or two questions before the House. First, whether the clerks will be more efficient and the service better, and in the second place whether it will be more economical to this Government.

Now, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], read a paragraph in the statement of Mr. North. Of course, after 3,500 to 4,000 clerks have been sifted down until you have five or six hundred you have practically disposed of 3,500 or 4,000; and therefore it does not go to the larger number. Therefore, I hope that this amendment will prevail.

[Cries of "Vote!"]

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, if gentlemen desire to vote I do not desire to speak. I do not feel that I can aid this committee materially in ascertaining how we should vote on the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts. But I wanted to call attention, however, to the fact that under the bill as it stands now it simply directs that the Director of the Census shall have examinations such as he thinks necessary in order to determine whether the applicant for a clerkship is fit to perform the duty. I do not think that we are here engaged in determining whether the old Democratic doctrine of "To the victors belong the spoils" shall prevail. We have had such recent talk from the stump. But we have reformed in a hundred years. It is just a hundred years now since the distinguished Virginian, Thomas Jefferson, wrote a letter to his Secretary of the Treasury telling him to be careful in making his deposits that he made them with Democrats that believed in his administration. It is only more recently that the thing was better put and better stated, and more candidly by the distinguished soldier, Andrew Jackson, who bluntly stated it in these words: "To the victors belong the spoils." But we have reformed at this time, and whether through the civil service or not I am not very certain. This talk of civil service is old, too. A man who became distinguished in literature in England went through a competitive examination for a clerkship in the office of the Postmaster-General. He failed in his examination, but some one in authority told him if he would go over to the office and take a seat at a certain desk he could go to work.

He was very prompt in going there, but nobody assigned him any work, until one day he got notice that there was a defaulting postmaster in Ireland, and that he must go over there and investigate and report the conditions of the office. He went to Ireland and found the post-office, but as he had never been in an office of that kind and did not know anything about its management, he did not know how to make an investigation of the office or a report. He never had done anything of the sort. So he went to the culprit and employed him to get up a report showing the condition of his office and his own defalcation. He took this report back to England with him and filed it with the postmaster-general, and he was promoted on account of his extraordinary facility in making that sort of a report. [Laughter.]

We have a most striking instance in this country. There was a distinguished citizen of Ohio who lived in Cincinnati not quite half a century ago who came by stage and otherwise all the way from his home to this city to take a competitive examination for a clerkship in the United States Treasury Department. There were just two competitors. One was from Cincinnati, Ohio, and the other was from the State of Massachusetts, that learned State, even then advanced in education. The gentleman from Ohio failed in the examination and the other man succeeded. Scholastically the man from Massachusetts was the better man. So they turned down the man from Ohio, and he doubtless went grumbling back to his office in Cincinnati; but in 1861, in the month of March, that same citizen of Cincinnati held a little review in the Treasury Department in this city as Secretary of the Treasury. [Applause and laughter.] That was Salmon P. Chase, afterwards Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Among the first of those who came by in review was a man bowed down with toil carrying his arms in front of his knees. He came at the head of the treasury clerks to pay his respects to the distinguished Secretary of the Treasury, and he was the man who had beaten Mr. Chase in the competitive examination a long while before. [Laughter and applause.]

Now, whether these things throw any light upon the examination necessary here to determine the manner in which these temporary clerks should be selected, I do not care. I am rather inclined to think the bill is all right as it is, and that if the Director of the Census wants to institute a severe examination as to the qualifications of clerks he can do so under the present bill, and it will be his fault if he does not get capable men and women as clerks to administer his office.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, just a word before we vote. I want the committee to bear in mind the fact that there will not be any undesirables or incapables on the eligible list at all. In the first place, the examination will be of such a character as to illustrate the fitness and competency of every applicant who successfully passes it. The examination is to be conducted by that immaculate and incorruptible piece of administrative mechanism, the Civil Service Commission. So you can rest assured that the Director of the Census, with as much at stake as he has, will prescribe an examination that will secure efficient clerks, and that the examinations will be administered in a thorough and conscientious manner.

I think that is the proper view to take. The only benefit that the amendment suggested by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] will have, will be to relieve the Director of the Census of the pressure that may be brought to bear upon him in making selections among men and women who are all competent, all efficient, who have been certified to him as competent by the Civil Service Commission. No scalawags from anybody's State can get on the list.

Under the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts I insist that the dispatch of the work in the Census Office would be seriously embarrassed, because the director may want an addition to his force for immediate work. There may be men and women at hand who are eligible. Under the plan of the gentleman from Massachusetts the director could not choose them, but would have first to notify those who by accident or good fortune had higher grades. He would have to notify them first and give them an opportunity to get ready to come to Washington and enter the service. I am an advocate of the merit system, but I believe a little business sense ought always to be injected into it. This is emergency work that we are undertaking to do. We will have no time for delays. A great army in line of battle has not time to conduct a civil-service examination to select the best men to carry muskets, and that principle applies to some extent to the administration of the great work of taking a decennial census. The proposition reported by the committee in nowise discredits the merit system. Our civil-service law is a good law as applied to the permanent service, but we want to exercise some sense of discrimination in its application to the work we are engaged in providing for.

We do not want to use it for the purpose of embarrassing, but for the improvement of the public service. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a vote on the amendment.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to inquire of the gentleman in charge of the bill if the supervisors and enumerators, the special agents and interpreters, are under the civil service under the terms of this bill?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. They are not.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, that fills me with alarm. [Laughter.] I am alarmed for the gentleman from Massachusetts. I am afraid that he has fallen from his high estate as a civil-service reformer. This bill under its terms as it stands now provides for putting some 3,000 people under the civil service, and yet 59,000 people that are provided for by the terms of this bill, who actually do the work, upon whose efficiency, industry, and integrity the value of this great work is to depend, are not protected from the rapacity of the spoilsman. I would like to know from the gentleman what this means. Has he recanted all the diatribes we have heard from him in the years past in regard to spoilsmen and the spoils system and the immaculate virtues of the merit system—has he gone back on all that?

We find him even now, Mr. Chairman, by the motion he makes, trying to emasculate the bill as it is and refuse to protect the Members of this House from the importunities and possible wrongs that may result from the charwomen, and the messengers, and the assistant messengers, and messenger boys, and the watchmen because of their passion for appointments. [Laughter.] Why not keep them under the civil service? Why not protect the membership of this House from the temptation to indulge in the spoliation of the Government? [Applause and laughter.]

Mr. Chairman, this bill, or the provisions in this bill, in my judgment, are a fair representation of the pretenses of our civil service. [Applause.] The fact is we have no improvement in the public service by our civil service. No man can point it out. There is no improvement in the character and efficiency of the clerks and employees that are affected by civil service. Look at the old clerks that we have now that were appointed under the "spoils system." I can point out a half a dozen for whom I had some instrumentality in securing places, among the best men in my district, who are to-day efficient clerks and, although they have been in the service for twenty-five or more years, will compare most favorably—ah, most favorably—with those that you secure under your so-called "improved merit system"—a system that gives you no knowledge of the fitness of the clerk whatever except scholastic attainments. How do you know anything of the industry, of the integrity, of the adaptation, of the clerks that you secure under your so-called "merit system," and that you propose to apply to those that are now to be taken into the service?

Mr. Chairman, I submit that this so-called "civil service," or the argument in favor of it, is simply a cowardly attempt to avoid the responsibilities that men take upon themselves when they need friends. [Applause.] Why should not the man who has been the beneficiary of kindly service for months and years of his friends at home, men who made him and brought him to the position where he may reap honor and be of service to his country, why should not he have some care, some solicitude for the ambitions and desires of that man?

Why, Mr. Chairman, all of these promotions and all of these honors are but relative in comparison. The man who wants to be a clerk wants to be a clerk as badly as a man who wants to be a Congressman. To him the clerkship is equally as desirable as the other place of honor to the other man. I do not think that because a man has the power to recommend in such a way as possibly his advice will be adopted and the appointment of a friend made, that therefore he becomes a spoilsman. The mere conferring of the power does not corrupt. If the man is corrupt, if he makes an improper recommendation, if he yields to solicitations that ought not to be yielded to, it is not because of the system, but because of an innate corruption in himself. [Applause.] I have never recommended to place man or woman that I have been ashamed of or who has failed to render proper service, and I do not believe that the membership of this House needs the protection of these superserviceable gentlemen who are so free to throw epithets at them, calling them spoilsmen and arrogating to themselves vast superiority because they try to cover themselves with a mantle that they call the "merit system." [Applause.]

Mr. GILLETT rose. [Cries of "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman——

The question was taken.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I addressed the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. But the gentleman could proceed only by unanimous consent.

Mr. GILLETT. Well, Mr. Chairman, I think I might at least have an opportunity to ask unanimous consent. I ask unanimous consent that I may be allowed to proceed for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I did not intend to say another word, and I am very sorry now to occupy the time of the House, but the gentleman from Iowa has so pointedly referred to me, has spoken of diatribes that I have issued against spoilsmen, of the assumption of virtue which I have made, that I think I am entitled and I ought to say a word about it. I think the gentleman, if he will look back over the past many years that we have served together—and I am happy to say with great friendliness, but always at odds on this issue—will recognize that the epithets have not come from me, that the severe language has not come from me, but that if it has come from anywhere, it has come from the gentleman himself and those whose opinions have been like his. I think that always I have acted with courtesy, without any assumption of superiority, or purity, and without ascribing to him and those who agree with him any motives of which they should be ashamed and that therein I have differed from my opponents.

But, Mr. Chairman, I am not willing to let pass uncontroverted the statement that he made, for I do believe, contrary to his express opinion, that the system which he has always so vigorously upheld is vicious, fundamentally, and that the change which has come over all our civil service in Washington has immensely improved that service. Moreover, I believe, and I am glad that this bill recognizes it, that this service has so far justified itself in the opinion of the great mass of the people of the United States that the gentleman and his friends no longer dare to put on the statute books the authority for appointments which used to prevail. Civil service is not ideal. I have always admitted it was not. It does not pretend to be ideal, but it is infinitely better than the system whose place it took, and for proof of that you only need to go back to the debates in Congress when this question first came up and read the condition of the departments at that time and look at the condition of the departments now, and no candid man can fail to see that the civil service has infinitely improved not only the work but the economy of administration and the relationship between the executive and the legislative; and this bill of itself—and I am glad to admit I believe this committee adopted the best bill they thought they could carry through this House—this bill admits the wisdom of examinations. It provides for an examination, and, in my opinion, it simply does not go far enough, and the reason it does not every Member in this House knows is not because of the relative merits of the two systems, but is because the members of Congress want the patronage. [Applause.]

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin rose. [Cries of "Vote!"]

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

Mr. DWIGHT. I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard. The Chair will again put the question. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GILLETT and Mr. SULZER) there were—ayes 65, noes 119.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. WALDO. Mr. Chairman, I now desire to call up my amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend, on page 4, line 24, by striking out the words "to the law of apportionment or," so that it shall read: "That they shall be selected without regard to the political party affiliation," etc.

Mr. WALDO. Mr. Chairman, I have always believed, and I still believe that those who are in the public service of the Government should be apportioned throughout the United States according to population, as they are now under the civil-service law. If these words in the bill, which the amendment proposes to strike out, are allowed to stand, together with the word "noncompetitive," it will make the law so that the whole force may be appointed from the city of Washington or from the State of Washington or from Oklahoma. Now, that is clearly against the principle upon which the public service has been conducted for many years, and it is something that ought not to be left in the power of the Director of the Census. I was opposed, and I am still opposed, to the abolition of competitive examinations and making them noncompetitive. If these examinations are to be noncompetitive, that merely means that whoever receives the strongest political support is going to be appointed to these offices.

Those places in the United States represented by officials of the greater power and influence will most assuredly receive the larger proportion of these appointments, and we know it just as well now as we will after they are made. This is most unfair to the country at large. The question as to the patronage to be distributed by the Members of Congress under this bill is a matter of little moment, but it is of great moment to the country and the citizens of the country that they shall all have a fair opportunity to enter into the public service. Unless this amendment is adopted this measure will deprive them of any such opportunity. No assurances that may be made by the Director of the Census or by his employees can make that any different, because it certainly will follow, if these two provisions stand as in this bill, that the greatest political pressure will appoint these census employees. These are not strictly temporary appointments. These appointments will last two or three years. It is only those appointments to which the gentleman from Iowa referred that are temporary—the supervisors and inspectors whose work is practically done in thirty days—but these employees affected by the amendment are men who ought to be under civil service. They are men who will be two or three years in service, and a large proportion, if not all of them, will be transferred from this service, as they have been in the past, to the permanent civil service of the Government. I therefore hope this amendment will prevail.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. WALDO. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. I do not know how far the gentleman has looked up this matter in detail——

Mr. WALDO. I have not.

Mr. MANN. But I understand that unless the law of apportionment is waived the State of New York has no apportionment in the Census Office at all.

Mr. WALDO. That would be immaterial to me.

Mr. MANN. Oh, I understand; but the State of Illinois, the State of Maryland, and other States would be in the same condition, because their quota is now in excess of the apportionment.

Mr. WALDO. If that be true, they ought not to get any apportionment under this bill.

Mr. MANN. But I do not know whether the Census ought to draw all the clerks from Oklahoma, as the gentleman suggests; the most of them would come from there if the gentleman's amendment prevails.

Mr. WALDO. I doubt it very much.

Mr. MANN. That is a fact.

Mr. WALDO. If it is true that any State has more than its proper proportion, then the appointments under this measure should be distributed all around the rest of the United States. If the rest of the United States can not provide proper men to fill these positions, they will be taken from any place in the United States where proper and qualified men can be found.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by striking out all of the proviso in lines 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11, on page 5, ending with the word "examination."

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, this provision is for the transfer of persons who have had experience in census work—how much or how little or what time is not mentioned—in the Census Bureau, and then after service there shall make them eligible without examination to any appointment in the departmental service.

Now, it will be noticed that preceding that there is a paragraph that provides for the selection of persons of previous experience in census work, at the option of the Director of the Census. I do not just understand what the object of this provision is, but it seems to me that the effect can not be good. One may have been in the census in any capacity without getting any familiarity with special census work, any technical knowledge, yet having been employed in the Census department at some time or another and being now in some other departmental service, as a janitor or in any other position, that person may be transferred to the Census Bureau, and having been transferred there shall be eligible to appointment in any departmental service thereof without any examination at all. It seems to me that the effect will be bad and that no good result can come from the retention of that provision. I will be glad to hear from the chairman of the committee or some other gentleman in regard to it who will explain the purpose of it.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The purpose of this provision is to authorize the transfer of certain clerks now in other branches of the service who have had previous experience in the Census Office and who are more or less skilled for the purpose of promoting the administration of the census law. The same kind of provision, as I recollect, was in the act for the Twelfth Census. This provision was taken from that act, and a few clerks were transferred by the order of the head of the department upon the requisition of the Director of the Census. They were clerks that were already in the classified service, and the work of the Census Office is of that peculiar character that it is important to have as many experienced clerks and employees in the office during the temporary period as possible. And in making these transfers it adds to the efficiency of the force of the Census Office, and when the temporary service is over, of course, it is due to the clerks who have been transferred and are in the classified service to provide that they may be reappointed in the classified service again. That is the purpose of the provision, and it is identically the same provision that Congress incorporated in the act providing for the Twelfth Census.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] speaks of clerks in the classified service. Now, if this provision related to clerks in the classified service only, and so stated, it would be a different provision, but we know it says "employees," and it says, "in other branches of the departmental service," having no reference at all to whether those clerks are in the classified service or in the unclassified service, whether they are clerks at all, or whether they are employees of some other kind, and whether they have any special knowledge of census affairs or not. It merely provides that anybody who has had experience in the Census Bureau and is in the departmental service may be transferred to that bureau, and then, after being transferred and after service there, shall be eligible to appointment to any departmental service without examination.

If the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] would make the provision according to his suggestion concerning the matter, I would see no objection to it. But it does not say "clerks," and it does not say "classified service."

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That is what it means.

Mr. OLMSTED. If the gentleman from Missouri will permit, would it not answer his purpose to insert "classified" in line 5, so as to read "departmental classified service?"

Mr. DE ARMOND. It does certainly improve it very greatly.

Mr. OLMSTED. That would prevent temporary employees going into the Census department and then going into the classified service permanently without examination.

Mr. DE ARMOND. The point I am trying to make is that they need not be clerks at all, but janitors, doorkeepers—anybody who has once served in the Census Bureau.

Mr. LANGLEY. The gentleman will notice that the language in line 10 is "for positions of similar grades." That refers to a position of like grade that he occupied before.

Mr. DE ARMOND. I take it that it is a position of like grade occupied in the Census Bureau.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Permit me to suggest to the gentleman from Missouri, reading this provision as a whole it is clear that it applies to classified positions only, because it authorizes the transfer without examination, and only the classified service provides an examination for transfer. Those who are not in the classified service may resign one place and be appointed in another without any authority of law.

So it refers clearly to the classified service, and the term "employees" covers clerks. It is merely to give the director authority to secure the services of those in other departments that may improve his own. Of course we might safeguard and prescribe the different kinds of clerks, possibly name those who have had experience in the census work before. But we confer upon the Director of the Census a certain latitude of discretion in making requisitions, of course.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Well, if the gentleman will permit, would it not be better to say "clerks in the classified service," or "employees?" Then it could not mean something else.

Mr. LANGLEY. No; because the director might want to transfer some one else who might not come under that designation—chief of division, for example. I do not think it would be wise to limit to any special designation, such as that.

Mr. DE ARMOND. The point I want to make is that it not only covers clerks in the classified service, but covers employees also. It takes those who once have been employed in the Bureau of the Census, because at the present they are duly transferred, being employed in the departmental service, may be permanently transferred to the classified service. No question as to what the employment in the Census Bureau was and as to any degree of efficiency or lack of it. No question as to the employment in the departmental service; but once in the Census Bureau—at the time transferred to the departmental service—this person is eligible to the regular service after expiration of employment in the Census Bureau. There is where you may have very great abuse, and do very great injustice to the other clerks. I think the suggestion made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. OLMSTED] and the suggestion made by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], if what these men were was stated in the bill, it would remove the objection. If it means clerks in the classified service, if it means employees in the classified service, let us say so. If it means people who have come in by virtue of examination and therefore do not need an examination to be transferred to the Census Bureau and ought not to be required to take an examination to be transferred back, let us say so, and not leave it so loose that a janitor of the Census Bureau may be appointed to the classified service after being a janitor in the Census Bureau, without any examination.

Mr. OLMSTED. I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. There is an amendment pending.

Mr. OLMSTED. This is a preferential amendment, to perfect the text.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting the word "classified" between "departmental" and "service," in line 5, page 5, so that it will read, "departmental classified service."

The CHAIRMAN. The question would not be in order while the other amendment is pending.

Mr. OLMSTED. I submit it is in order to perfect the amendment before striking the words out.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well.

Mr. OLMSTED. Mr. Chairman, I am in harmony with the views expressed by the gentleman from Missouri. The provision as it now stands would, I think, permit the transfer of unclassified employees from other departments who are now on temporary appointment. As the act now stands it would further permit them being transferred to the Census Bureau and then at the end of the census period transferred to the other departments without examination. By inserting the amendment I have suggested, I think the objection of the gentleman from Missouri will be covered, so that it will state those who are transferred were those in the classified service. It will limit it to those who are in the classified service and permit none to go into the classified service without an examination.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I can see no objection to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, but I think it adds nothing new to the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question recurs on the amendment moved by the gentleman from Missouri to strike out.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I wish to offer another amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by striking out the words, "and at the end of such service the employees so transferred shall be eligible to appointment to positions of similar character in any department without examination," in lines 8, 9, 10, and 11, page 5.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I suggest a question of order in relation to that amendment. A motion to strike out the proviso was made by the gentleman from Missouri, and all amendments calculated to perfect that part of the text proposed to be stricken out should have come before the motion to strike out. The gentleman's motion to strike out the proviso was the first motion made. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. OLMSTED] then submitted a preferential motion to amend the text, which was adopted. Then the Committee of the Whole House refused to strike out the proviso. I suggest that the amendment now proposing further to change the text is not in order.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I think the amendment is not subject to the objection. It is an entirely different and distinct amendment from the other, and an amendment perfecting the clause which this would strike out would now be in order, of course.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair thinks the amendment is in order.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Now, Mr. Chairman, it appears to me that this provision is an unnecessary one. If a person who has been transferred possesses the necessary qualifications, it is no hardship to take the examination again. If a person does not possess the proper qualifications for any particular position, there is great necessity why the examination should be taken. I do not care, however, to discuss the matter. It appears to me that there is no measure of injustice to the person transferred, because he can take his transfer or not. He takes the chance of getting into another and permanent service or to drop into the temporary branch of it and go out of the service. If he goes out of the service he goes by his own election; he is not transferred except with his own consent. If he goes out of the service by happening to be one of the supernumerary employees dropped, it seems to me he ought to get into it again, if he gets into it at all, just as anybody else would have to do.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, a word upon that amendment. I think the gentleman from Missouri will agree with me in the view that clerks in the classified service may be transferred by an order of the head of a department without their own consent. The order of transfer is compulsory. It would hardly be fair to transfer a classified clerk into an unclassified position for a period of a couple of years, when he would lose the right under the law to be reappointed, and then require him to take a civil-service examination again to get back into the classified service. This is simply to protect the rights of a clerk in the classified service who may be transferred against his will into this temporary service to make it more efficient. Therefore I think the gentleman from Missouri ought not to insist upon his motion.

Mr. DE ARMOND. I will offer an amendment, then, to perfect the provision. I move to insert the words "against their will" in line 9, so that it will apply to this class, as the gentleman suggests it should do. There will then be no objection to it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the proposed amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 9, after the word "transfer," insert the words "against their will."

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I think that amendment hardly needs discussion from our side. Clerks may often be willing to go at the mere suggestion or request of the head of the department, for the promotion of the general efficiency of the service, and they ought not to lose their status at all, whether they go willingly or unwillingly. They can not go of their own motion. They can only go upon requisition and the order of the head of a department. Therefore I think both amendments ought to be voted down.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, my intention in offering the amendment was to meet exactly the suggestion made by the gentleman from Indiana with reference to the clerks transferred against their will. Now, that amendment exactly coincides with the suggestion that he made in opposition to the other amendment. Assuming that his suggestion was made for what it implies and means, I offered that amendment to perfect the provision, so that it would have just the meaning which he gave to it in his former remarks.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. If the gentleman is serious, will he allow a suggestion? I offered that remark simply as an illustration of the absolute injustice of the gentleman's proposition to strike out. That is all.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Well, the amendment is offered to illustrate the gentleman's remarks.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I call for a vote.

The amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now recurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri to strike out.

The question was taken, and the amendment was lost.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 8. That the Thirteenth Census shall be restricted to inquiries relating to population, to agriculture, to manufactures, and to mines and quarries. The schedules relating to population shall include for each inhabitant the name, relationship to head of family, color, sex, age, conjugal condition, place of birth, place of birth of parents, number of years in the United States, citizenship, occupation, school attendance, literacy, and tenure of home.

The schedules relating to agriculture shall include name of occupant of each farm, color of occupant, tenure, acreage of farm, value of farm and improvements, value of farm implements, number and value of live stock on farms and ranges, number and value of domestic animals not on farms and ranges, and the acreage of crops as of the date of enumeration, and the acreage of crops and the quantity and value of crops and other farm products for the year ending December 31 next preceding the enumeration.

The schedules of inquiry relating to manufactures and to mines and quarries shall include the name and location of each establishment; character of organization, whether individual, cooperative, or other form; character of business or kind of goods manufactured; amount of capital invested; number of proprietors, firm members, copartners, stockholders, and officers and the amount of their salaries; number of employees and the amount of their wages; quantity and cost of materials used in manufactures; amount of miscellaneous expenses; quantity and value of products; time in operation during the census year; character and quantity of power used, and character and number of machines employed.

The census of manufactures and of mines and quarries shall relate to the year ending December 31 next preceding the enumeration of population and shall be confined to mines and quarries and manufacturing establishments which were in active operation during all or a portion of that year and had a product valued at $500 or more. The census of manufactures shall furthermore be confined to manufacturing establishments conducted under what is known as the factory system, exclusive of the so-called neighborhood or household industries.

Whenever he shall deem it expedient, the Director of the Census may charge the collection of these statistics upon special agents or upon detailed employees, to be employed without respect to locality.

The form and subdivision of inquiries necessary to secure the information under the foregoing topics shall be determined by the Director of the Census.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment on page 6 of this section of the bill, and I send the amendment to the Clerk's desk.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry: When we offer amendments to the various paragraphs of section 8, will they be entertained by the chairman of the committee in the order in which the paragraphs appear in the bill? For example, if an amendment is offered to paragraph 1 of section 8, will that be entertained before an amendment offered to paragraph 2 of section 8?

Mr. KEIFER. Has the gentleman from Texas an amendment to paragraph 1?

Mr. SLAYDEN. I have.

Mr. LAMB. I also have an amendment to paragraph 1.

Mr. KEIFER. I am willing to yield to the gentleman from Texas to offer his amendment first. Whatever method the Chair desires I am willing to yield to. I am willing to offer mine after the gentleman from Texas has offered his amendment to the first paragraph.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. STERLING.) The amendments may be considered in any order. It is for the committee to determine in what order they will be considered.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I understand the gentleman from Ohio is willing to yield and withdraw his amendment until amendments have been offered to paragraph 1.

Mr. SLAYDEN. My amendment is to the first paragraph. I offer the following amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting after the word "condition," in line 4, page 6, the following: "including intermarriages of persons of the white race with negroes and Asiatics, usually known as the black and yellow races, and with the descendants of such races."

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, I hope that every Member of the House will understand that this is a serious effort on my part to get information which I consider valuable and desirable, and which can be had in no other way. I assure the House that I offer it with perfect sincerity; with absolute integrity of purpose in an effort to get valuable information bearing on the social and economic problems of the country which I think we ought to have. I sincerely trust that no gentleman will interpose an objection in the way of a vote or otherwise.

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the amendment again read.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the Clerk will again report the amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment a second time.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, the value of a census is purely statistical, and I am at a loss to know or understand what effect the introduction of this question might have in the obtaining or gathering of statistics—how far a census enumerator ought to be authorized to go into questions that are more or less of a delicate domestic nature. The inquisitorial power of the enumerator ought to be limited to the things that are necessary for statistical purposes. Now, there are investigations that have in mind sociological results. The Bureau of the Census ought to be kept free as far as it possibly can be from matters of speculation, and its inquiries ought to be free as far as they possibly can be from objectionable investigations—investigations that people might with entire propriety be opposed to. Therefore I personally feel that it would be an unsafe thing to incorporate this provision into the schedule. Nothing of the kind has ever been included in the population schedule in the history of the country.

When we came to collect statistics respecting the women and children in the industries of the country, the point was made that the Director of the Census Office should not make the investigation, because it was of a sociological and economic character; that it involved inquiries that were not proper, perhaps, for a purely statistical investigation. The President of the United States submitted that criticism in a message to Congress, against authorizing the Census Office to make that investigation, and in favor of having it made by the Bureau of Labor. Now, this investigation, if it is proper, might be made by some speculative division or bureau in the Department of Commerce and Labor, but I feel that the Census Office ought to be confined to investigations that are purely for statistical purposes; that can not in any sense be speculative. Therefore I am constrained to object to the amendment of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SLAYDEN].

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, I want to assure the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] that the purpose of the amendment is purely statistical. I desire to know, and I have no doubt that an overwhelming majority of the people of this country would like to know, just the things inquired of by the amendment. There is no indication that any man is opposed to or that he does not sympathize with such unions. It is not entering into a discussion of that phase of the question at all; it is purely statistical. All the statistics that are to be gathered by the census have a direct bearing upon the sociological and economic conditions of the country ultimately.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That is altogether true, Mr. Chairman; but here is a thought that came to me after I sat down: In the preparation of schedules, in the instructions to enumerators who travel about over the country to obtain information, suppose the enumerator visits a home when the husband is away. Would the gentleman have him ask the wife if her husband is a negro or if he is an Asiatic?

Mr. MANN. How would the gentleman from Texas like to have the enumerator ask his wife that question?

Mr. SLAYDEN. That is all right; I am perfectly willing to have the question asked. Being certain of my position, I do not dread the inquiry.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The gentleman can see at once—I think he ought to—the entire impropriety of arming these 60,000 census enumerators with the power of addressing questions of that kind to the women of a household. Let us avoid the humiliation that might reasonably follow from anything of that kind.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has advanced no reason, in my judgment, why this amendment should not prevail, and I hope that the House will take the view that we ought to have this information. It is very desirable, and we should have it. It is just as desirable, I think, and vastly more important, than other sorts of information that we go after in these inquiries. Schedules relating to population are included, and that schedule will include the name of each inhabitant, the relationship to the head of the family, which may be legitimate or illegitimate, the color—and those are not a bit more pertinent than the inquiries I propose—the sex of each and the conjugal conditions, etc. Now, what do you mean by the conjugal conditions—married or unmarried?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That is all.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Living in legal or illegal relationship?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. No, no; whether they are married or not, that is all.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Very well, Mr. Chairman, if it is important to have this information, is it not more so to have the information I require in my amendment? The color of the people is to be learned. Now, that all goes to a definition of the conditions domestic that obtain in this country, and the inquiry I propose merely goes a little step further. It gives us information on points that are of importance to the entire country, and I think that on reflection even the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] himself will consent to vote for this amendment.

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I favor the amendment proposed by my colleague, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SLAYDEN], and I think it a matter of considerable importance. If there is intermarriage between the white race and the black, or the Mongolian, in this country, it is important that this fact should be known. I fail to see the potency of the objection to it. The distinguished chairman of this committee, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], suggests that it may be embarrassing to have some woman asked about the color of her husband. Why, the bill provides that each citizen shall be described by these enumerators as to "color." That, I do not suppose, means merely the complexion, but it applies to the race; and if a woman is asked as to the color of her husband or a husband is asked as to the color of his wife, I can not see any objection to the census enumerator reporting to us or to the department how many marriages exist in the United States between white and negro and white and Mongolian races.

The enumerator gets the information as to color, anyway. Then why should he not state it in his report in reference to marriages? He gets the information, if he does his duty under the provisions of this bill, which my colleague desires given, as shown by the amendment he has offered here. Then, why not let them report as to how many of these people are intermarried? It may be that it would be embarrassing to somebody; but I do not see why a white man, if married to a negro, ought to be ashamed of it. He is no better than the negro he married. If he has married a Mongolian, we want to know that fact also, in order that the record may show how far a mixture of races has proceeded in this country. If there are no such marriages, then we want the satisfaction of knowing that in this great Republic, under our system of government, and under our present conditions and environments, we are moving on in the progressive march of humanity, keeping the races separate and the blood pure. It seems to me there can be no reason for embarrassment, but that the information here is really of material interest to all sections of the country and ought to be included in the report. It will require no more knowledge, no more inquiry than the enumerators will be compelled to take in doing their duty under this bill. It is simply a law requiring them to extend their report by showing what the status is in reference to marriages of those of different colors, and I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Will the gentleman from Texas allow a question? How will he have the investigation conducted? Would he authorize the enumerators throughout the country to make these inquiries from the fathers, mothers, and heads of families, or would he require the enumerator to simply report those cases that came to him incidentally?

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. Why, let him make the report that common sense would require him to make. Now he makes the report as to what is the color of the man and his wife; then, why not say that this person of color and this person not of color are married?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Is it not of as much importance, perhaps greater from a sociological standpoint, to know how many children are the result of illegitimate sexual intercourse between the races?

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. So far as that is concerned, this amendment would assist in ascertaining that fact, because they can state, as required by the amendment, how many marriages are of mixed blood, and then we could have some basis for calculating the illegitimate issue, if you have an interest in that. It seems to me about the only embarrassment there can be in this matter would be the opposition from some race—in fact, from the colored races—that might affect the vote of some Members on this question; but it seems to me it ought not to be embarrassing at all, for the information here is for the good of the country. It is not partisan, it is not political, it ought not to be considered sectional. It is simply a report that should be made on a matter about which we all ought to have information and which I believe would be for the good of this country. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The question was taken, and the Chair announced the noes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. SLAYDEN) there were—ayes 37, noes 43.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Section 8, line 6, after the word "home," insert as follows: "and whether or not a survivor of the Union or Confederate Army or Navy."

Mr. LAMB. This is just to enumerate soldiers on both sides, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, let us have the amendment reported again.

The amendment was again reported.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment to the same paragraph.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 6, line 1, after the word "manufactures," insert "and natural resources belonging to the Government."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the effect of that amendment, if adopted, would be to have the census work include a census of the natural resources of the country so far as they are upon the public domain.

We have heard recently a great deal about conserving the natural resources. There is now in the city of Washington a congress, or whatever it may be called, for the conservation of the natural resources. We have at various times different propositions presented before Congress and before the executive branches of the Government for the expenditure of large sums of money for the conservation of the natural resources. Congress and the Executive are now at a disagreement in reference to the use of water power upon the navigable streams of the country. No one knows what the water power is that may be utilized. No one knows what the natural resources may be in the forests. No one knows what the natural resources are upon the public domain of the country. You make inquiry of the Land Office, but they have no knowledge on the subject. You may make inquiry of any branch of the Government, and they have none, or, at least, but little knowledge of the subject, and it seems to me that while we are on the threshold of entering upon the expenditure of large sums of money for the purpose of conserving our natural resources, it ought to be done upon some systematic plan based upon information obtained by us before we go too far.

I have not the slightest doubt that it will become the duty of Congress, will become the inevitable will of Congress and the people, that the resources of the country shall be conserved and protected as far as possible, and that wise policy shall be adopted by Congress in its legislation for that purpose. And the first thing to do is to ascertain what resources we now have on our national domain belonging to the people before we undertake to say what shall be done with, at least, those resources, and before we undertake to say what policy we shall adopt in regard to that domain.

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman explain how he is going to acquire that information during the taking of a census? Let me put to him a specific question. Take the amount of coal lands in one of the Western States, and how are you going to ascertain the amount of coal or the amount of coal lands in a given State by the census enumerators?

Mr. MANN. Well, the gentleman, of course, is perfectly well aware, as everybody in the world is aware, that it is not possible to tell exactly, or probably evenly approximately, the amount of anything that is out of sight, that is underground, that is beyond the ascertainment of knowledge. I have heard the gentleman asseverate on the floor of this House in favor of the taking of geological surveys in his State. What do they learn? They learn all that they can, and they present the knowledge to the public and to the Congress. Does the gentleman suppose that such knowledge is complete? Not at all. It is the best they can get.

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman submit to another question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. BONYNGE. Does he propose that we shall conduct another geological survey while we are taking a census?

Mr. MANN. Not at all.

Mr. BONYNGE. I have talked for a geological survey, because the men connected therewith are equipped to secure the information that we are seeking, but it does not follow that because they are efficient and so well equipped the census enumerators would be equally well equipped.

Mr. MANN. That would depend on who the census enumerators were. The gentleman states that the Geological Survey is well equipped. It has often happened in the past, and it will often happen in the future, that in the ground where the Geological Survey has made a most thorough examination and has reported nothing, they have afterwards found the finest fields of natural resources.

Mr. ROBINSON. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON. I would like to ask the gentleman if he has considered the question of the practicability of getting this information by the Census Bureau, and whether or not it had better be done by other bureaus of the Government, or whether it can be practically done by the Bureau of the Census?

Mr. MANN. Well, I think there will be no trouble in acquiring information, which necessarily will be to a large extent superficial, much of which will not be taken from men in the field, but much of which will be obtained from work already done by the Government; but it is impossible to-day to learn approximately even the results of the work already done by the Government in any tabulated form.

Mr. ROBINSON. Will the gentleman yield to a further question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON. Does the gentleman not recognize the fact that this service he proposes would require the services of experts before the statistics or information secured could be of any practical value whatever, and does he not think that the work had better be done by the bureaus in charge of that particular branch of the work?

Mr. MANN. It is not done by anybody to-day. There is no effort on the part of the Government to ascertain the natural resources of the Government, and no present means of ascertaining anything at all about it.

Just let me ask the gentleman a question. Does anybody know the water powers owned by the Government?

Mr. ROBINSON. I do not know. I would like to ask the gentleman from Illinois this further question: Does not the gentleman from Illinois admit that the kind and character of information which would be secured in this investigation would be practically of little value in his answer to the gentleman from Colorado?

Mr. MANN. Oh, the gentleman does not want to put such language in my mouth.

Mr. ROBINSON. Will the gentleman from Illinois yield to a further question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON. Does he not know and say that the information will be necessarily superficial; and if so, would such information be of value to the country?

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from Arkansas and I are good friends. I do not think the question requires further answer.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

Mr. ROBINSON. If the gentleman is satisfied with that answer, I am.

Mr. MANN. I think everybody is satisfied.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I certainly hope the distinguished gentleman from Illinois will not insist upon his amendment; but if he does, I sincerely hope that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union will vote the amendment down. In the first place, the work that his amendment contemplates is not logically statistical work. It is largely investigation of a scientific nature that does not belong to the Census Office. Furthermore, my recollection is that every sundry civil appropriation bill carries a large sum of money authorizing some department of the Government to investigate the water question and the fuel question; and we can instruct the Commissioner of the Land Office to inform Congress of the classification he has made of the mineral lands and the coal lands and the timber lands and the agricultural lands. I presume that information is readily accessible.

Mr. MANN. Well, it is not.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, it ought to be.

Mr. MANN. Why, of course it ought to be, and that is what I want to get.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. But you are beginning at the wrong place. You ought to obtain that information from the department that is administering the public-land laws. That office has special agents and is equipped for scientific investigation. I think the gentleman from Illinois will agree with me that the Census Office ought not to undertake scientific investigations. It merely ascertains and reports statistical facts. It ought not to enter into investigations of a speculative character, such as water investigations and the probable potential power of a particular stream of water.

But the most vital objection to it is that the four principal inquiries contained in the bill will keep the Census Office busy during the entire decennial census period in making investigations and reports. If the work of the Census Office is increased the country can not expect the office to make all these investigations and get them reported out in time. If this is proper work for the Census Office to do, it ought to come during the interdecennial census period. It ought to be part of the work of the permanent office, and not of the temporary office, during that period of great responsibility involving large investigations which it is required to conclude and report within a specific time. It will be impossible to conduct the work that the bill already contemplates and secure satisfactory results if this amendment prevails. There are a number of substantial reasons.

I think the gentleman probably is right in the main in desiring a better knowledge of our natural resources, but we ought to know what we are doing and how we are doing it when we make appropriations for the investigation of water courses, and so forth, what we have already done, and the results of those investigations. These results can be obtained from the Land Office and other departments respectively charged with the work.

Mr. MADDEN. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Certainly.

Mr. MADDEN. Is the gentleman willing to admit that it is a wise thing to get the information upon which to base the appropriations of contemplated expenditures of vast sums of money out of the Public Treasury before the appropriations are made?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Most certainly; but I do not think we ought to use the Census Office solely for the purpose of enabling the Committee on Appropriations to make appropriations. The Census Office is not for any such purpose. It has not the equipment.

Mr. MADDEN. Does the gentleman think this information is being sought for the purpose of enabling the Committee on Appropriations to make appropriations?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I presume not. I presume the gentleman offered the amendment in good faith, for the purpose of getting information respecting the natural resources of the country. It is a great problem. I am in thorough sympathy with any wise movement tending to conserve natural resources, of course, but that does not mean that we ought to load up the Census Office with investigations of this character. Further, it does not mean that we ought to require the Census Office to make this great investigation during the decennial census period, when it can not possibly do it.

Mr. MADDEN. There are projects on foot now contemplating the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars in the conservation of the natural resources of the country. Would the gentleman think it a wise business proposition to have information upon which to base these appropriations before they are made?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I think as a general proposition it is a good thing to have some information before we enact any important legislation. We ought to have some information before we make any considerable appropriations of public money, of course.

Mr. MADDEN. And does the gentleman think the plan suggested in the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] would produce evidence such as would enable us to act intelligently?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. No; I do not. I think the amendment is not a practicable one. It ought to call upon some of the other departments to furnish information that is readily under their control.

Mr. PARSONS. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I will yield.

Mr. PARSONS. Does not the gentleman think a census of the natural resources of the country should be taken once in ten years?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I am inclined to think so. We have a bill pending before our committee now for a census of standing timber. I think it ought to be taken, but we all agreed that it ought not to be taken during the decennial census period. That ought to be part of the work of the permanent office. It is properly statistical work. We can secure the acreage and the stumpage of timber.

Mr. PARSONS. This bill provides for the Thirteenth Decennial Census.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Yes.

Mr. PARSONS. If you are going to take a decennial census of the natural resources of the country, why not provide for it in this bill? It may be that the other machinery in the bill at present will not suffice for taking a census of the natural resources of the country, but if you make this amendment, then later on you can add something calling for the cooperation of other departments, and in that way taking a census of the natural resources at the same time you take the census of population and publish it all together.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. In the first place, an investigation of such importance as this, one that will cost nobody knows how much money, ought to go to a committee. It ought to be thoroughly investigated. Officers in the various departments who may be presumed to have knowledge respecting such things ought to appear and instruct the committee, and an intelligent report ought to be made to the Congress before any action is taken.

The gentleman from Illinois is suggesting a policy that would lead, he says, to information and intelligent action. Ought not this committee to have information respecting this matter, in order that it may act intelligently? I appeal to the members of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union and ask them if this is the business way to handle the affairs of the people—that an amendment of this importance should be adopted without any investigation and without any knowledge of the expense involved, and without any knowledge of the time, scope, character, or effect of the investigation. So I submit, Mr. Chairman, however desirable the investigation may be, a mere statement of the proposition ought to induce the gentleman from Illinois—careful, able, and conscientious as he is—to withdraw the amendment and apologize to the committee for even offering it. [Laughter.]

Mr. ROBINSON. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, my reason for opposing this amendment is not because I do not desire to secure definite information as speedily as possible concerning our natural resources, nor to do everything in my power reasonably to conserve the same, but because as a member of the Census Committee I am convinced that this work can not at this time be done by the Census Bureau without considerable additional legislation. I maintain that statistics of this kind or information of this nature would require the services of experts, which are not provided for or contemplated in this bill; and as the gentleman from Indiana has wisely suggested, if I understood him correctly, such information as that should be as accurate as possible. It could not be accurate if procured in this way. Furthermore, we have bureaus of this Government that are charged in some degree at least with the investigation of this subject, and they are better qualified to make the investigation than the Census Bureau. It might be possible that additional legislation not here suggested, not here contemplated by the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois, might make this legislation proper, but it is not before the House at this time. I insist that, in my view of the matter, the legislation ought not to be adopted without full consideration by the House, full consideration by a proper committee, because statistics secured by the ordinary census enumerator relating to the amount of coal, for instance, as suggested by the gentleman from Colorado, and other natural resources would not be in any way accurate, and at best, as said by the gentleman from Illinois, would only be superficial. I, for one, do not think that we should undertake an investigation of that sort in this bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the lack of information in the House and in the Committee on the Census. If this bill had just been reported into the House, I do not know that I should have made the suggestion, but since this bill was prepared, since it was reported into the House, since it was considered on a former occasion, there has grown up in the country a most formidable sentiment in favor of the conservation of the natural resources of the country and in favor of ascertaining what those natural resources are. The people have come to believe that the resources of our country are being largely wasted by the methods employed in the use of them for our good.

Now, gentlemen say that we have not information enough upon which to proceed, and yet we are urged as a Congress to proceed in various directions in laying out policies for the future. While I am not afraid to move along lines which may have been suggested for the conservation of the resources, I believe that it is the duty of the House, at the first opportunity after this principle has been enunciated by the people in favor of the conservation of the resources, to learn something about what resources we have. No one expects a scientific, complete investigation of our resources in the census work; no one expects, as the gentleman from Arkansas states, that such census would be taken by the ordinary enumerator. We have various bureaus of the Government that have been engaged and that are now engaged in ascertaining such information as they think can be utilized. Perhaps these same branches of the Government may be utilized further, but we are asked to determine our policies with reference to the resources of the country without any information as to what we have, especially on the public domain. We are asked to dispose of our public lands, to give away our timber lands, without knowing, without anyone knowing, anything about the value of them.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, I desire to ask the gentleman from Illinois a question. When the gentleman from Illinois spoke to me a short time ago about his amendment this fact did not occur to me: That is, whether it is practicable or not for the Census Bureau to take a census or make an investigation into the question of our natural resources. For example, how are they to take a census of the coal lands of the United States without the aid of scientists and geologists, and is not that work now being done by the Geological Survey? In the matter of forests, is it not a fact that the Forestry Service of the Government is making a census or compiling statistics showing the extent of our natural resources along that line?

Mr. MANN. Answering the gentleman's last question first, it is not such a fact; the Forestry Bureau is not engaged in such examinations or engaged in taking such statistics. Now, on the question of coal, in answer to the gentleman's first question, I do not know whether we will ever learn what coal we have. I doubt very much whether when the gentleman and I have long passed into our graves the people will know the coal resources of the country, and yet we are told every day what coal resources we have for the future. Upon what is this information based? We can have at least as authentic information collected together in the form of statistics as the wild, loose information that we are constantly assailed with by all branches of people, assuming that it is correct. I do not know. We can collect such information as is available and can have readily obtained information which can be seen, information which has been gathered together. We can put that together in such shape that we and the rest of the people may know what it is, all of us knowing that no one knows what lies beneath the ground.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I would ask that the gentleman's time be extended five minutes in order that I may ask him a question or two.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. How is the Department of Justice getting along with the prosecution of land-fraud matters out West? We have had a lot of timber-land and coal-land matters brought to the attention of the House and the country in the course of the last few years. We have had considerable to do legislatively on this subject. I have not seen the Attorney-General's report for this year, and I would like to know what the Attorney-General's report says.

Mr. MANN. I have not read the Attorney-General's report this year. Mr. Chairman, I would say that I once made a speech in the House on that subject that caused me so much trouble that I almost resolved never to refer to the subject again.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. The gentleman would know that I would not cause him any trouble, because the gentleman knows he stands very high in my opinion.

Mr. Chairman, I did not intend to say anything on this subject, but sitting here and listening to what has been said reminds me of a matter that was before the Committee on Public Lands at the last session of Congress and also of a letter I had in my desk from Secretary Garfield. A bill something of this nature came before the Public Lands Committee. It seems that a number of people had gone out into New Mexico and taken up apparently the whole face of the earth out there, covered by rich timber land, and the Government undertook to investigate those parties. Suits in equity and criminal suits were instituted. A little later a lot of people came here to Congress, a great crowd of men from New Mexico, some eight or ten, stopped a week or ten days, and undertook to get a bill passed, as it were, to wipe out all this litigation from the courts in New Mexico by some sort of compromise. I did not like that way of doing business, and I began to investigate the matter, not only in the committee, as best I could, but I appealed to the Attorney-General to know who approved that kind of a compromise. I should have said that the Government in one of the cases—the main case—had won the case on a demurrer, and the defendants were required to answer. I wondered why it was that we were asked to wipe out litigation when it looked as though the Government was winning and to substitute this sort of a compromise. So I went to the Attorney-General, Mr. Bonaparte, and spoke to him about it. He also gave me a letter in reply to one that I had mailed him before I went to see him. I am sorry I have not his reply here. I am going to put it in the RECORD, if I can find it. He said to me that after he had filed a bill or bills at the instigation of Mr. Garfield, the Secretary of the Interior, and won on demurrer, Mr. Garfield was agreeing to this compromise, was agreeing to this bill; that I should see him about the bill. So I wrote Mr. Garfield a letter and asked him why he was agreeing to this compromise. Here is my letter:

MARCH 5, 1908.

Hon. JAMES R. GARFIELD,
Secretary of Interior, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: I am informed that you are in favor of the enactment into law of H. R. 16277, touching upon certain lawsuits instituted by the Department of Justice for lands in New Mexico and the disposition of certain public lands.

I am very anxious to protect our public lands, homesteads and timberlands especially, and will be very much favored if you will give me your reasons why you think this bill should be passed.

Very respectfully,

JNO. W. GAINES.

Here is his reply, and, with the indulgence of the committee—I dislike exceedingly to read anything to the House—I am going to read portions to the House for the purpose of showing you how much land, gentlemen, is involved in this litigation here in one Territory:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, March 24, 1908.

Hon. JOHN W. GAINES,
House of Representatives.

DEAR SIR: In order that my answer to your letter of March 5, 1908, might more fully supplement the information sent you by the Attorney-General and the reports on the files of the House Committee on Public Lands, I have delayed answer to receive further reports from the field. The Attorney-General's letter sets forth the various classes of granted land given to the Territory of New Mexico under the act of June 21, 1898, and the various conditions contained in the grant concerning leasing or sale of the land and sale of timber from the land.

The territorial officials intrusted with the care and disposition of the granted land disposed of it contrary to the specific conditions. Upon discovering this the department twice sent an inspector, Mr. E. P. Holcombe, to investigate and report upon conditions. The facts as he reported them were drawn to the attention of the Department of Justice, and the Attorney-General sent his special assistants, Mr. Ormsby McHarg and Mr. Peyton Gordon, to the Territory to act in conjunction with Mr. Holcombe in further investigation and a recommendation of what should be done to rectify the illegal actions of the territorial officials. In the meantime every official connected with the illegal transactions was removed from office. Messrs. McHarg, Gordon, and Holcombe reported by various letters upon the situation.

After a conference with the Attorney-General concerning the nature of suits to be brought, the above officials were recalled from the Territory to be at hand and give all the information within their knowledge. Thereafter, in a conference in which the whole status of the case was gone over, the situation was decided to be, as far as criminal prosecutions was concerned:

"1. That no evidence whatever had been found of direct bribery or corruption of any of the territorial or federal officials concerned.

"2. That all the evidence on hand showed that the territorial officials invited the action of the purchasers of the land and timber with the evident intent of getting money for accomplishing the various objects for which the grants were made.

"3. That the prices contracted for were not extremely low as of the date of the various contracts and sales.

"4. That no criminal intent, other than the intentional evasion of the law, appeared in the evidence at hand either against the territorial officials or the purchasers and timber contractors.

"5. That for the above reasons there was no reasonable prospect of convicting either the officials or purchasers for conspiracy or fraud against the United States or the Territory."

It was decided, however, that all the parties were affected with direct notice that they were disposing of and purchasing land and timber in direct contravention of the specific conditions of the granting act. For that reason the Attorney-General believed that civil suits to cancel the contracts for timber sale, to recover the full value of the timber already cut, and to cancel the deeds for the lands sold, should be instituted. Messrs. McHarg, Gordon, and Holcombe were therefore instructed to return to the Territory and prepare bills in equity to accomplish that end. Accordingly, the following suits were filed for the annulment of contracts for the cutting of timber on granted lands in the Territory of New Mexico and the recovery of the value of the timber already cut and removed:

United States of America v. Territory of New Mexico, American Lumber Company, contract dated November 7, 1904; 7,780 acres, Valencia County.

United States of America v. Territory of New Mexico, American Lumber Company, contract dated December 5, 1904; 29,920 acres, McKinley and Valencia counties.

United States of America v. Territory of New Mexico, Clark M. Carr, contract dated July 28, 1905; 11,377.50 acres, Valencia County.

United States of America v. Territory of New Mexico, Gross Kelly & Co., J. W. Harrison, contract dated January 23, 1906; 1,040 acres, San Miguel County.

All these contractors for the purchase of the timber had agreed to pay $2.50 per acre—to cut or pay for the timber within five years—and to do the cutting under certain rules and regulations concerning diameter limit, protection against life, etc.

I have no conclusive evidence of the actual value of the timber involved in these sales as of the date of the timber contracts.

The suits for cancellation of deeds to land sold in fee, for the reconveyance of title, and for payment of all damages to the land during the time that it was held by the purchasers were as follows:

United States of America v. S. B. Day, 10,804.96 acres, Valencia County.

United States of America v. Gross Kelly & Co., H. W. Kelly, and Richard Dunn, 16,524.24 acres, Torrance County.

United States of America v. Pennsylvania Development Company, New Mexico Fuel and Iron Company, W. S. Hopewell, 7,797.36 acres, Torrance County.

United States of America v. American Lumber Company, Silvestre Marabal, 4,160 acres, Valencia County.

United States of America v. Gross Kelly & Co., 908.56 acres, San Miguel County.

United States of America v. Alamogordo Lumber Company, 23,571.72 acres, Otero County.

All the lands involved in these suits are covered with timber. Some of them will average less than 3,500 feet to the acre. It is believed that the general average is between 4,000 and 5,000 feet per acre. In addition to the sales of land for which the above suits were filed, there were also sold to Mr. T. A. Schomburg 5,874 acres of timber land in Rio Arriba County. No suit was filed against Mr. Schomburg, because he voluntarily reconveyed the land to the United States, but the deeds are held in escrow by the district attorney in order that Mr. Schomburg may, if he wishes, obtain the same terms of settlement as the other defendants, provided Congress should see fit to pass the law allowing settlement of the suits.

Very respectfully,

JAMES RUDOLPH GARFIELD, Secretary.

I replied to this letter as follows:

MARCH 31, 1908.

Hon. JAMES R. GARFIELD,
Secretary Department of the Interior, Washington.

DEAR SIR: I am just in receipt of yours of the 24th instant, in the matter of the public lands in court and out of court in the Territory of New Mexico, which I know I shall read with pleasure.

I am trying my best to protect our lumber interests and homesteads and punish the wrongdoers wherever I can. My motives are wholly unselfish. I have no public lands in Tennessee. I am trying to save the lands in another way—that is to say, when they are sold I want them sold at their fair market price, the money put in the Treasury, and expended to the upbuilding of the unirrigated sections of the West.

I regret to have put you to so much trouble, but my effort is entirely sincere and for the public good.

Yours, very respectfully, JNO. W. GAINES.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Tennessee has expired.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I want five minutes more, or some little time more. I want to make a single observation.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee. [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Now, I am going to ask consent to put all of this letter in the RECORD, together with the letters I addressed to General Bonaparte, if I can find it, and Secretary Garfield's and my reply, so that all Members may see them. Now, gentlemen, this compromise bill is now pending before the Committee on Public Lands. Heaven knows how many acres of land are involved. Just let me run over some of these figures. Here are 7,000 acres, 29,000 acres, 11,000 acres, 1,000 acres, 10,000 acres, 16,000 acres, 7,000 acres, 4,000 acres, 908 acres, and 23,000 acres. Now, that is in one Territory.

I understand some criminal prosecutions of these cases have been dismissed; I do not know how the fact is. That is the general information I have, and hence my inquiry of my friend from Illinois. Mr. Chairman, it is an outrage, judging from this letter which I trust you will read to-morrow; it is an outrage that great concerns and possibly small ones have gone out on the public domain and taken from the Government of the United States our public lands contrary to the terms of the grant and contrary to the welfare not only of the Government as such, but of the people, who want to go out there in the West and make their homesteads, and I hope the time will come, if, indeed, it is not already at hand, when not simply the injunctive process of the federal court will be used, but the criminal process of the federal court will be used to stop these frauds. Not until the agency of the criminal law is invoked, and vigorously, will we get rid of this thing of our forests being stripped of their splendid timbers and our Government of its broad acres which our fathers left for posterity to build homesteads on. I am anxious to preserve the forests, irrigate land, and to build up locks and dams over the country; but where in the name of God are we going to get the lumber to do it if the lumber kings unlawfully deny the people the right to go out in the West and take up homesteads? They have gone there and taken their sawmills and their steam axes, I presume, and have mowed down the timbers that should stay there to be sawed into lumber for our own grandchildren in the future. A large portion of that timber is not only sawed into lumber, but sent to foreign lands and not used to build up homes in our territory, where there are few homes; not to move back the wigwams and plant civilization where it should be.

I make these observations simply to bring before you gentlemen what has been in my mind some time in regard to these public lands in order that we may protect our forests for ourselves and our posterity, and I insist that we should look to our criminal laws to aid the reform.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois will prevail. I was honored with an appointment to the commission for the conservation of the natural resources of the country, and during the last week we were in session for four or five days. A vast amount of exceedingly interesting information was presented to that commission, which all indicated an alarming state of depletion in some of the most essential resources of the country. That is particularly true of coal and other minerals and of the forest resources. In the course of the discussion that was had by that commission it was ordered in the report that the President be requested to ask of Congress a law—in the census, it was understood—which would provide for a more complete inventory (I believe that was the word) of the natural resources of the country.

Now, sir, that inventory can best be made by the Census Bureau. The census will be discharging its great work, undertaken once in a decade, at the particular time when we will require this information. They will have the agents for the gathering of this information, and can easily have associated with them the scientific experts connected with the Geological Survey and other bureaus of the Government. These agencies, cooperating, can provide the country with information which the commission for the conservation of the natural resources believe is a highly desirable thing to have. I hope that the committee will permit the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] to prevail.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Let me ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Certainly.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The gentleman realizes the importance of making these four principal inquiries within the time fixed in the bill. They are vital questions, and he appreciates the necessity of having those investigations made and the results given to the public at the earliest date practicable if they are to be of any value to the country. Now, if this investigation should so involve the work as to postpone the time in which these great investigations should be made, for two, three, or four years, say, like the Eleventh Census, and the reports would be gotten out so late that they would have no current value, would the gentleman still insist upon putting the amendment into the bill?

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, I do not admit that it is necessary that any such delay should follow. It is a matter of clerical detail to arrange for this work to be jointly done by scientific experts and the regular employees of the Census Bureau.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The Committee on the Census investigated the timber question, and the director said the office can not make any other investigation than those provided for during the census period. Speculative in its character, it would simply confuse and embarrass and practically destroy the value of these great inquiries that we do contemplate making. That will be the effect of the gentleman's proposition. I insist that this House ought to have more information respecting the question and better knowledge of the effect that this investigation would have upon those investigations that are of vital importance before legislating this amendment into the bill.

Mr. PARSONS. I would like to ask the gentleman a question before he sits down.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the floor to the gentleman from New York [Mr. PARSONS].

Mr. PARSONS. Mr. Chairman, I do not understand that if the census of the natural resources of the Government, which is what the amendment calls for, is to be taken that it would have to be taken by the enumerators of the Census Office. It would be taken by the experts employed in the scientific bureaus of the Government. Its publication will not necessarily delay——

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman yield to a question?

Mr. PARSONS. Gladly.

Mr. BONYNGE. How does the gentleman say it will be taken by the experts employed, and what is there now in the different bureaus, and what is there in this bill that would compel it to be taken by those experts instead of organizing a new force and duplicating the work by other experts and scientists employed by the Census Bureau?

Mr. PARSONS. There is nothing in the bill, even if you adopt this amendment, to require the Census Bureau to take this census by itself. I will refer the gentleman to the first section of the bill, in which he will see that the Director of the Census is required to take the census of the population, agriculture, manufactures, mines, and quarries of the United States.

But this amendment says that the census also of the natural resources shall be taken.

Mr. BONYNGE. By the Director of the Census, and not through the experts and scientists employed in the other bureaus, and it can not be construed and would not be construed otherwise unless the Director of the Census would employ such force as he might require to make this independent census by his own agents and servants instead of using the agents and servants now in the federal employment.

Mr. PARSONS. May I suggest that if this amendment is adopted, then in a later part of the bill the proper provision will be made so that for this information the Director of the Census can call on the scientific bureaus of the Government to make this census of the natural resources.

Mr. TAWNEY. What would be the necessity of doing that when the scientists of the other bureaus are all publishing to the world their discoveries and the result of their investigations?

Mr. PARSONS. They are making discoveries, but not publishing them in census form, and it is in census form that we wish to have them. Now, we have questions as to the disposition of the coal on the public lands, and what to do with the water power on the public lands and various other things on the public lands. We ought to have a census statement as to what these resources on the public lands are in each locality; and only by having this can we act intelligently. Therefore we ought to call upon the various bureaus, through this bill, for a statistical statement in detail of these resources; and I take it that such is the real object of this amendment.

Mr. SLAYDEN and Mr. PRINCE rose.

Mr. PRINCE. Will the gentleman yield to me for a question?

Mr. PARSONS. I will first yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SLAYDEN. I want to suggest to the gentleman from New York that when the Twelfth Census was taken, if I remember correctly, any number of gentlemen were borrowed, so to speak, from the scientific branches of the Government during the taking of that census to assemble and conduct that work as employees of the Census Bureau, although their permanent official residence was in other bureaus; and it could be done again.

Mr. PARSONS. Exactly. That was my understanding.

Mr. PRINCE. Can the gentleman state to the House, if this amendment were adopted, would Congress more readily and promptly get the desired information that it needs in order to make appropriations for the conservation of the natural resources of the country?

Mr. PARSONS. Yes; I think it would.

Mr. PRINCE. Do you not think that if this matter, under this amendment, is made a matter for the Census Bureau, when the Census Bureau has ten years in which to make its tabulated report and print them in form for the public, it will delay the business that we all desire to speedily have performed in conserving the natural resources of the country?

Mr. PARSONS. Why, in order to know what we should do to conserve the natural resources of the country, we first have to have an inventory of what they are. We have no such inventory now. We have bureaus making scientific reports; but they are not complete and do not attempt to show what the natural resources are in each State. If we adopt this amendment we can get this detailed information.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Illinois.

The question was taken, and the Chairman announced that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. MANN. I ask for a division, Mr. Chairman.

The committee divided, and there were—ayes 17, noes 32.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to this paragraph?

Mr. PRINCE. I want to make one formal amendment with a view of getting information about the first paragraph of section 8, and I move to strike out the last word of the section for that purpose.

I desire to ask the gentleman in charge of the bill a question. I see by your bill that "the Thirteenth Census shall be restricted to inquiries relating to population, to agriculture, to manufacture, and to mines and quarries." Now, the Constitution originally relates that the purpose of the census was to find the number of inhabitants with a view of making an apportionment, to arrive at the number of Members of Congress who should serve from the different States, and with a view of making a direct tax upon population. Will you be kind enough to tell me when this original purpose of the law was modified, and the occasion of this great growth, both in the scope of the census enumeration and in the great additional expense that has been added for the taking of the census?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, it began with the first census. In 1790 there was more than a mere counting of the population. In authorizing the census in 1790, Congress required certain social information that, of course, had no relation to the mere imposition of a capitation tax or apportionment of representatives. But I take the position now that the Federal Government, with its power to maintain an army and a navy, to establish post-offices and post-roads and military roads, to impose excise taxes and perform all the functions that belong to a national government, has inherently the right to investigate its own resources in order that the legislative branch of the Government may legislate intelligently respecting the powers expressly conferred upon it by the Federal Constitution.

Mr. PRINCE. I withdraw the pro forma amendment.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Amend section 8, line 7, page 6, by inserting, after the word "include," the words "all persons engaged in agricultural pursuits."

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I have no objection to that amendment. I think of course it is included, but if there is any doubt about it, and the gentleman from Ohio thinks there is, I have no objection to it.

Mr. KEIFER. Then I will not occupy time in discussing it.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Amend by inserting the word "actually" between the words "capital" and "invested," in line 30, page 6.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I did not understand that amendment. Will the Clerk please report it again?

Mr. BONYNGE. He does not want imaginary capital. He wants actual capital.

The amendment was again read.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I have no objection to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Amend by inserting between the word "invested," in line 20, and the word "number," in line 21, page 6, the following:

"The amount of capital stock authorized, the amount of such stock issued, and what amount of stock, if any, has been authorized or issued in excess of the amount of capital actually invested."

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That comes within the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor, and those investigations are being made occasionally. It is no part of the work of the Census Office. It is inquisitorial in its character, and the result would be that the real facts that are desired for proper statistical purposes would be exceedingly difficult to secure.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of the amendment is definiteness. It is to get, if possible, information by which we can know whether the capital is real or whether it is watered. There is already an inquiry provided for as to the capital invested. Now, this merely extends that along the same line. It does not go into any other line, but the inquiry is as to what is the proportion or relation between actual investment and capitalization. If that is an invasion of the province of the Bureau of Corporations, this whole provision is. If it is an invasion to ask whether the stock is in excess, and if so, how much, of the capital invested, then it is also an invasion to ask what the capital is. Now, this inquiry probably would be answered, if the other inquiry be not added to it, by a statement of what the capital stock is. For instance, if a corporation is capitalized at $100,000, if there were but the one inquiry, the information might be elicited that the capital invested is $100,000, while as a matter of fact the amount of the capital invested might be $50,000 or $25,000 or any other sum. It is merely a drawing of a distinction between the amount of money put in, the amount of property put in, and the amount of capitalization, where there is a difference between the two. Where there is no difference, of course there is nothing additional disclosed. Where there is a difference, it seems to me that that ought to be disclosed. It is information that is very easily given. As the provision now stands, in a case where there has been an amount invested and a capitalization beyond that, or watered stock issued, the information elicited, instead of being real information, will be that which misleads. If $500,000 has been invested in a plant, and capital stock is issued to the amount of $1,000,000, with the inquiry as it is now, the statement will go forth that the capital invested in that plant is $1,000,000. If there be no difference between the actual investment and the actual capitalization, there certainly can be no harm and no confusion. Now, it is an inquiry directly to those who can answer that inquiry. It is asking "How much money have you in your plant? How much stock have you issued? Is there an issue of stock in excess of the investment, and if so, to what extent?" It appears to me that it is useful information, and that in order to avoid getting misinformation, in order to get a statement of the amount of stock, actual and watered, in answer to the inquiry of how much money is invested, it is at least proper, and I think very necessary, to have the supplemental inquiry that I have suggested.

I do not think that the objection suggested by the gentleman from Indiana is one that lies to this a bit more than it would lie to any other inquiry along this line. If you ask how much capital is invested in your business, you are not treading on any dangerous ground in asking whether your capitalization accords with the investment or whether your capitalization is partly real and partly bogus; whether your issue of stock is partly upon the investment and partly upon water. I really think that it is such an amendment as ought to be adopted, and such as will tend to perfect the provision.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DE ARMOND].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. DE ARMOND) there were 25 ayes and 31 noes.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chair appointed as tellers Mr. DE ARMOND and Mr. CRUMPACKER.

Mr. HARDY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the language of the amendment read again.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the Clerk will again read the amendment.

There was no objection, and the Clerk read the amendment a second time.

The committee again divided; and the tellers reported that there were 38 ayes and 50 noes.

So the amendment was lost.

Mr. HITCHCOCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding to line 25, page 6, "quantity and value of products sold to the export trade."

Mr. HITCHCOCK. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is to afford another means of ascertaining the figures and volume of our export trade in home manufactures. I understand that the present method by which the Secretary of the Treasury gathers statistics showing the amount of our export trade is inaccurate, depending upon bills of lading or ship manifests gathered at the port of exportation. My idea in this amendment is to require the census enumerators, when they gather their statistics from manufacturers, to include the quantity and value of the manufacturers' exports, and state also upon their schedules the quantity and value of their products which are sold to the foreign trade.

We are all interested in the development of our foreign trade, and I believe that the statistics upon which we depend for information as to this development are at the present time inaccurate. Just now, also, Mr. Chairman, the country has been a good deal agitated and a good deal interested in the revelations concerning the details of the foreign trade under which American products have been sold to foreign consumers at prices lower than they have been sold to American consumers, and in investigating this fact it has been discovered that our statistical information is very defective. If we incorporate this amendment in the census law, it will not only harmonize with the other provisions of the law, but will afford an additional check upon the defective information that the American people must now depend upon for their knowledge of the export trade and of American manufactures.

I can see no objection to the amendment, and it seems to be in line with the other provisions of the section.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, there is no legitimate purpose that can be served by the amendment, because it is a well-known fact that many of the manufacturers whose products may be exported do not themselves export the products. The information would be practically worthless. It would be of far less value than the statistics respecting exports that are kept in the Treasury Department; and these enumerators who are to work only twenty or thirty days collecting information would hardly be able to make an investigation that would be of any value bearing directly upon commerce. The object of the census is to ascertain the volume of production in manufactures, the character of the products, whether the industry is operated by a corporation, a joint stock company, or a partnership, the manner of its organization, officers, salaries, stocks, and such things that are purely statistical. I think it would be a waste of time and money to make the investigation called for by this amendment.

Mr. HITCHCOCK. I want to say, Mr. Chairman, in reply to the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], that as to the waste of time, that will be infinitesimal, because this amendment will require only the addition of one blank upon the schedules furnished to the manufacturer. As to the objection that the manufacturer is not able to state the quantity or proportion of his goods which are sold abroad, that is a matter which each manufacturer can settle for himself when he comes to make his returns. But I believe it to be a fact that every manufacturer does know substantially the proportion of his goods which is sold to the foreign trade and the proportion which is sold to the home trade. If he does not make the sales direct to the foreign trade, he at least knows the destination practically of all of the manufactured goods; that is, he knows whether it is for domestic or whether it is for foreign use, and certainly there can be no substantial objection. This involves no additional expense, it is not out of harmony with the inquiry as to other details of the census, and I can not see any possible harm from supplying the American people with a direct statement from the manufacturer himself as to the proportion of his foreign and domestic trade.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Nebraska.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. CRUMPACKER) there were—ayes 36, noes 43.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting between the words "manufactures" and "amount," line 24, page 6, the following:

"And what proportion of said materials is of domestic and what of foreign production."

Mr. DE ARMOND. Is there any objection to that amendment, I will ask the gentleman from Indiana?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Yes. It is impossible to get such information.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Well, we might not be able to ascertain, but it would not be impossible to inquire. We are providing now for inquiries; we are not answering them.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That is true enough, but we ought to pursue inquiries where we can get facts. Where we could get guesses only, it would be of no value.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Chairman, the effect of the amendment, if adopted, would be to submit an inquiry to the manufacturer in connection with other inquiries as to the proportion of the materials used in his manufacture of foreign production and of domestic production. I can very well understand that in some instances he could not answer, in other instances his answer would be an approximation, in others he could answer very easily and accurately. I can not see any objection to asking the manufacturer himself. If he would not answer, there would be no penalty on his saying so. If he could answer, it would be an inquiry to answer. Now, the information would be interesting, I think, and it might be valuable, and in a good many lines I am satisfied it would be valuable; in a good many instances information would be elicited, and it would throw a good deal of light upon a good many questions about which we legislate and about which the people talk and which engage their interest. Understand, we are on a paragraph providing for inquiries to be submitted by enumerators; we are not fixing the penalty for failure to answer. We are not determining in advance whether a question can be answered. In a great many instances this could; in some it could not. The question is whether we will submit the inquiry or whether we will not submit it. I can think of no good objection against submitting it.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. DE ARMOND) there were—ayes 36, noes 41.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 9. That the Director of the Census shall, at least one year prior to the date for commencing the enumeration at the Thirteenth and each succeeding decennial census, designate the number, whether one or more, of supervisors of census for each State and Territory, the District of Columbia, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, Porto Rico, Guam, Samoa, and the Panama Canal Zone, and shall define the districts within which they are to act. The supervisors shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate: Provided, That the whole number of supervisors shall not exceed 330: And provided further, That so far as practicable and desirable the boundaries of the supervisors' districts shall conform to the boundaries of the congressional districts: And provided further, That if in any supervisor's district the supervisor has not been appointed and qualified ninety days preceding the date fixed for the commencement of the enumeration, or if any vacancy shall occur thereafter, either through death, removal, or resignation of the supervisor, or from any other cause, the Director of the Census may appoint a temporary supervisor or detail an employee of the Census Office to act as supervisor for that district.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have it read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by striking out the words "Guam, Samoa, and the Panama Canal Zone," in line 2, page 8, and inserting the word "and" between the words "islands" and "Porto Rico," line 1, page 8.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I do this so that the section will conform to section 1 of the bill as amended by the Committee of the Whole House.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 10. That each supervisor of census shall be charged with the performance, within his own district, of the following duties: To consult with the Director of the Census in regard to the division of his district into subdivisions most convenient for the purpose of the enumeration, which subdivisions or enumeration districts shall be defined and the boundaries thereof fixed by the Director of the Census; to designate to the Director suitable persons, and, with his consent, to employ such persons as enumerators, one or more for each subdivision; to communicate to enumerators the necessary instructions and directions relating to their duties; to examine and scrutinize the returns of the enumerators, and in the event of discrepancies or deficiencies appearing in any of the said returns to use all diligence in causing the same to be corrected or supplied; to forward the completed returns of the enumerators to the Director at such time and in such manner as shall be prescribed, and to make up and forward to the Director the accounts of each enumerator in his district for service rendered, which accounts shall be duly certified to by the enumerator, and the same shall be certified as true and correct, if so found, by the supervisor, and said accounts so certified shall be accepted and paid by the Director. The duties imposed upon the supervisor by this act shall be performed in any and all particulars in accordance with the orders and instructions of the Director of the Census.

Mr. KELIHER. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 9, line 15, after the word "Director," insert:

"Provided, That in the selection and appointment of enumerators preference shall be given in the various localities to persons serving as substitute letter carriers and those upon the eligible lists for carriers in the postal service."

Mr. KELIHER. Mr. Chairman, my purpose in offering that amendment is to present to the directors or supervisors a competent body of men from whom to select these enumerators. We have in the postal service some 50,000 or 60,000 men who have participated in civil-service examinations and have gone upon the eligible lists for appointment as carriers.

The nature of the examination they take is such as to bring to the service a competent body of men, and I can see no reason why, with this vast list available, these men could not be selected to perform this work. They are all, as I have said before, men who have participated in and successfully passed a civil-service examination. They are available; there are enough distributed throughout the country to supply, I believe, the demands made for the taking of this census, and it seems to me a sensible solution of the problem to select these men to take this census.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk resumed and concluded the reading of the bill.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill, with the several amendments agreed to by the committee, to the House with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to by the House and the bills as amended be passed.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. FULLER, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 16954) to provide for the Thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses and had directed him to report the bill to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and the bill as amended be passed.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the bill and amendments to final passage.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the vote will be taken on the amendments in gross.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time; was read the third time.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move to recommit the bill, and on that motion I demand the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The question was taken on the recommitment of the bill, and the motion was rejected.

The question was taken upon the passage of the bill, and the bill was passed.

On motion of Mr. CRUMPACKER, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

REPORT OF JUVENILE COURT, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and ordered to be printed.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the Second Annual Report of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, with accompanying papers, for the consideration of the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 8, 1908.

REPORT OF GOVERNOR OF PORTO RICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Congress the annual report of the governor of Porto Rico for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

R. SANCHEZ MONTALVO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of a franchise granted by the executive council of Porto Rico November 5, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting to R. Sanchez Montalvo, his heirs, successors, and assigns, the right to take and use 41 liters of water per second for industrial purposes from the brook Juan Gonzalez, in the barrio of Pallejas, in the municipal district of Adjuntas."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

TELEPHONE LINE BETWEEN GUAYAMA AND ARROYO, P. R.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance repealing an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance granting to the municipality of Guayama the right to construct a telephone line between Guayama and Arroyo, and to operate the same for public purposes,' enacted December 2, 1902."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

PERMIT TO INSULAR DOCK COMPANY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting a revocable permit to the Insular Dock Company to connect its railway track on pier No. 2 with the track of the American Railroad Company lying along the bulkhead of the harbor of San Juan."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

SAN JUAN LIGHT AND TRANSIT COMPANY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting the San Juan Light and Transit Company a revocable permit or privilege to change the location of that part of its railroad extending from the northeastern corner of the junction of Comercio and Tanca streets to a point in San Justo street north of its intersection with Recinto Sur street to a new location, as follows: Northerly along the most practicable route to Recinto Sur street and thence along said street to San Justo street."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

ARTURO RODRIGUEZ.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to Arturo Rodriguez the right to construct, maintain, and operate a system for the manufacture, distribution and sale of gas for light, heat, and power purposes, in the municipality of San Juan."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance amending an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance granting to Arturo Rodriguez the right to construct, maintain, and operate a system for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of gas for light, heat, and power purposes, in the municipality of San Juan.'"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

A. A. DAVID.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting to A. A. David the right to build, maintain, and operate a public pier in the harbor of San Juan, at Catano."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

A. MONROIG E HIJOS, SUCESORES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico October 29, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting to A. Monroig e Hijos, Successors, the right to construct an iron bridge over the Bayamon River, in the municipal district of Bayamon, barrio of Juan Sanchez."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

COMPAÑÍA DE LOS FERROCARRILES DE PUERTO RICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico November 5, 1908, entitled "An ordinance granting to the Compañía de los Ferrocarriles de Puerto Rico, its successors and assigns, the right to take forty (40) liters of water per minute from the 'Quebrada Ojo de Agua,' near Rincon, for the purpose of furnishing water for its locomotives."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

PABLO CALCERRADA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In accordance with section 32 of an act of Congress entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," approved April 12, 1900, and section 2 of the joint resolution amending said act, approved May 1, 1900, I transmit herewith copy of an ordinance granted by the executive council of Porto Rico, entitled "An ordinance granting a revocable permit to Pablo Calcerrada, his heirs, executors, and assigns, the right to construct, maintain, and operate a private telephone line to connect the three plantations of Latorre, Bartolo, and Mirasol, in the municipal district of Lares."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 9, 1908.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 55 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Librarian of Congress, transmitting a statement of the travel of officers and employees during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Librarian of Congress, transmitting the report of the Librarian and of the superintendent of the Library building and grounds for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on the Library and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting recommendations as to repairs of certain vessels—to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

Annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the state of the finances for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Ways and Means and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a statement as to travel of officers and employees of his department during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a detailed statement of travel of officers and employees of his department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting a report as to power plants in navy-yards, their consolidation, etc.—to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting a statement as to the travel of officers and employees of his department during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting a detailed statement of the expenditures of the department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an abstract of the official emoluments of officers in the customs service received by them during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting report of receipts and expenditures on account of appropriations for contingent expenses of the War Department—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Ordnance, report as to the manufacture of arms, etc., fabricated at the arsenals at Springfield and Rock Island—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Isles of Shoals, Maine and New Hampshire—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Hillsboro Bay, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Missouri River from mouth to Sioux City, Iowa—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of San Francisco Harbor, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Echo Bay, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Camden Harbor, Maine—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Puyallup River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Jones River, Delaware—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Chehalis River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Ordnance, statements as to cost of manufacture of arms and other articles—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Joseph Loudermilk against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Maria Lester, widow of Joe Lester, deceased, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Caroline Wilmans, Daniel Jones, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Reliance, Joseph Chandler, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Kap Kapperer, Blow, master; brig Young, Frederick Harder, master; ship Columbia Fortuna, Pavorick, master; snow Fin Marken, Jorgenson, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the sloop Sally, William Smith, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Atalanta, Stephen Griffiths, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Betsey, James Peterson, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Little Sarah, John Russell, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Ariel, John Griffith, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Atlantic, Ebenezer Stanton, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Roebuck, Simon Kinsman, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Antelope, B. Hillar, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Unity, Samuel Cazneau, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Hope, Tarbox Moulton, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the scow Rover, Wilson Jacobs, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Swift, Joseph McCammon, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Commerce, John Jones, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Fame, John Rust, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Mercury, Samuel Gilpatrick, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Coosa River and Horseleg Falls—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Wilmington Harbor, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Indiana Harbor, Indiana—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Gloucester Harbor, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of St. Johns River, Florida, from Jacksonville to Lake Harney, and survey from Palatka to Lake Harney—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Suisun Channel, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Lake Champlain and survey of St. Albans Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Snohomish River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Sacramento River, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of San Joaquin River and Stockton Channel, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed with illustrations.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Neptune, Seth Burnham, master—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 23237) to prevent the United States from issuing a license or legal permit to any person to sell spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, or other intoxicating beverages in any State, county, city, town, or community where the sale thereof is prohibited by state or local laws—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 23238) authorizing the survey of the Des Moines River, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: A bill (H. R. 23239) making appropriation for the construction and equipment of a Weather Bureau observatory at Lima, Ohio—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23240) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a Code of Law for the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1901—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 23241) to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct experiments to determine the practicability of making paper material out of cotton stalks—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 23242) authorizing the President to classify the assistant postmasters—to the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

By Mr. FOWLER: A bill (H. R. 23243) to provide for maximum and minimum tariff schedules and to establish a commission which shall investigate all duties on imports and fix the rates, etc.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOUTELL: A bill (H. R. 23244) to create in the War and Navy departments, respectively, a roll to be known as the "civil-war officers' annuity honor roll;" to authorize placing thereon with pay certain surviving officers who served in the Volunteer or Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States in the civil war and who are not now on the retired list of the Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HILL of Mississippi: A bill (H. R. 23245) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Grenada, in the State of Mississippi—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23246) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Winona, in the State of Mississippi—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MONDELL: A bill (H. R. 23247) construing the provisions of sections 2291 and 2292 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to the rights of minor children—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. GILLESPIE: A bill (H. R. 23248) for the erection of a federal building for the post-office at Weatherford, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: A bill (H. R. 23249) to authorize the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company and the Lackawanna Railroad Company of New Jersey to construct a bridge across the Delaware River from a point near the village of Columbia, in Knowlton Township, Warren County, N. J., to the village of Slateford, Northampton County, Pa.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BENNET of New York (by request): A bill (H. R. 23250) to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraint and monopolies—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 23251) to increase and fix the pay of petty officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. KALANIANAOLE: A bill (H. R. 23252) to amend sections 5, 26, 52, 55, 73, 80, 84, 91, 92, 97, and 100, and to repeal section 79 of an act entitled "An act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii," approved April 13, 1900—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23463) increasing the pensions of army nurses—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Illinois: Resolution (H. Res. 448) for the appointment of an assistant clerk to Committee on Enrolled Bills—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 23253) granting an increase of pension to John Pattison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23254) granting a pension to Sarah Bush—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23255) to correct the military record of John Morton—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ALLEN: A bill (H. R. 23256) granting an increase of pension to Thomas E. Jacobs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: A bill (H. R. 23257) granting an increase of pension to Zenis Lanham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: A bill (H. R. 23258) granting an increase of pension to Margaret McLellan—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23259) granting an increase of pension to Annie D. Page—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23260) granting a pension to Johanna Dehn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23261) granting a pension to Frank Beehrd, alias Franz Baehrer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23262) granting a pension to Eliza Doerner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23263) granting a pension to Conrad Oppermann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23264) granting a pension to Ida Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23265) granting a pension to Bernhard Springer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23266) granting a pension to William Kern—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23267) granting a pension to Henry Franck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23268) granting a pension to Franz Schmidt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23269) to correct the military record of Frank Clemens Arendes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23270) to correct the military record of John Kannapell, alias John Kline—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 23271) for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of Mrs. E. Ann Lowry—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 23272) granting an increase of pension to William Henry Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 23273) granting an increase of pension to Alvy A. Courtright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23274) granting an increase of pension to William R. Ackerly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23275) granting an increase of pension to Sarah F. Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 23276) granting a pension to John Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23277) granting an increase of pension to L. W. Depew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23278) granting an increase of pension to William D. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23279) granting an increase of pension to Samuel F. Dyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRUMM: A bill (H. R. 23280) granting an increase of pension to Henry Hill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23281) granting an increase of pension to Irving W. Tyson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23282) granting an increase of pension to James D. Bartholemew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23283) granting an increase of pension to William H. Heller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 23284) granting an increase of pension to John Parker Hale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 23285) granting an increase of pension to James Cafferty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23286) granting an increase of pension to John T. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COLE: A bill (H. R. 23287) granting an increase of pension to Loammie Farmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CONNER: A bill (H. R. 23288) granting an increase of pension to John C. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23289) granting an increase of pension to John Lechleiter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23290) granting an increase of pension to Amanda A. Hanly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COX of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 23291) granting an increase of pension to John M. Redus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CRUMPACKER: A bill (H. R. 23292) granting a pension to Hoyt Hayden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23293) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23294) granting an increase of pension to Josiah Castleman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23295) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23296) granting an increase of pension to Philip Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23297) granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Delebaugh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23298) granting an increase of pension to George Rance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23299) granting an increase of pension to James Wilcoxen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23300) granting an increase of pension to Peter Hastings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23301) granting an increase of pension to Madison Obenchain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23302) granting an increase of pension to Jesse Dickens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23303) granting an increase of pension to Jacob F. Kull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 23304) granting a pension to Davis Woody—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23305) granting an increase of pension to Marcus D. Warner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23306) granting an increase of pension to Mary Dickerson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23307) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Kirtley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRAPER: A bill (H. R. 23308) granting a pension to Oliva Wiser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DUREY: A bill (H. R. 23309) granting a pension to Corinne E. Call—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. EDWARDS of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 23310) granting an increase of pension to Milton G. Harbin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23311) granting an increase of pension to James Banks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23312) granting an increase of pension to Thomas G. Hendricks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23313) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Griffis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23314) granting an increase of pension to James A. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23315) granting an increase of pension to Sherrod W. Barnett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23316) granting an increase of pension to Jackson Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23317) granting an increase of pension to Milford M. Britton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23318) granting an increase of pension to Milton Perdue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23319) granting an increase of pension to William Cross—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23320) granting a pension to Albert Werner—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23321) granting a pension to William Jackson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23322) granting a pension to William Pace—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. ELLIS of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23323) for the relief of John H. Hickey—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23324) granting a pension to William V. Malenburg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23325) granting an increase of pension to Jacob W. Gardner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FAIRCHILD: A bill (H. R. 23326) granting an increase of pension to Charles D. Bidwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23327) granting an increase of pension to Daniel S. Roe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23328) granting an increase of pension to Niram D. Scofield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23329) granting an increase of pension to Manfield Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23330) granting an increase of pension to John W. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23331) granting an increase of pension to Erasmus L. Donaldson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23332) granting an increase of pension to Harry Puffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23333) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Beryan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 23334) granting an increase of pension to John Cavin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 23335) granting an increase of pension to Edwin M. Haynes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 23336) granting an increase of pension to Harmon Colvin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23337) granting an increase of pension to Charles Burton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRONNA: A bill (H. R. 23338) for the relief of Ole Serumgard—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23339) granting an increase of pension to George W. Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23340) granting an increase of pension to James Flanagan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GUERNSEY: A bill (H. R. 23341) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Pullen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23342) granting an increase of pension to John Conrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23343) granting an increase of pension to Andrew S. Ramsdell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23344) granting an increase of pension to Isaac J. Marble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23345) granting an increase of pension to Edward M. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23346) granting a pension to Clara A. Warren—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARDING: A bill (H. R. 23347) granting a pension to Daniel Peyton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23348) granting a pension to Charles H. Jennings—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23349) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23350) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus D. McCaskey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HASKINS: A bill (H. R. 23351) for the relief of the owners of the Mexican steamship Tabasqueno—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 23352) granting an increase of pension to John M. Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 23353) granting an increase of pension to David Turket—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KELIHER: A bill (H. R. 23354) granting an increase of pension to John C. Bean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23355) granting an increase of pension to William J. Manning—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23356) granting a pension to Anna R. B. Sommer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23357) granting a pension to Ellen M. Brennan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23358) granting a pension to Harry Menovitz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23359) granting a pension to Annie T. McLaughlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KIPP: A bill (H. R. 23360) for the relief of Loron W. Forrest—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LANING: A bill (H. R. 23361) granting an increase of pension to Llewellyn W. French—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23362) granting pensions to Angeline Fissel and Nancy Fissel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23363) granting a pension to Harrison Wagner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAWRENCE: A bill (H. R. 23364) granting an increase of pension to William Dodd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23365) granting an increase of pension to Frederic A. Hayes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23366) granting an increase of pension to Adelbert Deland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23367) granting an increase of pension to John H. Mattoon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23368) granting an increase of pension to Rinaldine Fuller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23369) granting an increase of pension to Charles Pomeroy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23370) granting a pension to Johanna Hancock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LONGWORTH: A bill (H. R. 23371) granting an increase of pension to Christian Spresser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 23372) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Joseph Neveux—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23373) granting a pension to Cephas C. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23374) granting a pension to Abraham Moggo—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 23375) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Leeds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23376) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Zarley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23377) granting an increase of pension to Henry A. Butcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23378) granting an increase of pension to Laban A. Timmons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23379) granting a pension to Ruthey J. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23380) to correct the military record of A. C. Burk—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McMORRAN: A bill (H. R. 23381) granting a pension to Mary A. Enright—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. MADISON: A bill (H. R. 23382) granting an increase of pension to James M. Grover—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23383) granting an increase of pension to John J. Garr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MONDELL: A bill (H. R. 23384) for the relief of Robert Foote—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23385) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin D. Chase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23386) to authorize the issuance of a patent to Fred C. and C. Helen Fisher for land located in the county of Fremont, State of Wyoming—to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 23387) granting an increase of pension to William Lindsey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 23388) granting an increase of pension to William T. Roseberry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23389) granting a pension to Mary Ann Connell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 23390) granting an increase of pension to Sheppard F. Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23391) granting an increase of pension to George S. Connor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23392) granting an increase of pension to Mary B. Shinn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEARRE: A bill (H. R. 23393) granting an increase of pension to John L. Husband—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23394) granting an increase of pension to John W. Ingram—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23395) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hewitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23396) granting an increase of pension to John T. Harrison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23397) granting an increase of pension to Christopher Sisk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23398) granting an increase of pension to Joseph R. Montgomery—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23399) granting a pension to William P. Reivers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23400) granting a pension to Jacob H. Mose—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23401) granting a pension to Charles E. Welker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23402) for the relief of the trustees of the Ebenezer African Methodist Episcopal Church, of Hagerstown, Md.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23403) for the relief of the trustees of the Quinn African Methodist Episcopal Church, of Frederick, Md.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PETERS: A bill (H. R. 23404) granting an increase of pension to Mary Gorman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23405) granting an increase of pension to Hugh McParland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23406) granting an increase of pension to Levi Barker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23407) for the relief of Charles T. Hanson—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23408) for the relief of John A. Ganley—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23409) for the relief of Robert J. Faulkner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. RHINOCK: A bill (H. R. 23410) granting an increase of pension to James Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23411) granting an increase of pension to Simon Schmitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROTHERMEL: A bill (H. R. 23412) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Uplinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23413) granting an increase of pension to Daniel A. Geiger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23414) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23415) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Knauss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23416) granting an increase of pension to George S. Engler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23417) granting a pension to Emma C. Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23418) granting a pension to Albert Simon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23419) granting a pension to Melara C. Abbott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23420) for the relief of the heirs of Joseph Hemmerback, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23421) granting a pension to Edwin W. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 23422) granting a pension to Helen A. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23423) granting a pension to Charlotte B. W. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: A bill (H. R. 23424) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WASHBURN: A bill (H. R. 23425) granting an increase of pension to John J. Upham, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23426) granting an increase of pension to Hannah L. Holman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23427) granting a pension to Bridget Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23428) granting an increase of pension to Cassius C. Warren—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23429) granting an increase of pension to John T. Venatta—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23430) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Metzgar—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23431) granting an increase of pension to William Willoughby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23432) granting an increase of pension to George S. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23433) granting an increase of pension to John W. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23434) granting an increase of pension to William L. Poust—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23435) granting an increase of pension to Hiram L. Yoder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23436) granting an increase of pension to Dennis McGinnis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23437) granting an increase of pension to John A. Brimmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23438) granting a pension to Chauncey G. Tripp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23439) granting a pension to Katie E. Shaeffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALLEN: A bill (H. R. 23440) granting an increase of pension to Alvin E. Gilbert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 23441) granting a pension to George W. Burton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23442) granting an increase of pension to William L. Greer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLARK of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23443) granting an increase of pension to John M. Wright—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. DAWSON: A bill (H. R. 23444) granting an increase of pension to William S. Peck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23445) granting an increase of pension to Henry J. Flint—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23446) granting an increase of pension to James W. McElravy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23447) granting a pension to Melinda A. McMackin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUFF: A bill (H. R. 23448) authorizing the President to reinstate William T. Rossell, jr., and Harry G. Weaver as cadets in the United States Military Academy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 23449) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Gideon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 23450) granting an increase of pension to Franklin M. Harrison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDSAY: A bill (H. R. 23451) removing the charge of desertion from the military record of Thomas T. Inslee—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23452) granting an increase of pension to Laura J. Chandler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23453) granting an increase of pension to George W. Bartlett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 23454) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 23455) granting an increase of pension to James F. Holt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23456) granting a pension to Anna Kress—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23457) granting an increase of pension to Francis Marcoe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23458) granting an increase of pension to John Secor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23459) granting an increase of pension to Adam Stenger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23460) granting an increase of pension to Adam Kronzer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23461) granting a pension to Karl Sander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23462) granting a pension to Michael Landgraf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Memorial of the Synod of Baltimore of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, praying for the enactment of a law requiring all individuals and corporations engaged in interstate commerce to give each of their employees who work on Sunday a full 24-hour rest day during the next six days, and to give each employee at least 14 full 24-hour rest days on the first day of each year—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. ADAIR: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James L. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Zenis Lanham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Mrs. Ann E. Lowry—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: Petition of M. D. Crain and others, of St. Louis, for legislation pensioning members of United States Military Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BATES: Petition of Bracken Brothers, of Corry, Pa., favoring removal of customs duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Illinois Manufacturers' Association, against any legislation inimical to corporate and business interests—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: Petition of citizens of New York City, favoring Senate concurrent resolution No. 28, deploring acts of violence and inhumanity on the part of the Russian Government toward its subjects (previously referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce)—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. BUTLER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William H. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COLE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Loammie Farmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of sundry petitioners, for law to pension members of United States Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. EDWARDS of Kentucky: Papers to accompany bills for relief of William Cross, Milford M. Britton, Sherrod W. Barnett, William Pace, and Jackson Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLOYD: Papers to accompany bills for relief of W. F. Mitchell (H. R. 23049) and T. M. Rea (H. R. 23048)—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of James H. Gifford (H. R. 23054), James C. Cooper (H. R. 23053), John H. Gray (H. R. 23052), W. L. Reynolds (H. R. 23051), and James Huff (H. R. 23050)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOCHT: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Jacob S. Shaffer (H. R. 23060), Alexander Flack (H. R. 23059), W. A. Price (H. R. 23058), Henry H. Schrawder (H. R. 23057), Henry G. Chritzman (H. R. 23056), and Samuel Gonder (H. R. 23055)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOELKER: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of continuous service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of citizens of Brooklyn, N. Y., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. FULLER: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Charles Burton, Harmon Colvin, William M. Ramsey (H. R. 21551), Silas B. Muchant (H. R. 23083), and Abraham J. Eastwood (H. R. 23082)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAYES: Memorial of Humboldt Chamber of Commerce, concerning proposed restoration of the jetties at Humboldt Bay, California—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of citizens of San Jose, Cal., for legislation creating a volunteer officers' retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Jeremia M. Mobely, favoring enactment of more stringent exclusion laws relative to objectional Asiatic immigrants—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, for appropriation to repair and extend the jetties at entrance of Humboldt Bay—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: Petition of residents of Mansfield, Conn., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HITCHCOCK: Petition of citizens of Omaha, Nebr., for legislation pensioning members of United States Military Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Paper to accompany bill for relief of P. Hendrickson (H. R. 5592)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KELIHER: Petition of members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps, for legislation pensioning United States military telegraphers who served in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Massachusetts Society of the American Sons of the Revolution, for permanent maintenance of Fort McHenry as a garrisoned post of the United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps, favoring the pensioning of members of the Military Telegraphers' Corps in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEE: Papers to accompany bills for relief of heirs of Augustus and Christian Rich and heirs of George Winfred—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Henry W. Miller (H. R. 23109)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDBERGH: Petition of Postmasters' Association of Minnesota, favoring postal savings banks and other postal legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of L. Ornell and other citizens of Brooklyn, against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LOUD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Abraham Moggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANN: Petition of citizens of Chicago, asking legislation to provide pensions for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Lindsey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania: Petition of citizens of Philadelphia, for legislation to pension members of the Telegraph Corps of the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Lovenia Hodges, estate of Preston Gann, estate of Samuel Y. B. Williams, and heirs of Simeon Graves—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: Petition of citizens of California, favoring legislation to provide pensions for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEARRE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Elizabeth Jarboe—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RHINOCK: Petition of citizens of Kentucky, for legislation pensioning members of the United States Telegraph Corps in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Joseph Hemmerback—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: Petition against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: Petition of Rev. L. G. Moore and others, of Lansing, Mich., against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Frederick Dieker—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WASHBURN: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Bridget Adams, Hannah L. Holman, and John G. Upham, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: Petition of Massachusetts Wholesale Lumber Association, for forest reservations in White Mountains and Southern Appalachian Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: Petition of G. H. Grabe and 15 others, of Coudersport; Ford & Patcher and Card & Barr, of Roulette; and Davis R. Evans and 11 others, of Blossburg, all of the State of Pennsylvania, against parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of R. K. Gemberling and 39 others, of Jersey Shore, and Charles D. Zerb and 19 others, of Carter Camp, all of the State of Pennsylvania, against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, December 10, 1908.

The Senate met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Edward E. Hale.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings, when, on request of Mr. KEAN, and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Journal stands approved.

ANNUAL REPORT OF COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the forty-sixth annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency, for the year ended October 31, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate communications from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting certified copies of the findings of fact filed by the court in the following causes:

In the cause of James Phillips v. United States;

In the cause of Robert Dickey v. United States;

In the cause of Mary V. R. Shipley, widow of George T. Shipley, deceased, v. United States;

In the cause of Adam K. Baylor v. United States;

In the cause of Benjamin Atwood v. United States; and

In the cause of Owen S. M. Cone v. United States.

The foregoing findings were, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. Browning, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 16954) to provide for the Thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

OHIO VALLEY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate resolutions adopted at the fourteenth annual convention of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, held at Louisville, Ky., October 21–22, 1908, relative to the improvement of the Ohio River.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, that is a very important document, and I ask unanimous consent that, without reading, it be inserted in the RECORD.

Without objection the resolutions were referred to the Committee on Commerce and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Resolutions adopted at the fourteenth annual convention of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, held at Louisville, Ky., October 21–22, 1908.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions, to which your attention is respectfully called, were adopted by the unanimous vote of the 835 delegates present.

The delegates to the fourteenth annual convention of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, with a full realization of the importance of the duties delegated to them, submit the following facts for the consideration of Congress and of all the people of our great nation:

1. They represent directly the six States bordering on the Ohio River, namely, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois, and the States bordering on the tributaries of the Ohio, a river system embracing 4,400 miles, with a population of more than 13,000,000 people interested directly in the permanent improvement of the said Ohio River.

2. The Ohio Valley is to-day the most important manufacturing section of the United States. Recognizing this fact, and the consequent necessity of the improvement of the river, the Congress, in the river and harbor act, approved March 3, 1905, provided that—

"The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to appoint a board of engineers to examine the Ohio River, and report at the earliest date by which a thorough examination can be made, the necessary data with reference to the canalization of the river and the approximate location and number of locks and dams in such river, with a view both to a depth of 6 feet and 9 feet; and in said report shall include the probable cost of such improvement with each of the depths named, the probable cost of maintenance, and the present and prospective commerce of said river, upstream as well as downstream, having regard to both local and through traffic. They shall also report whether, in their opinion, such improvement should be made, and whether other plans of improvement could be devised under which the probable demands of traffic, present and prospective, could be provided without additional locks and dams, or with a less number than is described in surveys heretofore made, giving general details relating to all of said plans and the approximate cost of completion thereof. They shall also examine the said river from the mouth of the Green River to Cairo with a view to determining whether an increased depth can be maintained by the use of dredges."

3. On May 12, 1905, by authority of the Secretary of War, and in accordance with the provisions of the act just quoted, a board of officers of the Corps of Engineers, consisting of Lieut. Col. D. W. Lockwood, Lieut. Col. Ernest H. Ruffner, Lieut. Col. Clinton B. Sears, Maj. George A. Zinn, and Maj. William L. Sibert, was constituted by the Chief of Engineers and directed to assemble at Cincinnati, Ohio, at the call of the senior member to carry out the purposes of the act. Capt. Harry Burgess, Corps of Engineers, was assigned to duty as recorder of the board.

4. The board made an inspection of the river, organized and conducted a hydrographic survey, and collected data from all available sources bearing upon the several features required by law to be reported upon.

5. The report of the board was filed December 15, 1906. It covers in full and exhaustively all the objects of inquiry specified in the law, and closes with the following recommendation:

"In view of the enormous interests to be benefited by continuous navigation on the Ohio River and the great development which may be expected from such increased facilities, the board is of the opinion that the Ohio River should be improved by means of locks and movable dams to provide a depth of 9 feet from Pittsburg to Cairo."

6. As provided by law, this report was referred to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors for review. This board consisted of Col. H. M. Adams, Col. Charles E. L. B. Davis, Col. R. L. Hoxie, Lieut. Col. C. McD. Townsend, and Maj. E. Eveleth Winslow. The board held a public hearing at Pittsburg, August 12, 1907, at which representatives of the various localities interested in the proposed improvement (covering the entire river) presented statements, and following the hearing the board made a personal inspection of the river from Pittsburg to Cairo.

7. Under date of October 18, 1907, the board submitted its report. After reviewing and commenting upon the vast manufacturing industries of Pittsburg and other Ohio River sections, the report closes in these words:

"The board believes that a large commerce is reasonably prospective if these commercial centers are connected by a waterway which will permit the certainty of transportation which is found on existing railroads, and that this certainty will be attained by the works proposed in the report.

"The General Government has expended large sums in improving the various tributaries of the Ohio. The utility of these improvements is dependent on the navigability of the main stream. The proposed improvement of the Ohio River will create a vast system of water communication penetrating one of the most populous and prosperous sections of the United States. Even in its unimproved condition the river has a marked effect on rail freight rates, the cheap rates quoted in the report as prevailing between New Orleans and Louisville, Cincinnati and Pittsburg, being directly traceable to its influence. Its effect on rail freight rates will be greatly increased if the proposed improvements are carried out.

"For these reasons the board is of the opinion that the improvement of the Ohio River by locks and movable dams so as to secure a depth of 9 feet, as recommended in the report of the special board, is worthy of being undertaken by the United States.

"In making this recommendation, the board realizes that it is suggesting a plan for river improvement on a scale not hitherto attempted in this country, but it believes that there will probably be in the near future a popular demand for the improvement of several streams on such a scale. On account of the large commercial development of its shores and its connection with the lower Mississippi now maintained in a navigable condition, the Ohio River is, in the opinion of the board, the one river of all others most likely to justify such work. Furthermore, it should be noted that by authorizing the construction of the 9-foot navigation of 14 locks at various parts of the river Congress has already practically entered upon such a system of improvement."

8. We submit that no stronger commendation could be made than that given by the two boards of engineers in behalf of the improvement of the Ohio.

9. These reports were transmitted to Congress by the Secretary of War on the 11th of January, 1908.

10. In the report from the Committee on Rivers and Harbors (to accompany the bill making appropriations for rivers and harbors) the following most important paragraph appears:

"In providing for the completion of new projects a radical departure from former methods has been adopted by the committee. It has been thought best to undertake no new improvement unless the whole amount required for its completion, whether the project involves large or small expense, is appropriated or authorized. This policy has been followed with barely an exception. It is believed that the advantages of such a method are sufficiently obvious. Assured results will be obtained at an early date by the completion of the improvement. More substantial benefit will be conferred by selecting the most deserving projects and avoiding the scattering of appropriations. The expense of each improvement will be very much diminished, because the work can be more advantageously and economically prosecuted if the whole amount necessary to complete is made available. It is also true as a practical fact that when the total expense is to be provided at one time more careful consideration will be given to a proposed improvement, and the question of its adoption more intelligently considered. The rule has been followed that between two projects equally deserving it is better to complete one than to make partial appropriations for both."

11. In view of the recommendations of the two boards of engineers, appointed under and by authority direct from Congress, and the fact that appropriations have been heretofore made for locks and dams, a number of which have been completed and are in successful operation and others in course of construction, and in conformity with the judgment expressed by the Committee on Rivers and Harbors herein quoted, the Ohio River has been placed first on the list of waterways demanding the immediate attention of Congress, this association, while fully believing that the time has arrived when the Congress of the United States owes it to the vital interests of the American people to adopt and maintain a broad national policy for the immediate improvement of the great harbors and waterways of the country, especially urges as the representative of all the interests of the Ohio Valley that because of the steps heretofore taken relative to the Ohio River, as above enumerated, the material welfare of all the people demands that at the next session Congress adopt the project for the improvement of the Ohio River by lock and dam, as recommended in the Lockwood report, and provide the means for the continuous prosecution of this work under the continuous-contract system, so as to insure its completion in not more than ten years.

12. And we further urge that owing to the great amount of river and harbor work comprised in this and other meritorious projects, it is the opinion of this association that the Corpt of Engineers, United States Army, should be at least double its present size, utilizing in the permanent organization as far as possible the present United States assistant civil engineers.

Swager Sherley (chairman), Wm. B. Rodgers, Albert Bettinger, C. H. Bohmer, D. J. Sinclair, George Parsons, A. T. Macdonald, W. A. Patton, Geo. W. Theiss, Thos. P. Egan, E. A. Smith, Alexander Dempster, Jos. N. Cravens, J. S. Aisthorpe, James F. Buckner, jr., I. H. Odell, Mordecai Williams, F. R. Henderson, B. B. Dovenor, John Gates, L. L. Sadler, W. H. Keller, B. S. Steece, F. N. Beegle, Dr. Cyrus Graham, Thomas O'Brien, R. B. Naylor, Frank V. Knaus, Frank B. Finney, Joseph E. Durrell, Edwin McFarland, John Uri Lloyd, Geo. W. Dittmann, A. L. Andrews, J. M. Baur, B. S. Pope, C. T. Bookwalter, James Meehan, Henry Schuerman, Geo. H. Cox, A. Quante, W. V. Dixon, C. N. Phister, A. W. Werninger, C. S. Walker, A. W. Emery, Jacob Zoercher, Washington Rees, committee on resolutions.

GEORGE PARSONS, Secretary.

OCTOBER 22, 1908.

Mr. HEMENWAY. I ask unanimous consent that the resolutions of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association be printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LAKES-TO-THE-GULF DEEP-WATERWAY ASSOCIATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate resolutions adopted by the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep-Waterway Association convention held at Chicago October 9, 1908, in favor of the opening of a deep channel way connecting the Great Lakes on the north with the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. CULLOM. Mr. President, I am not in the habit of asking that documents be printed in the RECORD, but the resolutions just presented relate to a subject of such vital importance to the whole country that I will venture to ask that they be printed in the RECORD and also as a document and that they be referred to the Committee on Commerce. Another document of similar import has just been ordered printed in the RECORD.

Without objection, the resolutions were referred to the Committee on Commerce, ordered to be printed as a document, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Resolution adopted by the Lake-to-the-Gulf Deep-Waterway Association, in convention in Chicago October 9, 1908.

This, the Third Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep-Waterway Convention, the largest waterway convention ever assembled in the United States, including some 4,000 delegates from forty-four sovereign States of this Union, representing the commercial, agricultural, manufacturing, and mercantile interests of the entire Mississippi Valley, and having deeply in mind and at heart the prosperity and welfare, not only of the people of the Mississippi Valley, but the whole Nation, and realizing that the moral and spiritual stamina and growth of the Nation as a whole depend upon the material welfare and prosperity of the individual citizen, do hereby Resolve and declare, To promote the "general welfare" is recognized by the Constitution of the United States as one of the fundamental principles of government.

The general welfare of the people of the United States can best be promoted by establishing the commerce of the country on a sound basis, and by so enlarging it that agricultural and mineral resources may be developed to the end that production and manufacturing may be encouraged and that all other lines of independent business may be increased.

Easy and adequate transportation, effective between producer and consumer and for carrying the abundant product of the country to the seaboard for shipment abroad, is the first essential for the development of the commerce of the United States; and the responsibility for this development rests on the General Government.

It has been demonstrated during the past ten years that when business conditions in the United States are normal the transportation facilities afforded by the railways are utterly inadequate, and it is stated by the great traffic managers of the railways that the development of railway facilities can not keep pace with the increased demands upon them. The leading railway authorities, including prominent officials of all the great lines which parallel the Mississippi, declare that water transportation must be developed to supplement the railways in order that the freight of the country may be handled properly and promptly.

Under the Constitution the regulation of commerce between the States devolves on the General Government; and under those decisions of Chief Justice Marshall, which are universally accepted as our best interpretation of constitutional powers, the control of waterways and the regulation of navigation also rests with the General Government, and neither States nor private capital can be permitted under the Constitution to assume these duties.

The duty therefore devolves on the General Government to give to the country adequate transportation facilities by developing the navigable waterways of the country into complete freight-carrying usefulness. This duty should be recognized by the Congress at once, and the waterways should be made efficient freight carriers, otherwise the United States can not maintain commercial equality with those other nations of the world now equipping their waterways as freight carriers and considering their railways and waterways as complementary agencies; and in no other way can this country derive benefits equaling those of other countries from the building of the Panama Canal.

The all-important question of transportation is a paramount issue. If it be found that the current revenues of the Government are insufficient for carrying out vigorously and on a broad plan the development of our waterways, the Congress should secure funds for that purpose by providing a sufficient bond issue.

The interior valley comprises approximately half the area of the United States. It is 2,500 miles in length and 2,000 miles in width. Within its boundaries lie the greatest producing States of the Union. The arms of this great river system form the boundary lines of 21 States and over 20,000 miles of possible navigation. This vast valley produces three-fourths of our foreign exports. Within this valley live half the people of the entire United States, and the voice of its citizens must be heard. The foreign commerce of this important portion of the United States should go direct in American bottoms to foreign ports. Harness the rivers of this fruitful valley and we shall have a cheap and effective means of transportation, and a mightier impetus will be given to the shipbuilding industry than could be given by any subsidy other than the moderate expenditure required for the permanent betterment of channels.

This convention does, therefore, declare the opening of a deep channel way connecting the Great Lakes on the north with the Gulf of Mexico on the south to be an imperative duty of the General Government, and that this work should be immediately begun and completed as speedily as possible.

Any plan for the inland waterway development so imperatively necessary to the material welfare of the valley should comprise a main trunk line in the form of a strait connecting Lake Michigan with the Gulf of Mexico by way of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. The development of this trunk line should begin at once. The improvement of the branches of this main line, such as the upper Mississippi with its tributaries; the Ohio with its leading tributaries, including the Tennessee and Cumberland; the Missouri, the Arkansas, the Red, the White, and other rivers; and the interstate inland waterway of Louisiana and Texas, should proceed simultaneously with the development of the principal line.

The deep waterway is practically complete from Chicago to Joliet, through the courage and enterprise of the single city of Chicago, which has by the expenditure of $55,000,000 created a deep waterway across the main divide between the waters of Lake Michigan and those of the Mississippi. A special board of survey, composed of United States engineers, reported to Congress in 1905 that the continuation of the deep waterway from Joliet to St. Louis was feasible, and would cost only $31,000,000. The State of Illinois, assuming that the Federal Government will take the responsibility of completing the waterway to the Gulf, is about to cooperate to the extent of $20,000,000.

The delegates to this convention heartily congratulate the great Commonwealth of Illinois and the splendid city of Chicago on their initiative, and express the hope and belief that their example will influence other States and lead to similar effective cooperation.

A special board of survey, composed of United States engineers, was, through the efforts of this association, created by Congress last year to survey the deep-waterway route from St. Louis to the mouth of the Ohio, and to report to Congress the feasibility and cost of the waterway. That board will report during the winter, and we, the delegates to this convention, demand that when this report is made Congress shall at once provide funds sufficient to begin operations in a large and effective way.

The broad plan for improving all the waterways for navigation should take account of all other uses of waters and benefits to be derived from them by the people; should consider the conservation of the natural resources of the country in their relation to commerce and navigation; should extend to forest preservation, reservoirs, and other means of stream control, and the maintenance of the level of our Great Lakes in such a manner as not to interfere with their navigation and commerce; should consider floods and their prevention, together with irrigation and drainage; should take account of bank revetment, levee building, and other means of protecting the bottom lands and increasing their productivity; and should contemplate regulation of terminals with a view to rendering rail transportation and water transportation complementary and jointly useful to the people of the country.

This convention is in hearty accord with the movement for the conservation of the natural resources of the country and heartily approves the efforts of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in seeking to develop the waterways of the Nation.

Fully realizing the importance of the proposed constitutional amendment unanimously submitted by the legislature of the State of Illinois, to be voted on on the 3d of November, and recognizing in it a practical step in the direction of the realization of this project, and also recognizing in it the first great movement by any State in the matter of the conservation of its natural resources, we approve said constitutional amendment and commend it to the favorable consideration of the voters of Illinois.

We, the delegates in this convention assembled, representing half the people and three-fifths of the productive energy of the United States, do hereby demand that a definite and vigorous policy of waterway improvement, beginning with the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway, be promptly adopted and put into operation by the National Government.

To the enforcement of this demand we pledge our individual effort and our united support; and we pledge our personal honor, each for himself and to each other, to support no candidate for public office who will not unqualifiedly indorse and maintain that policy.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the general committee of foreign nations of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, praying for the enactment of legislation to suppress the importation, manufacture, and sale of opium except when used for medicinal purposes, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DEPEW presented a petition of Local Lodge No. 155, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of New York City, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation requiring the application of an illiteracy test to immigrants, and remonstrating against any further modification of the present immigration law, which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the sixth annual convention of the Veteran Army of the Philippines, of Manila, P. I., praying for the enactment of legislation permitting the army, navy, and Marine Corps serving in those islands to observe August 13 as a legal holiday, known as "Occupation Day," which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of New York City, Brooklyn, Rochester, Cazenovia, Buffalo, Rome, Utica, Yonkers, and Manhattan, all in the State of New York; of Jersey City, Newark, and East Orange, all in the State of New Jersey; and of Chicago, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pension to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN presented petitions of sundry citizens of the State of Wyoming, praying for the enactment of legislation to create an industrial commission to investigate the conditions in mines on Douglas Island, Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. NIXON presented sundry petitions of citizens of the State of Nevada, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented petitions of Local Unions Nos. 220, 241, 243, 244, and 246, of Goldfield, Manhattan, Fairview, Rawhide, and Tenabo, all of the United Mine Workers of America, in the State of Nevada, praying that an investigation be made into the conditions of mines operated by the Treadwell Mining Company of Alaska, which were referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. FULTON presented a petition of the Albany Commercial Club of Albany and Linn County, in the State of Oregon, praying that an appropriation be made for the improvement of the Willamette River, in that State, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of sundry citizens of Springfield, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McCREARY presented a petition of sundry citizens of Shelbyville and Pleasantville, in the State of Kentucky, and the petition of John L. Eblen, of Louisville, Ky., praying for the enactment of legislation granting an increase of pension to John L. Eblen, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HOPKINS presented a petition of sundry citizens of Chicago, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

NAVY YEARBOOK.

Mr. HALE. I ask for a reprint as a document of the book known as the "Navy Yearbook," and that 2,400 additional copies be printed and bound in cloth, 1,200 copies for the use of the Senate and 1,200 copies for the use of the Committee on Naval Affairs. The order will be referred to the Committee on Printing. That is required under the rule.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is so referred.

Mr. MILTON subsequently, from the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the foregoing order, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL CLERK TO COMMITTEE ON POST-OFFICES AND POST-ROADS.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. PENROSE May 12, 1908, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads be, and it is hereby, authorized to employ an additional clerk, at an annual salary, at the rate of $1,440 per annum, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate until otherwise provided for by law.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7628) granting an increase of pension to A. C. Rhinehart;

A bill (S. 7629) granting an increase of pension to Byron H. Bronson; and

A bill (S. 7630) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Spear (with accompanying papers).

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 7631) to grant an honorable discharge from the navy to John McKinnon, alias John Mack, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7632) granting an increase of pension to Chisley G. Hagan;

A bill (S. 7633) granting an increase of pension to John D. Capps;

A bill (S. 7634) granting an increase of pension to Alfred Rector;

A bill (S. 7635) granting an increase of pension to William Hess, alias William Smith;

A bill (S. 7636) granting an increase of pension to James J. Ballinger;

A bill (S. 7637) granting a pension to Caroline Beachboard; and

A bill (S. 7638) granting an increase of pension to William L. Creasman.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 7639) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to appraise certain lands in the State of Minnesota for the purpose of granting the same to the Minnesota and Manitoba Railroad Company for a ballast pit, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 7640) to extend the time for the completion of a bridge across the Missouri River at Yankton, S. Dak., by the Yankton, Norfolk and Southern Railway Company, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7641) setting apart certain lands in the Standing Rock Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, for cemetery purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7642) granting an increase of pension to Robert B. Mills; and

A bill (S. 7643) granting an increase of pension to Edward Taubert.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 7644) for the relief of Isaac Bettelyoun, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DOLLIVER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7645) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Linn;

A bill (S. 7646) granting an increase of pension to Marquis D. Lillie; and

A bill (S. 7647) granting an increase of pension to John C. Thompson.

Mr. du PONT introduced a bill (S. 7648) granting a pension to Maud E. L. Pinder, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 7649) granting an increase of pension to Louis Gilstrap, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. NIXON introduced a bill (S. 7650) to correct the military record of William F. Sedgwick, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HALE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs:

A bill (S. 7651) to amend article 53 of the Articles for the Government of the Navy; and

A bill (S. 7652) to provide suitable civilian clothing and a cash gratuity to naval prisoners on discharge.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill (S. 7653) granting an increase of pension to George E. Currier, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced a bill (S. 7654) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Manley, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7655) removing the charge of desertion against Ephraim W. Mills, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 7656) authorizing the President to classify assistant postmasters, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Civil Service and Retrenchment.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7657) to amend the act approved May 28, 1908, entitled "An act to regulate the employment of child labor in the District of Columbia," which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. KNOX introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7658) granting an increase of pension to Thomas K. Hastings;

A bill (S. 7659) granting an increase of pension to James R. Werts;

A bill (S. 7660) granting an increase of pension to Arthur T. Duncan;

A bill (S. 7661) granting an increase of pension to John W. De Mott (with the accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 7662) granting an increase of pension to Wesley Hoover (with the accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 7663) granting a pension to Mary M. Porter (with the accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 7664) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Snodgrass (with the accompanying papers).

Mr. KNOX introduced a bill (S. 7665) to construct a Lincoln memorial highway from the White House, Washington, D. C., to the battlefield of Gettysburg, Gettysburg, Pa., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. KEAN introduced a bill (S. 7666) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building at Bayonne, N. J., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. PENROSE introduced a bill (S. 7667) for the relief of S. H. Evans, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7668) granting a pension to Clara V. Rayner;

A bill (S. 7669) granting an increase of pension to Theobald M. Fields;

A bill (S. 7670) granting an increase of pension to George W. Lenoir; and

A bill (S. 7671) granting an increase of pension to William H. Knight.

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7672) granting an increase of pension to Albert C. Little;

A bill (S. 7673) granting a pension to Sarah E. Hendricks; and

A bill (S. 7674) granting an increase of pension to David W. Dale.

Mr. KITTREDGE introduced a bill (S. 7675) to increase the limit of cost for the enlargement, extension, remodeling, and improvement of the federal building at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 7676) granting an increase of pension to Wales W. Wood, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 7677) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William T. Lang (with the accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 7678) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Henry Fuller.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7679) granting an increase of pension to Martin Selak;

A bill (S. 7680) granting an increase of pension to Albert L. T. Bush (with the accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 7681) granting an increase of pension to Sidney M. Smith (with the accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 7682) granting a pension to Emma L. Parker (with the accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 7683) granting an increase of pension to John A. Battenfield;

A bill (S. 7684) granting an increase of pension to John Wickham;

A bill (S. 7685) granting an increase of pension to Wharton R. Marsh;

A bill (S. 7686) granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Vahue;

A bill (S. 7687) granting an increase of pension to Robert R. Marsh;

A bill (S. 7688) granting a pension to George Seward;

A bill (S. 7689) granting a pension to Almira J. Sterling;

A bill (S. 7690) granting an increase of pension to George A. Brown;

A bill (S. 7691) granting an increase of pension to Ephraim C. Watkins;

A bill (S. 7692) granting an increase of pension to Renselarr B. Ransom;

A bill (S. 7693) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Morrow; and

A bill (S. 7694) granting an increase of pension to George W. Mulliken.

Mr. FLINT introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico:

A bill (S. 7695) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii," approved April 30, 1900;

A bill (S. 7696) to confirm to the Wahiawa Water Company, of Hawaii, the right of way for irrigation purposes;

A bill (S. 7697) to ratify an act of the legislature of the Territory of Hawaii, authorizing the manufacture and distribution of electric light and power in the district of Lahaina, Territory of Hawaii; and

A bill (S. 7698) to ratify and confirm an act of the legislature of the Territory of Hawaii, authorizing the manufacture and distribution of electric light and power in the district of Wailuku, Territory of Hawaii.

Mr. BRANDEGEE introduced a bill (S. 7699) granting an increase of pension to Roland E. Neff, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BURKETT introduced a bill (S. 7700) to prevent unlawful discrimination by companies or corporations doing business in the District of Columbia and authorizing the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix reasonable rates or charges for services rendered by such companies or corporations, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BROWN introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7701) granting an increase of pension to James A. Light (with the accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 7702) granting an increase of pension to William McClary (with the accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 7703) granting a pension to Irena Brown; and

A bill (S. 7704) granting an increase of pension to John P. Bastian.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7705) granting a pension to Joseph O. Benton; and

A bill (S. 7706) granting an increase of pension to John L. Eblin.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 7707) to incorporate the American Institute for Drug Proving, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BANKHEAD introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7708) for the relief of Martha J. Sibley; and

A bill (S. 7709) for the relief of Mary Tullis.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced a bill (S. 7710) for the relief of the estate of John D. Johnston, deceased, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 104) to restore the status of the First Battalion Mountaineers, California Volunteers, who served during the late war of the rebellion, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 105) for the purpose of more fully carrying into effect the convention concluded at Brussels on March 15, 1886, in reference to the exchange of official journals, etc., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. HALE. I move that when the Senate adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

COMPANIES B, C, AND D, TWENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I desire to give notice that on Wednesday next, immediately after the routine morning business, with the permission of the Senate, I shall ask leave to address the Senate upon what is known as the "Brownsville affair."

FUNERAL OF THE LATE SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Mr. DOLLIVER submitted the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to pay from the miscellaneous items of the contingent funds of the Senate the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the committee appointed by the Vice-President in arranging for and attending the funeral of the late Senator WILLIAM B. ALLISON, from the State of Iowa, upon vouchers to be approved by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

EDITH E. M'DOWELL.

Mr. GAMBLE submitted the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Edith E. McDowell, widow of Robert E. McDowell, late clerk of the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, a sum equal to six months' salary at the rate he was receiving by law at the time of his demise, said sum to be considered as including funeral expenses and all other allowances.

CHANNEL IMPROVEMENT AT NORFOLK NAVY-YARD.

Mr. MARTIN submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause an examination and survey to be made of the channel from the sea to the Norfolk Navy-Yard, with a view to widening and straightening the same and increasing the depth thereof to 35 feet at mean low water, with width of present project, and to submit estimates for such improvement to that depth.

SEC. 2. That an examination and survey be made and estimates submitted for a channel 22 feet deep at mean low water from the Norfolk Navy-Yard to a point about 1 mile above Gilmerton.

SEC. 3. That an examination and survey be made and estimates submitted with a view to providing ample anchorage room abreast of and above Lamberts Point, between Lamberts Point and Pinners Point.

CHANNEL IMPROVEMENT AT FORTRESS MONROE.

Mr. MARTIN submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause an examination and survey to be made of the channel from Fortress Monroe to Newport News, with a view to providing for a depth of 35 feet at mean low water and a width of 800 feet, and to submit estimates for such improvement.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION BUILDING.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and ordered to be printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Civil Service Commission submitting draft of a bill for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building for the Civil Service Commission, and calling attention to its need for a new building and the desirableness of erecting such a building instead of renting one. I approve the recommendation of the commission and ask that it be given careful consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 10, 1908.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals and ordered to be printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, I transmit herewith the annual report of the Isthmian Canal Commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 10, 1908.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 16954) to provide for the Thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses, was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Census.

OMNIBUS CLAIMS BILL.

Mr. CULLOM. I think there is no proposed legislation ready for action to-day, and I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Oregon?

Mr. CULLOM. I will withhold the motion if necessary.

Mr. FULTON. There was pending at the last session and partially considered the omnibus claims bill, which is the bill (H. R. 15372) for the allowance of certain claims reported by the Court of Claims under the provisions of the acts approved March 3, 1883, and March 3, 1887, and commonly known as the Bowman and Tucker acts. It is a matter in which there is a great deal of interest, and I desire to have it set for consideration on a particular day. I ask leave that the bill be taken up and its consideration proceeded with on Monday next after the expiration of the morning hour.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Oregon asks unanimous consent that House bill 15372, known as the "omnibus claims bill," be taken up for consideration on Monday, the 14th instant, after the conclusion of the routine morning business. Is there objection?

Mr. BURKETT. Mr. President——

Mr. FULTON. Let me inquire——

Mr. BURKETT. The Senator from Montana [Mr. CARTER] is not here.

Mr. FULTON. I was about to inquire, I will say to the Senator from Nebraska, of the Vice-President whether that would displace the special order. It is not my desire so to do. I do not think it does.

Mr. BURKETT. I understand that the Senator from Montana desires to take up the postal savings-bank measure on Monday.

Mr. FULTON. I shall not interfere with him.

Mr. BURKETT. He so expressed himself to me. Perhaps he may desire to speak or others may desire to speak at that time, and I expect possibly——

Mr. FULTON. I will say to the Senator from Nebraska that I shall not interfere with the Senator from Montana; and if he desires then to proceed with that measure, or to speak upon the measure, I will let the omnibus-claims bill be set for Monday, with the consent of the Senate, subject to whatever course the Senator from Montana may desire to take.

Mr. BURKETT. So as not to interfere with what is known as the "postal savings-bank bill."

Mr. FULTON. Not to interfere with it.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. President, I dislike to have an order made of that kind, because it may interfere with the consideration of the bill that is set for Monday. That is a measure of great public importance, and a matter that should be considered at an early day. I trust the Senator from Oregon will defer his request until Monday. If anything should occur on Monday so that that bill could not be taken up, it seems to me that there would be no objection to taking up the bill suggested by the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. FULTON. I think the Senator from Illinois did not fully understand what I said. I am asking that the order be made subject to whatever proceeding the Senator from Montana may desire to have taken in regard to the measure in question, so that it will not interfere in any way with what he may see fit to do. The order that I have asked, I will say to the Senator, is that the omnibus claims bill shall be considered on Monday, subject to the measure which the Senator from Montana has in charge, which I understand is the postal savings-bank bill. I ask that the omnibus claims bill be set for Monday, subject to the consideration of that measure.

Mr. HOPKINS. If it does not interfere with the consideration of that bill, of course I have no objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Oregon asks unanimous consent that the omnibus claims bill may be taken up for consideration after the routine morning business on Monday next, subject to the special order for that day.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, the request of the Senator from Oregon has not, I understand, been disposed of yet. He asked that the omnibus claims bill might be made the order for Monday, subject to the special order for that day. I wanted to request that it be understood that it would be subject also to the special order for the 16th. The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] has just given notice that he will address the Senate on that day upon the subject of that special order.

Mr. FULTON. I will say that if the omnibus claims bill shall not have been disposed of when the hour arrives at which the Senator from Massachusetts has given notice he intends to address the Senate, I will ask to have it laid aside. I am very anxious to hear the Senator from Massachusetts, and I know the Senate is anxious to hear him.

I will say, further, that I have no disposition to push the omnibus claims bill so as to interfere with any other matter that any Senator may specially desire to bring up. But there are a great many Senators interested in the bill, and I want them to have notice of its consideration. That is the reason why I have asked to have it set down for Monday.

Mr. FORAKER. I merely want to have it understood that there is a special order for Wednesday the 16th.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Oregon kindly restate his request, with his exceptions?

Mr. FULTON. My request is that the omnibus claims bill (House bill 15372) may be taken up for consideration at the conclusion of the morning business on Monday next, subject to the special order for that day, and subject, I will put it, to any other matter that any Senator may specially desire to bring up; that is, to any other special order.

The VICE-PESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

PRIVATE CLAIMS.

Mr. TELLER. I present a memorandum upon the subject of private claims against the United States, embracing some statistical facts, which I should like to have printed as a document. I have consulted the chairman of the Committee on Claims. I think it will be a useful document for the Senate and the committee, and I ask that it may be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado asks that the paper submitted by him may be printed as a document. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HAWAIIAN PORTS.

Mr. PERKINS. I move that the bill (S. 6840) to amend the laws concerning transportation between ports of the Territory of Hawaii and other ports of the United States be recommitted to the Committee on Commerce. I make the motion at the instance of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce and merchants of the Hawaiian Territory, who send me cable dispatches, and also by consent of the author of the bill, the Senator from Washington [Mr. PILES].

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from California moves that Senate bill 6840 be taken from the Calendar and recommitted to the Committee on Commerce. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After thirty minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

DEATH OF THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE DUNWELL.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. Browning, its Chief Clerk, communicated to the Senate the intelligence of the death of Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, late a Representative from the State of New York, and transmitted a resolution of the House thereon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the resolution of the House of Representatives, which will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
December 7, 1908.

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, late a Representative from the State of New York.

Mr. DEPEW. Mr. President, I offer the resolution which I send to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. CHARLES T. DUNWELL, late a Representative from the State of New York.

Mr. DEPEW. As a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased Representative, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was unanimously agreed to; and (at 1 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, December 14, 1908, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 10, 1908.

PROMOTION IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

Third Lieutenant of Engineers Joseph Edward Sheedy to be second lieutenant of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 16, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by the act of Congress approved April 16, 1908. This nomination is made to correct date on which his promotion is to take effect. Mr. Sheedy was nominated May 19, 1908, confirmed May 20, 1908, and commissioned May 22, 1908, to rank as such second lieuetenant from April 25, 1908.

CHIEF EXAMINER OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

George R. Wales, of Vermont, to be chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission, vice Frank M. Kiggins, deceased.

APPOINTMENTS, BY TRANSFER, IN THE ARMY.

CAVALRY ARM.

Second Lieut. John Burges Johnson, First Infantry, to the cavalry arm, with rank from September 25, 1908.

INFANTRY ARM.

Second Lieut. John Caffery Walker, jr., Third Cavalry, to the infantry arm, with rank from September 25, 1908.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 10, 1908.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

Walter T. Blake, of California, to be collector of customs for the district of San Diego, in the State of California.

John F. O'Brien, of New York, to be collector of customs for the district of Champlain, in the State of New York.

John T. Rich, of Michigan, to be collector of customs for the district of Huron, in the State of Michigan.

CONSUL-GENERALS.

John Edward Jones, of the District of Columbia, to be consul-general at Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

James A. Smith, of the State of Vermont, to be consul-general at Genoa, Italy.

George N. West, of the District of Columbia, to be consul-general at Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

BOARD OF CHARITIES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Myer Cohen, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia.

George W. Cook, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia.

George E. Hamilton, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia.

MINISTERS.

Philip M. Brown, of the State of Massachusetts, to be minister to Honduras.

H. Percival Dodge, of the State of Massachusetts, to be minister to Salvador.

William L. Merry, of the State of California, to be minister to Costa Rica.

James P. Stutsman, of the State of Indiana, to be minister to Bolivia.

SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

John W. Garrett, of the State of Maryland, to be secretary of embassy at Rome, Italy.

R. S. Reynolds Hitt, of the State of Illinois, to be secretary of embassy at Berlin, Germany.

Henry L. Janes, of the State of Wisconsin, to be secretary of embassy at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

William F. Sands, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of embassy at Mexico City, Mexico.

SECOND SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

Joseph C. Grew, of the State of Massachusetts, to be second secretary of embassy at Berlin, Germany.

John Van. A. MacMurray, of the State of New Jersey, to be second secretary of embassy at St. Petersburg, Russia.

A. Campbell Turner, of the State of Missouri, to be second secretary of embassy at Mexico City, Mexico.

THIRD SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

Leland Harrison, of the State of Illinois, to be third secretary of embassy at Tokyo, Japan.

Henry Coleman May, of the District of Columbia, to be third secretary of embassy at St. Petersburg, Russia.

Arthur Orr, of the State of Illinois, to be third secretary of embassy at London, England.

SECRETARIES OF LEGATIONS.

Frederic Ogden de Billier, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of legation at Teheran, Persia.

Hugh S. Gibson, of the State of California, to be secretary of legation at Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

John H. Gregory, jr., of the State of Louisiana, to be secretary of legation at Managua, Nicaragua.

Paxton Hibben, of the State of Indiana, to be secretary of legation at Bogota, Colombia.

Philip M. Hoefele, of the State of Missouri, to be secretary of legation at Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

George L. Lorillard, of the State of Rhode Island, to be secretary of legation at Lisbon, Portugal.

Jacob Sleeper, of the State of Massachusetts, to be secretary of legation at Berne, Switzerland.

Algernon Sartoris, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of legation at Guatemala City, Guatemala.

George T. Weitzel, of the State of Missouri, to be secretary of legation at Panama City, Panama.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

Martin A. Knapp, of the State of New York, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

COMMISSIONER OF IMMIGRATION.

Graham L. Rice, of Wisconsin, to be commissioner of immigration at San Juan, P. R.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Herbert Livingston Satterlee, of New York, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Capt. John K. Barton to be Engineer in Chief and Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, in the Department of the Navy, with the rank of rear-admiral, vice Engineer in Chief Charles W. Rae, deceased.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles W. Densmore to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Ensign Clarence S. Vanderbeck to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Clarence S. Vanderbeck to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Kirby B. Crittenden to be a lieutenant in the navy from the 1st day of November, 1907, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Lieut. Henry T. Baker to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 18th day of November, 1907, vice Lieut. Commander William B. Fletcher, promoted.

The following-named lieutenants (junior grade) to be lieutenants in the navy from the 3d day of February, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

William W. Smyth,
John S. Arwine, jr., and
Butler Y. Rhodes.

Lieut. Commander John M. Ellicott to be a commander in the navy from the 24th day of April, 1908, vice Commander York Noel, deceased.

Lieut. Commander Charles W. Dyson to be a commander in the navy from the 15th day of May, 1908, vice Commander Frank F. Fletcher, promoted.

Commander Frank E. Beatty to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Charles P. Perkins, retired.

Commander Moses L. Wood to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Theodoric Porter, retired.

Commander Robert M. Doyle to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. George I. Dyer, retired.

Commander Wythe M. Parks to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Charles W. Bartlett, retired.

Commander Frank H. Bailey, an additional number in grade, to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, with Capt. Wythe M. Parks, promoted.

Commander William B. Caperton to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Henry Morrell, retired.

Commander James T. Smith to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. John M. Robinson, retired.

Commander George S. Willits to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Robert G. Denig, retired.

Commander Walter F. Worthington to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. George H. Peters, retired.

Commander William N. Little to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Capt. William C. Eaton, retired.

Lieut. Commander Harry George to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Frank E. Beatty, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Frederick L. Chapin to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Moses L. Wood, promoted.

Lieut. Commander William C. Herbert to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Robert M. Doyle, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Alexander S. Halstead to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Wythe M. Parks, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Harry A. Field to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander William B. Caperton, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Chester M. Knepper to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander James T. Smith, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Clarence S. Williams to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander George S. Willits, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Frank K. Hill to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Walter F. Worthington, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Roger Welles to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander William N. Little, promoted.

Lieut. Commander John D. McDonald to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Horace W. Harrison, retired.

Lieut. Commander Hilary P. Jones, jr., to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Percival J. Werlich, retired.

Lieut. Commander William R. Shoemaker to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander John L. Gow, retired.

Lieut. Commander Charles M. Fahs to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander Harry Hall, retired.

Lieut. Commander Charles P. Plunkett to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Commander James G. Doyle, retired.

Capt. John E. Pillsbury to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Charles M. Thomas, deceased.

Capt. Adolph Marix, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, with Capt. John E. Pillsbury, promoted.

Capt. Raymond P. Rodgers, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Adolph Marix, promoted.

Commander Frank H. Eldridge to be a captain in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. John E. Pillsbury, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Volney O. Chase to be a commander in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Frank H. Eldridge, promoted.

Capt. Royal R. Ingersoll to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Richardson Clover, retired.

Capt. Seaton Schroeder, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Royal R. Ingersoll, promoted.

Capt. Richard Wainwright, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, with Capt. Seaton Schroeder, promoted.

Capt. Thomas C. McLean to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral William T. Burwell, retired.

Commander Templin M. Potts to be a captain in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Thomas C. McLean, promoted.

Lieut. Commander George R. Slocum to be a commander in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Templin M. Potts, promoted.

Commander Burns T. Walling to be a captain in the navy from the 20th day of July, 1908, vice Capt. Henry McCrea, deceased.

The following-named ensigns to be lieutenants (junior grade) in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Charles H. Bullock,
Hugh McL. Walker,
John Grady,
Arthur C. Kail, and
Robert W. Kessler.

The following-named lieutenants (junior grade) to be lieutenants in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Charles H. Bullock,
Hugh McL. Walker, and
John Grady.

Capt. William J. Barnette to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral William S. Cowles, retired.

Commander Clifford J. Boush to be a captain in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Capt. William J. Barnette, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Joseph Strauss to be a commander in the navy from the 3d day of September, 1908, vice Commander James H. Sears, promoted.

Capt. Edwin K. Moore to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral John P. Merrell, retired.

Capt. John A. Rodgers, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, with Capt. Edwin K. Moore, promoted.

Commander Abraham E. Culver to be a captain in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Capt. Edwin K. Moore, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Robert L. Russell to be a commander in the navy from the 7th day of September, 1908, vice Commander Abraham E. Culver, promoted.

Capt. James D. Adams to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral James H. Dayton, retired.

Commander Henry T. Mayo to be a captain in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Capt. James D. Adams, promoted.

Lieut. Commander Harrison A. Bispham to be a commander in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Commander Henry T. Mayo, promoted.

Capt. Gottfried Blocklinger to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral Albert R. Couden, retired.

Lieut. Commander Armistead Rust to be a commander in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, vice Commander Charles C. Rogers, promoted.

Ensign Edgar G. Oberlin to take rank as an ensign in the navy from the 31st day of January, 1907, to correct the date from which he takes rank as confirmed on May 14, 1908.

Midshipman Sylvester H. Lawton, jr., to be an ensign in the navy from the 31st day of January, 1907, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

The following-named midshipmen to be ensigns in the navy from the 13th day of February, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

George S. Bryan,
Edward S. Moses,
Milo F. Draemel,
Isaac C. Shute,
Henry G. Fuller,
Andrew S. Hickey,
Francis M. Robinson.
John F. Connor,
Charles C. Hartigan,
William H. Booth,
Charles S. McWhorter,
Douglas W. Fuller,
Herbert E. Emerson,
George E. Lake,
Albert S. Rees,
Fred F. Rogers,
Lynn B. Bernheim,
Wilfred E. Clarke,
Garrett K. Davis,
William B. Howe,
Hamilton F. Glover,
Herndon B. Kelly,
Arthur A. Garcelon, jr., and
Jefferson B. Goldman.

Gunner James J. Manning and Boatswain Benjamin J. Greene to be ensigns in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved March 3, 1901, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1903, and April 27, 1904.

Assistant surgeons to be passed assistant surgeons in the navy from the dates set opposite their names, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Milton E. Lando, October 26, 1907;
Judson L. Taylor, December 17, 1907;
Paul R. Stalnaker, May 3, 1908; and
George S. Hathaway, August 1, 1908.

Passed Asst. Surg. John J. Snyder to be a surgeon in the navy from the 4th day of April, 1908, vice Surg. John E. Page, retired.

Passed Asst. Surg. Edward M. Blackwell to be a surgeon in the navy from the 4th day of April, 1908, vice Surg. John M. Moore, dismissed.

Passed Asst. Surg. George F. Freeman to be a surgeon in the navy from the 2d day of August, 1908, vice Surg. John F. Urie, retired.

Medical Inspector Lucien G. Heneberger to be a medical director in the navy from the 2d day of September, 1908, vice Medical Director Walter A. McClurg, retired.

Surg. Henry T. Percy to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 2d day of September, 1908, vice Medical Inspector Lucien G. Heneberger, promoted.

Surg. James D. Gatewood to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 18th day of September, 1908, vice Medical Inspector John M. Steele, retired.

Surg. Oliver Diehl to be a medical inspector in the navy from the 11th day of October, 1908, vice Medical Inspector Clement Biddle, retired.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 15th day of June, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

David G. Allen, a citizen of Georgia;
Lindsay C. Whiteside, a citizen of Pennsylvania;
Chandler W. Smith, a citizen of Pennsylvania; and
George C. Thomas, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 15th day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Joseph R. Phelps, a citizen of Massachusetts;
George B. Crow, a citizen of Missouri; and
Alfred L. Clifton, a citizen of Delaware.

Harry W. B. Turner, a citizen of California, to be an assistant surgeon in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Reginald B. Henry, a citizen of New York, and Harry A. Giltner, a citizen of Indiana, to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 10th day of September, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date.

Lloyd P. Shippen, a citizen of Maryland, and Lucius W. Johnson, a citizen of Pennsylvania, to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 17th day of September, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 3d day of October, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

John B. Pollard, a citizen of Virginia;
Arthur H. Dodge, a citizen of Rhode Island;
George F. Cottle, a citizen of New York; and
William L. Mann, jr., a citizen of Texas.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the navy from the 12th day of October, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Roy Cuthbertson, a citizen of Michigan;
George B. Whitmore, a citizen of Michigan;
John A. B. Sinclair, a citizen of Virginia; and Donald H. Noble, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

Passed Asst. Paymaster George P. Auld to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of December, 1906, vice Paymaster Dexter Tiffany, jr., resigned.

Paymaster William J. Littell to be a pay inspector in the navy from the 5th day of April, 1908, vice Pay Inspector Charles S. Williams, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster John A. B. Smith, jr., to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of April, 1908, vice Paymaster William J. Littell, promoted.

Paymaster Martin McM. Ramsay to be a pay inspector in the navy from the 2d day of May, 1908, vice Pay Inspector Thomas J. Cowie, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster Felix R. Holt to be a paymaster in the navy from the 2d day of May, 1908, vice Paymaster Martin McM. Ramsay, promoted.

Passed Asst. Paymaster Emmett C. Gudger to be a paymaster in the navy from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Paymaster Walter L. Wilson, retired.

The following-named assistant paymasters in the navy to be passed assistant paymasters in the navy from the dates set opposite their names, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade:

Fred W. Holt, October 23, 1907;
Walter D. Sharp, October 23, 1907;
Raymond B. Westlake, October 23, 1907;
Gordon A. Helmicks, October 23, 1907;
John M. Hancock, October 23, 1907;
Graham M. Adee, October 23, 1907;
George R. Crapo, October 23, 1907;
Thom Williamson, jr., October 23, 1907;
William N. Hughes, October 23, 1907;
Howard H. Alkire, November 30, 1907;
John N. Jordan, January 6, 1908;
Harold W. Browning, March 15, 1908;
Benjamin H. Brooke, July 8, 1908;
Thomas J. Bright, July 8, 1908;
Emory D. Stanley, July 8, 1908;
Lewis W. L. Jennings, July 8, 1908;
Brantz Mayer, July 8, 1908;
Swinton L. Bethea, July 8, 1908;
William G. Neill, July 8, 1908;
Harry E. Collins, July 8, 1908;
John H. Gunnell, July 8, 1908;
Emmett H. Tebeau, July 8, 1908;
Charles E. Parsons, July 8, 1908;
William J. Hine, July 8, 1908;
Francis J. Daly, July 8, 1908; and
Roland W. Schumann, July 8, 1908.

The following-named citizens to be assistant paymasters in the navy from the 23d day of July, 1908, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

William R. Van Buren, a citizen of New York;
Raymond E. Corcoran, a citizen of South Carolina;
Elwood A. Cobey, a citizen of Maryland;
Spencer E. Dickinson, a citizen of California;
Robert S. Chew, jr., a citizen of the District of Columbia;
Russell Van De W. Bleecker, a citizen of New York; and
Thomas R. Le Compte, a citizen of Maryland.

Ensign Allan J. Chantry, jr., to be an assistant naval constructor in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

The following-named boatswains in the navy to be chief boatswains in the navy from the dates set opposite their names upon the completion of six years' service in present grade:

Daniel Montague, June 15, 1904;
John Winn, November 5, 1907;
John Eberwine, March 11, 1908;
August Wohltman, March 11, 1908;
John A. Riley, March 11, 1908;
William Martin, March 11, 1908; and
Harry G. Jacklin, July 5, 1908.

The following-named gunners to be chief gunners in the navy from the dates set opposite their names upon the completion of six years' service in present grade:

August C. Steinbrenner, August 1, 1906;
Leonard Roll, March 11, 1908;
Isaiah Wilbur, March 11, 1908; and
George A. Messing, March 11, 1908.

Major, Assistant Adjutant and Inspector Rufus H. Lane to be an assistant adjutant and inspector in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of lieutenant-colonel from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Captain, Assistant Quartermaster William B. Lemly to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Major, Assistant Quartermaster Charles L. McCawley, promoted.

Captain, Assistant Quartermaster Henry L. Roosevelt to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Captain, Assistant Paymaster William G. Powell to be an assistant paymaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of major from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

First Lieut. Logan Tucker to be an assistant quartermaster in the United States Marine Corps with the rank of captain from the 28th day of September, 1908, vice Captain, Assistant Quartermaster Edwin A. Jonas, retired.

Second Lieut. Edward H. Conger to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of March, 1908, vice First Lieut. Cleyburn McCauley, retired.

Capt. Philip M. Bannon to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Edward R. Lowndes, retired.

First Lieut. William H. Pritchett to be captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Philip M. Bannon, promoted.

Second Lieut. Jeter R. Horton to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 5th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William H. Pritchett, promoted.

Lieut. Col. Lincoln Karmany to be a colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Maj. John A. Lejeune to be a lietenant-colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Lieut. Col. Lincoln Karmany, promoted.

Maj. Eli K. Cole to be a lieutenant-colonel in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Capt. Newt H. Hall to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. John A. Lejeune, promoted.

Capt. Henry Leonard to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Smedley D. Butler, an additional number in grade.

Capt. George C. Thorpe to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Henry Leonard, an additional number in grade.

Capt. Charles S. Hill to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

Capt. Henry C. Davis to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

First Lieut. William G. Fay to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Henry Leonard, promoted.

First Lieut. Robert Y. Rhea to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. George C. Thorpe, promoted.

First Lieut. Thomas Holcomb, jr., to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Henry C. Davis, promoted.

The following-named first lieutenants to be captains in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill vacancies created by an act of Congress approved on that date:

Edward A. Greene,
Edward B. Manwaring,
Thomas M. Clinton,
Hamilton D. South,
James T. Buttrick,
Giles Bishop, jr.,
James K. Tracy,
Arthur J. O'Leary,

Berton W. Sibley,
Frank F. Robards,
William Brackett,
Chandler Campbell,
William L. Redles,
Woodell A. Pickering,
Charles T. Westcott, jr., and
Franklin S. Wiltse.

Second Lieut. Henry N. Manney, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frank C. Lander, promoted.

Second Lieut. Clifford P. Meyer to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Thomas H. Brown, promoted.

Second Lieut. Franklin B. Garrett to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William G. Fay, promoted.

Second Lieut. Calvin B. Matthews to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Eli T. Fryer, promoted.

Second Lieut. Arthur A. Racicot, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Edward A. Greene, promoted.

Second Lieut. Tom D. Barber to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Hamilton D. South, promoted.

Second Lieut. Hermann T. Vulte to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. James T. Buttrick, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edward W. Sturdevant, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Giles Bishop, jr., promoted.

Second Lieut. Andrew B. Drum to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. James K. Tracy, promoted.

Second Lieut. Victor I. Morrison to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Ellis B. Miller, promoted.

Second Lieut. Maurice E. Shearer to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Arthur J. O'Leary, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ward Ellis to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Berton W. Sibley, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles A. Lutz to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William Brackett, promoted.

Second Lieut. Calhoun Ancrum to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Chandler Campbell, promoted.

Second Lieut. David M. Randall to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William L. Redles, promoted.

Second Lieut. John R. Henley to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Charles T. Westcott, jr., promoted.

Second Lieut. Henry S. Green to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Franklin S. Wiltse, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ralph L. Shepard to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frederick A. Ramsey, promoted.

The following-named second lieutenants in the United States Marine Corps to be first lieutenants in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill vacancies created in that grade by an act of Congress approved on that date:

Howard W. Stone,
Bennet Puryear, jr.,
William W. Buckley,
William C. Wise, jr.,
William D. Smith,
Harold B. Pratt, and
Randolph Coyle.

First Lieut. Frederick A. Ramsey to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, to fill a vacancy created by an act of Congress approved on that date.

First Lieut. John A. Hughes to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Harold C. Reisinger, appointed captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Philip H. Torrey to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Earl H. Ellis, promoted.

Second Lieut. Robert L. Denig to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. John A. Hughes, promoted.

Second Lieut. Logan Tucker to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Frank Halford, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Charles S. McReynolds to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Walter E. Noa, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Charles F. B. Price to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Seth Williams, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. William C. Powers, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Davis B. Wills, appointed a captain, assistant paymaster.

Second Lieut. Russell H. Davis to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Edward W. Banker, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Sydney S. Lee to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Charles R. Sanderson, appointed a captain, assistant quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Robert Tittoni to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. William A. Howard, retired.

First Lieut. Thomas C. Turner to be a captain in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of June, 1908, vice Capt. Henry O. Bisset, retired.

Second Lieut. Ross E. Rowell to be a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 17th day of June, 1908, vice First Lieut. Thomas C. Turner, promoted.

Capt. Smedley D. Butler to be a major in the United States Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Maj. Eli K. Cole, promoted.

Templin M. Potts, jr., a citizen of West Virginia, to be a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 10th day of March, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Clarke H. Wells, a citizen of the District of Columbia, to be a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps from the 9th day of September, 1908, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

POSTMASTER.

FLORIDA.

Frank Vans Agnew, to be postmaster at Kissimmee, Fla.

INJUNCTION OF SECRECY REMOVED.

On December 10, 1908, the following conventions were ratified by the Senate, and the injunction of secrecy was removed therefrom:

An arbitration convention between the United States and China (Ex. A, 60th, 2d).

An arbitration convention between the United States and Peru (Ex. B, 60th, 2d).

A naturalization convention between the United States and Brazil (Ex. C, 60th, 2d).

A naturalization convention between the United States and Honduras (Ex. D, 60th, 2d).

A naturalization convention between the United States and Uruguay (Ex. E, 60th, 2d).

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 10, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PROCTOR MEMORIAL EXERCISES.

Mr. HASKINS. Mr. Speaker, on the 27th day of last May a special order was made by the House setting apart next Sunday, December 13, for memorial addresses upon the life, character, and public services of Hon. REDFIELD PROCTOR, of Vermont. The Senate has postponed action upon their order. I now ask that a different order be made, changing it to Sunday, January 10, 1909, at 12 o'clock.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks unanimous consent to substitute January 10 for the Proctor memorial exercises in lieu of next Sunday. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House of Representatives by Mr. Latta, one of his secretaries.

PENSIONS.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that they desire to continue work on the consideration of the legislative bill until completed. I now ask that the next legislative day following the disposition of the legislative bill shall be substituted for to-morrow for the purpose of considering bills on the Private Calendar.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Hampshire asks unanimous consent that the next legislative day after the completion of the consideration of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill shall be set apart in lieu of to-morrow for pensions. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BINGHAM], of the Committee on Appropriations, has been authorized to report the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill, and will make the report very soon. It is the desire of the committee to take the bill up for consideration to-morrow immediately after the reading of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. BINGHAM, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the bill (H. R. 23464) making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes, which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I reserve all points of order on the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York reserves all points of order on the bill.

Mr. PAYNE. I demand the regular order.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Will the gentleman from New York withdraw that for a moment?

Mr. PAYNE. I withdraw the demand for a moment.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I just want to fix the time for debate in the House now.

The SPEAKER. It can be fixed now or to-morrow, as the gentleman prefers. The gentleman from Pennsylvania will please give his attention.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I give notice to the gentleman in charge of the bill that to-morrow we will regulate the time for debate on both sides.

CALL OF COMMITTEES.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call the first committee.

CLAIMS.

Mr. WALDO (when the Committee on Claims was called). Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. MILLER] has some bills which he wishes to take up, and I ask that the committee be passed until he can get here.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks that the committee be passed without prejudice.

Mr. MANN. I think that that committee has nothing to call up on the call of the committees.

Mr. WALDO. I understand we have. We have a Calendar of bills.

Mr. CHANEY. Are they on the Private Calendar?

Mr. WALDO. Yes.

Mr. CHANEY. This call is only for House bills.

The SPEAKER. Has the Committee on Claims any bill on the House Calendar?

Mr. WALDO. I think not, but I am not sure; and in the absence of the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. MILLER] I ask that the committee be passed without prejudice until the chairman of the committee arrives.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

BOOKS FOR THE LIFE-SAVING SERVICE.

Mr. BATES. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department I call up the bill (S. 3495) to authorize the transfer of books from the Treasury Department library to life-saving stations of the United States.

The bill was read at length.

Mr. BATES. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill to transfer about 3,000 volumes that are now in the custody of the Secretary of the Treasury, and send them out to the life-saving stations of the United States, where they will be used and appreciated. They are not used in the Treasury building. The bill has passed the Senate, has the report and approval of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department, and is on the House Calendar for passage. I ask for a vote.

Mr. TAWNEY. I desire to ask the gentleman a question. I understand him to say that the number of volumes is about 6,000.

Mr. BATES. The report of Mr. Winthrop, the assistant secretary, states that the number is about 6,000 volumes.

Mr. TAWNEY. Does the gentleman know the total number of volumes in the Treasury library?

Mr. BATES. No; I can not say.

Mr. TAWNEY. Is it intended to transfer the entire library now in the Treasury Department?

Mr. BATES. Oh, not at all.

Mr. TAWNEY. It ought to be done. I was just wondering whether it did or not.

Mr. MANN. It is intended to transfer that class of books that are not of use in the Treasury Department, but that are good reading.

Mr. BATES. That is all.

Mr. OLMSTED. I would like to inquire of the gentleman having charge of the bill—my colleague from Pennsylvania—whether these books relate to the subject of first aid to the injured; or, if not, what the object is of sending them to the life-saving sations?

Mr. BATES. They are largely books of entertainment and travel, and novels, for the whiling away of the tedious hours of the men who are in the life-saving stations of the United States. The books are not especially instructive, I understand, although I think they will be of use in the places to which they are intended to be sent.

Mr. OLMSTED. My observation of two or three of these life-saving stations is that the so-called life savers there are good for little else except entertainment, although the most of them render excellent service, and I therefore shall not object.

Mr. MANN. I do not think that statement ought to go unchallenged.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Pennsylvania suspend for a moment? The Clerk at the desk informs the Chair that this bill is not upon the Calendar, that the bill itself is not present, and furthermore that it passed the House on the 30th day of May last.

Mr. BATES. I withdraw the bill. I was requested by one of the executive departments to pass this bill at the first opportunity, and found such a memorandum on my desk. I understand it is not yet a law.

CITIZENSHIP OF MILITARY AND NAVAL DESERTERS.

The Committee on Naval Affairs was called.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Naval Affairs I call up Senate bill 5473, to authorize the Secretary of the Navy in certain cases to mitigate or remit the loss of rights of citizenship imposed by law upon deserters from the naval service.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

"That every person who hereafter deserts the military or naval service of the United States, or who, being duly enrolled, departs the jurisdiction of the district in which he is enrolled, or goes beyond the limits of the United States, with intent to avoid any draft into the military or naval service, lawfully ordered, shall be liable to all the penalties and forfeitures of section 1996: Provided, That the provisions of this section and section 1996 shall not apply to any person deserting the military or naval service of the United States in time of peace: And provided further, That the loss of rights of citizenship imposed by law upon deserters from the naval service may be mitigated or remitted by the Secretary of the Navy where the offense was committed in time of peace and where the exercise of such clemency will not be prejudicial to the public interests."

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, this bill has been called to the attention of Congress by the Secretary of the Navy, and the injustice and hardship of the existing law has been pointed out by him. It seems that this forfeiture of rights of citizenship for desertion from the navy was first imposed by law in 1865, and the purpose and intent of that act was, as set out by Col. William Winthrop, a writer of recognized authority on military jurisprudence, to prevent those who were drafted from escaping the effects of the draft. Let me read a brief paragraph from his work:

It may be added in regard to this statute that, though general in its terms, it was manifestly intended as a means of enforcing the draft and of preventing desertion at a period of emergency and public danger. It was thus in fact a war measure, and the general clause was apparently added only to cover such period as might remain of the then existing war. Not being limited, however, to such period, it has been treated as of continuous operation. In a normal condition of peace, a statute of this exceptional character, by which desertion is visited with a "political" punishment, is incongruous and unnecessary, and its retention in our military law is no longer desirable.

Now, the Secretary of the Navy very aptly says that the American Navy is never troubled with desertions in time of war, and the only trouble we do have is with the young fellows, boys of 18, 19, or 20, who are joining the American Navy in such great numbers, who are led away by improper associates, without having any conception of the enormity of the punishment that will follow their desertion, and who compose the majority of the deserters from our navy to-day.

Let me say to the House that the punishment for desertion at the present time carries with it imprisonment, usually not less than one year, forfeiture of all pay that may be due, dishonorable discharge from the navy, which prevents the person from ever again enlisting in the navy, and by statute, not by sentence of court-martial, the further enormous punishment which we only mete out to felons—loss of citizenship.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. What is your proposition, stated briefly?

Mr. ROBERTS. The proposition, Mr. Speaker, is to strike out of the statute law that horrible punishment for a comparatively minor offense—desertion in time of peace—so that when a man deserts from the navy, hereafter, he will only get the court-martial punishment, which is imprisonment, loss of his pay, and dishonorable discharge from the navy, leaving him still an American citizen.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Then this law, as it stands now, applies to both the army and navy?

Mr. ROBERTS. It only applies to the navy, because the naval committee did not deem it within its province to offer legislation affecting the army. The provision should apply, in my judgment, to both branches of the military service.

Mr. MANN. I beg the pardon of the gentleman from Massachusetts, but it does apply to both the army and the navy. If the gentleman will read the amendment, he will see that it applies to the military and naval service of the United States.

Mr. ROBERTS. I accept the corrections, Mr. Speaker; it does apply to both branches.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Does either the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy recommend this measure?

Mr. ROBERTS. The Secretary of the Navy recommends it. If the gentleman from Missouri will read the House report No. 1340, he will see that the Secretary of the Navy devotes a page of fine print to the advocacy of his recommendation.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Which Secretary of the Navy?

Mr. ROBERTS. Secretary Metcalf. I would state for the information of the gentleman from Missouri that the House amendment goes a step farther than merely repealing that clause relating to loss of citizenship, and gives the Secretary of the Navy authority, where it is not incompatible with the public interest, to restore citizenship to those who have lost it by desertion prior to the passage of this act; the object of putting that in was to prevent a flood of bills coming upon Congress to restore citizenship to those who have lost it under the operation of the old law.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. The Secretary of War has the power to do that now, has he not?

Mr. ROBERTS. Neither the Secretary of War nor the Secretary of the Navy has the power to restore citizenship. That is the statute provision, and the Secretaries have no discretion; it goes with the court-martial sentence, as a part of it.

Mr. KELIHER. Can they go back and pardon a man who has previously been convicted? In other words, is the power of the Secretaries to be retroactive?

Mr. ROBERTS. Under this bill the Secretary of the Navy has the right to restore the rights of citizenship to those who lost it prior——

Mr. KELIHER. How far back?

Mr. ROBERTS. Back to 1865 in cases, as the amendment states, where such clemency will not be prejudicial to the public interest.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. ROBERTS. Very well.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Has not the President of the United States this power under his authority to restore citizenship by issuing a pardon for the offense?

Mr. ROBERTS. I will state that probably if the President should pardon a man for desertion, citizenship would be restored; but there are so many cases of desertion that it would not be feasible for the President to be burdened with the responsibility of looking into all these cases and issuing or withholding a pardon. It is a monstrosity in the law that should be taken out of it.

Mr. KELIHER. Is it not a fact that all the evidence in the cases is furnished the President by the department heads?

Mr. ROBERTS. Yes; I think it is.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I would like to ask the gentleman from Massachusetts a question.

Mr. ROBERTS. Very well.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Can the gentleman give to the House about the average age of the men who desert from the army or the navy?

Mr. ROBERTS. The Secretary of the Navy, speaking for the navy, says that the larger proportion or great majority of the desertions from the navy are of young men in their first enlistment. Now, I am not able to state the average age of these young men, but I might say to the gentleman from Tennessee that it was stated when the fleet started for its cruise around the world, if my memory serves me, that the average age of the men in the ships was about 21 years.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I want to say to the gentleman that I am in favor of his bill, and I will state further that I do not think I ever had a case of desertion where the party who deserted knew beforehand that he would lose his citizenship.

Mr. ROBERTS. I will venture to say that not one man in ten thousand who joins the naval service of the United States knows or dreams even that should he desert he would lose his citizenship.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. And utterly regardless of the awfulness of the crime of desertion.

Mr. ROBERTS. I want to point out just one other feature of the bill. It does not affect the law regarding desertions in time of war, but only in time of peace.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question. I understand from the reading of the Clerk that this bill undertakes to give the power to the Secretary of the Navy to grant pardons to deserters from the navy.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will read the full text of the bill he will see that that power is given to the Secretary to deal only with cases of desertion in the past. If we are going to take this out of the law so that a man who deserts hereafter does not lose citizenship, it is only a matter of fairness that those who deserted prior to that law should have citizenship restored when not prejudicial to public interests.

Mr. KEIFER. What I want to know is whether it is the understanding that all convictions now for desertion take from the party citizenship?

Mr. ROBERTS. Conviction itself under the existing law forfeits citizenship. That is the monstrosity of the law.

Mr. KEIFER. Do I understand the object of this bill is to give such power, the equivalent of the pardoning power, to the Secretary of the Navy to restore that citizenship?

Mr. ROBERTS. In cases in the past. If this becomes a law desertion in time of peace will not forfeit citizenship. That is, the loss of citizenship does not go with the conviction for desertion.

Mr. KEIFER. That explanation is all right, but this is the point: I want to know whether the gentleman's committee has considered the question as to whether the Secretary of the Navy himself, and not the President, can be given by law the pardoning power after a conviction of a deserter from the navy that has the effect of taking away citizenship.

Mr. ROBERTS. The committee did consider that, and we thought that inasmuch as all the records concerning the deserter were in the custody of the Secretary of the Navy, and that, if you may call it so, the pardoning power would be more expeditiously exercised and with equal discretion by the Secretary of the Navy, it would be better not to bother the Chief Executive, as he would be bothered, by innumerable petitions for the restoration of that citizenship.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I have been unfortunate in having the gentleman understand the point I am trying to reach, and that is this: Whether the Secretary of the Navy can be given the pardoning power to the exclusion of the President of the United States in the cases to which he refers.

Mr. ROBERTS. It seems to me the gentleman loses sight of the real point here. We are not pardoning anybody under the provisions of this bill. The man upon whose case the Secretary would act is not serving a sentence—he is not in prison. He is at liberty. We are restoring the right that has been forfeited by operation of law, and we restore it by operation of law.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman to say, however, that he was under a sentence of conviction for the crime of desertion, which took away his citizenship, and that it is now proposed to restore that to him by giving the power to the Secretary of the Navy to pardon him.

Mr. ROBERTS. The sentence for desertion itself makes no mention of loss of citizenship. The sentence itself of the court-martial does not mention loss of citizenship in any way, shape, or manner. That goes along with it by operation of the statute of 1865.

Mr. KEIFER. Because the law forfeits it.

Mr. ROBERTS. The law fixes it.

Mr. KEIFER. Yes. I want to say that I do not believe you can give the pardoning power by statute to anybody, that power being vested exclusively in all federal convictions to the President of the United States by the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Has not the President the absolute right now to restore these parties?

Mr. ROBERTS. I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that would be a moot question after the prisoner has served his sentence, upon discharge from prison, dishonorable discharge from the navy; it is a grave question, in my opinion, whether the President then has power to restore citizenship.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. I do not believe that there is any question of the right——

Mr. ROBERTS. I do not believe you should punish a man for an offense after he has expiated that offense.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. He has done that in the past in the army, to my certain knowledge, where an officer of the army was convicted for misappropriation of public funds, served in the penitentiary at Leavenworth, who was pardoned out at the close of his term and restored to citizenship.

Mr. ROBERTS. After he served his sentence?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. At the conclusion of his sentence he was pardoned out.

Mr. ROBERTS. And before the Government had released him from custody? I should question it very much, but the gentleman, who has had wide experience, will admit, if this becomes the law—this provision taking out the loss of citizenship from the statute—there will be thousands of cases brought to somebody's attention of those who have deserted and thereby lost their citizenship who will want to be restored to citizenship, and somebody will be flooded with these petitions. Now, it would seem to me, as a practical question, that we had better let the Navy Department and the Secretary of the Navy stand the brunt than to throw it upon the President.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Then had you not better strike out the words "military or naval service?" Make it simply desertion from the naval service. If the gentleman will do that, I should not care to interfere with the naval portion. I doubt very much the wisdom of the legislation, and can see no reason why the army should be put in without any investigation whatever. I have never had a recommendation of that kind from any man connected with the department, and I think it is a radical change of the law.

Mr. SABATH. Does this apply only to the navy?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. It applies to both army and navy, but it does not allow the Secretary of War to remove the penalties imposed in the past, while this goes further. It does give to everyone who has been convicted of desertion the right of citizenship again who has deserted from the navy.

Mr. GOULDEN. Why did you include the military branch in all except the pardoning power of those deserting in the past?

Mr. ROBERTS. Because we did not feel warranted in suggesting legislation which would constrain the action of the Secretary of War. We wanted to confine our legislation as closely as possible to the naval end of it.

Mr. GOULDEN. But you include the military end so far as the future is concerned, and I think it ought to be included.

Mr. ROBERTS. I agree with you. I will say to the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs that if he does not like it, I will accept an amendment striking out the military part of it. I will say frankly the purpose of the Committee on Naval Affairs is to look out for that end of it and the good of the navy.

Mr. MANN. And the purpose of Congress ought to be to look out for both.

Mr. ROBERTS. We agree there fully, but by reason of a clash of authority between committees, the Naval Affairs Committee did not want to go any further than absolutely necessary, so we did not confer any power on the Secretary of War with regard to past offenses.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. The whole question is a new one. How many men are affected we have no information whatever; what its effect will be upon the service we have no information whatever.

Mr. SABATH. Many thousands of young men, from 16, 17, and 18 years of age, who enlist have not the slightest idea that they would be punished severely if they desert. They are made all kinds of promises when they enlist. Now, after they enlist and serve for a few months and then desert, they lose their citizenship.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. There are desertions from both the army and navy from men past 20 years of age, who know what they are about——

Mr. SABATH. Very few.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Who know all about what their obligation is. It costs the Government of the United States a thousand dollars to equip and start a man out in the service.

In a great many of these cases the men enlist with the idea of getting fitted out, serving but a little while, getting transported to some point, and desert. You cast the whole thing together. You make it appear so that there is practically no punishment except of a little imprisonment.

Mr. ROBERTS. Now, let me say to the gentleman right there, I do not know what the punishment is for desertion from the army, but I do know that in the navy the punishment for desertion in time of peace is a very severe one. And they are not only sentenced to serve not less than a year in prison, but they lose any allowances that may be coming to them, and they are dishonorably discharged.

Mr. SABATH. That same punishment is in the military, is it not?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. It is the same thing.

Mr. ROBERTS. It seems to me it is a sufficient punishment for so comparatively trivial an offense as desertion in time of peace.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Desertion is not a trivial offense.

Mr. ROBERTS. I maintain that desertions by the great mass of those who commit them, young fellows from 16 to 18 and 19 years of age, are a trivial offense when those desertions come in their first enlistment.

Mr. MANN. And the punishment now is, without doubt, abhorrent to modern civilization.

Mr. KELIHER. In the gentleman's opinion, does he consider that that feature of the punishment that applies forfeiture of citizenship acts as a deterrent to desertions from the navy to-day?

Mr. ROBERTS. Absolutely no; because, as I stated a moment ago, I do not believe one person in ten thousand who enlists in the navy even dreams he will lose his citizenship should he desert in time of peace, and not having any knowledge of that extraordinary punishment, it can not have any deterrent effect on desertion.

Mr. KELIHER. If the gentleman will permit me, I want to supplement that remark by this statement. I come from a seaboard city, and have had a number of experiences in just such cases, and in nine-tenths of them the culprits had no idea whatever that they would forfeit their citizenship by desertion from the navy.

Mr. ROBERTS. It is only in after years that the enormity of this punishment comes home to these young fellows. After they have attained years of discretion, have become good citizens in the community, and then seek some office either at the hands of their fellow-citizens or by appointment, they are met with that awful punishment of loss of citizenship. And we are creating by the operation of this act a class of young men in this country, numbering thousands, American-born boys, who are not citizens of this country, and who have lost that precious right because in a moment of heedlessness, or homesickness, or for some trivial cause, they left the naval service during their first enlistment.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. And you practically outlaw them.

Mr. PAYNE. The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. ROBERTS] thinks it is an extraordinary punishment. In our State every man who is convicted of a felony loses his right of citizenship, and I suppose that is so in most of the States of this country.

Mr. ROBERTS. I agree with the gentleman, if he wants to call a boy 18 years of age, in his first enlistment, the first time he is away from home, and homesick, who runs away to go back to his mother, a felon, it is not unusual or extraordinary.

Mr. PAYNE. Desertion in time of war is a very serious matter.

Mr. ROBERTS. I will now yield to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HULL], the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PAYNE. The law calls a boy, even 18 years of age, who in a moment of thoughtlessness runs away from the navy, a felon if he is convicted, just as much as it does now a boy 18 years of age who in a moment of temptation robs the till or commits the crime of forgery in his employer's service. And the law of nations recognizes always the crime of desertion as a very serious one, and in times of war sometimes a man's life is forfeited, and justly so, on account of it.

Now, I only mention that because the gentleman said it was a very extraordinary punishment and seems to think it was applicable only to this offense, and that therefore no one dreamed of the consequences that would follow. I do not know why a young man should not, if he was going to commit what is denounced as a felony—if it is what the gentleman thinks it is, a trivial offense to desert from the navy—I do not know why he should not as well be apprised of the consequences that follow his act as a young man who does commit the crime of grand larceny. I am not comparing the two offenses, but simply stating that offense.

Mr. ROBERTS. I know the law makes desertion a felony, with the loss of citizenship; but I still maintain that it is a barbarous punishment for a comparatively trivial offense. I, for one, and the Naval Committee as well, want to see that monstrosity taken out of our laws. This was a civil-war measure, an emergency measure, in time of great stress; but by its construction these harsh provisions have been extended down to the present time, and it seems to me we are now far enough away from the civil war and far enough away from the emergency that made that law desirable to be able to dispense with this harsh provision.

Mr. PAYNE. If the gentleman confines himself to the kind of an argument he is now making, which is a legitimate argument, and not the extreme argument he was making in regard to the heinousness of the punishment of desertion, I am more inclined to favor his bill.

Mr. PRINCE. I desire to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. ROBERTS. I will yield to the gentleman for a question.

Mr. PRINCE. Do you not think that those very highly colored pictures inciting and encouraging young men to enlist in the navy have, through the inducements and through the promises to them of things that they will obtain by reason of the service, that they never get, been the cause of many young men enlisting; and after they get into the service they fall homesick and are inclined to leave without full knowledge as to the effect of this provision that you are now seeking to modify?

Mr. ROBERTS. In answer to the gentleman, let me say that I have had brought to my personal attention many cases of young men who have been induced—I will not say by what means—to enlist in the navy under the impression that they were to get great opportunities; that great advantages would be placed before them; and after they had left their homes and been in the navy a few months they did not see the opportunities nor the advantages, and they got homesick and ran away. These young fellows, some of them sons of the best families in this country, by operation of this statute stand today as outlaws in the land of their birth. That is what the law is doing. It is creating a band of outlaws in this country—outlawing young American boys, born in this country, in many cases of a long line of American ancestors.

Mr. DRISCOLL. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. ROBERTS. I yield to the gentleman for a question.

Mr. DRISCOLL. I want to ask the gentleman whether he proposes to inflict any punishment on these boys after they have enlisted and then deserted from the service?

Mr. ROBERTS. The gentleman from New York evidently has not been listening to my statement. They get not less than one year imprisonment if they are convicted. And, as a further punishment, if they desert they lose all pay and allowances that may be due them at the time of desertion, and they are dishonorably discharged from the navy, and can never thereafter join the naval or military service of the country. That is punishment enough.

Mr. DRISCOLL. Is this a special case?

Mr. ROBERTS. That is the general punishment.

Mr. DRISCOLL. Is this bill of yours a special case?

Mr. ROBERTS. It is a change of the general law, taking out of the statutes that barbaric penalty which has continued from war times to the present time.

Mr. DOUGLAS and Mr. SLAYDEN rose.

The SPEAKER. To whom does the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROBERTS. How much time have I remaining?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Does the gentleman yield for a question?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has twenty-six minutes remaining. Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Ohio?

Mr. ROBERTS. I yield for a question.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Why does not section 2, Article II, of the Constitution, which provides that upon the advice of any executive officer the President may grant a reprieve or pardon, cover the case? I do not know but what the gentleman may have stated that in his remarks.

Mr. ROBERTS. Reprieve is commonly understood to relate to a case where a man is under sentence of death and before the sentence has been executed. Now, it will be of no good to a man to grant him a reprieve after his neck has been stretched. A pardon is properly supposed to relate to a case where a man is undergoing sentence and the sentence has not expired.

Mr. SLAYDEN. Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that no administrative official of the War Department has requested legislation of this kind, I should like to ask the gentleman from Massachusetts if he does not think it would be wise to exempt the army entirely from the operation of the bill?

Mr. ROBERTS. I have stated repeatedly to the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs that if he will offer an amendment striking out "military or," in the first line, I will accept it or let the House vote on it.

I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GAINES] three minutes.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I have had considerable experience in these desertion matters since I have been in Congress. I was appalled when I learned of the dense ignorance which exists of the fact that deserters are visited with a loss of citizenship as a part of the penalty, sometimes in the most trivial cases. I recall two or three examples, which I will give you. The first was that of two brothers who deserted to go home and marry two sisters, and as they were going back to their post of duty they were arrested and court-martialed. That is the way I remember the case. Another case was where a young man wanted to go home to see his sick mother. He deserted and went home, saw her; and his brother after advising him of the great wrong that he had done, put him on the train and sent him back, and en route was arrested. He was court-martialed, and my recollection is that he lost his citizenship. He had no intention of finally deserting. He meant to go back to his post. He had been a good citizen, of good standing and good family. I have had other experiences in cases of all kinds, some of them of the most trivial nature. A man convicted of desertion is imprisoned, fined, humiliated, chastised in every conceivable way except to take his life, and finally stripped of his citizenship. This is a proposition to mitigate that in time of peace, not in time of war. I am going to vote for the bill, because I think the punishment is too great. In time of war it may not be, but in time of peace it certainly is. Nearly every case that has come under my observation has been a case not of willful or malicious desertion. I recall a third case, that of a young boy whose widowed mother married again. He then slipped away and went into the navy against her will. Afterwards the stepfather died, leaving the mother a thousand miles away from her friends and old home, solitary and alone. She had in the meantime lost her eyesight. This boy deserted to go to see his mother under those circumstances.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. If the gentleman will allow me, I can state that in a case of that kind the boy did not need to desert; he did not need to desert, because the law under such circumstances allows a soldier his discharge.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. This boy learned that his mother was homeless, friendless, and penniless, and had lost her eyesight by waiting upon her unfortunate husband. When he was denied the privilege of going home to see her after he had enlisted against her will, he was punished under this terrible law because he did go. This law is too savage in time of peace; hence I am going to vote for the bill.

Mr. ROBERTS. I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HULL], chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. The statement of the gentleman from Tennessee could not apply to the army, for the reason that some years ago in an army bill——

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I said this was in the navy.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. I do not know about the navy, but as I was about to say, we have provided that in such cases as that described by the gentleman from Tennessee, a boy shall be entitled to his discharge.

This bill is to me a very sudden proposition—to change a law that has been on the statute book for a great many years. It may be all right, but I am not sure of it. It is a proposition to relieve all deserters from one of the severest penalties of the law. Now, no man can enlist in the army under the age of 18 unless he commits perjury, because they will not take him unless he satisfies them, either by his own affidavit or the certificate of his parents, that he is over 18 years of age, so that he is not an immature youth entirely. A great many desertions come from men who have enlisted two or three times, who get drunk, and rather than suffer the punishment for it desert; men of 25 or 30 years af age, many of them.

I do not know how that is in the navy, but this proposition here is to change the law. We of the military have no information on the subject. I do not propose to amend the bill; it at least leaves those that heretofore deserted from the army to take the punishment as the law provided that they should take it. I do not believe it is possible for the Secretary of the Navy to exercise the pardoning power, and therefore I do not believe that that section of the bill is of any benefit. I do believe that the President has power in every individual case that is brought to his attention to pardon a man and restore him to citizenship. The change of law affecting future action, exempting the enlisted force of the navy and the army from loss of citizenship, is effective because it is a repeal of the law to that extent, but when you go further and take from the President, practically, and give to one of his subordinates the pardoning power, I believe that you are going against the Constitution and that your provision of law is not effective.

Mr. KELIHER. Is it not a fact that the President considers these cases and decides them upon evidence furnished by the departments?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Without doubt. I think in almost every case he would issue a pardon where the Secretary of the Navy recommended it, but that does not give Congress the right to take from the President the exercise of his constitutional power and put it in the hands of a bureau chief.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Is not this a modification of the punishment?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. It is a restoration of the rights of citizenship. It is not a remission of punishment.

Mr. ROBERTS. Loss of citizenship is a punishment.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Certainly.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Has not the officer who approved the sentence of the court-martial the right to modify the sentence?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. In minor offenses, in some cases he could. But the President himself can always modify or set aside a sentence of a court-martial entirely.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Where the charge is desertion, is it not a fact that the charge may be changed by a finding of the court-martial of guilty of absence without leave or, rather, the conviction might be for absence without leave instead of desertion?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Of course, but neither the President nor the commanding general would modify a court-martial unless the evidence was sufficient to sustain it.

Mr. GOLDFOGLE. Is it not a fact in many cases that the courts-martial find young men of 18 or 20 years of age guilty of absence without leave?

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Oh, perhaps so.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DENBY). The gentleman from Massachusetts moves the previous question.

The question was taken, and the previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question now is on the amendment proposed by the committee.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended.

On motion of Mr. ROBERTS, a motion to reconsider the vote whereby the bill was passed was, upon his motion, laid upon the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will continue the call of committees.

The Clerk resumed and completed the call of committees.

REFUND OF CERTAIN MONEYS TO HAWAII.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Claims which was passed without prejudice in the call of committees, I move that the House now resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6145) to refund to the Territory of Hawaii the amount expended in maintaining light-house service on its coasts from the time of the organization of the Terrtory until said light-house service was taken over by the Federal Government.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, with Mr. MANN in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is now in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 6145, and the Clerk will read the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $23,393.69 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid to the Territory of Hawaii to reimburse said Territory for money paid, laid out, and expended by said Territory in maintaining light-houses, bell buoys, and light-house service on its coasts from the time said Territory became territory of the United States until said light-houses, bell buoys, and light-house service were transferred to and taken under the management and control of the Light-House Board.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Chairman, this is the unanimous report from the Committee on Claims recommending the reimbursement of the Hawaiian government of the sum of twenty-three thousand and some dollars for moneys they expended from the time they became a part of the territory of the United States until the light-houses, and so forth, were turned over to the Light-House Board. It has the unanimous report of the committee, and also the indorsement of the Department of Commerce and Labor. I move that the bill be laid aside with a favorable recommendation.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the committee rose, and the Speaker pro tempore having resumed the chair, Mr. MANN, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 6145) to refund to the Territory of Hawaii the amount expended in maintaining light-house service on its coasts from the time of the organization of the Territory until said light-house service was taken over by the Federal Government, and had directed him to report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. MILLER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

INVESTIGATION OF CONTROVERSIES AFFECTING INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 15447) to provide for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes.

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Speaker, pending that motion, I would inquire if it is necessary to make some arrangement about discussion of the matter in the committee?

Mr. TOWNSEND. O, Mr. Speaker, I do not understand that that is necessary. As I understand it, any gentleman is entitled to one hour's debate, although if it be the will of the House I have no objection to setting the time.

Mr. ADAMSON. I have no objection at all to proceeding in the regular way.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Michigan that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 15447.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 15447) providing for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes, with Mr. OLMSTED in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That whenever within any State or States, Territory or Territories, or the District of Columbia a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise, by reason of which controversy the transportation of the United States mails, the operations, civil or military, of the Government of the United States, or the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations is, in the judgment of the President, interrupted or directly affected, or threatened with being so interrupted or directly affected, the President may, in his discretion, inquire into the same and investigate the causes thereof, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. That to this end the President may appoint a special commission, not exceeding seven in number, of persons in his judgment specially qualified to conduct such an investigation. The Commissioner of Labor shall be ex officio secretary of the commission, and shall keep and preserve the proceedings of all commissions appointed under this act.

SEC. 3. That such commission shall promptly organize, and, upon giving reasonable notice to the parties to the controversy, shall, either at the seat of disturbance or elsewhere, as it may deem most expedient, proceed with all convenient dispatch to investigate the causes of such controversy and the remedy therefor.

SEC. 4. That the parties to the controversy shall be entitled to be present in person or by counsel during the investigation and shall be entitled to a hearing thereon, in accordance with such rules of procedure as the commission may adopt; but nothing in this section contained shall be construed as entitling such parties to be present during the consultations of the commission.

SEC. 5. That for the purposes of this act the commission, or any one commissioner, shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations, to sign subpœnas, to require the testimony of witnesses either by attendance in person or by deposition, and to require the production of such books, papers, contracts, agreements, and documents as may be deemed essential to a just determination of the matters under investigation; and to this end the commission may invoke the aid of the courts of the United States to compel witnesses to attend and testify and to produce such books, papers, contracts, agreements, and documents; and for the purposes of this section it shall be vested with the same powers, to the same extent and under the same conditions and penalties, as are vested in the Interstate Commerce Commission by the act to regulate commerce, approved February 4, 1887, and the acts amendatory thereof and in addition thereto, and all acts which may hereafter be enacted amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto; and it shall be the duty of the said courts of the United States to render said commission the same aid, to the same extent and under the same conditions, as is provided by said acts in aid of said Interstate Commerce Commission, and witnesses examined as aforesaid shall be subject to like duties as provided in said acts, but no witness shall be required to give any testimony incriminating himself, nor shall he be given any immunity: Provided, That no testimony given by him before any commission or commissioner shall be used as evidence against him in any criminal proceedings in any court, except in a prosecution for perjury committed in giving such testimony.

SEC. 6. That for the purposes of this act the commission may, whenever it deems it expedient, employ one or more competent experts to examine accounts, books, or official reports, or to examine and report on any matter material to the investigation in which such examination and report may be deemed of substantial assistance.

SEC. 7. That having made such investigation and ascertained the facts connected with the controversy into which it was appointed to inquire, the commission shall, with all convenient dispatch, formulate its report thereon, setting forth the causes of the same, locating, so far as may be, the responsibility therefor, and making such specific recommendations as shall in its judgment put an end to such controversy or disturbance and prevent a recurrence thereof, suggesting any legislation which the case may seem to require.

SEC. 8. That the report of such commission shall forthwith be transmitted to the President and by him communicated, with such comments or further recommendations as he may see fit to make, to the principal parties responsible for the controversy or involved therein, and shall be duly transmitted to Congress for its information and action.

SEC. 9. That the commission may from time to time make or amend such general rules or orders as may be deemed appropriate for the order and regulation of its investigations and proceedings and adopt forms of notices and rules for service thereof.

SEC. 10. That the President is authorized and empowered to fix a reasonable compensation, not to exceed $30 per day, for services, to be paid to the members of the commission from the Treasury at such times and in such manner as he shall direct. The commission shall have authority to employ and fix the compensation of such employees as it may find necessary to the proper performance of its duties, subject to the approval of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. The commission shall be furnished by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor with suitable offices and all necessary office supplies. Witnesses summoned before the commission shall be paid the same fees and mileage that are paid to witnesses in the courts of the United States. All of the expenses of the commission, including all necessary expenses for transportation incurred by the commissioners or by their employees under their orders in making any investigation under this act, shall be allowed and paid on the presentation of itemized vouchers therefor approved by the chairman of the commission and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

SEC. 11. That no commission appointed under this act shall continue for a period of over three months from the date of the appointment thereof.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I rise to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Under what conditions can an amendment be offered to some of the provisions of the bill?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will state that this is only the first reading of the bill. It will be read later by sections for purposes of amendment.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, I am deeply sensible of the fact that there are times when complainants from all over the country are demanding of their attorneys in fact, the Congressmen, the introduction and passage of bills intended to cure the various real or imaginary ills from which they either suffer or think they suffer, and while I am a firm believer in respresentative government, and thoroughly convinced of the wisdom of that Congressman who heeds and obeys mature and intelligent public sentiment, yet I am in sympathy with that conservatism which pauses to thoroughly analyze these various complaints in order to determine whether they are the demands of mature and intelligent opinion or the products of doctrinaires, or, what is worse, of aggrieved and disappointed men and organizations who seek the aid of government to accomplish some selfish end.

Since I have been a Member of this House I have at times been impatient at what appeared like procrastination of the National Legislature in dealing with matters which seemed to me of pressing necessity, but when I have considered the magnitude of the work that is always before it, the effect of legislation upon existing conditions and institutions, the fallibility of the legislator himself, I have become convinced of the fact that only after mature deliberation on full information should the Government enter that realm which constitutes individual conduct and action. On the other hand, it is the duty of Congress when properly informed to legislate fearlessly yet righteously in the interest of the people.

It is true that nearly all great measures of legislation abridge the claimed right of some individual or organization. "Thou shalt not steal" enacted into law denies to the thief the practice of his profession. "Thou shalt not" as a legal enactment bars the door of opportunity to every man who would break that commandment. But in the interest of the common good the proclamation is made, and upon its enforcement depend those other rights essential to the general welfare.

The measure which I present to the House to-day is one born of the very necessities of our present industrial condition. It is not a prohibition of any act or right. It is designed to investigate matters of conduct affecting the public, which matters are in the process of evolution and are ethical as well as industrial and not sufficiently developed to admit of positive legislation defining what is right and prohibiting what is wrong.

In the story of the growth and development of the United States nothing is more prominent or of greater importance than those pages which contain the record of industrial life. The student will notice a marvelous change in the relations of capital and labor when he compares the present with any period prior to 1870. Originally there was no general line of separation between the employer and his employee; side by side in the shop and factory they worked. Their families were social equals and their wants and desires were practically common, but as time passed on the master came less and less in contact with his servants. Machinery was introduced and its iron music tended to destroy the gentler tones of human sympathy. As business grew, the overseer and superintendent met the men more frequently than did the proprietor, and after a while the only time the workman saw his employer was when the latter rode in liveried splendor through the streets. In time the laborer came to believe that his interests were hostile to those of his employer. A condition arose under which men were measured by units of horsepower, and the workman knew little of the business in which he was engaged except that covered by the particular machine about which he revolved. Under the excuse of cheapening the cost of production manufacturers combined in an effort to produce under a common management, and the greater the combination the wider became the distance between master and servant. Complete combinations have not been made, but the tendency is in that direction, and when the factory on the Pacific coast is controlled by the director in New York not only will a continent intervene between master and servant, but a distance as wide as that between the poles will separate their sympathies and desires.

Combinations of capital have compelled the organization of labor, and individual action on the part of either employer or employee is becoming more and more infrequent. That capital has certain rights necessary to its existence can not be successfully denied. That labor has a right to a fair share of the value it creates, I assume is equally true. In its efforts to obtain these conceded rights each of the parties, through organizations, at times demands more than its just share, and not infrequently both parties claim what is unreasonable and unjust. If in all cases of disputes the parties directly involved were the only ones affected, the Government might well wait until the relations between capital and labor were sufficiently established to admit of law enactments defining what has been found to be right and prohibiting violations thereof, but there is another and larger interest than that represented by the contending parties. I refer to the general welfare, and the more complete the combination of capital, the more general the organization of labor, the more serious may be the injury to the public in cases of lockouts and strikes.

Labor troubles during recent years are so fresh in the memories of all as to revive the suffering and loss to the people, over which they had no control and under which they were helpless to protect themselves. The anthracite coal strike of 1902 is a case in point. A large portion of the anthracite coal mines were closed for months as a consequence of a strike by their employees. Labor contended for certain conditions and wages, to which it insisted it was entitled, and capital refused to concede these demands. As a result, factories and shops, schools and churches, homes and public places were denied the fuel which to them was the "bread of life." Business men grew old under the weight of suspense, women and helpless children suffered from the freezing cold; in many localities, driven to despair by lack of fuel, people became what the law calls "criminals" by taking coal from cars by force. Millions of dollars were lost irretrievably to business, and the innocent suffered everywhere. Coal operators lost heavily, but the enhanced price of coal to consumers partially compensated this loss.

Labor formerly employed by the suspended collieries were denied their wages for months, and they and their families suffered greatly, although other laborers contributed somewhat of their earnings and savings to relieve such want and suffering, but some one paid the loss. After months of suspense and distress public sentiment became so much aroused that the President felt it his duty to intervene and demand a settlement. He succeeded finally and after great effort in inducing the contending parties to submit their differences to arbitration. A compromise was the result, order was restored, and industry was revived. These conditions were not secured, however, until law and order had been disturbed, the general welfare opposed, and disaster inflicted upon the people. No principle was established beneficial to either of the parties in the controversy as a result of the strike except such as were brought about by the arbitration. Had the commission been called into existence under authority of law at the beginning of the strike untold misery would have been averted and millions of dollars would have been saved to the people.

The recent telegraphers' strike, of regrettable memory, would have resulted in less disaster to the public had a commission been authorized to secure and publish the causes, but great as were the injuries of this strike to the people they were insignificant in comparison with what they might have been had the telegraphers been better organized. That they will effect a stronger organization in the future there can be no reasonable doubt.

I could cite many more cases if it were necessary, but gentlemen will recall them without suggestion from me.

It is sufficient to state that during the twenty-five years from 1881 to 1905, both inclusive, there were in the United States 36,757 strikes, involving 181,407 establishments; 6,728,048 strikers and 8,703,824 employees were thereby put out of employment. Sufficient facts are not at hand, and my imagination fails to estimate the loss to capital and labor by these disturbances. The bureaus of Government have no means for measuring the pains of want and suffering, neither is it possible to calculate shocks to the Republic caused by tyranny and disorder. We know that millions of dollars have been lost to those directly involved, and billions more have been denied to a helpless public.

I am not suggesting that the pending measure would affect any considerable number of the class of strikes included in the above list, nor do I wish to be understood as saying that all strikes are unnecessary under our industrial conditions, nor do I for one moment believe that much good has not been the result of many strikes. The direct object sought by the strike has not frequently been obtained, but the progress of labor has been almost continuous, and out of conflict its rights have been gradually evolved.

I would not invoke the commission except in cases where the public welfare is greatly involved, and then not to the detriment either of honest labor or honest capital, but for the good of the people, of whom the laborer and the employer are parts.

This bill practically as it is now was reported to the Fifty-ninth Congress. Opportunity for a full hearing was given all organizations of capital and labor; indeed, they were invited through the press and many of them by personal letters from members of the Committee on Intersate and Foreign Commerce. Mr. Hal Smith, of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association; Mr. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior; and Mr. Neill, Commissioner of Labor, appeared before the committee. Seth Low, of New York; Professor Clark, of the Columbia University; and Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, wrote letters commending the principles of the bill. In fact, all who expressed themselves favored this or a similar measure, with perhaps the possible exception of Mr. Smith, from Michigan, who stated that he had had much correspondence with the members of his organization and all had been favorable to the measure, unless it should be construed to mean that the commission would be inclined to investigate the private affairs of every concern having troubles, no matter how small.

I was particularly careful to send notice to either the secretary or president of all the leading labor organizations. Furthermore, Mr. Fuller, the accredited representative of four national railroad employees' organizations, was present at the hearings before the committee having his bill in charge on Tuesday, January 15, 1907, and was asked if he, as a representative of his organizations, desired to be heard, and he testified as follows:

Mr. FULLER. I would say, Mr. Chairman and Mr. TOWNSEND, that I represent the brotherhoods and employees, but we have not taken any proceedings in this matter, and therefore I do not want to have anything to say in regard to it.

Mr. STEVENS. You think your people are covered by other legislation—the arbitration act passed some years ago?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The Phillips Act?

Mr. FULLER. We have simply not taken any position on this particular bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Have those organizations been advised by you, Mr. Fuller, that this legislation is pending?

Mr. FULLER. Yes, sir; and I understand they have been advised by Mr. TOWNSEND also. If you will excuse me, I will state that the executive heads of the organization which I represent are busily engaged now, as you doubtless all know, with the wage question in the western country, and it is a very hard matter for them to get into another question at the same time. They have been acquainted with the fact that this bill had been introduced and that hearings will be held upon it.

Mr. MANN. Would they want to submit their side of the wage question to a commission appointed by the President, or do they prefer to make that contest themselves?

Mr. FULLER. Well, Mr. Chairman and Mr. MANN, I would not care to go into any discussion of the matter at all.

Mr. KENNEDY. I suppose, Mr. FULLER, unless the union you represent act upon the matter pending you are not authorized to take any position yourself independent of their instructions, are you?

Mr. FULLER. Well, I am, yes; if I thought proper.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I thought, Mr. Fuller, that you were acting in a representative capacity for your organizations here, and that you advise them what you think, do you not?

Mr. FULLER. Of course I express my opinion as to legislation; yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Fuller, I want to ask you, you represent as I understand it, four labor organizations, national in their character?

Mr. FULLER. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, have you informed those organizations of this pending legislation so they are informed that the matter is pending here?

Mr. FULLER. Yes; I have already stated that I had.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Have you given them an opinion, if I have a right to ask, about this?

Mr. FULLER. I have. If you gentlemen will excuse me, if we are going to take any position on the bill we will express it, but unless we do that, I do not care to have anything to say. (Hearings, on pp. 21 and 22.)

And again on the same day Mr. Fuller, at the close of Mr. Smith's statement, volunteered the following (p. 26):

Mr. FULLER. Mr. Chairman, if you will allow me to say a word without going into the details of the matter, I would like to speak a word, in view of the statements made by the gentleman, that while we have taken no position upon this, we do not want to be understood that the public has not a right to protect itself. If the gentleman's association feels that way, I want to say that they are dissimilar to our position in regard to it. The absence of our testimony or our argument to this bill does not necessarily mean that the public has no voice or should have no voice or interest in these troubles. On the contrary, we think they have.

Mr. BARTLETT. You represent an organization that is peculiarly associated with the public utilities. That is true, is it not?

Mr. FULLER. We think ourselves, Mr. Chairman, that so long as individuals can settle their difficulties and do it right, and the public does not suffer unduly, it is better to have it done that way. I believe we all agree as to that. I believe the best government is the government that governs the least; but there may come a time when that can not be done, and the public have an interest in it, and we feel the public have a right in these cases to ask Congress for legislation, regardless of what we or our opponents feel.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You do not believe in compulsory arbitration?

Mr. FULLER. No, sir. Compulsory arbitration is a misnomer. It would mean slavery to the working classes of the country.

Full, free, and unlimited opportunity was given to every man to be heard on the bill. Sound and convincing reasons were presented showing the wisdom and necessity of the legislation. The bill was reported late in the session more for the purpose of getting the matter before the country than with the idea of enacting it into law in the Fifty-ninth Congress.

At the beginning of the Sixtieth Congress I introduced the bill reported to the last Congress, and after long consideration by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, during which several amendments were made, I introduced on January 28 last the amended bill, and on February 3, 1908, it was reported to the House, and is now before us. Until February 3, the day the bill was reported, no one appeared before the committee in opposition to the measure, and on that day nothing was addressed to the committee, although one Member read portions from a personal letter to him from a celebrated labor leader showing that the writer had objections to the bill.

The bill is here and is intended to supply a remedy from possible, nay probable, intolerable wrongs to the public.

It provides that in cases of great disturbance between employer and employee involving great federal rights, and in cases where such disturbances are imminent, the President may appoint a commission of qualified men, not more than seven in number, to investigate the conditions, with a view to determining in a fair and impartial manner the cause of the same, and to make such suggestions as to a remedy as the determined facts will warrant. Provision is made for taking testimony which shall be made public. A report is made to the President, who transmits it to Congress.

This is not compulsory arbitration, for neither party is legally bound to abide the decision of the commission. It is compulsory only as public sentiment makes it so. The commission is temporary. It can exist only for three months. A new commission will be created for each new occasion; and this is wise, for a commission qualified to hear and determine one case might not be the best to investigate another. That a commission would be more effective than the same power exercised by a bureau officer there can be, it seems to me, no possible question. Furthermore, this power conferred upon a bureau would necessarily weaken the department.

There is no existing law which may be applied in all cases that might come under the proposed law. The Erdman or Phillips Act of 1898 applies only to railroad controversies, and can only be invoked at the request of one of the parties. The people have no voice in the controversy, no matter how long the disturbance may be protracted, no matter how much the public welfare may be injured. It is clear that neither party would care to invoke the commission, lest such action would be taken as a confession of weakness. Great strikes are coming to be contests of physical and financial endurance, in which the weaker, whether right or wrong, must eventually surrender. With capital combining extensively until it shall comprise practically all of a given industry, with labor organizing to include a large portion of the skilled workmen, who can foresee the awful consequences which may come to the country in a blind, selfish struggle for supremacy between these forces? Must the people sit by and watch a contest destructive to their most sacred rights and be powerless to act even in self-defense?

The Bureau of Corporations has no power to reach these controversies, and was not created to deal with them. Its usefulness would be destroyed if it attempted to perform the work conferred by this bill upon the commission.

Some few manufacturers, actuated by the desire to crush out all labor unions, may be opposed to the pending measure. They believe that they can combine all capital in opposition to the closed shop, and through the tortures of cold and hunger can finally accomplish their desire. Certain labor leaders, who care more for their high-salaried jobs than they do for the actual welfare of the laborer, insist that labor unions are soon to be strong enough to tie up all industry until it shall grant these leaders every demand. In other words, tortures worse than those of the Inquisition, destruction worse than that wrought by pestilence or panic, are to be brought upon the country and its people in order to settle some dispute which frequently needs but the sunlight of publicity in order that it shall be dispelled.

The great mass of employers, the great army of wage-workers, as well as the great majority of labor leaders are honest men. They want only what is right. The proposed bill would enable the right to prevail and that without violence or want or suffering.

The value of the measure will depend upon the infrequency with which it will be used. No President will dare to create a commission unless the necessities of the country demand it. The findings of the commission would not be binding upon the parties unless such findings were righteous, and then public opinion alone would enforce the judgment.

Whenever the conditions suggested by me shall arise the matters will be investigated as they have been in the past, and for myself I prefer to have such investigation made under authority of law, whereby principles of lasting importance may be established and enduring progress made in industrial conditions rather than force the innocent to suffer until a condition similar to a state of war shall finally compel the President without warrant of law to intervene in the interest of life and property.

Honest organized labor has nothing to fear. Its cause is just, and public opinion is with it. I know of no great controversy in recent years where, so far as the causes have been made public, a commission would not have been highly beneficial to labor. Organizations of labor are not afraid of hostile legislation. They are persistently before Congress asking for laws in their interests. Some of the greatest questions to be brought before the Congress in the coming years will be those urged by labor. Is it not of the highest importance that its demands shall be just and that it shall have the approval of an intelligent public sentiment? Under recent court decisions labor has lost ground which it has heretofore occupied as a matter of right. It will need public approval to regain such ground and to make further advancement.

I believe that labor can afford to court the widest and freest investigation. It may result in changing some leaders, but the change will be highly beneficial.

The demagogue, whether as a leader of organized labor, a ward heeler, or a member of Congress, is the worst enemy that labor has to-day. He exploits it for his own selfish ends, and you take away its support and he will reveal himself as its open enemy instead of its secret foe.

But, Mr. Chairman, whatever may be the effect upon employers and employees, it is our duty to legislate for the people. Special interests, however powerful, must, if needs be, give way to the public good. Neither capital nor labor would be safe under a government controlled by any other principle.

When the public good is seriously threatened or actually invaded the people have a right to be heard in their own cause. They have a right to know why necessities of life are denied them; why their business is ruined; why their loved ones are made to suffer; why their very government is threatened. Under such conditions strikes have passed beyond the confines of labor organizations and combinations of capital and have entered the realm of the general welfare.

Mr. Chairman, he is blind indeed who does not see the signs of the times and deaf who does not hear portentous rumblings.

I am informed that great coal-mine operators are storing up a year's supply of coal, to be held for an emergency. Other captains of industry are guarding against possible great contingencies. Labor will soon be so organized and captained that half a dozen men can put out every fire of certain great industries, stop the wheels of every locomotive, and silence every keyboard in the United States. One year ago the country did not know how nearly it came to experiencing the tying up of every railroad west of Chicago. Let a strike come to the coal miners again and the operators can sell their surplus to the public, but it will be at a price beyond the reach of the poor and unjust to all. The agreements between coal operators and employees will expire shortly. We should act now.

Let us pass this bill, and he whose cause is just will have no reason for fear, but he who imposes unjust conditions or exacts what is unreasonable will hesitate to be exposed to public disapproval, and hence will yield to compromise rather than be forced into submission by popular opinion.

We simply ask by this bill for fair, just, and impartial publicity of those causes which bring disaster to the people whom we serve.

Mr. Chairman, this bill, as I have said before, had the serious consideration of our committee. It was not rushed through, but was before the committee not only in the Fifty-ninth Congress, at which time the widest publicity was given and the greatest and most general invitation extended to all interested, but we took it up again in the Sixtieth Congress. I myself believe that this is in the interest of the people, and that we as their representatives can afford to do nothing less than protect their interests to the utmost of our ability. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ADAMSON. I shall ask, Mr. Chairman, to print as a part of my remarks the views of the minority.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia asks unanimous consent to print as part of his remarks the views of the minority of the committee. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

VIEWS OF THE MINORITY.

We do not agree with the majority of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce in the report on the bill "To provide for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and other purposes."

The bill in effect practically results in compulsory arbitration. It relies upon a manufactured and unsafe opinion, induced by circumstances, to coerce a party into submission. We earnestly believe that under our republican form of government any kind of force in the long run is less effective in producing desirable results in controversies or strikes than voluntary consultation and deliberation. We believe that the best results achieved in matters embraced in this bill is by an appeal to reason and a fairly formed public opinion and not to the powers of a commission bristling with penalties and fines.

Power given in section 6 of this bill to the commission to appoint "experts with authority to examine accounts, books, or official reports, or to examine and report on anything material to the investigation in which such an investigation and report may be deemed of substantial value" is too broad, and is undoubtedly inquisitorial in its character. No legitimate and lawfully conducted business would be free from the searching examination of its private business affairs. It would be a dangerous weapon in the hands of a rival to destroy his competitor in business.

The sophistry of the bill is manifest in this: That the President should invoke the power given him when a controversy or dispute arises which affects "the transportation of the United States mail." It is known to everyone that the statutes of the Government are most ample in power and in penalties to guard against any interference with the transportation of the United States mails. Any interference with the movement of our mails, as has been demonstrated in the past few years of the history of our country, by controversy, strike, or otherwise, can be promptly and efficiently met by the strong arm of the Government. The President needs no commission to advise him when the "civil or military" operations of the Government are being interfered with or interrupted.

We object to the bill because in theory it proceeds upon false premises. We do not believe, as the bill contends, that all controversies and strikes are unjustified, wrong, and unnecessary. No one can hardly be found who will contend that all disputes, controversies, or strikes between employers and employees are unnecessary, unjustified, and without beneficial results, but yet this bill provides in section 7 that the commission appointed by the President should recommend such legislation as will "put an end to such controversy and disturbance as will prevent a recurrence thereof, suggesting any legislation which the case may seem to require." If the strike and controversy was of benefit, as certainly is the case sometimes, then why invoke legislation to prevent a "recurrence?"

We contend that ample authority and provision to make investigation and develop facts in connection with controversies and disputes provided for in this bill is vested in the Commission of the Bureau of Corporations, in the Department of Commerce and Labor, and there is no occasion to duplicate this work and expenses incident thereto when ample authority under the statute already exists.

We contend that while in name this bill does not appear to favor compulsory arbitration of disputes between employer and employee, it is intended to accomplish that result and might as well bear the title.

We do not see how Congress has the power to grant to a commission, not judicial in its nature, and which commission is not given any authority or power to render judgment between parties interested, but simply to investigate the facts and report them to the President, can invest such a tribunal with power and authority to compel the attendance of witnesses and to apply to the courts of the country to enforce its purposes. The bill does not give the commission power to enforce its process or purposes by summons or subpœna of itself, yet the bill does give the commission power to ask aid of the United States courts so to do. We do not believe that the court under the Constitution can be given the power to exercise such prerogatives as this, which means the forcing of individuals or artificial persons, whether employees, employer, or employers, to submit to an investigation at the hands of such a commission, which is not judicial and which is not clothed with any power by the Congress. If this can be done, then there is no unbridled length to which Congress may not go in interfering with or investigating the individual affairs of the citizens of the country.

This bill, if enacted into a statute, will be detrimental to the exercise of the prerogatives of the courts of the country.

We contend that the fundamental idea prevailing on the subject of arbitration or conciliation of differences between parties is the idea of voluntary submission, not forced submission, either directly or indirectly. Whenever parties in a civilized community can not by themselves adjust their differences or have them adjusted, then the only tribunal in a government of law and order that should determine the difference is the courts of justice in our country.

The authority given the commission under this bill applies as much to disputes about wages or other differences arising between parties engaged altogether in agricultural pursuits as it would apply to a strike similar to the Pullman strike which took place some years ago or to the anthracite strike of 1902. It can readily be comprehended how a dispute arising between the farmer and his laborers about wages could fall under the jurisdiction of the commission provided for in this bill, because it could be easily demonstrated that the products of the farm enter into the interstate commerce and constitute a part thereof.

One of the greatest evils menacing to-day the peace of the country is federal and state interference with the individual rights and interest of the citizen. It is to the best interest of the people that the Federal Government should not invoke its authority except on well-defined, well-established lines looking to the preservation of peace and the interest of the people throughout all the country.

R. C. DAVEY.
W. C. ADAMSON.
WILLIAM H. RYAN.
WILLIAM RICHARDSON.
C. L. BARTLETT.

VIEWS OF MR. LOVERING.

The bill reported by the majority of the committee, in that it practically provides for compulsory arbitration, threatens the personal liberty, which under the Constitution is the inalienable right of every American citizen.

Neither employer nor employee calls for such legislation.

When a controversy reaches such proportions as to be a public menace there is already law enough and executive power enough to meet the situation.

The bill looks to further indefinite legislation with the purpose of compelling submission to the findings of a commission.

I therefore respectfully dissent.

WM. C. LOVERING.

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, the minority of the committee differ and dissent from the ideas so ably presented by my distinguished friend and colleague from Michigan, representing the majority of the committee. His initial assertion that it is not compulsory arbitration is challenged outright by us. It is a provision that, without the consent of any persons interested in the controversy, a commission may be created in the discretion of the President, and that all parties shall be compelled to submit to an investigation by that commission and submit books, papers, business secrets, details, and everything else to its investigation. They are compelled to do that. If a party sees proper to absent himself from the sessions of the commission, he may do so, provided he produces everything called for by the commission; but the investigation goes on, nevertheless, and his interests suffer if there is to be anything detrimental to his interests in that investigation. Now, peace and harmony are beautiful conditions in domestic, social, and political life, whether in the family, in society, or in the State.

A good method to secure them is that blessed old resort known throughout the ages as "Accord and satisfaction." When men drawn together by mutual concession and mutual discussion agree upon their differences and establish concord, substantial and lasting, a high state of satisfaction is secured. Arbitration has often been resorted to as a substitute for litigation in the courts. Human experience has established that when you fail in your efforts at "accord and satisfaction," the proper course is to rely on the justice of your fellow-men—the established courts of your country—get your lawyer and go squarely into the fight. Then you have been tried by properly constituted tribunals. Then you are forced ultimately to abide by the result, because as citizens of your country you have originally consented that you will do that. Now, Mr. Chairman, the proposition in this bill is that something should be done to which you have never consented and may never consent—that the Government of your country, the President of your country, may appoint a tribunal to investigate your case, report and make public its findings, and recommend legislation about it, regardless of your wishes or presence.

Admitting as my friend from Michigan in the report of the committee, and in his argument does admit, that the finding ought not to be enforced by compulsory judgment, he enters into a beautiful laudation of the power of public opinion, a greater and more powerful method, he thinks and will tell you, than any enforcement of the finding by process of law. He proposes after having compelled these laborers in any sort of dispute as to wages or condition or treatment or anything else to submit to this inquisitorial investigation against their consent, and then while he beautifully says it is not compulsory arbitration, the report is to be made to the President, to Congress, given to the country, to the press, and the people; and you have only to look at his own powerful description of the powers and terrors of public opinion to agree with me that it is compulsory arbitration of the most conclusive character. There is in this whole thing a line of differentiation which, with my little knowledge of law, I can not understand and I do not believe any other man with my limitations can understand it, and that is that a man because he is laboring in any line of life that touches interstate or postal affairs should be subjected to a different principle or rule of government and action to that applicable to him in any other line of business.

If he is in any business not touching interstate commerce or postal affairs, this inquisitorial proceeding would be wrong; but if he is hired to do work in this capacity or to the Government itself in postal affairs, then he must submit to this proceeding. Mr. Chairman, the character of employer is just the same when the Government employs a man as when the humblest citizen in the United States employs him. The relation of employer and employee exists no matter what the official or corporate character of one or the other may be, and the principles which regulate the conduct and agreement and settlement between them should be precisely the same, whether one be the Government of the United States and the other the humblest citizen in the land and whether it be local or domestic business in any community or whether it affects the commerce between the States of the Union. The jurisdiction may be affected and differ under different conditions, but the rights and principles are the same. If the conditions are to be changed, the fundamental principles of law to be overturned by this mad craze to try to make interstate commerce and postal service a pretext for interposition in all the affairs of mankind, the result will be that men will not go into these occupations.

If they are to lose their freedom, if they are to be deprived of their consent and volition, if the conditions are to be changed under which they work and settle and contend for their rights, then men will avoid these employments, and their initial employment, if ever secured, will command higher wages, and in that sense only would it be beneficial to the employed. But, Mr. Chairman, under this bill the minute he goes to work, although it may be at a munificent salary, it may be reduced immediately, and if he resists he may be subjected to this investigation, and he is deceived and fooled into slavery. Now, Mr. Chairman, my good friend says there is to be no process of law to enforce the judgment. It either means something or it ought not to take up the time of this House and the country. If it does not mean to effect what it is aiming at, if it does not mean to suppress these differences, if it does not mean to adjust or dispose of them, there is no sense in it and there is no use for it. By what means does it propose to do it? This commission reports to the President and suggests further legislation. If popular opinion does not intimidate the party into submission, then popular clamor following the recommendation of additional legislation, and the publicity that my friend lauds so much will demand that as the next step in the iniquitous proceeding Congress will pass laws seeking either to enforce the finding or prevent a recurrence of the trouble. If it does not mean that, it does not mean anything on earth.

Where parties fail to agree for the good of the public I favor arbitration, especially in matters largely affecting the public, but it is not proper to force American citizens against their will to submit their disputes to the investigation of anybody. I would be glad to vote for a law in harmony with the platform of my party and the legal experience and practice of mankind providing for the voluntary submission to arbitration of all disputes subject to federal jurisdiction. Then, when the award is made it should be enforced by law under the power and authority of the courts, just as is now done and as always has been done in the States and in civilized countries since the reign of law began. To force a party into an investigation, compel him to disclose his hand, and expose to the public the secrets and details of his conduct and business would be an outrageous innovation on legal procedure; a cruel travesty on the use of governmental functions, and it would only aggravate the cruel injustice to say that it is not a legal proceeding, but only gathering the news. I would not consent to exposing a party to the public gaze through a forced investigation and then leave him the victim and prey to popular fury and yellow journalism any more than I would consent to lynch law. We already have law enough to authorize adequate investigation. If we want to provide for arbitration, let us do so according to the principles of justice and the methods approved by the legal precedents and the experience of mankind.

This scheme does not possess the merit nor wear the garb of honesty and candor which characterize the old proceeding to "secure discovery" in aid of other remedies.

Mr. Chairman, how much time have I consumed?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has consumed ten minutes.

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I have another matter in which I am engaged, and to which I must give my attention, and I wish to transfer to my colleague on the committee, the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON], the balance of my time.

Mr. PRINCE. Before the gentleman yields the floor I would like to ask him a question. On page 10 of the report, under the "Views of the minority," I find this language:

> We contend that ample authority and provision to make investigation and develop facts in connection with controversies and disputes provided for in this bill is vested in the commission of the Bureau of Corporations, in the Department of Commerce and Labor, and there is no occasion to duplicate this work and expenses incident thereto when ample authority under the statute already exists.

I wish the gentleman would state more fully than he does in his views, if that paragraph is in accordance with the facts and with the law now on the statute books.

Mr. ADAMSON. That is our understanding, Mr. Chairman. We had the statutes before us at the time. We were settled in the opinion that that statement is substantially true. I have not those documents before me, but my friend from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN] will read from the provisions for the satisfaction of the gentlemen of the committee.

I understand, Mr. Chairman, that any gentleman who gets the floor will be entitled to an hour, and I wish to yield to the gentleman from Alabama the balance of my time in addition to his own. Other gentlemen have also signed the dissenting opinion, and I will be glad if they would also discuss the subject.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. ADAMSON] having yielded the remainder of his time to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON], the gentleman from Alabama is recognized for forty-nine minutes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, I am entitled to an hour by reason of my being a member of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is entitled to forty-nine minutes yielded to him by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. ADAMSON].

Mr. RICHARDSON. He yielded me his own time, and that is in addition to the time to which I am entitled as a member of the committee.

Mr. TOWNSEND. I understand that can be done by unanimous consent. I want the gentleman from Alabama to have all the time he needs, but I do not imagine he will want an hour and forty-nine minutes if every other man is going to talk on the same subject.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] made the statement that each member of the committee is entitled to one hour. That is all I am claiming for myself.

Mr. ADAMSON. With that understanding, I yielded to the gentleman the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON] for forty-nine minutes, yielded to him by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. ADAMSON].

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, probably a very brief reference to the history of this bill might be of some service in connection with the very recent past. This bill, as I look upon it, is one of the most important, far-reaching, and dangerous bills that we have had for consideration before the House of Representatives during this Congress. I believe its inevitable result, if enforced, will be to invade the domain of the inherent and inalienable personal liberty of the citizen. Thoughtful and patriotic citizens, without regard to party lines, throughout our country are now disturbed at the marked legislative strides made in this direction by the Congress. The bill was reported favorably by the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House, and on the 3d day of February, 1908, was referred to the Committee of the Whole House, and was in the hands of our distinguished friend, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND], to be called up with all the privileges that the Interstate Commerce Committee could give it. The first session of the Sixtieth Congress adjourned on the 30th of May last. The bill was ready for submission nearly three months. Probably it was not deemed judicious, from a Republican political standpoint, to call this bill up at that time before the adjournment of the first session of the Sixtieth Congress. I know that I was insistent to a reasonably proper extent that this bill should be acted upon before the presidential election. It could have been acted on, for during that period a majority vote would have suspended the rules and passed the bill. It is brought up now; and for that reason I contend that the bill in all of its phases should be carefully investigated; thoroughly looked into. It is most carefully framed, but a study of the different sections will disclose its ultimate purpose.

I believe that the bill is entering a field of legislation that leads to compulsory arbitration. If it is not that, in my humble judgment, after as thorough and careful analysis as I am able to give it, it means nothing. Compulsory arbitration, as we know, to investigate labor matters has been experimented upon in other countries, monarchial in their form of government, and has practically and substantially proved a failure. The bill, if it is examined, in its first section is "to authorize the President to inquire into and investigate a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment." I especially call the attention of every man listening to me on the floor of this House to the extent to which the inquiry into the "conditions of employment" is limited. Where is the ending of it? Does not "conditions of employment" apply to every vocation of every American citizen in this great Republic of ours, controversies relating to conditions of employment, hours of labor, that may interrupt or threaten to interrupt the movement of commerce among the States or the civil or military functions of the Federal Government?

What character of business is there in this country, what factory, what enterprise, that makes any product that does not enter more or less into interstate commerce? The miner who digs the coal in the bowels of the earth, the farmer who raises wheat and cotton, their products enter directly into the channels of interstate commerce. It is not denied that the investigation provided for by the bill is arbitrarily made by a commission consisting of seven men, to be appointed by the President, whether the parties to the controversy request or advise such investigation. It starts out arbitrarily. It does not make any difference what the parties are contending for, what the character of the controversy is, what business it arises in, under this bill the President can order an investigation, provided interstate commerce may be directly or indirectly affected. It makes no difference what the subject of dispute is; it makes no difference how easily these men could sit down by the side of a table and settle it themselves; the President has arbitrary power to send that commission and order an investigation. No man, not even the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND], or any gentleman who has given attention to the scope of this bill, will deny that such authority is given the President. The answer is, that it is preposterous to say that the President will use his authority for such a purpose. It is the highest duty of the American Congress in the enactment of laws touching the personal rights of the citizen to write in plain words the exercise of power.

I contend, in addition to that, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, that practically and substantially every requirement in this bill that is needful and proper is met to-day in the provisions of the law regulating the Bureau of Corporations and the Bureau of Labor under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce and Labor. This bill was a long time before the Committee on Interstate Commerce, with many hearings and many men before it. It raises great questions, among them, the important questions relative to the rights of States, which in its proper conception and proper standpoint ought to be inquired into by this House by both Republicans and Democrats.

I can not better explain my views than to read from the hearings to show you what kind of "suggestions" this bill brings up, carefully shaded, after being thoroughly studied, and adroitly hiding its real meaning and its real poison throughout the whole thing. Mr. ESCH asked this question, a very important one. (Hearings, p. 43:)

This bill authorizes the commission so appointed to recommend remedial legislation. In your opinion is that an advantage or a disadvantage, in view of the fact that the recommendation for legislation might be out of harmony with the existing state law?

Mr. GARFIELD. That would be for the members of each commission to see to—how far they ought to make recommendations of that kind; and I can see no disadvantage in authorizing the report to Congress of their recommendations. There, again, it would be for Congress to determine how far they would seek by federal legislation to affect conditions that are now controlled by state legislation. The principal subject that would be so touched would be what comes under the definition of police powers.

Mr. ESCH. If that sentiment was strong enough, then it might result in a change of a state law?

Mr. GARFIELD. It might, very readily.

Does not the answer of the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Garfield, impress the members of the committee with the dangerous tendencies of this bill and its unlimited power—dependent only on the discretion of one man, the President of the United States, together with the commission he may select?

Mr. MANN asked some questions along that line, that pending before this House was a proposition to investigate child labor by the House of Representatives, and a proposition to investigate the subject of the labor of women in industrial employments, and the proposition to investigate the length of hours of labor in different parts of the country. (Hearings, p. 43-44:)

Mr. MANN. We have pending here before us a proposition to investigate child labor—in the House of Representatives—and a proposition to investigate the subject of the labor of women in industrial employments, and a proposition to investigate the length of hours of labor in different parts of the country, and so forth and so on. Now, would it be possible, under this, if the administration desired to appoint a commission to investigate a subject, to take advantage of any little strike somewhere and appoint a commission which, in order to arrive at a conclusion in that case, would feel that it was necessary to investigate the whole subject-matter without the direct authorization of Congress?

Mr. GARFIELD. I do not see anything in the bill that states the exact scope of the questions that might arise. That, necessarily, as I understand, in this measure is left to the discretion of the President and the commission, and it is quite true that there might be what you call a fictitious case presented if an administration saw fit to attempt to make an investigation of that kind.

Mr. MANN. Would it not be quite probable, in the event that some case did arise somewhere involving any of these questions, that in order to settle that particular case, and possibly to present recommendations to Congress, the commission would not only feel it desirable but necessary to investigate that whole subject-matter?

Mr. GARFIELD. If necessary I think they ought to make the investigation. If it were a question of desirability, that would have to be left to their discretion.

Mr. MANN. So that a bill like this might start half a dozen commissions into being to investigate any subject in connection with manufacturing or labor?

Mr. GARFIELD. If there were difficulties between employers and employees.

Mr. MANN. Of course there are always difficulties somewhere.

Ought a bill to become a law authorizing the exercise of such vital powers, inimical to the citizen in his business matters, in the hands of a commission? Mr. Garfield says that there is nothing "in the bill that states the exact scope of the questions that might arise." The fact is that it is left to the President to apply the provisions of the bill as he chooses and as often as he pleases, with as many commissions operating in different sections of the country as the President thinks are required. I hope, Mr. Chairman, that I do not overdraw the practical workings of the potentialities of this bill. It is not my purpose to do so, but as a citizen I look upon the possibilities of the exercise of unrestrained authority under its provisions with sincere alarm. I frankly differ with the earnest advocates of this bill.

Again I want to read to you from the hearings, pages 45, 46, and 47. Our good and distinguished friend from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN], chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, put this question:

Suppose that condition described in section 1 of this bill exists. Do not the Bureau of Corporations under the present law have the power to do everything in the direction of securing publicity that is provided for in this bill?

Mr. GARFIELD. As far as corporations are concerned, without doubt it has.

Then, if the law as it exists to-day is sufficient to regulate the evil operations of "corporations," then what other matters are to be brought under federal scrutiny and investigation?

The CHAIRMAN. Following out that line of questions, what is there lacking in the present law that in any way stops or checks or limits the power of investigation upon the part of the Commissioner of Corporations?

Mr. GARFIELD. Nothing whatever.

The CHAIRMAN. Here is a condition that is described in the first section of the bill: The commerce of the United States is interrupted. In the investigation of that matter would you not have the right, as Commissioner of Commerce, without regard to questions of labor—although questions of labor were involved also—to investigate that matter and give publicity to the causes of that interruption?

Mr. GARFIELD. I have no doubt but that that can be done by the Commissioner of Corporations.

The CHAIRMAN. And in that way bring about or exert this moral influence?

Mr. GARFIELD. I have no doubt that can be done under the law.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the law to-day?

Mr. GARFIELD. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Do you think the report of a special commission, appointed for the specific purpose, would have a greater influence in forming correct public opinion in regard to disputes than the accomplished, efficient officers who are appointed under the interstate-commerce law would have?

Mr. GARFIELD. So far as the corporate end of it is concerned, I think there would be little or no difference between them. Probably the report of the Commissioner of Corporations would have more weight than the report of a special commission, if the office were properly organized.

I have read those extracts from the hearings before the committee in order to get as far as I am able to get before the mind of this committee the danger that lies lurking in this bill. It is manifest that all needful regulations looking to the peace and welfare and protection of the citizens of the country in labor controversies are now provided in existing law. The purpose of the bill is threefold.

First. To authorize the President to "inquire into and investigate" the causes of any "controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment" that may interrupt or threaten to interrupt the movement of commerce among the States or interfere with the civil or military functions of the Government. (Sec. 1.)

Second. The investigation is arbitrarily made by a commission consisting of seven men to be appointed by the President, whether the parties to the controversy request or advise such investigation. (Sec. 2.)

Third. After making the investigation the commission must locate the responsibility for the controversy and recommend legislation by Congress to prevent a recurrence.

Of course, the bill is based on such construction of the commerce clause of the Constitution, which literally followed out means federal license to do business in the territorial limits of the different States.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Will the gentleman permit an interruption?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; because you would not allow anyone to interrupt you. You made that statement, that you would not allow it. When I am through I will gladly let you interrupt me.

Mr. TOWNSEND. All right. I am sure the gentleman does not want to make a misstatement about the bill.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; I certainly do not. I will allow you to correct me after I get through if you can point out to me my mistake.

It will be observed that the commission has no authority to demand a compliance with its findings. In this connection we should not forget that no adjustment of any controversy concerning wages or hours of labor, and so forth, can be made that takes from the operator the liberty to shut down his plant when he gets ready to do so; nor can the liberty be taken from the employee to refuse to work for wages not satisfactory to him. To undertake to violate either one of these fundamental principles of right would be subversive of all individual liberty and the source of universal discontent.

I contend that this bill in effect seeks to do indirectly that thing, and certainly is the advance step of legislation for compulsory arbitration. It relies on a manufactured public opinion to enforce its findings as to where the "responsibility" belongs. That is to say, the judgment of the public is to be invoked on the development of facts, after the injury and harm of the strike has been done. That a commission of seven men, selected arbitrarily, as this commission will be, without the advice or consent of the parties interested, whose character and freedom from prejudice should be sufficient to have the public indorse their findings, with such power and effect as to prevent a "recurrence" of such a controversy is the proposition. No two strikes are brought about by similar causes and facts.

The suggestion of such public opinion is but a child's card house that topples over when touched. Public opinion at the beginning of the controversy connected with wages or hours of labor should be far more efficacious in working good results than public opinion after the evil has been done. Yet it is an undeniable fact that but few strikes or controversies about wages or hours of labor have occurred in this country where public opinion was not in sympathy with the strikers and sustained them when the facts were made known at the beginning. I will refer to two great strikes that now occur to me; one is the Philadelphia car strike that occurred in 1895, and the other the Coal Creek Valley strike.

In the Philadelphia strike, in that great city of "brotherly love," the justice, right, and necessity of the strike were recognized and emphasized by the good people of that city, embracing all the vocations of life, in overflowing public meetings. So it was in the Coal Creek (Tennessee) Valley strike, that was brought about by convict labor; the public was in cordial sympathy with the strikers. Yet, notwithstanding this earnest public opinion, these strikers were ignored and afterwards punished because they had demanded justice.

The bill, if it has any promise of relief at all, is to prevent a "recurrence" (sec. 7) of the controversies.

I contend the hope of relief, as suggested, is based on absolutely false premises. In order to accept that theory we must admit that all controversies connected with wages and hours of labor, and so forth, have been wrong, unnecessary, and harmful—and not beneficial—in their results, and therefore a recurrence of the same must by congressional law be prevented. That is the concrete proposition in this bill. Of course this theory proceeds upon the idea that all strikes are wrong, that all controversies connected with wages and hours of labor are wrong. I dissent from that view. I do not hesitate to say here in my position as a Representative of the people of my district, without regard to the welfare of any special interest, that in the unending struggles between capital and labor, with the superior advantage and power of capital, had it not been for the compact organization of labor unions—which are conceded to be proper and lawful—"the organized appetite of capital for greed" would have appropriated an unrighteous share of the honest earnings of labor. I do not contend that all strikes are the promptings of good judgment. Often they are disastrous in their results to laboring people, to the public, and harmful to capital; yet we can not deny that these revolts upon the part of laborers are the last and only resort to check and defy the unlawful and heartless oppressions of capital.

Just examine for a moment how and when the provisions of the bill are to become operative. Section 1 provides that the President shall require and investigate when the controversy interferes with the "transportation of the mails, the operations, civil or military, of the Government of the United States, or the free and regular movement of commerce among the States."

This section is very broad. The four functions of our Government are: First, the transportation of our mails. No one will hardly deny that the Post-Office Department is not properly equipped with sufficient law regulations and powers to take care of the mails. No complaint has been made to the contrary. Second, civil operations, which refer to the Treasury Department, which looks after the financial interests of the country; the Interior Department, embracing our geological survey, pensions, public lands, and Indians; the Department of Justice, which handles the great law matters of the Government; and the Agricultural Department, organized to promote the great agricultural interests of the country. These are all connected with the civil operations of the Government. No complaint comes from either of the departments that this bill is needed to enable them to perform their civil functions. Third, military operations. It will hardly be contended that the Departments of War and the Navy demand any assistance from the provisions of such a bill as this. Fourth, the movement of commerce among the States. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the courts are charged with that duty. Then I ask, What would be the real field for this bill to operate in? I assert that we have ample law now to make all the proper investigations into all strikes, difficulties, or controversies arising in the great corporations. The Bureau of Corporations covers that field. It can not apply to the strikes of labor unions, for the Bureau of Labor fully covers that field. It does not proceed to settle difficulties or controversies connected with wages or hours of labor by mediation, conciliation, or voluntary arbitration, for the Erdman law of 1898 provides for either party to call on the president of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Commissioner of Labor to mediate, conciliate, or arbitrate any such controversy.

This bill, if it becomes a law, will necessarily apply to individuals, copartnerships, and vocations, as distinguished from corporations.

I contend that the surest way to "secure justice" under the Constitution is to uphold and maintain inviolate the individual personal rights of the citizen, and I believe that the highest duty of the Congress is to rebuke and reject every device of legislation that leads in that direction.

Such legislation means governmental paternalism in its broadest form. The highest function of government is to leave the citizen to the uninterrupted enjoyment of his personal liberty, provided that in the exercise of these personal and inalienable rights he does not conflict with the rights of others. This bill, I contend, subjects the citizen to the humiliating power of "search at will" into his private affairs and an examination of the books of his business. I call your attention again to the provisions of the bill in section 1. "Any controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, conditions of employment." I beg you to note the words "conditions of employment." Can anyone limit the significance or the extent of the meaning of those words? What manner of investigations could be made by a commission clothed with authority to inquire into the "conditions of employment?" Let me make a practical illustration of how this bill, if enacted into a law, would operate. Suppose a controversy were to arise in a cotton factory in Massachusetts about the reduction of wages or the increase of the hours of labor, and the commission would deem it necessary to make an examination under the direction of the President. What, I ask, would be the scope of that investigation? The operator of the Massachusetts mill would say: "Yes, I had to reduce the wages of my employees or shut down the mill; I have a competitor in the State of North Carolina making the same kind of cotton cloth that I manufacture. I found out that on account of the 'conditions of employment' and cheap living and long hours of labor enjoyed by my competitor I could not pay my employees the wages I had been paying and compete with my competitor in the home or foreign markets."

This bill authorizes the commission to "examine the accounts and books of that mill" or "to examine and report on any matter material to the investigation in which such examination and report may be deemed of substantial assistance." Would it not be deemed material to look into the books and reports of the North Carolina mill to ascertain the conditions of employment, the amount of wages, and the hours of labor, in order to pass intelligently on the controversy between the Massachusetts operator and his employees? We are rapidly passing from the true theory of our republican form of government—the essence of democracy—a fundamental principle that "We favor the enactment of all laws which give to every citizen the greatest measure of personal liberty."

I object to the bill, because when mediation, conciliation, and voluntary arbitration can not be invoked the courts of our country are the proper places to settle all differences between citizens. I believe that if ever there was a period of the history of our country that the people ought to guard, preserve, and maintain the legitimate authority of the courts it is now. Have we forgotten so soon the beneficial results arising in the mediation invited and exercised only a few months since, when the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Commissioner of Labor settled the threatened decrease of the wages of the employees of the Southern Railway? The mediation was of a most friendly character, and the decision was cheerfully accepted by employer company and its employees. This bill obstructs all such settlements.

Mr. Chairman, one of the principal constitutional objections that I have to this bill is that when the commission reaches a conclusion it has no right to enforce its own judgments, but it calls upon and invokes the aid of the courts of the country to make citizens bring into court their private papers. I do not believe, from a constitutional standpoint, that Congress has a right to clothe that commission with any such authority as that. The courts are here for the arbitration and settlement of all controversies and difficulties between citizens. If Congress intends to create a commission with judicial power and authority, it ought to say so, and clothe it with that power, and not put it in an attitude where, after it reaches its conclusions, it must then go to the courts of the country to enforce its judgments or report back to Congress and get additional legislation.

I have observed, since I have been a Member of this House, that the usual and favorite way of extending federal authority over matters that can be and ought to be left to the States is to commence by calling for an investigation or a commission. These investigations always result in recommending and enacting legislation giving federal control.

I dare say that there is scarcely a field now occupied and controlled by the Federal Government of doubtful constitutional jurisdiction that did not commence in calling for an investigation always followed by legislation by the Congress.

We are called on now for all kinds and varieties of investigations by the Federal Government.

We are asked to appoint inspectors to examine the wheat crop and see that the producer is not cheated in weights. It seems to me that the man who produces the wheat has judgment and sufficient interest in his own business to know how to sell his own product. Besides, such protection as he needs or asks for is given him by the inspection laws of his own State.

Again, we are invited to regulate bills of lading. Really the purpose is to place a bill of lading on a commercial footing with banking paper to protect banks. The great functions of the Federal Government can not properly be used for regulating the personal, private commercial business affairs between citizens. I dare say that any Member, if he will look back, will find the field where federal legislation now prevails which is of doubtful constitutional character that it commenced just like this bill commences, by a commission, asking them to report legislation back to Congress, which Congress will accept and indorse, and then the thing is fixed. I will not refer to those instances now. It is a favorite way of invading territory and exercising authority forbidden by the Constitution; and for that reason such bills as this—which Mr. Garfield, every time he touched it, said that the operation of the present law was enough and sufficient for all corporate purposes—ought to be defeated.

Mr. Chairman, I contend that under this bill a Massachusetts cotton mill could be investigated for cutting down the wages of its labor, and about which there was some commotion or disturbance, that the commission could go there and investigate it. Now, what else does it say? That that commission, under the provisions of section 6, has a right to employ any number of competent experts to examine all accounts and books that may appear to the commission to be material to the investigation. In other words, the commission may open up the books of a merchant or anyone else to his rival.

Suppose the Massachusetts cotton operators said: "Why, we were bound to cut down the wages of the employees. We had such competition in some other States of the Union, where labor conditions are different, where food conditions are different, where the hours are longer, and we had to reduce our wages." Could not that commission, under this bill, call the owners of that competing mill before them and look into its books and examine private matters and expose the whole condition of that cotton mill to the eyes of the public—a mill that was thousands of miles from the locality of the disturbance, that had brought about the reduction in wages? Why could not it do that? Mr. Garfield did not say that it could not. I contend further that under this bill a plantation located on the banks of the river that is made a line between two States, that any disturbance upon the part of the laborers on one of these plantations about wages or conditions of employment can certainly be investigated by the commission under this bill. Why not? The products of that farm enter into interstate commerce.

Gentlemen, I do not know where this bill leads us. It may be plausibly explained, or attempted to be plausibly explained; but there is poison in it, because there is doubt about its limitations, and wherever there is doubt as to matter of that kind, that doubt ought to be given to the conservative side, to that side of accepted law and understood by the people as such.

Mr. Chairman, how much time have I occupied?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has thirteen minutes remaining.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I reserve the balance of my time, and I ask unanimous consent that I may be allowed to extend my remarks in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Alabama asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the RECORD. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Alabama a question before he takes his seat.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. On page 3 of the bill is a proviso which reads:

Provided, That no testimony given by him before any commission or commissioner shall be used as evidence against him in any criminal proceedings in any court, except in a prosecution for perjury committed in giving such testimony.

Now, on line 19, same page, this language appears:

But no witness shall be required to give any testimony incriminating himself, nor shall he be given any immunity.

Is that the language used in our immunity statute that has been passed since the gentleman from Alabama has been in Congress?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; it is not.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Can the gentleman give me any good reason why the change is made, and then will he state whether he approves of the present immunity statute?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; I do not approve of that statute. The gentleman from Tennessee asks me why this is so and so. I do not approve of this bill at all.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I thought if the gentleman was opposed to it he could give me some good reason. As the law now stands Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Carnegie, and the balance of those gentlemen who own about all the money in the country could go in before the Interstate Commerce Commission and get an immunity bath although they may be as guilty of disobeying the law as any man that ever wore stripes, and yet they get this immunity bath. Now, when you come to the statute that strikes against the laborer you have this provision, that he shall not be given any immunity, while under the present law most everybody that ought to be convicted in these monopolies are being acquitted on promise of an immunity bath.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; I do not agree with that. Now, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] desires to ask me a question I will yield. I courteously declined at the time to be interrupted simply because I was following his distinguished example, nothing else in the world.

Mr. TOWNSEND. I would suggest to the gentleman that if he will always do that he will seldom go wrong. As I understood the gentleman, he said that the bill was clearly intended as a statement that all strikes were unjustifiable.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I said I differed with the gentleman as to the meaning of his bill. I said the gentleman went upon the presumption that all strikes were unjustifiable. I do not believe that. I believe that some are justifiable and turn out some good results.

Mr. TOWNSEND. I understood that, but I think the gentleman misstated the position of the proponents of the bill. No one has even intimated that strikes are not justifiable, and if the gentleman had listened to my remarks he would have followed me when I said they were justifiable in a great many cases—in most cases—and that great good came out of them.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Of course, when my distinguished friend states that I misstated a position I accept that in the very mildest terms to mean that my own position differs from his.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Another thing the gentleman states, and that is, that no department has asked for this. The Department of Commerce and Labor, as represented by the Commissioner of Labor, the gentleman will remember, was before our committee on several occasions, and he was one of the strongest advocates we had on this particular measure.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I would like very much, if I had had time and opportunity to know that this bill was coming up, to have quoted what Mr. Neill did say, and I will try to do it in my printed remarks on this particular point.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Does the gentleman mean to intimate that Mr. Neill was not in favor of the measure?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; I am not intimating anything. I mean to say, as I said before, that when I come to my printed remarks I will examine more fully what Mr. Neill said.

Mr. TOWNSEND. I shall be satisfied with that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Chairman, by direction of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. ADAMSON], who is in charge of this bill, I am requested to yield the balance of my time, as well as such other time as the gentleman is entitled to, to the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman can yield only such time as was yielded to him.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, I shall ask unanimous consent to have as much time used on this side as on the other.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands that all that is suggested now is that the gentleman from Alabama yields to the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN] the balance of the time the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. ADAMSON] yielded to him, which would be eleven minutes.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Very well.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yield such time as I have not used to the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN] in connection with such time as he already has.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman can not yield time in connection with any other time.

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, am I not entitled to an hour in my own right, if I so desire?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York, being a member of the committee, could be recognized in his own right after anyone on the other side who desires to be heard.

Mr. RYAN. If no one on the other side desires to be heard, then I shall proceed.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. But I do, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. RYAN. But the gentleman is not on the other side. The gentleman signed the minority report.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. No; I did not.

Mr. RYAN. Very well, I yield.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Mr. Chairman, if I could bring myself to believe the dire forebodings of those who oppose this bill, I would energetically join them in trying to secure its defeat. If I entertained even serious doubts as to its beneficial effects, I would withhold my support. I shall support it because, in my judgment, it will bring to the country in times of industrial controversy permanent and lasting good. I differ from the Democratic members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce as to the advisability of this legislation, and because of this cleavage between my Democratic colleagues and myself, I desire to occupy the time of the House briefly, in order to state the reasons that have impelled me to the course I have taken. The Members of the House will discover from the two reports filed that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce did not divide on this question along partisan lines at all. I failed to sign the minority report filed by the Democratic members of the committee, and the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LOVERING] differed from the Republican members of the committee, and filed, also, a minority report of his own. Those Members of the House who will take the pains to read the two reports, the one filed by the minority and the one filed by the gentleman from Massachusetts, will find that they are very similar in the grounds upon which they put their different oppositions to this particular bill.

In fact, after reading them over, I was reminded very forcibly of the colored preacher's explanation to his congregation of the difference between the Epistle of Paul and the Epistle of Peter. He said that, while Paul's was longer, Peter's was the most "pinted" [laughter], and that is about the only difference I can discover between the views of the minority signed by my Democratic colleagues and the minority views presented by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LOVERING].

The bill has been assailed upon grounds that, in my judgment, are not tenable, and that the reading of the measure will wholly fail to justify. I want to call the attention of Members of the House briefly to what this measure proposes to do. It has been already read by the Clerk, and I can state, compactly I hope, and I will try to state clearly, just what is intended to be accomplished by this legislation.

The first section of this measure simply defines and establishes the jurisdiction under which the President of the United States is warranted in exercising the powers attempted to be conferred upon him by this act. The President is permitted to act only—

Whenever a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise, by reason of which controversy the transportation of the United States mails, the operations, civil or military, of the Government of the United States, or the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations is, in the judgment of the President, interrupted or directly affected, or threatened with being so interrupted or directly affected—that when that condition of affairs arises, the President is authorized under this measure, should it become a law, to appoint a commission whose powers are explicitly defined and carefully and plainly limited by the terms of this act.

My distinguished friend from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON], who has just taken his seat, in my judgment does not have a proper conception of the legal proposition involved in this bill. If I understood him correctly in his view of the case, the President of the United States would be authorized to appoint this commission to have this investigation should a controversy arise upon a plantation in Alabama between the employees upon the plantation and the employer, provided there was a remote possibility that the product of the plantation should at some time get into interstate commerce. If that be the gentleman's view, Mr. Chairman, I must say that it is remarkable, chiefly, if not solely, for the clearness and precision with which it misstates the law. [Laughter.] I need refer to no other authority in support of what I say than the Diamond Match Company case, reported in 188 United States, page 93.

That case reviews at some length the authorities upon the question as to when an article becomes subject to the interstate power of the General Government. The opinion says:

In Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S., 517, logs which have been cut in the State of Maine, and others which had been cut in the State of New Hampshire, were floated in transit down a stream in New Hampshire to the town of Errol, in the latter State, thence to be floated down the Androscoggin River to the State of Maine. The town of Errol assessed upon the property a county, town, school, and highway tax. The tax was sustained by the supreme court of the State of New Hampshire as to the logs cut in that State, and abated as to those cut in Maine.

The judgment was affirmed by this court. Mr. Justice Bradley delivered the opinion of the court, expressed the contentions of the parties in two questions: Are the products of a State, though intended for exportation to another State, and partially prepared for that purpose by being deposited at a place or port of shipment within the State, liable to be taxed like other property of the State?

Do the owner's state of mind in relation to the goods—that is, his intent to export them, and his partial preparation to do so—exempt them from taxation? This is the precise question for solution.

It is obvious that like questions could be framed upon the facts of the case at bar to express the proposition presented. Mr. Justice Bradley's observations, therefore, become pertinent and decisive. He discussed every consideration. He clearly exhibited the extent of the power of the State over the property within it, whether in motion or at rest, though destined for points out of it. He said:

"There must be a point of time they (goods destined to other States) ceased to be governed exclusively by the domestic law and begin to be governed and protected by the national law of commercial regulation, and that moment seems to us to be a legitimate one for this purpose in which they commence their final movement for transportation from the State of their origin to that of their destination. When the products of the farm or the forest are collected and brought in from the surrounding country to a town or station serving as an entrepot for that particular region, whether on a river or a line of railroad, such products are not yet exports, nor are they in process of exportation, nor is exportation begun until they are committed to the common carrier for transportation out of the State to the State of their destination, or have started on their ultimate passage to that State. Until then it is reasonable to regard them as not only within the State of their origin, but as a part of the general mass of property of that State, subject to its jurisdiction and liable to taxation, but taxed without any discrimination in the usual way and manner in which such property is taxed in the State.

* * * * * * *

"Some of the Western States produce very little except wheat and corn, mostly which is intended for export; and so of cotton in the Southern States. Certainly, as long as these products are on the lands which produce them, they are a part of the general property of the State. And so we think they continue to be until they have entered upon their final journey for leaving the State and going into another."

This reasoning of Justice Bradley is adopted by the court in the Diamond Match Company case, and the authorities quoted show clearly when goods or property within a State become subject to the power of the General Government. The power of the President to act under this bill could not be exercised in the instances cited by the gentleman from Alabama. Upon the contrary, the authority I have read completely overwhelms and destroys the legal objection to the bill suggested by my friend from Alabama. Now, let me go back and review briefly some of the other sections of the measure.

The second section of the proposed bill provides or tells how the President may act in the appointment of the commission. It provides that the President may appoint a special commission of not exceeding seven persons who are specially qualified to make an investigation of the controversy, and it provides that the Commissioner of Labor shall be ex officio secretary of that special commission, and that he shall keep and preserve all the proceedings of the commission. The third section describes the duties of the commission. It authorizes the commission upon giving reasonable notice to the parties to a controversy, whether at the seat of the disturbance or elsewhere, to proceed with all convenient dispatch to an investigation of the causes of the controversy and the remedy therefor. The fourth section provides that the parties to the controversy shall be entitled to be heard before the commission, either in person or by counsel or by both. The fifth section embraces within its limits the powers attempted to be conferred upon the commission, and I invite the careful attention of the Members of the House to what is intended to be conferred upon this commission by the fifth section of this act, and no gentleman who reads it can hesitate for one moment in coming to the conclusion that the authority it confers in no way, directly or indirectly, provides for or intimates compulsory arbitration. The fifth section confers upon the commission these powers. It gives power to summon witnesses and require the production of such books and papers as may be necessary for a just determination of the controversy. It authorizes the commission to seek the aid of the United States courts to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence, and makes it the duty of the courts to render such aid. In this particular the commission sought to be created is given powers very much like that conferred upon the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The section further provides that no witness shall be required to criminate himself nor shall he be given any immunity. Section 6 authorizes the commission to employ competent experts to aid it in making the investigation full and completely satisfactory. Section 7 provides that the commission, after having made its investigation, shall make its report, setting forth the causes of the controversy and locating the responsibility therefor as far as may be and making such suggestions as in its judgment will tend to settle the disturbance and prevent its recurrence. Section 8 provides that this report shall be transmitted to the President and by him communicated to the parties to the controversy, and that the report, together with any recommendation the President may wish to make, shall be transmitted to Congress. Section 9 gives the commission the power to make such general rules as may be appropriate for the order of its proceedings. Section 10 provides the compensation of the commission and provides for its expenses and for the compensation of witnesses appearing before it. Section 11 provides that no commission appointed under this act shall continue for a period of over three months from the date of its appointment. This, Mr. Chairman, is, in my opinion, a full and complete statement of all that the bill under discussion attempts to do. No compulsory arbitration is provided for or suggested. Nothing of this sort is attempted. It is simply intended that when a controversy arises which shall reach such proportions as to interfere with the movement of the mails, or shall interfere with commerce between the States or with foreign commerce or which shall interfere with the civil or military operations of the Government, that in either of these events the President of the United States shall be clothed with the authority to appoint a commission which shall exercise such powers and perform such functions as I have just enumerated.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, will my friend yield to me? I am interested in his discussion, and I ask this solely for information.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I will be glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. What is the purpose of the inquiry the Government is to make?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The purpose of the inquiry the Government is to make, in my judgment, is to ascertain the facts and make them public, in order that the public itself may ascertain from the investigation who is in the right and who is in the wrong, so that whoever may be in the wrong may have applied to him only that correction which arises in a righteous public judgment.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. It is not the intention of the Government after it obtains these facts to proceed further, in your opinion?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. No, sir. The bill makes no provision for anything of that kind.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL] allow me one word as to the fifth section?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman asserts, does he not, that the authority of the commission under the fifth section goes to this extent: That it would have the right to examine the books of a man that was not a party to that transaction to be brought before that commission?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I am not prepared to concede that. The gentleman may be right. At present I neither admit nor deny. It does provide for the production of books and papers.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Essential to a just examination?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Surely. But at the same time it provides that the agencies by which it can secure the testimony must be the courts of the United States, and I take it that the courts would protect, as far as ought to be protected, anybody whose testimony was sought to be obtained by that commission. I will say this, gentlemen, without undertaking to discuss that feature of it, that I do not see why there would be any objection to the law if some third party knew something that would throw light on a great public controversy like the ones which are sought to be investigated by this bill.

Mr. ADAMSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Surely.

Mr. ADAMSON. The gentleman from Texas does not deny that whatever is contemplated is compulsory? The investigation shall proceed whether the parties consent or not?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. What I concede to be contemplated is compulsory. What you concede to be contemplated is not compulsory.

Mr. ADAMSON. Whatever it is that is contemplated is compulsory?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Perhaps so. The investigation provided for is compulsory.

Mr. ADAMSON. Then the gentleman does not deny that this commission reports recommending legislation, and the President approves that?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The gentleman's purpose is evidently to establish by a kind of Socratic method of reasoning that it provides for compulsory arbitration. His questions remind me of the statement that Socrates could prove that a sheet of writing paper was a lazy dog; and this is the way it was argued: Is not a sheet of writing paper an ink-lined plane? Is not an inclined plane a slope up? Is not a slow pup a lazy dog? [Laughter.]

Mr. ADAMSON. I enjoy the gentleman's humor. I ask him to answer the question yes or no.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I believe I am better satisfied with the answer just given than to try another.

Mr. ADAMSON. I want to know if the gentleman denies that the commission shall report its findings and recommend legislation if it sees proper?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The bill shows that to be so.

Mr. ADAMSON. We stated one thing about it, and you have stated another.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. We will let the Members read the bill as to that part of it.

Mr. ADAMSON. What if they do not read it? I will be glad if the gentleman will deny or affirm that that provision is in it.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I can not conceive that that has any bearing upon the proposition I am endeavoring to discuss now. The position I am endeavoring to present is the Democratic position, and I will demonstrate it to you.

Mr. ADAMSON. Is it a Democratic proposition?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Yes; the Democrats have declared themselves on this proposition.

Mr. ADAMSON. Have you ever found a proposition among Democrats or lawyers to force anybody into any sort of arbitration? Has not the arbitration law always been the reverse? After the parties had agreed, then they were compelled to abide the findings. Is not that recognized as the proper way?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think so. I want to say that while there was no division in this matter along party lines, yet I assure you that my position is justified not only by the Democratic platform declarations, but by the history of Democratic legislation on this subject, and I want to read one or two authorities bearing on this point. In the Democratic platform of 1896, I find this language:

> We are in favor of the arbitration of differences between employers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees, and recommend such legislation as is necessary to carry out this principle.

Mr. ADAMSON. Now, I will ask the gentleman if he finds any encouragement there for the idea that the parties shall be investigated without their consent?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I will show to the gentleman presently what idea was intended to be conveyed. Here is the platform of 1900, in which we find this declaration:

> We are opposed to government by injunction; we denounce the blacklist, and favor arbitration as a means of settling disputes between corporations and their employees.

These are the Democratic platform declarations, and now let us examine the history of Democratic legislation upon the subject.

Mr. Chairman, this is not the first time that this principle has been proposed in the legislation of our country. An act similar to this was introduced in Congress in 1886, and it was passed. That act, however, omitted the proposition that these gentlemen resist now, and that is, it omitted the provision for governmental investigation of labor disputes. That act was passed in 1886; and President Cleveland vetoed it, because it did not contain the very proposition which you gentlemen now see fit to criticise. In 1887 a bill was offered in Congress including in the provision for governmental supervision of investigations of labor disputes, and that bill became a law and received the President's sanction in 1888, and remained upon the statute books until 1898, when it was superseded by the present law, which does not contain the provision for the appointment of a commission for the investigation of labor disputes.

It is true that the act of 1888 was restricted in its application to disputes between transportation companies and their employees, but it contained the proposition for the investigation by the Government of these controversies, and in this particular was analogous to the very proposition in this bill that we have here to-day. Now, when that question came up in Congress, a gentleman from Georgia engaged in that debate, just as we have a gentleman from Georgia engaged in this to-day, and here is what he thought of that bill which provided for the investigation by the Government of labor disputes. I read from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of the first session of the Fiftieth Congress, when the bill that I have alluded to was under consideration. I read from the remarks made by Mr. Blount of Georgia. I do not know whether he was the predecessor of my distinguished friend from Georgia or not. Am I correct?

Mr. ADAMSON. No, sir.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. He was not a Representative from your district?

Mr. ADAMSON. He was from Georgia, but not from my district.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Well, he was a very distinguished citizen of Georgia and a very influential Member of this House.

Bear in mind that the bill then under discussion provided for compulsory investigation of disputes between transportation companies and their employees whenever interstate commerce was involved; practically the very proposition involved here to-day. In the discussion of that bill Mr. Blount said this:

> Mr. Chairman, it is said that there is nothing in this bill and that some other measure ought to be provided to reach the real evils connected with our labor troubles. I venture to say that, while this observation is accepted by nearly every gentleman, there is scarcely one upon this floor who has in his own mind come to any conclusion as to any measure at all upon this subject. This being the case, sir, why discard this measure? Is there nothing good in it? With the great danger that threatens the property of the country and the peace of society growing out of these strikes, is it not something that the Government of the United States should, in the midst of the excitement, appoint a board or commission to go to the scene of the troubles to investigate all the facts connected with them as far as they can, and to exert the moral influence which would attach to such action on the part of those commissioners in their advice as to some mode of settlement? Is it not possible that a commission appointed by the President of the United States may go into the disturbed district, hear the complaints on either side, and find a way to some proposition that may bring about peace? And if this be true, that part of the bill which arms the President with this moral power, which oppresses none and which may do great good, should, it seems to me, command the assent of good citizens all over this land.

Now, I commend these remarks to the prayerful consideration of my distinguished friends from Georgia and Alabama.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will permit me, that law that he has just read related alone to corporations.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Related to transportation corporations.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This bill is very different, is it not?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It is wider in its scope.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Much wider.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Very much wider.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you not believe that the Erdman Act, passed some years ago, is sufficient for all purposes of investigation?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. What do you refer to as the "Erdman Act?" The act of 1898?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes. What is the objection to that act?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. There are several objections. I believe they were clearly set out by the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You are reading from that law. That makes no reference to any compulsory action.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The act of 1888 provided that the President should be empowered to appoint a commission, and provided that they should have the right to compel the attendance of witnesses, to elicit testimony, and to do practically just what this act does, except that its application was limited to transportation companies.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then, why do you want to pass this bill?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. That law, I will say, was repealed by the Republican act of 1898, and we want it put back on the statute books. If the bill now under discussion is made the law, we will be but putting back in the statutes of the United States the Democratic legislation of 1888 in so far as the principle of governmental investigation of these disputes is concerned.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, one more question. I wish my friend would give his construction of the limitations of this language in this act: "Concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment." What is the limit of investigation of the commission appointed by the President under the words "conditions of employment?"

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The President's limitations are marked. His power is not called into being unless the controversy is such that it interrupts the civil or military operations of the Government, or the movement of the mails, or the free and regular movement of interstate and foreign commerce. I do not care what other proposition may be involved, it requires the concurrence of one of these elements also before his power can be exercised at all.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Can you give the committee an illustration of the conditions of employment that enter into interstate commerce, and those that do not, which the President by this act could order investigated?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I believe my friend makes this mistake with reference to his investigation of the bill. I am not sure that I correctly understand him. The power of the President to act does not depend upon whether the dispute is concerning wages, hours of employment, or conditions of labor at all. His power does not come into being until the dispute reaches such magnitude that it will interrupt the civil or military operations of the Government, or the regular movement of the mails, or the orderly movement of interstate commerce. It is only when one or more of these conditions arises that the President can act with reference to the subjects referred to in your interrogatory.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But when that condition does arise, with reference to any employment or any question of wages, then the President can act?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Certainly, in a case of that magnitude.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It makes no difference how large or how small.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It can not be small. It must be of sufficient magnitude to interrupt the movement of the mails or the civil or military operations of the Government or the movement of interstate or foreign commerce.

Mr. RICHARDSON. There are a thousand little rivulets that run into interstate commerce from the States, and the interruption of one of them would justfy the interposition of the President.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It is inconceivable to my mind that the President of the United States would seize upon an opportunity like that indicated by the gentleman from Alabama in effort to put into operation the powers attempted to be conferred in this bill.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But you admit, do you not, that he has the power to do it?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think not. I can not conceive how a dispute, like that which the gentleman has in mind evidently, could be of such magnitude as to interrupt interstate and foreign commerce or the civil or military operations of the Government or the regular movements of the mails.

Mr. ESCH. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Yes.

Mr. ESCH. Would not an overexercise of this power by the President weaken the operation of the law?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Undeniably so.

Mr. ESCH. Therefore the President would have every reason to exercise this power only on rare occasions.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Unless he deliberately intended to destroy the law.

Mr. ESCH. Which is not a reasonable supposition.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I would hardly suppose so.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. I should like to ask, as a matter of information, what power this commission would have, or where would there be any power to enforce its recommendations to report?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. None in the world, except the moral force of public opinion.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. It would not amount to anything except so far as that is concerned.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. But that is a great deal. There never has existed a great abuse that could permanently survive the force of a righteous public opinion.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. I do not mean public opinion. I mean so far as the legal enforcement of its findings are concerned.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. There is no machinery at all providing for its enforcement.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. Then, suppose the people interested in the controversy should refuse to appear, to enter into this arbitration, to produce books and papers—could they compel that to be done if they have no power to enforce their own finding?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think so. I do not see any reason why not. If the gentleman knows of any reason why——

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania, I merely raised the question.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The mere fact that they can not go any further than to make a report to the President which shall be transmitted to Congress does not necessarily deprive the commission of the power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and ascertain in a proper way all the facts with reference to the controversy.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. Could you confer upon the commission the power to enforce its report or its conclusions?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. That is purely speculative now and does not matter. I see no good that could come from a discussion of it, as it is not at all involved in this bill, until some measure comes before the House tending to provide compulsory arbitration, and I will say to the gentleman frankly that I would not support a bill providing for compulsory arbitration. I want the gentleman to understand clearly that this bill does not provide for compulsory arbitration. It does not attempt it in any way.

Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania. If you undertake to settle a controversy between individuals, the commission might find a case where the claim made would be that the commission's findings, if enforced, would impair the obligation of contracts. Would the Government under these circumstances have any authority to appoint a commission for that purpose?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. There is no authority, as far as this bill is concerned, to require parties to abide the decision. The commission is only authorized to ascertain the facts in an orderly and legal way, and then to report their findings.

Mr. HARDY. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HARDY. Is it not a fact that under the provisions of this bill there is no power given to bring any verdict that could be enforced, and yet there is power to require the parties to such a legal controversy to appear, be sworn under the penalty of perjury, and give evidence in relation to their affairs and proceedings?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Unquestionably. The gentleman does not object to it on that ground, does he?

Mr. HARDY. I ask what the situation is. Does the gentleman know whether or not the transportation companies and the large corporations engaged in interstate commerce do or not favor this bill?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I have not a personal knowledge of that subject. I have been informed that the bill is being resisted to some extent by both the large employers of labor and some of the labor leaders.

Mr. HARDY. Does any labor organization favor this bill?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Frankly, I will say to the gentleman I can not tell whether they do or not. I have no personal knowledge of any labor organization opposing it or any employer of labor opposing it. I have been informed that they do.

Mr. HARDY. Recognizing the fact that no man has any right to compel anybody to employ him under our present conditions of labor controversies and the condition of laboring men, does the gentleman from Texas think it wise to give such a power as this bill does to force an investigation against the will of parties interested when you can not give them any relief, no matter how much you find they have been imposed upon?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The gentleman is proceeding upon the proposition that because the bill does not provide for compulsory arbitration, therefore it ought not provide a means for eliciting the facts concerning the labor dispute.

Mr. HARDY. Is not this in the nature of compulsory arbitration?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I can not see it that way.

Mr. HARDY. If the bill should go far enough and say that the parties could be cited and state the case on the issues that it made up, and the commission could bring in a verdict and enter a judgment so that their findings were enforced, that would be compulsory arbitration. Does not this go far enough to force them to give the evidence?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It forces them to give the evidence, and it will give all the relief which a righteous public opinion can afford.

Mr. HARDY. My understanding is from some Members here that labor organizations, as far as they have manifested any opinion, have condemned the measures.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I have no knowledge of it.

Mr. HARDY. So far as I am concerned, that would have considerable weight with me unless it were very apparent that the legislation was necessary, because they are so interested, and as the bill gives them no relief, I would hesitate to require them to come under oath and answer as to all affairs when you can give them no remedy.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It seems that some gentlemen who ask these questions oppose the bill because it is compulsory arbitration in one breath and then oppose it in another because it is not compulsory arbitration.

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. That is not my position. It seems to me that as far as you go it is compulsory arbitration, but it does not go to the limit of giving a remedy and enforcing the remedy. It does not go to that extent, but the investigation is compulsory, and that is what I am opposed to unless you could give me some good reason to the contrary.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Is the gentleman in favor of compulsory arbitration?

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. I am not.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. The bill provides, if the gentleman will read it——

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. It seems to me that arbitration is in the nature of an agreement; that men agree that they will arbitrate their differences. Then the law may be brought in to provide a way; but to say that two men shall be compelled to agree to a matter, that is not an agreement at all—that is compulsory, and I am opposed to anything of that kind, excepting in the ordinary channels of the courts.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I do not like to restate a proposition I have just been discussing, but these interrogatories show so manifestly that the gentlemen have not carefully read the bill that I want to make another statement of the proposition I made awhile ago, and that is this: That this bill attempts to lodge in the commission to be appointed by the President every facility for truthfully eliciting the facts and arriving at an accurate conclusion in the controversy. That is all.

It does not rely upon any sort of compulsion at all, except the compulsion that follows from honest investigation and a correctly formed public opinion. If the public opinion is manifestly in error, then it will not force a settlement of the controversy, but if it is such a public opinion as is correctly formed upon truthful fact, then in the ordinary course of events parties to the controversy would be compelled to yield to that, as we always yield to righteous public sentiment.

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. Is the gentleman in favor of compulsory arbitration?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Not at all. And I repeat again, that this bill does not suggest the principle of compulsory arbitration. Now, I want to call attention briefly, before I close, to some reasons why this legislation should be enacted. The country possibly, in time of peace, when it is not disturbed by great labor commotions, does not realize the enormous loss inflicted through these sad events. I have here before me a volume called "Labor and Capital." It contains a number of very interesting articles. I want to read briefly from just two of them. I want to read first a statement made by Cardinal Gibbons, to be found in this volume at page 142. He has this to say on the subject:

> Experience has shown that strikes are a drastic, and at best a very questionable, remedy for the redress of the laborer's grievances. They paralyze industry, they often foment fierce passions and lead to the destruction of property, and, above all, they result in inflicting grievous injury on the laborer himself by keeping him in enforced idleness, during which his mind is clouded by discontent while brooding over his situation, and his family not infrequently suffers from the want of even the necessaries of life.
>
> It would be a vast stride in the interests of peace and of the laboring classes if the policy of arbitration, which is now gaining favor for the settlement of international quarrels, were also availed of for the adjustment of disputes between capital and labor. Many blessings would result from the adoption of this method, for, while strikes, as the name implies, are aggressive and destructive, arbitration is conciliatory and constructive; the result in the former case is determined by the weight of the purse, in the latter by the weight of the argument.

Now, then, listen to some striking figures submitted by Mr. Carroll D. Wright upon the same subject in the volume I have before me, at page 153. I invite the attention of the committee to these figures:

> The record of strikes in the United States for the twenty years ending December 31, 1900, as shown by the United States Department of Labor, would seem to indicate that at times, at least, some drastic measure for the prevention of conflicts might be desirable. This record is that during the period named there were 22,793 strikes, with a wage loss of $257,863,478, a loss through assistance rendered by labor organizations of $16,174,793 and a loss to employers of $122,731,121. The lockouts during the same period numbered 1,005, with a wage loss to employees of $48,819,745, a loss through assistance rendered by labor organizations of $3,451,461, and a loss to employers of $19,927,983. The total losses by strikes and lockouts reached the vast sum of $468,968,581. It is curious to note that in 50.77 per cent of the establishments in which strikes occurred they were successful, in 13.04 per cent partially successful, and in 36.19 per cent failures; in 50.73 per cent of the establishments where lockouts were ordered success attended the efforts of the employers, while in 6.28 per cent they were partially successful, and in 42.93 per cent the lockouts failed of the object for which they were ordered. In a large majority of all these strikes and lockouts the public as such probably experienced little or no inconvenience, and therefore was not sensitively interested in them, but in others, and those of the greatest magnitude, the loss can not be computed by any statistical method. It is utterly impossible to ascertain the direct and indirect loss to the public through great strikes and lockouts which suspend traffic, raise prices, and affect all trades and commercial transactions.

Mr. WALDO. What was the period?

Mr. TOWNSEND. Twenty years ending 1900.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Twenty years ending December 31, 1900.

Now, I have here another volume. I will not take time to read largely from it, but it is the report of the Commissioner of Labor on the subject of strikes and lockouts for the year 1906. It is devoted to a consideration of the subject for the twenty-five years immediately prior to 1905. I invite the attention of the House to the following statement from that report:

> In this report of twenty-five years there were 36,757 strikes and 1,546 lockouts in the United States, making a total of 38,303 disturbances of this character. As above indicated, disturbances of less than one day's duration are not included in these numbers.
>
> Strikes occurred in 181,407 establishments and lockouts in 18,547 establishments, making a total of 199,954 establishments involved in these disturbances. The total number of persons who went out on strikes during the twenty-five years was 6,728,048, and the number of persons locked out was 716,231, making a total of 7,444,279 persons striking and locked out.
>
> Because of the dependence of one occupation upon another the cessation of work by strikers and employees locked out often renders it impossible for fellow-employees in the same establishment to continue work. The number of employees, including strikers, thrown out of work by strikes within this period of twenty-five years was 8,703,824, and the number thrown out of work by lockouts was 825,610, making a total of 9,529,434 persons thrown out of work by these labor disturbances in the establishments involved. In the above figures establishments and employees have been counted each time they were involved in different strikes and lockouts. On the other hand, no attempt has been made to estimate the number of persons thrown out of work in establishments not involved in the disturbances, but closely dependent in many ways on the establishment involved, as in furnishing material, etc.
>
> Of the 36,757 strikes from 1881 to 1905, 68.99 per cent were ordered by labor organizations and 31.01 per cent were begun either by employees who were not members of organizations, or who, if members of organizations, went on strike without the sanction of their organizations. Of the 181,407 establishments involved in strikes, 90.34 per cent were included in strikes ordered by organizations. Strikes ordered by labor organizations included 79.69 per cent of all strikes and 77.45 per cent of the total persons thrown out of work in establishments involved in strikes.

The average duration of strikes per establishment was 25.4 days and lockouts 84.6 days. The strike or lockout does not, of course, always result in the closing of the establishment affected, but in strikes 111,343, or 61.38 per cent of all establishments involved, were closed an average of 20.1 days. In lockouts, 12,658, or 68.25 per cent of all establishments involved, were closed an average of 40.4 days. The days here referred to are calendar days, including Sundays and holidays.

This will give the House some conception of the enormous loss in wages and earnings growing out of strikes and lockouts. When we take the average price of labor per day and multiply that by the number of days the employees were out of employment by reason of strikes or lockouts, and consider the average amount of the wages, we see what an enormous loss has been incurred by the wage-earner himself. But the greater loss falls upon the public at large, who suffer from the controversy between the employee and the employer; the people who suffer when a coal strike is on, when a coal famine prevails; the people who suffer when other things can not be had; they are the people who should appeal to us in the consideration of this legislation.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Yes, sir.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Is it not a fact that in the great bulk of the strikes referred to in that report the public was not inconvenienced at all?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think not.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. The public at large?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think not.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. And is not it also a fact, in compiling these statistics of the loss of wages, that the number of days that the strike continued is multiplied by the average wage per day in order to get at the amount of the loss of wages?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. In the report I have just read there is no effort on the part of the commissioner at all to state the pecuniary loss involved.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. There was in a previous statement.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I could not tell you the process of calculation by which these results were reached in the volume read here. In that report of the Commissioner of Labor there is no effort to state in dollars and cents the pecuniary loss involved. He simply states the number of laborers involved, the number of days the lockouts existed, and the number of days the strikes existed; taking the number of strikes and lockouts and getting a general average in that way, and in that way ascertaining the number of days they were out.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. The statement just read a few minutes ago, I believe from Mr. Carroll D. Wright, undertakes to state the loss by strikes for a period of twenty years ending December 31, 1900. What I want to bring out is this—that these statistics are misleading, because of the fact that they do not make any allowance for the work that would otherwise be done; that otherwise would be performed by the strikers and other classes of workers in the same line of work, and it did not take into consideration the actual loss of time in the industry to the workman who is working there, so that the figures are incorrect.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. As to the general results, they may be susceptible to the suggestion the gentleman made just a moment ago; but there is also another element that ought to be considered, namely, that Mr. Carroll D. Wright does not attempt at all in this to estimate in any way the loss to the general public by strikes and lockouts.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Is it not also a fact that unless where a strike is general in any given line of trade the trade itself has supplied the material, and there is no loss to the public; it is only when a general strike takes place that no loss can come to the public whatever?

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. I would like to ask the gentleman a question for information. He refers to the possibility of loss or inconvenience to the general public from the strike in the coal mines. Is it contemplated in the provisions of this bill that the inquiry here authorized shall extend to strikes in the coal mines?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Replying to my friend, I will say that under the first section of the act is contained the only authority under which the President can exercise the authority intended to be conveyed by this bill. I simply use that as an illustration to show the enormous loss and suffering that are sometimes inflicted upon the public by reason of strikes. The mere fact that the public suffers would not of itself authorize the setting in motion of this machinery unless it were of a nature that affected the movement of commerce beween the States, the transportation of the mails, or the civil or military operations of the Government.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. Can the gentleman imagine any condition that would justify the Federal Government in interfering in this matter, or extending the inquiry to the coal fields, that would come under the first section of this bill?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Not unless the controversy was of such a character as to present one or more of the features described in the first section of this bill.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. Does the gentleman think that is possible?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It would depend entirely upon whether it presented one of the federal questions provided for in the proposed law.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. Then, if that is possible, is it not a further possibility, and equally so, that it may extend to the very enterprise that the gentleman from Alabama referred to on the plantations?

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. I think not.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. I do not see why.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It does not extend to either unless the controversy embraces one or more of the requirements contained in the first section of the bill—neither the coal miners nor the cotton planters.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. The reason I made the inquiry is this: Because the illustration the gentleman made is a very common and a very usual one to justify this particular inquiry—the inconvenience to all the people resulting from the strikes in the coal mines—and I have never been able to have any gentleman explain to me how it is possible for this inquiry to extend to strikes in the coal field, which are so popular as an illustration.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. It may be a popular or common illustration, but if the gentleman will read the bill, and no doubt he has read it or will do so——

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. I have read it.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. He will discover that the mere fact that the operation of a coal mine is involved does not justify the appointing of these agencies by the President. It is only when the controversy is of such a nature as described by the first section of the bill that the President can act at all.

Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi. If it can by any possibility refer to the coal mine, it can, under the same conditions, refer to the cotton field.

Mr. RUSSELL of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I do not know of anything I can say at this time which would make clearer to the House the emergencies, and the only emergencies, under which the President will be authorized to act. The reasons for this action by the House not only seem to me to be strong and convincing, but the time is ripe for wise legislation on this great question. No great industrial dispute now engages our attention, and for that reason we can act with a more unclouded vision than when passions are unbridled by some great commotion which convulses the country. I am a friend of labor and believe profoundly in the wisdom of labor organizations. In my judgment the labor unions of America are the most important factors in keeping up the standard of wages here both of organized labor and unorganized labor, and I would give my support to no measure which, in my judgment, would inflict an injustice on those unions. I believe this measure will result not only in the general good of the country, but in the good of both labor and the employer of labor. Year by year the great corporations and those who are in their employ are watching each other to see who shall get the first clutch at the throat. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] has told the House how the great coal barons are accumulating enormous supplies of coal—for what purpose except in case of a strike to starve their operatives into subjection. When a great industrial dispute is on, when mines and factories and railroads are involved, and when thousands of laborers are engaged in the contest, then each side is eager to enlist public sentiment in its behalf.

The public under present conditions has no opportunity of obtaining a knowledge of the controversy which is accurate and satisfying. If the press shall furnish information which shows the strikes to be in the wrong, it will be denounced as having been furnished by the paid agents of "predatory wealth." If information shall be furnished showing that the great corporations are in the wrong, it will be claimed with vehemence that it is misleading and that it is but the propaganda of violence and anarchy. If the authority to create this commission during periods of great strikes shall be granted, then the right and the wrong of the controversy can be ascertained in a reglar and orderly way by those who have no interests except the general good. Men of high character and great ability will be called to this service who will have no motive except the restoration of peace—a just and honorable peace. Both sides can be represented and the evidence will be elicited with the accuracy of a trial of a case in court. When the evidence is all in then the public will be truthfully and honestly advised as to the real merits of the dispute, and a public conscience of the people will render a judgment whose force neither side will be able to evade or defy. It will bring peace because, and only because, in this enlightened and Christian era no man and no organization can set at defiance a righteous public judgment.

But a short while ago, when the great telegraphers' strike was on, the strikers appealed to the President to do the very thing this bill proposes to allow him to do. If that power had then been exercised by the President, how much loss or suffering might have been prevented. As the situation now exists, both the corporation and the striker say "Hands off and let us fight it out to the death." Both believe they have the power to crush the other. But while the struggle proceeds, what is to become of the general public, which is in no way responsible for the battle? The loss to the corporation and the loss to the strikers is often appalling, but it may be that the suffering of the people at large, who have no connection with the contest, is even greater. The whole people of the United States are entitled to have their interest regarded by us in considering this measure. In my judgment, if it becomes a law, it will be a preventive of many labor controversies and it will shorten others. It will be for the best interest of employer and employee, and result in lasting good to the country at large. [Applause.]

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, to my mind this is a peculiar situation, but all of us have seen peculiar conditions in the last few years, and one of them was the attempt to compel the adoption of phonetic spelling. Another was the striking of the legend "In God we trust" from our coinage. Remembering those things, I am not surprised that the House is asked to pass a bill that the press and the people of the country have not asked for; a bill, Mr. Chairman, that is of vast importance to both the labor interests and the employers of this country, and yet neither have been heard in its favor before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of this House, who have had this bill under consideration.

Mr. Chairman, in the short time that I will occupy I will endeavor to show that there is no demand for this legislation, that it will serve no good purpose, and that it ought not to pass. As has been stated, it provides—and I will briefly refer to some of the provisions of the bill:

That whenever within any State or States, Territory or Territories, or the District of Columbia a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise, by reason of which controversy the transportation of the United States mails, the operations, civil or military, of the Government of the United States, or the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations is, in the judgment of the President, interrupted or directly affected, or threatened with being so interrupted or directly affected, the President may, in his discretion, inquire into the same and investigate the causes thereof in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Further on it says:

That having made such investigation and ascertained the facts connected with the controversy into which it was appointed to inquire, the commission shall with all convenient dispatch formulate its report thereon, setting forth the causes of the same, locating, so far as may be, the responsibility therefor, and making such specific recommendations as shall in its judgment put an end to such controversy or disturbance and prevent a recurrence thereof, suggesting any legislation which the case may seem to require.

Now, gentlemen have said that this is not compulsory arbitration; that this merely provides for investigating certain disputes which may arise, and yet we have this provision which gives the commission power and directs them to report such recommendations as may prevent a recurrence of such disputes. In other words, to compel people to do that which they are not now compelled to do—interfering with the free exercise of that which every man claims he is entitled to under the Constitution.

This bill, Mr. Chairman, was pending during the Fifty-ninth Congress, and the only persons that appeared before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce were the Hon. James R. Garfield, then Commissioner of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor, and Charles P. Neill, Commissioner of Labor. An article from Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, favoring legislation of this character, was presented by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND], and also the draft of a bill by a gentleman in Boston named John P. Palfrey.

That, Mr. Chairman, is all the record that has been obtained by this committee on this important measure. The bill was reported to the House in the Fifty-ninth Congress with the understanding that it would not be called up. Now, we are to-day asked to enact into law, so far as this House is concerned, that very same measure, without any additional consideration.

Mr. Chairman, I venture the statement that not 10 per cent of the Members of this House know anything about it or have given it the slightest consideration. My friend from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL] said that he had no knowledge as to whether or not capital or labor were opposed to or in favor of this measure. I have such knowledge. The labor organizations of this country are practically unanimous in their opposition to this bill. Mr. W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; J. J. Hannahan, grand master of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; P. H. Morrisey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, have all written letters that were placed by me in the RECORD during the closing hours of the last session. I had them at that time, Mr. Chairman, because we were given to understand that that bill would be called up before Congress adjourned, but for obvious reasons it was permitted to die, but it is called up to-day when nobody expected it.

In order to show, Mr. Chairman, what Mr. Gompers, than whom I believe none in the country is more competent to speak regarding the attitude of labor, thinks about this bill, I will ask the Clerk to read in my time a letter which he wrote to me, referring to this very bill.

Mr. ESCH. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. RYAN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ESCH. Were not all parties interested required to appear before our committee when the bill was up for its consideration?

Mr. RYAN. Certainly. I understood the gentleman from Michigan wrote to many parties, both employers and employees, and none appeared.

Mr. ESCH. Was not Mr. Fuller present, and did he not state that he did not care to express any opinion on the bill?

Mr. RYAN. I will have Mr. Fuller's statement read after the reading of Mr. Gompers's letter has been completed by the Clerk.

Mr. ESCH. He was given an opportunity to testify. Now, my question is, Did he not say he did not care to express his views on that particular measure?

Mr. RYAN. At that particular time.

Mr. ESCH. At the time the hearings were conducted.

Mr. RYAN. As a matter of fact, there is and was no demand for this bill. Nobody appeared in favor of the bill, except a lot of theoretical chaps. [Laughter.]

The Clerk read as follows:

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR,
Washington, D. C., March 23, 1908.

Hon. WILLIAM H. RYAN,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: A month or two ago, having been asked to express my opinion upon H. R. 4857, introduced by Mr. TOWNSEND, I wrote to you at considerable length upon the subject dealt with in that bill.

In addition thereto I desire to say that a friend of mine having the same subject in mind addressed a letter to me in the nature of a protest against the passage of the Townsend bill or the principles involved in it, and because it is so pertinent let me quote what he said:

"The open door to compulsory arbitration is the official investigation and report; that is, official arbitration by the Government. The only plausible argument for officialism in labor disputes is the creation, or manufacture, of 'correct' public opinion as to the merits of each dispute as it arises. It is said not to be the design of the advocates of officialism to decide such controversies, but only to investigate and report, thus giving publicity to the facts. But to make a public report in such cases will necessarily involve the passing of judgment. How will these ex cathedra judgments be colored? With the press in the hands of capitalists and the official investigators holding office through political influence emanating from political bosses or political power behind whom are the large employers of labor, could labor expect a proper consideration of its side or a fair presentation to the public of its contentions? Would not the bureau or commission become a sort of capitalistic or commercial priesthood?

"Such a law would be either thus perverted and turned against labor or it would be a dead letter. In either aspect of the case it would be opposed.

"There can be no arbitration except where the disputants mutually and voluntarily consent. The initiative should be private, not official. Voluntary arbitration, the only sort that is worth mentioning, is being resorted to almost every day. For this no law is needed. Here the Government—that is to say, political power—should keep its hands off. Moreover, any such law, if resisted, would fail to stand the test of constitutionality.

"But let the bureau, commission, or whatever it may be called, be once established, even if without compulsory jurisdiction, and a cry will at once be set up for power to enforce its decrees. Therefore the description of official investigation and report as the open door to compulsory arbitration is correct."

Now, as to arbitration boards or compulsory arbitration, let me say that organized labor of the United States has from the first opposed the policy or principle of compulsory arbitration, for compulsory arbitration is nothing more nor less than compulsory abiding by the award rendered by the arbitrators.

We hold that to enforce an award against employees, backed up by the law and by the Government, is confiscation. On the other hand, the enforcement of an award by law and by the Government, when such an award is against workmen, involves compulsory enforcement of involuntary servitude; in other words, slavery. And let me add that experience has demonstrated the soundness of contention of the working people of the United States. The compulsory-arbitration law of New Zealand and other Australasian countries is admitted to be a failure of its purpose.

About ten years ago a Mr. Lusk came to the United States, and for months entered upon a campaign to convince our people, particularly the employers, that they should follow in the course of New Zealand and adopt compulsory arbitration. It was my privilege at the time to be present on one of the occasions when Mr. Lusk was addressing an influential public meeting. I took the issue with him, and though made to bear the brunt of adverse criticism by the opponents to our movement and through a portion of the public press, the position I took was thought compelling.

For several years we had to meet the advocates of compulsory arbitration in the various legislatures and in the United States Congress, as well as upon the public platform. A turn in the tide of opinion came and employers generally agreed with labor that compulsory arbitration should not be made part of our economic or political system—that is, compulsory arbitration by the State or Nation. Owing to the attitude of organized labor we have therefore escaped the enactment of compulsory arbitration laws in the States and in the United States. Employers and those having the better understanding of industrial conditions and the industrial relations of employer and employees saw the undesirability and ineffectiveness and, above all, the injustice of such a law.

Organized labor believes in a policy of conciliation and arbitration, but believes in arbitration only where conciliation has failed, and it contends that arbitration when entered into should be voluntary, and voluntarily and faithfully abiding by an award rendered; that this is the only method to obtain and maintain the largest degree of industrial peace consistent with human liberty.

I should add that we believe in an investigation of some of the industrial disputes and controversies which arise, but I am fully persuaded that the fullest advantages and best results with the least injury to the people and their rights would accrue from unofficial or quasi-official investigation, rather than investigations conducted by a commission created by law with power, with penalties, punishments, and what not.

It is exceedingly interesting to note to what extent some men want other men to do by law, and let me add that I have no hesitancy in declaring my sincere convictions that such a bill as the Townsend bill simply means the forerunner of an attempt at compulsory arbitration by law with all that that implies.

Very respectfully, yours,

SAML. GOMPERS,
President American Federation of Labor.

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, I now ask the Clerk to read the letters from Mr. Fuller and Mr. Goss, and the presidents of the different railroad organizations printed on that same page, as I remember it.

The Clerk read as follows:

ORGANIZATIONS OF RAILROAD EMPLOYEES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17, 1908.

Hon. W. H. RYAN, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: On behalf and by authority of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Order of Railway Conductors, we earnestly and respectfully express the opposition of these organizations to the passage of House bill No. 15447, entitled "A bill for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes," our reasons for such opposition being expressed in the attached letter bearing the signatures of the chief executive officers of the above-named organizations.

Respectfully submitted.

H. R. FULLER,
Legislative Representative Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.
M. N. GOSS,
Legislative Representative Order of Railway Conductors.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16, 1908.

Messrs. H. R. FULLER and M. N. GOSS,
Legislative Representatives, Washington, D. C.

GENTLEMEN: For the members of the organizations we represent you are authorized to oppose the passage of H. R. 15447, a bill for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes.

Legislation such as this bill contemplates is not sought by the railway employees, and is otherwise objectionable. We believe that the bill tends toward compulsory arbitration, which principle we oppose. We are in favor of publicity in all things pertaining to the relations between capital and labor and of any method or plan that is economically right that will minimize industrial warfare, but we do not any more believe in settlement of these questions under government domination than we do in government by injunction.

We believe that there is now sufficient law on the subject. The law approved June 1, 1898, known as the "Erdman Act," provides adequate means for mediation, conciliation, and voluntary arbitration. Anything more would, in our judgment, be oppressive.

Yours, truly,

W. S. STONE,
Grand Chief Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.
J. J. HANNAHAN,
Grand Master Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.
A. B. GARRETSON,
President Order Railway Conductors.
P. H. MORRISEY,
Grand Master Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Mr. RYAN. Now, Mr. Chairman, I think the reading of those letters conclusively shows that there is some opposition to this bill. I have as yet failed to see where there is any demand for it. I think that answers the gentleman with regard to the attitude of Mr. Fuller and the other officers of the different railroad and labor organizations in regard to this bill.

I believe, Mr. Chairman, with those gentlemen, that the only arbitration that can be successful is voluntary arbitration. Compulsory arbitration has been a failure and is a failure in Australia and in Canada, as any man can determine who desires to read the facts with regard to its operation in those countries.

There is sufficient law now on the statute books of this country in law of 1898, known as the "Erdman Act," and also in the act creating the Bureau of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor. They have full power now to do all that is necessary for the Government to do in connection with matters of this character.

I do not believe that there is anything that can occur in this country in strikes that will be new. We have had all sorts of labor disputes. Everything that can be done by capital or labor is known, and there is no occasion for waiting until some disturbance occurs, and then permitting the President, as provided in this act, to appoint commissions with all their little perquisites and privileges, as carried by the different paragraphs in this bill.

This is not a unanimous report in favor of this bill. The Republican members of the committee are not all in favor of it. We on our side lost our friend from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL], but the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LOVERING] joined with the minority, and so far as numbers are concerned, we are on an even footing.

Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the enactment of this law. I do not believe there is a demand for it. It is indefinite in purpose. It would be a law without a penalty. It paraphrases the arbitration law of 1898, and I know of no good purpose that it would serve. Mr. Chairman, I believe the American labor organizations are entitled to more favorable consideration than is here proposed. The American wage-worker is the bone and sinew of this land. He is the means by which we excel in the world's trade. He is the one who in times of danger must bear the brunt of battle, the country's producer in times of peace, and its defender in time of war, and he is entitled to a square deal, and every fair and reasonable opportunity for advancement should be given him. I trust that no law such as is here proposed will be placed upon the statutes of this country. [Applause.]

I reserve the balance of my time, yielding ten minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. NICHOLLS].

Mr. NICHOLLS. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I rise to oppose this measure because I believe it is substantially compulsory arbitration. According to the arguments advanced, its whole aim is to compel both sides of any labor controversy which comes within the provisions of this bill—and they are more numerous than appear on the surface of the measure—to submit to the findings of this commission. It provides that the commission shall investigate the difficulty and that then it shall recommend the means of settling the difficulty, and recommend remedies, so that there will be no recurrence. If it does not compel the parties to submit, then it is noneffective and useless. Any measure or effort of this kind should be judged according to what it does, bearing in mind the old saying, "Handsone is as handsome does;" and if this measure, which is supposed to compel through public sentiment the settlement of differences according to the findings of this proposed commission, is operative, then it actually becomes compulsory arbitration. Who will dare to refuse acceptance of its findings?

Mr. Chairman, I have been sent here, in the main, by a laboring constituency and am, in a measure, especially their Representative. I want to make the point that, first of all, our people do not want this kind of legislation. Next, the men who may be selected on such a commission may not be acquainted with the industry in which the difficulty has arisen, and therefore will not be qualified to enter into the details of the business and arrange an agreement by which the men and employers engaged in that industry must abide.

I want to point out another reason why I am opposed to this as a Representative of the laboring man, and that is that in a certain controversy that arose in the anthracite-coal regions one of the men selected to act as an umpire decided that an employer may discharge whenever he pleases, for whatever he pleases, with cause or without cause, by giving a reason or by not giving a reason.

This decision was made in a case where there was a contract binding the employers and men that worked in that industry for a period of three years. This was the finding of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission. Now, the workingmen are not going to be protected; they are practically compelled to submit their differences to men who have no knowledge of the details of their industry, and may decide even after the contract is made between the employer and the employees; that at any minute the employer may discharge one or all of the men who are parties to that contract, leaving them absolutely without any right to participate in the benefits of that contract, and yet protect the employer from other employees, or possibly from these employees going on a strike and demanding certain conditions which will be new and better for labor. It protects the employer, but it leaves the employee absolutely at the mercy of the employer.

Now, we do not want this kind of decision. I claim that when a contract is made between an employer and his men, that unless these men fail to give good service and a reasonable amount of service, they ought not to be discharged without cause. The only cause for their being discharged ought to be that they fail to comply with the conditions of the contract and do not render good service. And yet one of these men selected under the circumstances I have stated decided that they may be discharged and prevented from enjoying all benefits of that contract at any time.

I want to point also to the fact that in the hearings of this kind, where the question is to be thoroughly brought out and explained, it will be practically a court of last resort for the settlement of that difficulty or that strike, and that it will be to the interest of both parties to do their very best and present their side of the case in its true and full light, in order that they may have the benefit of the good judgment and a chance to have the verdict in their favor.

Now, what does that require? It requires that in hearings of that kind the workmen will have to employ a lawyer; that they will have to get the services at some time of expert statisticians, as the miners had to do in the Anthracite Strike Commission hearing, which may involve great expense. It means that they will be opposed by astute lawyers employed by the corporations, and that when it comes to presenting their case as a matter of technicality, presenting it according to the recognized rules, they will have to have the services of a highly paid lawyer, or a corps of them, and the workingman will be at a disadvantage and an unfair disadvantage.

Our experience has been that the safest way is to either present the case to the employer himself, who understands what we say, who understands the common language used in that business, and not to have these terms laid aside and other language used by lawyers employed by the employers themselves to mystify those gentlemen who in all honesty may be attempting to learn the facts in regard to the difficulty.

If the employers and employees desire to arbitrate, and, as a general proposition the workingman stands for that, the organizations advocate it; that it shall be voluntary, then they can get together and select two men, or an equal number from either side, and these can select a third party to determine the matter, if they disagree. This arbitration can be carried forward in the language usually used in that industry, and the facts be brought out far more clearly than if they be brought out where there are lawyers on either side—and without any disrespect to the gentlemen who are lawyers here—for the purpose of mystifying, if it is desirable, the men there to learn the facts.

I want also to point out that this kind of commission does not finally settle any of these questions, for to settle these questions means to put them on a working basis, to work out a definite agreement between the employer and the employee, setting forth as definitely as possible the rights of either and of both sides, so that there will be little chance of disagreement. The great trouble to-day in the coal industry in the region I come from, namely, the anthracite, is that there is no definite agreement between the workingmen and their employers.

The Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, I think, did a very worthy work at the time they were appointed, at a time when the country needed some intervention in the interests of all the people; a very worthy work which I personally praised after I first read its report. But they did not settle the difficulties. They say in their report that they hope the employers and employees will get together and formulate a definite working agreement and eliminate the causes of the difficulty which they recognize still remain. It is impossible for men appointed as these gentlemen were to settle a general trouble; to go into the details. Their main purpose, and the main purpose in appointing them, was to secure peace and restoration of work in order that the people might have anthracite coal. They were not able, and it was not within their scope, to go into all the details of mining and fix a definite scale.

So that the best they could do was to give a general advance in wages, pass an opinion on this point and upon that point, and in a general way close up the difficulty and have the mines resume operations.

Gentlemen, I hope that in the interests of the laboring man in this country this bill will be defeated. I do not question the motive at all of those who press the bill. I believe the motive is good and for the best, but I am clear myself that it is not for the best interest of the laboring man, and therefore hope that it will be defeated. [Applause.]

[By unanimous consent Mr. NICHOLLS was granted leave to extend his remarks in the RECORD.]

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I will ask the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN] to yield to me for a question. It has been stated here—possibly by the gentleman himself and the gentleman who has just taken his seat [Mr. NICHOLLS]—that this bill provides for compulsory arbitration. Will the gentleman from New York, if he believes that, please read the language from the bill upon which he bases that opinion?

Mr. RYAN. I would state, Mr. Chairman, that I did not make any such statement. I have no such opinion. I do not think the bill is compulsory, but I believe it is a step in that direction and leads to compulsory arbitration, and there is the strongest opposition to it for that reason.

I now yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HARDY].

Mr. HARDY. Mr. Chairman, I wish to pay a deserved tribute to the magnificent appeals made by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL] in behalf of a fair approach to this subject and their splendid portrayals of the evils attendant upon the strifes of employer and employee. The purposes of the author and supporters of this bill I believe to be of the highest, but I believe that unwittingly they are treading in a way they know not of. Freedom is dearer to me than peace; the fear of oppression stronger than the fear of strife. Fourteen years ago this subject was put up to me by the representatives of the union labor organizations of my district, when I tried then to come to Congress and was defeated by the unfortunate wave of 16 to 1 that buried me with many others in my section at that time. Many of the laboring people then thought that "compulsory arbitration," so called, was their one great demand. I then said to the people who asked, through their organization, if I would not favor compulsory arbitration, that I would not and should not for the reason that its effect would be to fasten chains around the wrists and ankles of the laboring man. Now, to-day if this measure tends toward compulsory arbitration, it tends toward the same result. Let us see, then, what is the scope of this proposed law and how far it would go. My friend from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL] says it would touch nothing practically but transportation matters and transportation employers and employees, but the reading of the bill is—

> That whenever within any State or States, Territory or Territories, or the District of Columbia a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise, by reason of which controversy the transportation of the United States mails, the operations, civil or military, of the Government of the United States, or the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations is, in the judgment of the President, interrupted or directly affected, or threatened with being so interrupted or directly affected, the President may, in his discretion, inquire into the same and investigate the causes thereof, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Mark that expression, "the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States," and that further expression, "directly affected or threatened with being directly affected." The illustration given by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] of the happy application of this measure contradicts the assumption of the gentleman from Texas, because the commission appointed by the President in the coal strike was so appointed in a struggle between miners and mine owners who were not engaged in the transportation business. But the mining of coal affords the fuel for the transportation, and therefore that controversy was directly interfering with the free and regular movement of commerce among the several States and with foreign commerce, and you can hardly find an industry that is of sufficient magnitude to attract national attention, but that that industry does directly affect interstate commerce. Any factory in the land that employs 10,000 employees where a sympathetic strike might reach to other employees could be made the subject of an interference by the President. The struggle between the employer and the laborer in many cases might, in the President's judgment, directly affect commercial intercourse between the States, and when you open the door to discretion and say that one man in this land of ours may at his discretion resort to the appointment of a commission to settle a dispute between the employee and the employer in this or that occupation if in his judgment it tends to affect commercial relations, you have opened so wide a door that all the floods of power and tyranny will pass through and human liberty be incapable of resisting it.

Now, then, I want to take up another matter. My friend from Texas rightly conceived that if he can plant himself on any Democratic platform he has a bulwark of defense; and he has complete justification if he can place the defense of this bill upon the shoulders of a Democratic platform or the Democratic party. I want to read what the Democratic platform says, so there may be no question about it. The first utterance upon that subject was in the platform of 1896, as follows:

> We are in favor of the arbitration of differences between employers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees, and recommend such legislation as is necessary to carry out this principle.

Mr. Chairman, I am to-day myself in favor of arbitration between employer and employee, and would like to have a statute so regulating arbitration that it might be followed in times of dispute.

The next utterance of a Democratic platform on the subject was in 1900, as follows:

> We are opposed to government by injunction; we denounce the black list and favor arbitration as a means of settling disputes between corporations and their employees.

These are all the expressions ever used on the subject in Democratic platforms, and they in no manner hint at compulsory so-called arbitration; in the State of Texas and in every State of the Union we have laws authorizing and methodizing arbitration in case of disputes between debtor and creditor, between litigants in the court room or persons who might go to court to settle claims or disputes between them as to matters of fact involving compensation, but the very term "arbitration" means it should be a proceeding by voluntary agreement entered into between the parties. Common-law arbitration was without sanction of statutory law and without formal method of procedure. Our State, and I presume every other State, has passed statutes providing for and regulating arbitration in certain cases, and every Democrat in Texas to-day is in favor of the arbitration law that is on the statute books, and that law is not violative of any Democratic tenet, but it is not compulsory.

No more has any Democratic platform ever declared for arbitration that is compulsory or for any measure that tends to compulsory arbitration. There is not in the State of Texas—I may say, perhaps, in any State—any statute providing for arbitration in labor disputes, because that is not a question of settling a pecuniary demand by one party against another, and heretofore lawmaking bodies have not provided the rules, methods, and procedure for voluntary arbitration of labor disputes; but there might with propriety be a statutory regulation authorizing and providing a method and tribunal for arbitration by agreement between the laborer and the employer of differences between them, so as to summon witnesses and have an orderly proceeding before a court of arbitration agreed upon by them.

So the Democratic platform referred to by the gentleman stands for arbitration, but not the compulsion of this measure. When a man wants to do right he prefers to make peace with his adversary rather than go to law with him. That is not undemocratic. Let us see what this bill is, and if this is voluntary arbitration. Is it in consonance with the spirit of our statutes in our state laws? Is it in consonance with the spirit of the Master, who said, "Make peace with thy adversary," or is it another measure? Is it compulsory arbitration? I take it, it is compulsory arbitration, if it is arbitration at all; not that it says so, but it is compulsory something. I know the gentleman who has so kindly given me part of his time confesses or says it is not compulsory arbitration; but let us see what it is. There is nothing voluntary about it; no agreement of parties contemplated. It is compulsory because it compels the parties to a dispute not to abide the result in terms of law, but to submit their case for inquiry and investigation to a commission appointed without their consent.

Whenever the President in his discretion decides that it is desirable to investigate, the parties to this controversy are brought before this commission, subpœnas are issued, and—either party or both parties protesting—they are brought into court and witnesses are examined, the evidence is heard, the books are sent for, a search is made, and that case is tried before the commission. Is that voluntary? Is it arbitration of any kind? It is tried, and the findings of that commission go to the public. Well, now, Mr. TOWNSEND confesses that the findings of this commission are in a powerful degree compulsory in their effect, and every Member of this House knows that when that trial has been had with unwilling litigants the result of the finding is calculated and tends to produce public sentiment that will be all powerful. Now, you have a compulsory trial, you have findings that the gentleman from Michigan says will be all powerful, what do you lack of having compulsory arbitration? You have, indeed, a tribunal created at will by the President that may thrust itself into almost any and all disputes, at the request of either party, or over the protest of both parties.

Let us see about this matter a little further. I want to say that if your commission should be biased or prejudiced, acting under the forms of law as an unbiased and unprejudiced tribunal, taking an oath as judicial investigators of the questions between the parties, if the losing party be in the right, there has been piled up a mountain of obstructions for him to overcome before the public. His case would be lost in public opinion and it would be almost impossible for him to overcome the prejudice that would be raised if a popular President with strong bias on a given question or controversy were to appoint a commission composed of strong men having like bias with himself. Just think of it.

Now, suppose we had a President of strong prejudices and strong bias, who sees a controversy upon an issue on which he has a very vigorous opinion; he is called on, or in his own discretion he sees fit, to appoint a commission to go and investigate it. He selects that commission and the commission would be likely to have the bias of the President who selected the commission. Your commission, viewing through its biased spectacles, stands before the world and country as an impartial commission. What a mountain of obstruction is in the way of the losing side, whether it be the laborer or employer, when that commission finds its verdict against the claim of the loser. And if the bias of the President in any controversy between capital and labor should become known, how surely would that side toward which the President leaned appeal to him to exercise his discretion and appoint his commission. For my part, I think the bill in that one feature is more vicious than a bill that would constitute a permanent commission to settle all questions between labor and capital by compulsory arbitration. Suppose we had a vital, virile President, with his political aspirations, perhaps, involved? A Gompers might be on one side. What sort of commission would investigate questions involving Gompers's contentions if the present President, with all the honesty, with all the manhood one can conceive of, were to appoint the commission to investigate the issue? Naturally the issue would be discolored and distorted by the local political and temporary conditions that surrounded the appointment of the commission. But that is not all I wish to call to your attention. This is not an ordinary proceeding. This arbitration (?) is not statutory, voluntary arbitration.

In my State, when the arbitrators agree, or the parties agree upon arbitration, if the one side loses and concludes it has been unjustly found against, there is a provision whereby he may appeal to the courts and right the wrongs that have been done.

But this commission mentioned here is a court of final resort. There is no appeal. The prejudice that may be unconsciously injected among the members of the commission gives the final decision of that matter for the public consumption. Let us have the parties first try and agree upon their arbitrators, if we are going to have arbitration. If we are to have five arbitrators at least let the parties each select two of them, and let those select a fifth, but do not let us have in this land of ours one man, be he President even, who in his discretion may grant authority to decide your rights, or mine, your quarrel or mine, in a way that is unalterable and irreversible.

Now, then, one thing further. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. RICHARDSON] said that half the laws that have been passed and matters that have been gone into that are violations of the strictest construction of the Constitution in this land, for the last ten years have had their origin in commissions. It does seem to me that this country has gone commission mad. Think of the hundreds of commissions that are to be appointed and are requested to be appointed by the administration to-day, and that are being multiplied as each succeeding sun rolls its course across the pathway of heaven from morning to evening. We have got commissions for this, we have got commissions for that, we have a recommendation in the President's message that proposes that every company that does any interstate business shall be subject to the control of a commission appointed by the administration. And what corporation is there in this land that does not do an interstate-commerce business? Absolutely none, under that broad and liberal interpretation which sometimes pervades the council of our national administration. I want to tell you now, if the spirit of the President's message is followed out there will be a commission to investigate child labor on the farm, and the hours of school for children attending in the country. Your beef packer in one State, and your tomato canner in another, must be engaged in interstate commerce, and therefore the question of how we employ him, or how many hours he may work, will not depend any more upon state legislation, but upon national legislation.

I want to tell you that, in my judgment, the greatest danger to this country to-day is discretionary power, the power of those in authority. The President has appealed from the day he entered into office to Congress to grant more discretion to the head of the Government. He has asked us to repeal that part of the Sherman antitrust law forbidding pools and combinations, and leave to railways the privilege of entering into combination with the consent and approval of the President. Give the President discretion to approve a pooling combination made between this railroad and that railroad; give the President the discretion to approve the buying up and monopolization of a certain industry, and all harm is gone from the pooling and the monopoly. That means that the President will have the power of life and death over the industries and corporations of this country. The rule of discretion is destructive of the rule of law. The love of freedom is for the rule of law; the love of tyranny is for the rule of discretion. I know that I am dealing with a subject that now engages the attention of all of our people when I speak of injunction. It is not the fact so much to me that juries are not allowed to pass upon charges of indirect contempt, or contempt of court committed outside of the court room, but it is the fact of the growing practice of courts in injunction proceedings in issuing blanket injunctions and then arresting masses of people for alleged violations of those injunctions and bringing them before courts and imposing penalties not fixed by law that to my mind abolishes the first principle of human freedom. Even the old Greek republics declared that no act or crime should be punished unless it was defined and a specific penalty fixed therefor by law.

The Roman Republic followed that up. My State has a constitutional provision that no act or omission shall be penal unless defined by law and the penalty fixed. We hear of strikes and injunctions, and a thousand and one acts are made criminal not by statute but by order and decree of the court declaring the party guilty and fixing his punishment in the sound or unsound discretion of the court. The penalty for what is decreed to have been committed in violation of a court order is fixed, not at $25, as prescribed in a law, but at imprisonment in jail or some other penalty, in the discretion of the court. To-day we have district courts that should administer the law, preserving unto every man his rights under the law, acting under this discretionary court power, binding and loosing, fining and imprisoning, not in accordance with any law, human or divine, but only in accordance with their own wills. It is destructive of the simplest rights of the American citizen. This is not a time to extend and enlarge discretionary power. This bill is unlimited in its scope of authority for the President to appoint his commission, and that commission is unrestricted and final in its findings, binding the laboring man or capitalist, as the case may be. Now, it seems to me that maybe I have engaged in a little digression upon this matter when I speak of injunctions, but it illustrates the danger of clothing officials with discretionary power. The danger of the anarchist, who would defy and destroy all authority, is not greater than the danger of allowing high and grasping officials to usurp all authority and power. Yet our whole tendency is to enlarge the discretionary power in our executives and our judicial officers.

I want to tell you that the last seven years—I believe I will go no farther back than that—have done more to reverse the principles upon which our Government was founded, to destroy the simple faith of our fathers in a free government of men under the reign of law, and to inaugurate an era of centralization and discretionary power than the hundred years before it had done. I want to say that under our theory of government this country should be a government of law and not of discretion, and when you depart from the principles of fixing the responsibilities and rights of the people and of officials by statute and leave to your executive officials the discretionary power to fix them, and clothe your courts with wide discretionary power, you destroy the very bulwarks of liberty. We have had Roosevelt, with his powerful personality, individualism, initiative, and popularity. He has swept away the bearings of constitutional and legal restrictions and carried us a long way from our moorings. We want a new Thomas Jefferson, who will revive the principles of the Democratic party and bring back government by law in this country. [Loud applause on the Democratic side.] Who will right the ship of state and, with the Constitution for chart and statutory laws for a compass, save her from the rocks of empire and centralization and guide her back into the calm waters of sovereign States and sovereign United States, each supreme in its sphere, and who will not seek for fame or grasp for power, but only labor for his people's freedom and happiness and only ask for their love. I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman who gave it to me, and ask to revise and extend my remarks in the RECORD.

Mr. RYAN. What time have I remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York has ten minutes remaining. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the RECORD. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. RYAN. I reserve the balance of that ten minutes.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, I should state at the beginning that with seven-eighths of what has been said by my friend from Texas I am in most hearty accord, and it is because of my concurrence with his reasoning that I am utterly at variance with his conclusion. [Laughter.] I am irreconcilably opposed, as he is, to government by arbitrary or capricious discretion and in favor of government by fixed rules and well-defined authority. Where a difficulty beyond the ordinary resources or powers of government arises I believe it should be dealt with, not by the whim or judgment of an individual, however wise or exalted, but by the force of public opinion; that is to say, by the conscience of a nation. It is for these reasons that I rise to support the pending measure. During the twenty years that I have been either an observer or a Member of Congress not a single measure submitted to the House, I venture to say, promised results so advantageous to the progress of civilization as this one now pending before us. That, Mr. Chairman, is a strong statement, and strong expressions which are not justified always react against the person using them.

Realizing this fully, I undertake to satisfy any reasonable man on either side of this House that the question with which this bill attempts to grapple involves a peril of the utmost gravity, not to this Government alone, but to civilization itself; and that the only method by which we can hope to deal with it successfully is the one prescribed in the terms of this measure.

Now, let me begin, sir, by dispelling a cloud of misapprehension that seems to have settled down over this entire discussion. The letters read here from the desk, which were furnished by the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN], his whole argument, the argument made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and the argument made by the gentleman from Texas, all joined in one note, and that was an expression of vehement opposition to compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

Mr. Chairman, there is no one here more bitterly opposed to an attempt at establishing compulsory arbitration in labor disputes in this country than I. I say an attempt, because such a system can never be actually established under our system of government. It is not merely inconsistent with the Constitution under which we live, but it is inconsistent with the very existence of free labor, and that means inconsistent with Christian civilization. For if I were asked to define the economic fruit of Christianity, I should say it was freedom in labor, as the ultimate political fruit of Christianity is institutions of freedom and equality. How could compulsory arbitration be enforced? It could be enforced only by compelling the laborer to continue his labor, even on terms that were not agreeable to him, and that would be servitude, or else by compelling the employer to pay the laborer higher wages than the condition of his industry will permit.

But if the employer be compelled to pay higher wages than the volume of his product can afford, the necessary result must be his bankruptcy, in which case he can not pay any wages or employ any laborers. There is but one condition under which enforced labor is conceivable, and that is servitude. But servitued, thank God, has been abolished forever from this land and from all Christendom.

No man can ever be coerced to work in this country under any circumstances by decree of a court, award of a board, or any other agency, public or private. So much for compulsory arbitration.

Now, what does this bill provide, Mr. Chairman, putting aside at once all idea of compulsory arbitration? It does not undertake to provide a means of settling labor disputes by arbitration or otherwise. It seeks to deal with a problem which can not be solved by any agency now within the reach of civilization. It recognizes a difficulty, and a grave one, but it does not pretend to offer a solution. The history of the past furnishes no light by which we can deal with this portentous peril. In the pathway of civilization, by the operation and force of its progress, a difficulty has arisen without precedent or parallel in the experience of mankind peculiar to an industrial condition based on free labor.

The slave never raised a question as to his compensation. Glad to escape the lash, he accepted without question the crust of bread doled out to him by his owner. But the free laborer demands a share of the commodities or wealth produced by the joint effects of his toil and the capital which made his labor fruitful. Discussions, disputes, or differences between the employer on one side and the laborer on the other as to what that share should be constitutes a burning question, irrepressible, and up to the present time unsolvable by legislation or any other agency of government. If this measure pretended to offer a definite or complete solution of this problem I should regard it with profound suspicion. Indeed, I should absolutely oppose it, because I know that for this question no solution at all definite or complete has been as yet evolved from the processes of civilization.

But for that reason I do not despair that a solution will be ultimately reached. Labor disputes are a serious obstacle to the progress of civilization, and I know that civilization will not be arrested and Christian society will not be disrupted. I believe civilization is moving to a solution of this problem steadily even though we can not as yet discern the outcome, and I believe this measure will operate to facilitate progress. There is but one method, it seems to me, by which industrial peace can be maintained, and that is by public opinion enlightened and informed of the facts in every dispute. These disputes are occurring every day. They are a species of civil war, except that they are vastly more destructive. Wherever two nations engage in conflict or wherever one nation becomes divided into hostile forces, the results are disastrous to life, property, and industry. But whatever may be the ravages of torch or sword, whatever destruction may be accomplished by bursting shells and marching hosts, whatever wounds may be inflicted by rage and violence, the imperious necessity of repairing them operates to bring together the victims in cooperation so close and active that patriotism develops new fervor sufficient to obliterate the worst injuries that war can inflict. But these industrial wars are not confined to a frontier or even to different parts of one country.

They are differences that separate into hostile forces every population and spread violence and hate so far as almost to resolve society into its original elements. In the course of these struggles we have seen not merely a suspension of industry, but we have witnessed deeds of violence perpetrated and suffered, not by the depraved and the vicious, but often by men and even women who under normal conditions are the very foundations of our industrial system, the pillars upon which a constitution of freedom must always rest.

Now, Mr. Chairman, we can not close our eyes to the fact that in these disputes the judgment of but one tribunal is ever of any effect, and that is the tribunal of public opinion. The weapon which the striker uses, his opponent would persuade you, is always the bludgeon or the paving stone. I believe that is a libel upon him. I think it is rather a rare exception when the striker resorts to violence. In more cases, perhaps, than we suspect the violence which is charged to him is violence to which he is encouraged, driven, entrapped by emissaries more or less direct of his employer.

But there is one force before which employer and employee always yield, and that is public opinion. To persuade it that the cause of right is with one side or the other is the object to which all the energies of both are invariably directed. Accusations and recriminations are the weapons with which both sides seek to work, with the result that public opinion is mystified and unable to determine for itself the truth or the falsity of the statements on either side. Were public opinion once informed on these questions, it would decide them upon the spot, and always with absolute justice. You can not find or point to me in the history of mankind a single instance where the public opinion of a community fully enlightened on the facts—mind I say fully enlightened on the facts—ever decided a question except according to right and justice. Now these strikes are prolonged, sometimes into weeks and months, by the difficulty of determining the exact facts of them. And all this bill attempts, all that any well-considered measure could contemplate, is to make these facts clear to the public, by whose conscience and judgment they will be determined.

That this is the actual purpose of this measure its opponents concede. If it were not for a certain tendency to the use of misleading terms, I believe there would scarcely be a division of opinion upon the merits of this proposal. When I say a tendency to use misleading phrases, I do not mean an intention to use phrases with a deliberate desire to mislead others. I mean simply a certain tendency to the improvident use of words. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL], if he will allow me to say it, strikingly illustrates that tendency. This minority report illustrates it. For the complaint against this measure is that it is intended to create a public opinion that will force obedience to its conclusions. But to doubt the capacity of public opinion to decide every question is to impeach the existence of this Republic.

Mr. NICHOLLS. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. COCKRAN. Undoubtedly, sir.

Mr. NICHOLLS. Is it not true that public opinion in such a case would be formed almost entirely upon the findings of the commission and in part upon the way that the parties to the controversy presented their case and the understanding that the public might have of the terms used in presenting it?

Mr. COCKRAN. The gentleman's questions rather contradict each other. I will separate them into three, for I understand him to put three inquiries. If you ask me whether public opinion would be controlled absolutely by the findings of a commission, I answer no, but if the commission pursue its inquiry, as it must under this bill, in the open light of day, and if the people are convinced that it has pursued an honest investigation and that everybody concerned has been heard, then I think its conclusion would have some, though not conclusive, weight with public opinion, which, thank God, in this country reaches conclusions for itself when evidence is attainable, and all the evidence will be attainable under this measure. If this were a proposal to refer the conclusion of large industrial questions affecting the working of many thousands to a commission meeting in a back room, though it were a commission of angels, I should oppose it. The essence of sound conclusions is publicity.

Mr. NICHOLLS. I should like to ask another question.

Mr. COCKRAN. Certainly.

Mr. NICHOLLS. In case of a controversy involving a great corporation and many thousands of its employees, would it not naturally follow that the corporation would employ the most able counsel it could secure in preparing its case and send for large numbers of witnesses at great expense?

Mr. COCKRAN. If the gentleman asks me to answer that catagorically, I should say experience shows, no matter what lawyers they employed, that great interests have never yet been able to becloud public opinion; and the purpose of this measure is not merely to have the commission pursue its inquiry subject to the scrutiny of lawyers, but subject to that infallible force, public opinion fully enlightened as to the facts.

Mr. NICHOLLS. Would it not be necessary, then, for the workers to meet the employers by employing the most able counsel they could afford to secure and pay for and to go to the utmost extent of their ability to bring in witnesses, at expense to themselves, in order to present their case in the best possible light?

Mr. COCKRAN. The gentleman is putting to me a hypothetical question again, and his hypothesis is contradicted by the facts of experience. The one case that we know of—the Anthracite Coal Commission—found practically in the interest of the miners, who in that controversy were compelled to face the most powerful industrial and financial combination of the world, with resources practically limitless.

Mr. NICHOLLS. Now, if the gentleman will permit me——

Mr. COCKRAN. Certainly.

Mr. NICHOLLS. I might inform him that the anthracite employees had to pay large sums of money for lawyers and witnesses, and that it was a great disadvantage to the organization of the miners to have to prepare and present the case, because through them only a small fraction——

Mr. COCKRAN. With all due respect to the gentleman, I must interrupt him, because time is going. I decline to take the testimony of the gentleman as conclusive on that point. So far as I know, every party to that controversy expressed himself as highly satisfied with the outcome. I have yet to hear, outside of this interruption, a single person complain of its expense. But, Mr. Chairman, if the expenses were waived it would be a complaint against our whole system of government, because every inquiry must involve examination. The alternative here, according to the gentleman himself, is between this inquiry, which he concedes will be perfect, but is expensive, and no inquiry at all.

Now, I repeat what I was about to say when interrupted—that the foundation of this Republic is faith in public opinion. There is no other. We build our hope in the perpetuity of our Government on the belief that public opinion always will and always must be right. To its conclusion we refer every question and issue of public importance. We recognize here no principle of divine right. We do not consecrate any man to the business of government under a belief that he will never err voluntarily or involuntarily. We build our entire system, the security of our property, the safety of our lives, the enjoyment of our liberties, upon that one assumption—that public opinion is infallible and incorruptible. [Applause.]

Now, my friend from Texas [Mr. HARDY] pictures to us an awful condition. He says that this commission may develop such facts in the course of some inquiry that public opinion will compel obedience by disputants to its conclusions. Sir, it is because of that hope that I support this measure; it is because I believe that there is in society a reserved power to protect itself that I support this measure, which will give the people of our country full and accurate knowledge of facts deeply concerning their own welfare, confident that upon such knowledge public opinion will build a conclusion absolutely infallible, entirely consistent with right, justice, and public policy. We have had one instance of it.

Mr. HARDY. Will the gentleman allow another interruption?

Mr. COCKRAN. Delighted.

Mr. HARDY. I understand that the gentleman contends that there can be no compulsory arbitration?

Mr. COCKRAN. It is unthinkable, impossible.

Mr. HARDY. If public sentiment and public opinion are created by this proceeding, is not that as near compulsory arbitration as it is possible?

Mr. COCKRAN. Yes, yes; but by whom will the compulsion be exercised? By that power which under God we must consider infallible; and compulsion by public opinion will prevent compulsion by employer and employee alike. We remove the conclusion above the influence of passion. We compel these two forces, whose quarrels have placed at each other's throats in conflict hands that should be employed in useful production, to stand aside and let the controversy be decided by the judgment and in the interest of the great third party, the public.

Mr. HARDY. But under this bill the agency that creates the opinion is appointed by discretion or at the selection of one individual, is he not?

Mr. COCKRAN. Opinion created, did you say? The opinion is created by God Almighty. If you ask me who informs the opinion, that is another question.

Mr. HARDY. What is the agency that represents the opinion?

Mr. COCKRAN. Do you mean the agency that enlightens opinion? The agency is this commission, and the only one that could discharge such a function effectively.

Mr. HARDY. Selected at the discretion of one man without the consent of the other party.

Mr. COCKRAN. Because neither party consents is the reason that it becomes necessary.

If both parties consented, then it would not be essential to pass such a measure, and here I want to answer a suggestion of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. NICHOLLS] and also a suggestion of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HARDY]. Both say that voluntary arbitration is preferable to this. I agree with them. But this measure does not preclude voluntary arbitration. It leaves the field wide open for that.

Not until through the failure of one or the other or both arbitration has become impossible, not till they have declined to settle their disputes themselves by peaceable methods and the community is torn by the spectacle of violent conflict and perhaps its very existence imperiled; then and then only can this bill come into operation and this commission named by the President under such circumstances proceed to tell us—us, the victims of this tragedy—how it is that our means of transportation have been disturbed, our supply of coal lessened, our food supply imperiled, our lives and our health placed in jeopardy. If anybody can recall the experience through which we passed but a few years ago, he will realize that this is the extreme limit to which a remedial measure can extend. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. NICHOLLS], I assume, is somewhat familiar with the history of the anthracite coal strike. Let me give you an experience of my own in connection with that momentous event.

A number of gentlemen were invited to assemble in the house of the late Andrew H. Green, of New York, to consider the situation, when it was announced that the coal supply of the country was practically exhausted. By a merciful Providence we had been spared the severe weather usually expected toward the end of October, and we were invited to take advantage of this respite from the rigors of winter in an effort to devise some plan by which we could arouse public opinion to compel a close of the strike. When we assembled, the first suggestion to be considered was the appointment of a committee to wait upon the governor of Pennsylvania and ask him to convene the legislature, with a view to ending the disturbance. One member present, however, suggested that if they could tell the governor of Pennsylvania how to end that strike it would not be necessary to send a committee. He would fly on the wings of the wind to discover a solution of the difficulty. Even if all the power of legislation were placed in our hands, we found that it would be impossible to draft a bill that approached a settlement of the question. Not merely was it impossible to draft a bill that both sides would accept. It was impossible to draft a bill that one side would accept. The problem transcended the capacity of civilization. The difficulty was beyond the power of government or civilization to solve.

But I recur to the statement with which I began. Though no one now can see how labor difficulties are to be averted, this measure is a step in the direction of a solution. What that solution may be neither you nor I nor any man living can say. But we have exhausted the powers of civilized society when we realize that the force which must establish or restore peace is the same force on which this Republic rests—that public opinion which expresses itself in every law that is written on the statute books, the study of which explains that extraordinary popularity of the present incumbent of the White House, which the gentleman from Texas has described. That public conscience we must furnish the means of enlightening. Fully informed, it will move step by step to solve this difficulty as it has solved every other difficulty in the pathway of civilization. Gentlemen object that this bill provides for recommendations to Congress. Can there be any objection to that? If this commission discovers a peculiar condition in any given labor disturbance, there is no reason why it should not report its findings to this body and let Congress judge for itself whether the remedy suggested or some other may meet that peculiar condition.

But the fact which it is necessary for this House to realize is that while we can not avert industrial disputes by any one measure, we can provide machinery by which the one force capable of dealing with them shall be kept constantly enlightened, and therefore always effective. As each disturbance is investigated it will present some peculiar conditions with which the State can grapple, and thus, whether it be by judicial decision or whether by legislative enactment, a body of law will gradually be built up to meet the growing exigencies of this most complex element in our civilization. I appeal to gentlemen on both sides, especially to those of my own political faith, to remember that our common history is a glorious one of intelligence and patriotism, holding the light of civilization and of progress before the footsteps of humanity; and now when this House approaches a subject so momentous, let us unite to keep that light full upon the pathway which will lead us to a solution of all these problems and make of the difficulties which confront us stepping stones to a more perfect peace, a firmer happiness, a more splendid civilization. [Applause.]

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, inasmuch as we can not close the debate to-night, and as there are two or three other gentlemen who have expressed a desire to speak, I move that the committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to, and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. OLMSTED, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that the committee had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 15447) to provide for the investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes, and had come to no resolution thereon.

BUILDING FOR CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Civil Service Commission submitting draft of a bill for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building for the Civil Service Commission, and calling attention to its need for a new building and the desirableness of erecting such a building instead of renting one. I approve the recommendation of the commission and ask that it be given careful consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 10, 1908.

REPORT OF ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, I transmit herewith the annual report of the Isthmian Canal Commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 10, 1908.

RESIGNATION OF A MEMBER.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication, which was laid upon the table:

DECEMBER 9, 1908.

TO THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

I have this day transmitted to the governor of North Carolina my resignation as a Member of the Sixtieth Congress, to take effect on the 11th day of January, 1909.

I have the honor to be,

Respectfully, yours,

W. W. KITCHIN, M. C.,
Fifth District of North Carolina.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 5 o'clock p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of New Haven Harbor and the rocks in Morris Cove, Connecticut—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Tuckahoe River, Maryland—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Plymouth Harbor, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Cowlitz River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Penobscot River, Maine—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Port Chester Harbor, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Neversink and Delaware rivers—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Bayou Terrebonne, Louisiana—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Great Pedee River, South Carolina—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Bellingham Harbor, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, submitting an estimate of appropriation for general expenses of Bureau of Animal Industry for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Auditor for the Post-Office Department, submitting a recommendation authorizing the chief clerk in the auditor's office to act as auditor in certain cases—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of War submitting statements of moneys arising from proceeds of public property during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which were not paid into the General Treasury, together with statements of all payments therefrom—to the Committee on Ways and Means and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Navy submitting an estimate of appropriation for purchase of land and change in railroad system for navy-yard in Washington—to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Comptroller of the Currency, transmitting the annual report for 1908—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting reports of inspections and disbursements and transfers, by officers of the army, received in the office of the Inspector-General during the past fiscal year—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of the following bills, which were referred as follows:

A bill (H. R. 22500) granting a pension to Charles S. Swain—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 22605) granting a pension to H. R. Lett—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 22607) granting a pension to Andrew J. Smith—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 18220) granting an increase of pension to Selden M. French—Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 22712) granting an increase of pension to John Gallagher—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BINGHAM, from the Committee on Appropriations: A bill (H. R. 23464) making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes—to the Union Calendar.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23465) extending pension laws to include the First Battalion Mountaineers, California Volunteers, who served during the late war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HALL: A bill (H. R. 23466) to provide for the erection of a public building at Brookings, in the State of South Dakota—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SIMS: A bill (H. R. 23467) declaring the selling, exchanging, or giving away any pistol, bowie knife, dirk or dirk knife, blackjack, dagger, sword cane, slung shot, brass or other metal knuckle in the District of Columbia a misdemeanor—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WANGER: A bill (H. R. 23468) to amend sections 11 and 12 of an act entitled "An act to provide for eliminating certain grade crossings on the line of the Baltimore and Potomac Railway Company in the city of Washington, D. C., and requiring said company to depress and elevate its tracks, and to enable it to relocate parts of its railroad therein, and for other purposes," approved February 12, 1901—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. CRAVENS (by request): A bill (H. R. 23469) fixing the number of infantry regiments in the United States Army, providing for a chief of infantry, etc.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 23470) concerning appeals in certain cases—to the Committe on the Judiciary.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 23471) directing the Secretary of War to ascertain the amount of money expended by the State of Texas between January 1, 1866, and December 31, 1876, inclusive, and report the same to Congress for its consideration—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HUMPHREY of Washington: A bill (H. R. 23472) providing that terms of the circuit court of the United States for the western district and of the district court of the United States for the northern division of the western district of the State of Washington be held at Everett—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MONDELL: A bill (H. R. 23473) extending the time for final entry of mineral claims within the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation, in Wyoming—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 23474) to incorporate the American Institute for Drug Proving—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. FOSS: A bill (H. R. 23475) to promote the administration of justice in the navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 23476) authorizing the Secretary of War to acquire sites and enter into contracts for the construction of certain dams—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 23477) amending an act approved June 10, 1880, entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes"—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 23705) to increase the appropriation for a public building at Troy, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BATES: Resolution (H. Res. 449) providing for a clerk for the Committee on Disposition of Useless Executive Papers—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAIR: A bill (H. R. 23478) granting a pension to Wesley Stevenson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23479) granting a pension to John Buettner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23480) granting a pension to John M. Tracey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23481) granting a pension to Samuel V. Templin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of New York: A bill (H. R. 23482) granting an increase of pension to Daniel W. O'Neill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23483) granting a pension to Emma Hooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARNHART: A bill (H. R. 23484) granting a pension to Charles M. Baughman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23485) granting a pension to Matilda Merrick Goodrich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23486) granting an increase of pension to James M. Beeber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23487) granting an increase of pension to Frank M. Reid—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23488) granting an increase of pension to James C. Dill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23489) granting an increase of pension to John M. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 23490) granting an increase of pension to Phillip Schwab—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 23491) granting an increase of pension to Mary Whelchel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOOHER: A bill (H. R. 23492) for the relief of Angeline C. Burgert—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23493) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. J. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOYD: A bill (H. R. 23494) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Woods—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23495) granting an increase of pension to Jason Kester—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23496) granting an increase of pension to Seymour S. Wirtz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23497) granting an increase of pension to John Haun—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23498) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Rasp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 23499) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas D. Maffett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: A bill (H. R. 23500) granting an increase of pension to John Matthias—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 23501) granting a pension to Frances Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23502) granting a pension to William Skillen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 23503) granting an increase of pension to John H. Styles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 23504) granting a pension to Mary Nagle—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CALDWELL: A bill (H. R. 23505) granting an increase of pension to William T. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: A bill (H. R. 23506) for the relief of Mrs. William C. O'Brien—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23507) granting an increase of pension to William Evinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CANNON: A bill (H. R. 23508) granting an increase of pension to Madison Mosher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23509) granting an increase of pension to Phillippe Lehman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CASSEL: A bill (H. R. 23510) granting a pension to Franklin Hinkle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23511) granting a pension to Katie Cushman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAULFIELD: A bill (H. R. 23512) for the relief of Frank Wyman, postmaster at St. Louis, Mo.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 23513) granting an increase of pension to David Gibney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23514) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah C. Wooten—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23515) granting an increase of pension to James F. Watson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23516) granting an increase of pension to William J. Mitchell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23517) granting an increase of pension to Albert L. O'Neal—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23518) granting an increase of pension to George Limerick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23519) granting an increase of pension to Thomas C. Lumm—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CONNER: A bill (H. R. 23520) granting a pension to Henry G. Brough—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23521) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Drayden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COX of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 23522) granting an increase of pension to George A. Cox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORNES: A bill (H. R. 23523) granting a pension to Charles Warner—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 23524) granting an increase of pension to John J. Merrill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23525) granting an increase of pension to Daniel S. Carmony—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23526) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Manley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23527) granting an increase of pension to Wales W. Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 23528) granting an increase of pension to Hiram L. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23529) granting an increase of pension to David Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23530) granting an increase of pension to Isaih Lochard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23531) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Roe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23532) granting an increase of pension to Felix G. McMinimy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23533) granting an increase of pension to Fred M. McKenzie—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23534) granting an increase of pension to James A. Fogle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23535) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Hobart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARDNER of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23536) granting an increase of pension to Taylor Hance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GILHAMS: A bill (H. R. 23537) granting a pension to Joseph M. Humphrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23538) granting a pension to Charles O. Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23539) granting a pension to Marcus M. Knott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23540) granting an increase of pension to James N. Jagger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23541) granting an increase of pension to Noah W. Bowman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23542) granting an increase of pension to Leslie Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23543) granting an increase of pension to Albert Preston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23544) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Pressler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23545) granting an increase of pension to George W. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A bill (H. R. 23546) granting an increase of pension to William Harmon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23547) granting an increase of pension to Josiah H. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23548) granting an increase of pension to Arthur L. Currie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23549) granting an increase of pension to Simon Kornman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23550) granting an increase of pension to James Conway—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HAGGOTT: A bill (H. R. 23551) granting a pension to Edward Dooley—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23552) granting an increase of pension to Gustavus Zacharias—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 23553) granting an increase of pension to Isaiah Ware—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23554) granting an increase of pension to Joseph P. Gass—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23555) granting an increase of pension to David Searles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23556) granting an increase of pension to Bernard V. Forshee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23557) granting an increase of pension to John Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23558) granting a pension to William Bills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23559) granting a pension to Wesley H. Crockett—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23560) granting a pension to David Kuney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23561) authorizing the appointment of Charles E. Dority as a captain, Philippine Scouts—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23562) for the relief of Samuel Washburn, deceased—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23563) for the relief of Richard Stines—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23564) granting relief to certain members of the Seventh Michigan Cavalry, war of the rebellion—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HAMLIN: A bill (H. R. 23565) granting an increase of pension to John T. Norris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARDING: A bill (H. R. 23566) granting a pension to Edward F. Denny—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23567) granting an increase of pension to John F. Cahill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HILL of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 23568) granting a pension to William H. Longdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23569) authorizing the payment to Dorence Atwater of compensation for services rendered the United States of America—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 23570) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Sample—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23571) granting an increase of pension to Celia McKenney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23572) granting an increase of pension to Lyman Blowers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23573) granting an increase of pension to Francis Westerfield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23574) granting an increase of pension to Samuel W. Brees—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23575) granting an increase of pension to William L. Hamilton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23576) granting an increase of pension to W. E. Warthen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23577) granting an increase of pension to William Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23578) granting an increase of pension to James Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23579) granting an increase of pension to Joseph T. Roller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23580) granting an increase of pension to Oliver Freel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23581) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23582) granting an increase of pension to Peter New—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23583) granting an increase of pension to William H. Hull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23584) granting an increase of pension to Enos H. Reed—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23585) granting an increase of pension to William P. Fullmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23586) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Arbuckle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23587) granting a pension to Fred Andrews—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23588) to correct the military record of August Miltner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 23589) granting an increase of pension to Lee Lafevor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23590) granting an increase of pension to Samuel L. George—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWLAND: A bill (H. R. 23591) granting an increase of pension to David Honeywell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23592) granting an increase of pension to William H. Polhamus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 23593) granting an increase of pension to Isaac H. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23594) granting a pension to Julia A. Smalley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23595) granting an increase of pension to John B. Peters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ADDISON D. JAMES: A bill (H. R. 23596) granting an increase of pension to Jesse K. Freeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 23597) granting an increase of pension to David Turket—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23598) granting a pension to Mary E. Stannard—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 23599) for the relief of the widow and children of John W. Geering, of Vallejo, Cal.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KEIFER: A bill (H. R. 23600) granting an increase of pension to Emily McGee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23601) granting an increase of pension to John Weaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23602) granting an increase of pension to Julia B. Drum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23603) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Ehle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23604) granting an increase of pension to John C. Shaw—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23605) granting a pension to Mary Shoemaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23606) granting a pension to Mary E. J. Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23607) granting an increase of pension to John Southard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 23608) granting a pension to T. P. Godfrey—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23609) granting a pension to Wade H. Wilson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23610) granting an increase of pension to George Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 23611) granting a pension to Levis T. Houk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOVERING: A bill (H. R. 23612) granting a pension to Juliette E. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23613) granting a pension to Adella I. Cummings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 23614) granting an increase of pension to Henry L. Penny—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MADISON: A bill (H. R. 23615) granting an increase of pension to Alvaro B. French—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23616) granting an increase of pension to Nelson Haggerty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MALBY: A bill (H. R. 23617) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 23618) granting a pension to Charles Vietor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23619) for the relief of James Nipper—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23620) for the relief of the estate of Lewis Patterson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MOUSER: A bill (H. R. 23621) granting an increase of pension to William B. Holmes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23622) granting an increase of pension to John H. Carpenter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23623) granting an increase of pension to Julius Leffingwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R 23624) granting an increase of pension to Louis Etchen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23625) granting an increase of pension to Isaac C. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23626) granting an increase of pension to Henry M. Craig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23627) granting an increase of pension to James Milton Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23628) granting an increase of pension to William Held—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23629) granting an increase of pension to John Ingerson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23630) granting an increase of pension to John Cook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23631) granting an increase of pension to Morgan Burk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23632) granting an increase of pension to John W. Tyler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23633) granting an increase of pension to George F. Woods—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23634) for the relief of the heirs of Matthew H. Fulton—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23635) granting an increase of pension to Joseph McClain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23636) granting an increase of pension to John W. Fowler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23637) granting an increase of pension to James A. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23638) granting an increase of pension to John D. Moses—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NICHOLLS: A bill (H. R. 23639) removing the charge of desertion from the military record of Charles H. Shippey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. O'CONNELL: A bill (H. R. 23640) granting an increase of pension to John Boice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 23641) granting an increase of pension to William V. Yeager—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23642) granting an increase of pension to Robert P. Bennett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23643) granting an increase of pension to John T. Burriss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23644) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23645) granting an increase of pension to August Bain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23646) granting an increase of pension to John M. Rupert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23647) granting an increase of pension to Hazen Wardlow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23648) granting an increase of pension to Carroll B. Beasley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 23649) for the relief of the legal representatives of Dr. Thomas B. Waters, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SPARKMAN: A bill (H. R. 23650) granting an increase of pension to Abraham F. Williams—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23651) granting an increase of pension to John G. Benton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23652) granting an increase of pension to William Willingham—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23653) granting an increase of pension to Maxfield McClelland—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23654) granting an increase of pension to Isaac A. Redd—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23655) granting an increase of pension to Berrien D. Whitehurst—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23656) granting an increase of pension to Allen D. Douglas—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23657) granting a pension to Frank E. Saxon—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. STAFFORD: A bill (H. R. 23658) granting an increase of pension to George H. Wheeler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 23659) granting an increase of pension to John Rish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23660) granting an increase of pension to Thomas F. Love—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23661) granting a pension to Robert H. Hite—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 23662) granting an increase of pension to Martin L. Pierson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STURGISS: A bill (H. R. 23663) granting an increase of pension to John W. Combs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23664) granting an increase of pension to James H. Michael—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23665) granting an increase of pension to Alpheus Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23666) granting an increase of pension to Elijah Coffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23667) granting an increase of pension to Fletcher B. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 23668) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Milnes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23669) granting an increase of pension to Levi H. Sleeper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23670) granting an increase of pension to John Harrington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23671) granting an increase of pension to George Hamlet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23672) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Whittier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23673) granting an increase of pension to Asa P. Boardman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23674) granting an increase of pension to Moses Wadleigh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23675) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Carraway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23676) granting an increase of pension to Granville F. McClure—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23677) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Willey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23678) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23679) granting an increase of pension to William Gowitzke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23680) granting an increase of pension to George F. Lillis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23681) granting an increase of pension to John Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23682) granting a pension to Bert A. Colson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23683) granting a pension to Sarah M. Byron—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SWASEY: A bill (H. R. 23684) granting an increase of pension to Patrick A. Galvin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23685) granting an increase of pension to Alvin A. Carter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23686) granting an increase of pension to Webb Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23687) granting an increase of pension to J. L. Bradford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23688) granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23689) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAWNEY. A bill (H. R. 23690) granting an increase of pension to Arthur Gorman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23691) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Hamilton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23692) granting an increase of pension to George Aman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23693) granting an increase of pension to Paul S. Hawks—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 23694) granting an increase of pension to Horace W. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23695) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WHEELER: A bill (H. R. 23696) granting an increase of pension to James Hindson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23697) to correct the war record of Caleb F. Higbee—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BURNETT: A bill (H. R. 23698) granting a pension to Sara B. Kennamer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KINKAID: A bill (H. R. 23699) to grant to John T. Rivett privilege to make commutation of his homestead entry—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23700) for the relief of John J. Adams—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MARSHALL: A bill (H. R. 23701) granting a pension to Charles J. Nelson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23702) granting a pension to Benjamin S. Waggener—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBINSON: A bill (H. R. 23703) granting a pension to Albert I. Merrill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23704) granting a pension to R. B. Rankin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CARY: Resolution (H. Res. 450) for the relief of Selina Field, widow of N. J. Field, late a private, Capitol police force—to the Committee on Accounts.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Elizabeth Ballew (H. R. 22913)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Moses Stockdale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BATES: Petition of Jacob Haller, of Erie, Pa., favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: Petition of citizens of Chicago, Ill., asking legislation to provide pensions for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: Petition of Engineering Society of the Carolinas, favoring S. 4825, securing a system of forestry extending throughout the country—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of estate of Adam B. Fullen—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel Corruthers—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURTON of Ohio: Petition of 19 citizens of Cleveland, Ohio, against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: Papers to accompany bill for the relief of Mrs. William C. O'Brien—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CAULFIELD: Petition of Hesse Envelope and Lithograph Company, of St. Louis, protesting against alleged discrimination against American manufacturers in favor of foreign manufacturers of envelopes, sections 397, 398, 399, and 402—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Flat River (Mo.) Mine Workers' Union, Local No. 225, for investigation and regulation of the Treadwell Mining Company, of Douglas Island, Alaska—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. CHANEY: Petition of Lewis Saucerman, against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania: Petition of Philadelphia Board of Trade, favoring S. R. 40, providing for transportation by sea of material and equipment for use in construction of the Panama Canal—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. DARRAGH: Petition of H. Ladner & Co. and 98 other citizens of Mecosta, Osceola, Antrim, and Grand Traverse counties, Mich., against parcels-post legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Nancy H. Ewell and 138 other citizens of Gratiot and Roscommon counties, Mich., against the passage of S. 3940, known as the "Sunday bill"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DAWSON: Memorial of city council of Clinton, Iowa, favoring improvement of the Mississippi River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of Iowa Academy of Science, favoring the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: Petition of citizens of Garden City, Mo., against a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Conrad Seim, Calvin F. Boxley (H. R. 23017), Abner Gwinn (H. R. 23014), Marcus D. Warner (H. R. 23305), Nancy Cox (H. R. 22504), Thomas J. Kirtley (H. R. 23307), Mary Dickinson (H. R. 23306), Davis Woody (H. R. 23304), and John Bridge (H. R. 23015)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DUREY: Petition of various residents of New York, against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: Petition of miners of Shasta County, for reduction of the tariff on lead and lead ores—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, for appropriation for a marine-hospital building—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. ESCH: Petition of J. W. Bryant, of the Bryant-Sisson Company, favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FOCHT: Petition of Perry County (Pa.) Veteran Soldiers' Association, suggesting an amendment to the act of February 6, 1907, granting pensions to enlisted men, soldiers and officers who served in the civil war and war with Mexico—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FRENCH: Petition of citizens of Idaho, against S. 3940, providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. FULLER: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Daniel S. Carmony and John J. Merrill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRONNA: Petition of citizens of Grand Forks County, N. Dak., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Michigan: Petition of citizens of Berrien County, Mich., against the passage of S. 3940, entitled "An act for the proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of citizens of Van Buren County, Mich., against Johnston bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HAMLIN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Mary A. Runyan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of R. D. Shackleford—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HAWLEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George W. Hayden (H. R. 22257)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAY: Petition of Cooper Brothers, of Winchester, Va., favoring removal of duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAYES: Petition of National Association of Stationary Engineers, against legislation promotive of favoritism in the post-office service—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Theodore H. Wiltz, favoring enactment of an exclusion law against undesirable Asiatics—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of San Jose Chamber of Commerce, favoring additional appropriation for Bureau of Soils—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of International Association of Mechanics, favoring enactment of illiteracy test in immigration legislation and for better sanitary accommodations to steerage immigrants—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James W. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Alexander Sample and Frances Westerfield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of August Miltner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, paper from Homer Earle, favoring an increase of duty on silica—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of B. F. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia: Papers to accompany bills for relief of D. B. Johnson, John W. Lamb, and John T. Starkey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Tennessee: Petition of citizens of Rhea County, Tenn., against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LAW: Petitions of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., and Major-General Charles F. Roe Garrison, No. 71, for legislation retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of continuous service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. LOUD: Petition of citizens of Montmorency County, Mich., against the Johnston Sunday bill (S. 3940)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. JENKINS: Petition of citizens of Burnett County, Wis., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of Asiatic Exclusion League of North America for legislation to effectively exclude all Asiatics—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. KÜSTERMANN: Petition of Charles O. Bear Camp, No. 3, Department of Wisconsin, Spanish War Veterans, for restoration of the army canteen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McMORRAN: Petition of citizens of North Branch, Mich., against enactment of S. 3940—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MARTIN: Petition of Synod of South Dakota, Presbyterian Church, favoring H. R. 11805, to prevent Sunday banking in post-offices, and for legislation compensating, by a rest day of twenty-four hours, all clerks who work on Sunday—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of citizens of South Dakota, against any parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Martland Mine and Mill Men's Local Union, No. 19, for investigation and regulation of the Treadwell Mining Company, of Douglas Island, Alaska—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. MONDELL: Petition of citizens of Cheyenne against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Papers to accompany bills for relief of estate of Lewis Patterson and James Nipper—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MOUSER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James A. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Joseph McClain and John W. Fowler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. O'CONNELL: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of citizens of Boston, Mass., for legislation pensioning members of the United States Telegraph Corps in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. POLLARD: Petition of citizens of Lincoln, Nebr., against S. 3940 (religious legislation in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PORTER: Petition of citizens of Medina, N. Y., against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. RAINEY: Petition of Illinois Manufacturers' Association, against legislation inimical to corporate interests—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. REID: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Mary A. and Clarence E. Haney—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of estate of John Diehl and William P. Campbell—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SPARKMAN: Papers to accompany bills for relief of William Willingham, John C. Benton, Maxfield McClellan, Isaac A. Redd, Berrien D. Whitehurst, Abraham F. Williams, Allen D. Douglas, and Frank E. Saxons—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: Petition of State Association of Minnesota, favoring postal savings banks—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Washington County (Minn.) Medical Society, favoring establishment of a national department of public health—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. STURGISS: Petition of C. M. Loebrig for legislation pensioning members of United States Military Telegraphers' Union in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition against Johnston bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Alpheus Wilson, Fletcher B. Wilson, Elijah Coffman, and John W. Combs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: Papers to accompany bill of June 10, 1880, entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes"—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: Petition of the Devoe Grocery Company, of Warren, Ohio, for removal of duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VREELAND: Petition of business men of Wellsville, N. Y., against establishment of parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of residents of towns of Concord and Yorkshire, against enactment of the Johnston Sunday bill (S. 3940)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, December 11, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privilege of the House and offer a resolution which I ask the Clerk to report.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. PERKINS] offers a resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

House resolution 451.

Whereas there was contained in the sundry civil appropriation bill, which passed Congress at its last session and became a law, a provision in reference to the employment of the Secret Service in the Treasury Department; and

Whereas in the message of the President of the United States to the two Houses of Congress it was stated in reference to that provision. "It is not too much to say that this amendment has been of benefit only, and could be of benefit only, to the criminal classes," and it was further stated, "The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the Congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by Secret Service men," and it was further stated, "But if this is not considered desirable a special exception could be made in the law, prohibiting the use of the Secret Service force in investigating Members of Congress. It would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done, and strive to prevent or at least hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the Government;" Now, therefore be it

Resolved, That a committee of five Members of this House be appointed by the Speaker, to consider the statements contained in the message of the President and report to the House what action, if any, should be taken in reference thereto.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe in oversensitiveness to unfavorable criticism, whether upon an individual or upon a public body. But while there may be undue sensitiveness, so also there may be undue obtuseness, which might argue a lack of proper self-respect.

It is of importance to the Republic that all of the coordinate branches of the Government should possess, in a high degree, the confidence and respect of the people. I yield to no one in my respect for the Chief Executive of the United States; and I yield to no one in my respect for the Congress of the United States. [Loud applause.] To the Congress is granted great power, and upon it are imposed great responsibilities. We can not neglect our duties nor shirk our responsibilities. The dignity of that body should not be punctiliously insisted upon, but it should be properly maintained. The statements made by the President of the United States can not be lightly disregarded. They may be so construed by the public as to lessen the dignity and thereby impair the usefulness of the Congress of the United States. It can be justly said, I think, that these expressions were unfortunate. Whether it is enough to say this or whether some more formal action should be taken it will be for Congress, exercising a wise and discreet judgment, to decide.

Mr. Speaker, we are the representatives of ninety millions of people. We are the legislative body of a great nation. I am sure there is no one who has the honor to be a Member of this Congress who will hesitate to approve such action as may be required by a proper regard for the dignity of the body to which we belong, and of the people whose Representatives we are.

Mr. Speaker, the resolution offered provides for the appointment of a committee which shall report to the House. Upon the coming in of the report there will be full opportunity for discussion. I shall be glad if the resolution can now be adopted without debate and without dissent. [Loud applause.]

The question was taken, and the resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair announces the following committee: Mr. PERKINS, Mr. DENBY, Mr. WEEKS, Mr. WILLIAMS, and Mr. LLOYD.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, Mr. CURRIER in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 23464, the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 23464) making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the first reading of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to dispense with the first reading of the bill. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I ask the attention of the committee simply to the reading of the report in connection with the bill.

The estimates on which the bill is based will be found on pages 9–88 and 137–151 of the Book of Estimates for 1910, and aggregate $32,484,979.75, of which amount there is recommended in the bill $31,667,820, a reduction of $816,259.75 under said estimates.

The appropriations for the same purposes, exclusive of any sums for the Census Office and for inspection of mines, for the current fiscal year, including $108,320 in the sundry civil and other acts of the last session, aggregated $31,632,943.50, being $34,876.50 less than is recommended in the accompanying bill for the service of the fiscal year 1910.

The whole number of salaries specifically provided for in this bill is 14,441, or 186 less than the number estimated for and 159 more than the number provided for in the law for the current year.

Pending the final enactment of legislation governing the taking of the Thirteenth Census, no appropriations are recommended in this bill for the Census Office. The estimates for this service will receive consideration by the committee in its preparation of the sundry civil bill, which will be prepared and reported later in the session.

Appropriations for mine inspectors and for investigations as to causes of mine explosions, carried in the legislative, and so forth, appropriation act for the current year, are also omitted from this bill for the ensuing year with a view to their consideration in connection with the sundry civil bill.

The appropriations for both of the foregoing branches of the public service for 1909 are not considered in the comparisons which are instituted in this report as to the appropriations for the fiscal year 1909 or the estimates submitted for 1910.

The specific changes in the number or grade of officers or employees of the Government and their rate of compensation, as compared with the current law and without reference to transfers from one bureau to another, recommended in the bill are as follows:

SENATE.

The bill appropriates for officers, clerks, and other employees in the service of the Senate in the same terms as the law for the current year, except that for session employees the usual increase is made, growing out of the longer term of their employment during the ensuing session, as compared with the present short session of Congress, and a reduction is made, in accordance with the estimates, of 10 clerks, at $1,800 each, to Senators who are not chairmen of committees.

The appropriation for miscellaneous expenses, including personal services for the Senate, is reduced from $150,000 to $75,000, being the same amount as is recommended for like expenses of the House.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The salaries of all officers and employees of the House which were increased at the last session of Congress by resolution are continued for the next fiscal year at the rate of compensation thus fixed.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

For the Library proper an increase is recommended of 2 stenographers and typewriters at $1,200 and $720, respectively, instead of 2 at a salary of $1,000 each; 1 messenger boy at $360; 2 attendants at $480 each for the reading room.

For the copyright office an increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,800, 2 clerks at $1,600 each, 2 clerks at $1,000 each, 2 clerks at $600 each, and 1 messenger boy at $360.

For the carrier service in connection with the House Office Building, 2 messengers at $40 per month each during the next session of Congress is recommended.

For the work on indexes, digests, and compilations of law, a chief assistant at $3,000 instead of $1,800, and an additional assistant at $2,400 are provided for.

The salaries of the chief of the division of music and one assistant are increased from $2,000 to $3,000 and from $1,400 to $1,500, respectively.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

One additional clerk at $1,600; 2 additional clerks at $1,400 each; 4 additional clerks at $1,200 each; 1 additional clerk at $1,000, and 3 clerks at $900 each are recommended.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Office of the chief clerk.—A messenger at $840 is provided for in lieu of a laborer at $660.

Division of customs.—Two additional law clerks at $2,000 each are recommended.

Division of loans and currency.—Two additional money counters at $720 each and 1 laborer at $660 are recommended, and 1 laborer at $550 is omitted.

Office of the Auditor for the Treasury Department.—One additional clerk at $1,200 is recommended.

Office of Auditor for Post-Office Department.—An expert accountant at $2,250 is provided for, in lieu of a deputy auditor at $2,500; 2 additional clerks at $1,800 each, and 10 money-order assorters at $840 each are recommended.

Office of the treasurer.—One additional clerk at $1,600 and 1 charwoman at $240 are recommended; and in the force employed in redeeming the national currency an increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,800, 2 clerks at $1,600 each, 2 clerks at $1,400 each, 26 expert counters at $1,000 each, 4 expert counters at $900 each, 2 messengers at $840 each, and 1 charwoman at $240.

Office of the Register of Treasury.—An increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,200, and 5 counters at $720 each; and 1 clerk at $900 is omitted.

Office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.—A reduction of 1 laborer at $660 is recommended.

Bureau of Engraving and Printing.—An increase is recommended of 1 chief of division of assignments and reviews, $3,000, a chief clerk at $2,500 instead of an accountant at the same salary, 1 clerk at $1,800, 2 clerks at $1,600 each, 2 clerks at $840 each, and 6 clerks at $780 each.

INDEPENDENT TREASURY.

A reduction is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,000 in the office of the assistant treasurer at Boston.

MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES.

The salary of the assistant melter and refiner in the assay office at New York is reduced from $2,500 to $2,000.

NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Office of the solicitor.—One law clerk at $2,250 is recommended.

Bureau of Navigation.—An increase is recommended of 2 clerks at $1,200 each and 1 clerk at $1,000.

Bureau of Equipment.—An increase is recommended of 1 expert in wireless telegraphy at $3,000 and 2 draftsmen at $1,600 each.

Nautical Almanac Office.—For pay of computers on piecework, the appropriation is increased from $6,000 to $7,000.

Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.—An increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,400, 2 clerks at $1,100 each, and 1 clerk at $900.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

Office of the Secretary.—Transfers are provided for as follows: Six inspectors at $2,500 each from the Indian Department, 3 laborers at $660 each, and 4 charwomen at $240 each from the Indian Office.

General Land Office.—The 3 inspectors for surveyors-general and district land offices at $2,000 are omitted; law reviewers and law examiners are provided for instead of certain law clerks and clerks without increase in number or rate of compensation.

Indian Office.—An assistant chief of division at $2,000 instead of a chief of division at the same salary is provided for, and a net increase of force is recommended as follows: Three clerks at $1,800 each and a principal bookkeeper at $1,800 are omitted; 2 clerks at $1,600 each; and 3 messenger boys at $360 each.

Pension Office.—A reduction is made of 1 chief of division at $2,000, 2 assistant chiefs of division at $1,800 each, 20 clerks at $1,000 each, 28 copyists at $900 each, and 20 special examiners at $1,300 each.

Patent Office.—A First Assistant Commissioner at $4,500 and an examiner of classification at $3,600 are provided for, and an increase is recommended of 10 fourth assistant examiners at $1,500 each, 1 translator of languages at $1,800, 2 clerks at $1,400 each, 5 clerks at $1,200 each, 5 clerks at $1,000 each, 1 messenger at $840, 27 laborers at $480 each, and 1 messenger boy at $360.

Bureau of Education.—The salary of the Commissioner of Education is increased from $4,500 to $5,000, and an editor at $2,000 is recommended.

Offices of surveyors-general.—The office of the surveyor-general for Louisiana, with salaries amounting to $8,600, is omitted from the bill.

For clerks in the office of the surveyor-general of Wyoming the amount is reduced from $10,000 to $9,000.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Office of the Second Assistant Postmaster-General.—An increase is recommended of 2 clerks at $900 each, and 1 page at $480.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

One assistant attorney at $3,500, and 1 clerk at $900, now paid from the appropriation "enforcement of the antitrust laws," are provided for, and the salaries of attorneys and others paid from certain general appropriations, as indicated in the law for the present fiscal year, are consolidated with the general force of the department, as recommended by the Attorney-General, no increase in their number or compensation being made.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I would like to have the gentleman explain why that change is made.

Mr. BINGHAM. If the gentleman will allow me to read the report through, and it is very brief, when we come to the debate under the five-minute rule there will be an answer made to every inquiry as to the provisions of the bill, while to answer now will only interrupt the continuity of the reading of the report.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I just wanted to know what was being done for the enforcement of these laws, and I will wait.

Mr. BINGHAM:

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND LABOR.

Office of the Secretary.—A chief watchman at $900 instead of a captain of the watch at $1,200 is provided for.

Bureau of Corporations.—An increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,400, 1 clerk at $1,200, 2 clerks at $1,000 each, and 2 copyists at $900 each.

Bureau of Manufactures.—The salary of the assistant chief of the bureau is increased from $2,500 to $3,000, and an increase is recommended of 1 clerk at $1,000, and 1 clerk at $900.

Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization.—The salary of the commissioner-general is increased from $4,000 to $5,000, in lieu of $1,000 additional now being paid from the appropriation for the "Enforcement of the Chinese-exclusion act;" and the salary of the assistant commissioner-general is increased from $3,000 to $3,500.

Bureau of Standards.—An increase is recommended of 3 assistant chemists—1 at $2,200, 1 at $1,600, and 1 at $1,400; 5 associate physicists—1 at $2,200, 1 at $2,000, 1 at $1,600, and 2 at $1,400 each; 3 laboratory assistants—2 at $1,200, and 1 at $1,000; 2 laboratory helpers at $720 each; 1 clerk at $1,200; 1 mechanician at $1,500; 1 glass blower at $1,200; 1 electrician at $1,200.

JUDICIARY.

The salary of 1 district judge at $6,000 is omitted, as recommended in the estimates, and an additional messenger at $720 for the court of appeals for the District of Columbia is provided for.

LIMITATIONS.

Limitations with respect to the appropriations made in the bill and not heretofore imposed are recommended as follows:

On page 34:

The Librarian of Congress may from time to time transfer to other governmental libraries within the District of Columbia, including the public library, books and material in the possession of the Library of Congress in his judgment no longer necessary to its uses, but in the judgment of the custodians of such other collections likely to be useful to them, and may dispose of or destroy such material as has become useless.

On page 60:

And no other fund appropriated by this or any other act shall be used for services in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, of the character specified in this paragraph, except in cases of emergency arising after the passage of this act and then only on the written approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

On page 165:

SEC. 4. When estimates hereafter transmitted to the Treasury for submission to Congress do not in form and arrangement comply with the provisions of section 4 of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act approved June 22, 1906, they shall, under direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, be rearranged so as to comply with said requirement of law.

RECAPITULATION.

The following tabulated statement gives in detail the appropriations for the current fiscal year, the estimates for 1910, and the amounts recommended in the accompanying bill for the fiscal year 1910:

Following the report, which gentlemen can find in the document room, there will be found a tabulated statement giving in detail the appropriations for the current fiscal year, the estimates for the fiscal year 1910, and the amount recommended in the accompanying bill for the year 1910.

One word more. The legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation acts more nearly represent, year by year, than any other legislative enactments the ordinary growth of the civil functions of the Government. With only one exception, a considerable increase in annual expense has marked the enactment of this measure for each of the past ten years, and the exception in question showed a reduction of less than $2,000 in the bill reported under the previous law.

The bill under consideration makes an increase of only $34,000, a sum very considerably less than the increase presented in any of the bills during the past ten years, with the one exception noted.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, as the committee proposes to extend all the time possible for debate as the bill is read by paragraphs, I hope that there will be no objection now to reading the bill by sections.

The CHAIRMAN. If there is no further debate, the Clerk will report the bill by paragraphs for amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

For 10 clerks to committees, at $6 each per day during the session, $12,420.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. In line 14, page 18, there is a provision for 10 clerks to committees at $6 each per day during the session, $12,420. Does that include or is that intended to provide for the payment of clerks to certain committees known as "committees on expenditures in the various departments of the Government" who were appointed by resolution adopted by the House some time in April last?

Mr. GILLETT. No; it is not. They are not carried in this bill at all. This does not provide for them.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Then this is for committees other than the committees on expenditures in the various departments of the Government?

Mr. GILLETT. Yes.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. The Committee on Appropriations then has made no provision to continue the payment of the clerks to those committees?

Mr. GILLETT. Those clerks were put on by resolution last year, and the Clerk of the House did not make any report to the Appropriations Committee at all about them. Consequently, they were simply omitted. We followed exactly the list that was sent to us by the Clerk of the House.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Then if the clerks to those committees are serving now they are serving without pay, and will not be paid unless some provision is made for them in some other bill than this.

Mr. GILLETT. They were put on last year, not as regular clerks, but simply put on by resolution of the House for that one session. If the House desires to put them on again, undoubtedly the Committee on Accounts will report a similar resolution. Whether that is the purpose or not, I do not know. They were not put on this bill.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I suppose the gentleman would feel called upon to make a point of order if any proposition was made to include them now?

Mr. GILLETT. I think I should be obliged to make a point of order. I think the Committee on Accounts, who have jurisdiction, ought to be allowed to exercise their jurisdiction.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. The Committee on Accounts will not dodge its responsibility at all. I merely wanted to find out what I have found out.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn, and the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

For the following minority employees authorized and named in the resolution adopted by the House of Representatives November 9, 1903, namely: One special employee, $1,800; 2 special messengers at $1,500 each; and 1 special chief page, $1,100, and $700 additional for services as pair clerk; in all, $6,600.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, on page 22, line 1, the words "November 9, 1903," should read "December 2, 1907." I offer an amendment to make that correction.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 22, line 1, strike out "November 9, 1903," and insert "December 2, 1907."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Indexes, digests, and compilations of law: To continue the preparation of the new index to the Statutes at Large, in accordance with the plan approved by the Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress, and to prepare such other law indexes, digests, and compilations of law as may be required by Congress for official use, namely: For 1 chief assistant, $3,000; 1 assistant, $2,400; 1 assistant, $1,200; 1 assistant, $900; 2 assistants at $720 each; in all, $8,940.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word, for the purpose of asking a question of the gentleman in charge of the bill. I notice on page 31 there is an increase in the compensation of the law librarian, $500, in connection with the preparation of the new index to the Statutes at Large, and in the paragraph just read there is an increase to the person in charge of the digest and compilation of the index from $1,800, I think, to $3,000. I do not quite understand the theory of having two persons, each drawing the same salary, in charge of this work.

Mr. BINGHAM. I would simply state that the man to whom he refers has a supervisory control in connection with the indexing of the Statutes at Large. He is not relegated to do nothing. He is continued in the work of the supervision, but the direct responsibility is thrown upon these two officials whom we indicate.

Mr. MANN. He has never had an allowance for supervision heretofore?

Mr. BINGHAM. Oh, yes; he has always had it.

Mr. TAWNEY. He has had that $500.

Mr. MANN. He did not have it at this place in the last appropriation act—that is all I can say about it. He may have had it somewhere else.

Mr. BINGHAM. The work referred to was imposed upon us, and it was provided that it should be administered under the law library, covering the statutes from 1873 to date. We now know just what we have to do and just what the defects are in our organizatioi. for doing it. They continue this supervisory work and then put the onus for going along on this new creation.

Mr. MANN. I understand the fact to be this: That heretofore the work has been in charge of the law librarian, and he had a clerk at $1,800. The law librarian was paid $500 for supervision, probably a proper sum to pay for overlooking the work of a subordinate official. Here, however, is a proposition to increase the pay and the rank of the person doing the work, so that he is on an equality with the law librarian—in fact, receiving a higher salary than the law librarian receives—and yet it proposes to make him a subordinate official and make a present to the law librarian of the extra $500. It seems to me wholly improper to increase the rank of the man who does the work so that he is to receive a higher salary than the law librarian receives and yet make him a subordinate official to the librarian of the law library.

Mr. BINGHAM. It only runs for this special line of work, and this is due to him because we put on him this additional work. It does not interfere with the work that he is doing now.

Mr. GILLETT. If I may add a word to the explanation already made, in the past, as the gentleman from Illinois has said, the librarian has had supervision and been allowed $500 for that, and has had this man at a lower salary under him. It has been found that the law librarian could not give much of his time to this work, as he is so much occupied, and the purpose is now that after this year, after the organization necessary gets under way, this man whose salary we have raised shall have that as a permanent salary, and shall after the first year be independent of the law librarian and carry this work on himself. The work, as the gentleman from Illinois is aware, has progressed well, and it appears to be exceedingly valuable and has been excellently done. Now the recommendation is made that for the next year the law librarian shall have the $500 because they will have to organize and he will have to have some supervision this year to organize it. It is recommended, and I think it wise, that this man ought to have permanently this salary which is now made by adding the $500.

I think also the person who is in charge of this difficult work ought to have the salary we have provided. They have found it exceedingly difficult to retain the men because they have been hired away from them. It has been difficult to keep their force of skilled men, which was necessary for the difficult work of indexing.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from Massachusetts will observe that I did not raise any question about the propriety of paying the amount of salary in either case. Both propositions were subject to a point of order, in my opinion. I have no doubt the law librarian fairly ought to have the salary of $3,000. The question I was raising was as to the propriety of increasing the salary of the man in charge of the index work to an amount as great or greater than that of the librarian and making him a subordinate officer under the supervision of a man who gives no attention to the business. I would put the responsibility upon the man whose pay is raised and hold him responsible.

Mr. TAWNEY. The law puts the responsibility on the law librarian of supervising the work.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. TAWNEY. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. How many men are engaged in carrying out the provisions of that law?

Mr. TAWNEY. There are three, including the law librarian.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. How long have they been engaged in the work? I thought that the pay of these men amounted to about $10,000 a year.

Mr. GILLETT. That is about it.

Mr. TAWNEY. There are five, but the law librarian has general supervision, and the $3,000 man provided for is the man who is to be really in charge of the organization and in charge of the work. Now, they have been working on the volume which has already been published, bringing the index of the general laws from 1873 down to date. They intend now, and are required under the law, to begin to make the indexes to the general statutes from the beginning of the Government down to 1873, and the time required, with this organization which we provide for, will be three years, according to the best judgment of the librarian.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. May we hope that work will be completed in three years?

Mr. TAWNEY. Yes.

Mr. MANN. Completed just about the time there will be a new revision of the laws, and we will have to commence with these same gentlemen the same work over again.

Mr. TAWNEY. It does not matter whether we have a revision of the laws or not, for we always need an index of the existing laws heretofore passed, so that they may be referred to.

Mr. MANN. It is safe to say that when we have a revision of the laws, as we ought to have soon, and a new index to that, nobody will ever refer to the one that these gentlemen are now engaged upon.

Mr. TAWNEY. The Committee on the Judiciary, which reported this provision directing this work to be done, differ materially with the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] in regard to the necessity for this work even after the revision of the laws, and I think it is absolutely essential for the work to go on if we are going to complete it, and complete it efficiently; and if we are going to complete it within the shortest space of time, we ought to give them this organization. They must get a good lawyer, for it requires one, to make such an index of the remaining statutes as has been made of the laws from 1873 down to the present time. If the gentleman will send to the library and get the first volume that is now completed and see the completeness of that volume and the efficiency with which the work was done by Doctor Scott and Mr. Beaman, who have quit the service on account of the lack of compensation and because of the laborious work involved, he will be satisfied with the efficiency of the work done.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. I hope the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] does not understand me to be criticising the character of the work. I simply asked if it was like all other government jobs—to go on indefinitely.

Mr. TAWNEY. I will say it will not last indefinitely. Under these conditions it will last three years, otherwise five years.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

For compensation to the following in the office of the President of the United States: Secretary, $6,000; 2 assistant secretaries at $3,000 each; executive clerk, $2,500; executive clerk and disbursing officer, $2,000; 7 clerks at $2,000 each; 1 clerk of class 4; 1 clerk of class 4, who shall be a telegrapher; 4 clerks of class 3; 2 clerks of class 2; steward, $1,800; chief doorkeeper, $1,800; 5 doorkeepers at $1,400 each; 3 doorkeepers at $1,200 each; 4 messengers at $1,200 each; 5 messengers at $900 each; watchman, $900; 1 fireman, $900; laborer, $720; laborer, $600; in all, $69,920: Provided, That employees of the executive departments and other establishments of the executive branch of the Government may be detailed from time to time to the office of the President of the United States, for such temporary assistance as may be necessary.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. I would like to ask the Committee on Appropriations if there is any report anywhere, or occasion for a report, of the number of men detailed to the executive department from other branches of the Government;

Mr. GILLETT. I do not think there is. There is not to my knowledge.

Mr. BINGHAM. There was no request in the hearings or anything of that kind as to an increase or decrease.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Office of the Secretary: For compensation of the Secretary of the Treasury, $12,000; 3 Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, at $5,000 each; cerk to the Secretary, $2,500; stenographer, $1,800; 3 private secretaries, 1 to each Assistant Secretary, at $1,800 each; government Actuary, under control of the Treasury, $2,250; examiner, $2,000; 2 clerks of class 4; 4 clerks of class 3; 2 clerks of class 2; 4 messengers; and 1 laborer; in all, $57,770.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. I want to find out from the committee why these increases in the cost of collecting the revenues are provided for in this bill. During the past few years, at the coming in of every bill, they ask for an increase in force, and the excuse given was that there was an increase of business. Unfortunately the country is not in that condition now. The revenues are behind what they were at the same date in the last fiscal year, but the same increases in force are asked for. I want to know if the committee has allowed the increases in the Treasury Department that were asked for on the ground of an increase in business.

Mr. BINGHAM. The statement made was to the effect that the new customs law would necessitate it; that in connection with foreign treaties, understandings between Germany and other nations, and because of increased work, together with the fact that the new law would give them a vast amount of additional work, it was necessary. That is putting it briefly.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. But the new law has not been passed as yet.

Mr. BINGHAM. These estimates are for the next fiscal year, and the expectation is that the law will be completed within the next six or eight months.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. It seems to me it would be impossible for the Treasury Department to say what the effect of a law would be that has not yet been framed or introduced into Congress.

Mr. BINGHAM. The committee thought they were making a very reasonable addition to the customs service.

Mr. GILLETT. May I say just a word there—that if the gentleman will observe, he will see that we have given hardly any increases to the Treasury in any of the departments. We are simply giving in the division of customs two law clerks, and their work does not depend so much upon the business as upon the difficulty of the business; and as the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BINGHAM] said, of course this takes effect when the new customs law comes in and there will be a very great deal of work in respect to appeals in customs cases. But in the other cases the gentleman will observe here in the office of the Treasury it depends on the currency. Then in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing we are obliged to give them an increase, and of course the gentleman appreciates that while our revenues are falling behind, our expenditures, which ought to be falling behind, are not. The gentleman will see that there is very little increase of any kind given, if he will look carefully.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. One other question, if the gentleman will answer it. A year ago when we passed the legislative bill we found that in the Treasury Department they had inaugurated the double-entry system of bookkeeping, and the appropriations were large because they were carrying on the old single-entry bookkeeping and the double-entry bookkeeping at the same time. Is not there some assurance that after a short time two systems of bookkeeping will be discontinued?

Mr. GILLETT. If the gentleman means the same thing that I do, it was not that the new system was to be temporary. That was to be permanent, but the old system was to be done away with.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. That is the way I understood it. I want to know now, is it not true that they are keeping up both systems of bookkeeping there?

Mr. GILLETT. No; I do not think it is.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Well, then, we were told the amount asked for last year for the present fiscal year——

Mr. GILLETT. For the different auditors.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. For the officers of the Treasury Department who keep these books——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Carolina has expired.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman's time be extended. I have used up a good deal of it.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. The proposition was that the Treasury force was used there keeping two sets of books and in consequence of that it was incumbent to make an unusually large appropriation. Now, what I want to know is, If they have discontinued the double set of bookkeeping and if they have not, when will they do so?

Mr. GILLETT. I think the gentleman is under a misapprehension that we gave them a large increase because of the double system. It was claimed by some officers and denied by some others that the new system would require a larger force, but we did not provide a larger force because the two systems were going on at the same time. As I recollect, it was simply because the new system was to come in, and had already been adopted, and it was to be in full force this year. Some officers claimed that the new system would permanently require a larger force, and some now say that it does and others say it does not. We simply provided the same force to the auditors because——

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. I must be very unfortunate in making myself understood. What I want to know is, Are they keeping two sets of books in the Treasury Department?

Mr. GILLETT. Only one system. They do not both go on at the same time.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. They said so last year.

Mr. GILLETT. No; it was for the change. Our recollections differ. I do not recollect both went on at the same time, but they have changed from one to the other.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Office of Auditor for War Department: For auditor, $4,000; deputy auditor, $2,500; law clerk, $2,000; 6 chiefs of division, at $2,000 each; 23 clerks of class 4; additional to 1 clerk as disbursing clerk, $200; 50 clerks of class 3; 71 clerks of class 2; 83 clerks of class 1; 20 clerks, at $1,000 each; 14 clerks, at $900 each; skilled laborer, $900; 3 clerks, at $840 each; 1 messenger; 5 assistant messengers; and 12 laborers; in all, $389,480.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 50, line 19, after the word "dollars," add:

"And $1,000 additional while acting as auditor for the Isthmian Canal Commission."

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Massachusetts reserves the point of order.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment, of course, is subject to the point of order. When the President directed that the construction of the Panama Canal proceed under the Secretary of War it became so that the accounts are audited by the Auditor for the War Department. That involved a very large amount of additional responsibility upon him, because the accounts of the Isthmian Canal are probably as large as the accounts of most any of the departments. There are a great many of them, and it seems to me that it would be perfectly proper. I think last year the matter was discussed, and it was almost agreed that he might have additional $1,000 compensation. It is perfectly plain, I think, to everybody that the gentleman ought to have an increase in salary, either possibly in this way or, as was contemplated a year ago, in some way out of the Isthmian Canal funds.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman's statement seems plausible, and it might be true that he ought to have it, but provision should be made in some other bill; and inasmuch as there was no estimate for it in this bill we could not consider it, so I feel it my duty to insist upon the point of order.

Mr. BINGHAM. I will state to the gentleman that for the current year he is receiving the additional thousand dollars in the sundry civil bill, and it is estimated for in the next sundry civil bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. MANN. I stated that I believed it is subject to a point of order, undoubtedly.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mint at Denver, Colo.: For superintendent, $4,500; assayer, melter and refiner, and coiner, at $3,000 each; chief clerk and cashier, at $2,500 each; weigh clerk and bookkeeper, at $2,000 each; assistant assayer, assistant melter and refiner, and assistant coiner, at $2,000 each; abstract clerk and warrant clerk, at $1,800 each; assistant weigh clerk and calculating clerk, at $1,600 each; calculating clerk, $1,400; and 2 clerks, at $1,200 each; in all, $39,100.

Mr. BONYNGE. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Colorado offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

On line 13, page 75, after the word "dollars," add the words "one assayer's computation clerk, $1,600."

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order, but desire the gentleman to make his statement.

Mr. BONYNGE. I do not know that there is any specific law covering the amendment offered, but it is covered under the lump appropriation in the next paragraph, as follows:

For wages of workmen and adjusters, and not exceeding $32,500 for other clerks and employees, $150,000.

In the other mints, particularly in the mint at Philadelphia, this office is one of those specifically appropriated for under the title and with the salary that is proposed by the amendment that is offered. The salary of the individual who is now doing the work is $1,400 a year. When the mint was first established at Denver, the salaries were not as large as at other mints. The purpose was to make the salaries less than at other mints until the work had gotten well under way. It occurs to me the time has arrived now when, all the other officers and employees of the Denver mint having received an increase in their salaries to correspond to the salaries paid to similar officers in other mints, this clerk should receive the same salary as those who are doing similar work in the other mints. I do not know that it is subject to a point of order, Mr. Chairman. I believe that all of these clerks are not provided for by permanent law at all, but are only provided for each year in the appropriation bill.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I offer a point of order that there is nothing in the existing law that justifies this increase. And there is the further fact that the committee listened fully to the statement made by the Director of the Mint, taking up each paragraph of his recommendations, and there is no suggestion or reference in his hearing as to this proposed change. If it is in another paragraph of the bill, I have no criticism to make, but I make a point of order as to this paragraph that it is not an existing law.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. BONYNGE] desire to be heard on a point of order?

Mr. BONYNGE. I can only say in reference to the point of order, Mr. Chairman, that I do not think any of these salaries are provided for by permanent law. There is no law that I know that covers any of them.

The CHAIRMAN. Apparently the amendment contemplates the establishment of a new office.

Mr. BONYNGE. No; it is not a new office. It is covered under the appropriation in the next paragraph. While it is not specifically named, there is such an office, and the work is being done, but it is covered by the general appropriation.

The CHAIRMAN. What is the salary now being paid to the clerk that is performing the work?

Mr. BONYNGE. Fourteen hundred dollars, but not covered by law. It is left to the discretion of the appointing officer, within the limits of the general amount appropriated.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

For night watchmen as follows: Two in Smithsonian grounds; 1 in Judiciary Park; 2 in Henry and Seaton parks; 1 in grounds south of Executive Mansion; 1 in Monument Park; 1 at Monument Park Annex (Potomac Park); and 2 in Garfield Park; 10 in all, at $720 each, $7,200.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Under this title of the bill it seems to be appropriate to call attention to a most remarkable and extraordinary proceeding. I refer to the removal of the Pennsylvania depot, a building which stood upon government ground, and, so far as I know, has been removed without authorization of law. I desire to send to the Clerk's desk and have read in my time what was revealed before the Committee on Appropriations.

The Clerk read as follows:

REMOVAL OF THE OLD PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD STATION.

Mr. BURLESON. Did you not ask in the last bill for a watchman or custodian for the old Pennsylvania Railroad station?

Colonel BROMWELL. I think I did; yes.

Mr. BURLESON. We made the appropriation, did we not?

Mr. TAWNEY. And the authorization?

Mr. BURLESON. Yes. We made the authorization and the appropriation?

Colonel BROMWELL. I think so; but I have not had any occasion to use it, because I have torn down the railroad station.

Mr. BURLESON. What! Torn down the railroad station?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. BURLESON. By what authority did you tear down the railroad station?

Colonel BROMWELL. By authority of the President of the United States.

Mr. BURLESON. Where did you get the money for that?

Colonel BROMWELL. We advertised for the removal of the building and for the removal of the materials, the contractor receiving all the old materials in the building.

Mr. BURLESON. Who directed you to do that?

Colonel BROMWELL. The President of the United States.

Mr. LIVINGSTON (addressing Mr. BURLESON). Does that satisfy you? [Laughter.]

Colonel BROMWELL. That satisfied me. [Laughter.] I got a written order.

Mr. BURLESON. That was the sole authority for the destruction of that building?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes, sir; that was my authority.

Mr. GILLETT. Did the Government own that building?

Colonel BROMWELL. The railroad built it, but when they abandoned it they turned it over to the Government of the United States.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. It was a contract between the railroad and the Government.

Mr. TAWNEY. The terms under which the building was torn down amounted practically to a sale of the building?

Colonel BROMWELL. Practically.

Mr. TAWNEY. That is what it practically amounted to?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. Do you know of any law on the statute books that authorizes any executive officer to sell any of the property of the United States of that character, real estate?

Colonel BROMWELL. No, sir. I called the attention of the higher authorities to that fact, and I received an order to tear the building down.

Mr. BURLESON. Did you look for an appropriation out of which the expense of tearing down that building could be defrayed? Did you look to the law?

Colonel BROMWELL. I was not put to any expense. In fact, I sold the material, I think, for a thousand dollars. I received a bid of a thousand dollars for tearing down the building and train shed, and one of the provisos was that the contractor should have all the old material. I was put to no expense whatever.

Mr. GILLETT. The Government got $1,000 extra out of it?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes, sir.

Mr. BURLESON. Approximately what was the cost of that building, the erection of it? Just make a guess.

Colonel BROMWELL. I suppose when the building and train sheds were erected they must have cost in the neighborhood of $25,000 or $30,000.

Mr. TAWNEY. When it was built, it was built for probably 50 per cent less than it could be built now.

Mr. BURLESON. It was a three-story building.

Colonel BROMWELL. It was a two-story building. There was no basement to speak of. There was just a little cellar.

Mr. TAWNEY. They had pilings there, I understand?

Colonel BROMWELL. I do not know about that.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. It was only a shed?

Mr. GILLETT. No; it was quite a building.

Mr. BURLESON. It was a three-story building.

Mr. TAWNEY. How many bricks were there in the building?

Colonel BROMWELL. About 350,000, I should say.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. What does brick cost the Government?

Mr. TAWNEY. About $10 a thousand.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. The whole thing?

Colonel BROMWELL. It cost the Government nothing, and in addition to that we got about $1,000.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Did you sell the stuff?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes; and we got the building torn down.

Mr. TAWNEY. Was the building in use by the Government at the time it was torn down?

Colonel BROMWELL. No, sir.

Mr. BURLESON. When you asked for this appropriation for a watchman, you intended to use it for storage purposes. A lot of buildings are rented now for storage purposes throughout the city.

Colonel BROMWELL. The building was under my jurisdiction, and I thought I ought to have a watchman to take charge of it while it was under my jurisdiction. Tramps and people might go there to sleep and endanger the safety of the building.

Mr. TAWNEY. Was not the War Department about to use it for storage purposes?

Mr. GILLETT. It might have been used in that way.

Mr. BURLESON. A large number of rented buildings are used for storage purposes in the city?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Did the President say why he wanted the building removed?

Mr. TAWNEY. Was there any necessity for the removal of the building?

Mr. BURLESON. Was it not torn down to improve the perspective?

Mr. TAWNEY. I would like to have that question answered—What was the necessity for the removal? I am not criticising anybody.

Colonel BROMWELL. I know of no immediate necessity for its removal. Personally I am very glad it was done.

Mr. TAWNEY. The people in the District wanted it removed, did they not?

Colonel BROMWELL. I do not know what the people in the District wanted. I think it adds a great deal to the general improvement to get that building out of the way. It was an old building, and the old train shed there was an eyesore in that part of town.

Mr. TAWNEY. The principal part of the eyesore was the train shed?

Colonel BROMWELL. Yes; but the building encroached on the parking space, and I do not think the building itself was good for much. It was nothing but a shell of a building and unsuitable for most purposes. If it had been used for offices, it would have had to have heating and lighting plants installed in it and the floors strengthened.

Mr. BURLESON. But if it had been used for storage it could have been used to good purpose and great economy to the Government. It would have saved the rent of some of these buildings that we are renting now, would it not?

Colonel BROMWELL. It might, and then it might not.

Mr. BURLESON. Well, we will let it go at that.

[During the reading of the above the time of Mr. JOHNSON expired.]

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be permitted to conclude the reading of this interesting discussion in the hearings.

There was no objection, and the reading was concluded.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Now, Mr. Chairman, so far as I know there is no law authorizing the removal or sale of that building. I would like to inquire of the gentleman who has the bill in charge if he has investigated the question, and if there is any authority for the removal and sale of that building. If there is no law for it, what do you propose to do about it?

Mr. BINGHAM. I think we shall have to act on the remark of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BURLESON], "we will have to let it go at that." [Laughter.] There was nothing before the committee in any form whatever; and the gentleman's object, I presume, is simply to have this matter inserted in the RECORD.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. I think we might withhold appropriations from officers who so disregard the law as the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds has done.

The Clerk read as follows:

For repairs, supplies, and miscellaneous articles, Mills Building, $2,000.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Just a moment. I move to strike out the last word. I wish to make an inquiry. Can the chairman reporting the bill or any Member inform the House how much money is paid out by the Government of the United States for rented buildings in the city of Washington and the District of Columbia?

Mr. BINGHAM. About $250,000 a year.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. More than that.

Mr. BURLESON. I think it is about $400,000.

Mr. BINGHAM. Four hundred and seventy-one thousand dollars.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Now, will the Chairman inform the House the uses to which these buildings are put by the Government?

Mr. BINGHAM. There are two pages in detail in the Book of Estimates, pages 622 and 623, giving the official sum total at $471,000.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Well, now, what are these buildings used for?

Mr. BINGHAM. Every department of the Government uses one or other of them.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Are they not subrented? I want to know what the Government pays as rent.

Mr. BINGHAM. I will give the gentleman the departments: State Department, Treasury Department in town, War Department, Navy Department, Post-Office Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, the Department of Justice, and the Public Printer. The recapitulation is on page 633.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Well, Mr. Chairman, I simply wanted to get the information for my own edification, if not for the edification of the House and information of the country at large. It looks to me like when we pay that amount of money—nearly half a million dollars—every year for rented buildings in which to conduct the public business, the Government would be doing wiser business if it erected for its purposes more public buildings in Washington. I believe it would be wiser policy to erect more buildings and rent less. Here you say the War Department, the Interior Department, the Agricultural Department, the Department of Justice, indeed all the departments, have gone out in town and rented buildings in which to conduct the public business at an expense of $471,000 every year. It looks to me like we would save money and conduct the business better if Congress would erect more public buildings for its uses and rent fewer private buildings for public business.

The Clerk read as follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Office of the Secretary: For compensation of the Secretary of the Navy, $12,000; Assistant Secretary of the Navy, $5,000; chief clerk, $3,000; private secretary to Secretary, $2,500; clerk to Secretary, $2,250; clerk to Assistant Secretary, $2,000; disbursing clerk, $2,250; 4 clerks of class 4; stenographer, $1,800; 1 clerk of class 3; 3 clerks of class 2; 4 clerks of class 1; stenographer, $1,200; 1 clerk, $1,100; 4 clerks, at $1,000 each; telegraph operator, $1,100; 2 copyists; carpenter, $900; 4 messengers; 4 assistant messengers, 1 transferred to Bureau of Supplies and Accounts; 1 laborer; 3 messenger boys, at $600 each; 1 messenger boy, $420; 1 messenger boy, $400; 1 telephone switchboard operator; 1 assistant telephone switchboard operator; in all, $69,540.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. I do not wish to detain the committee, but I am going to ask the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. LIVINGSTON] to give the House and country the benefit of his views about the matter we were talking about just a few minutes since. Here is $471,000 for rent of buildings in which to do the public work. I would like to inquire of him if he does not think it wiser to erect these buildings than to rent, and if yea, how much it will cost to build them and how we could get the money?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I want to suggest to the gentleman from Tennessee that for years I have considered it would be economy to the Government to borrow on long time $50,000,000, at 2 per cent, and use the capital for the erection of public buildings. This $470,000 would be about 8 per cent on five millions of money. This Government ought to put up its own buildings as a matter of economy, if nothing else. I have so contended for years. We could borrow this money on long time, say for twenty-five or fifty years, and make posterity pay its share, and then we would get far more suitable buildings. Some of these buildings we are renting are not fitted for the purposes for which we are renting them. We have to put lighting and heating plants in these houses often, and then they are thrown on our hands in such bad shape that we have to spend a lot of money in repairing them.

I hope some day soon Congress will view it as I have viewed it, and that we may issue bonds, if we have not the money otherwise, to put up $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 of public buildings in the city of Washington, as a matter of economy, and as a matter of safety, convenience, and suitability, to accommodate the offices for which buildings are rented to-day.

Mr. GILLETT. The gentleman recognizes the fact that we have no jurisdiction of anything of the kind in this bill?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. No; not in this bill.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Is it not a fact that the buildings which are rented are, as a rule, in the heart of the city, where rents are going up higher and higher every year?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. We are compelled to rent buildings as nearly in the heart of the city as possible. We can not go out on the edges of the District and put bureaus and divisions of departments out there. That would be inconvenient. We must have them contiguous to the other buildings. For instance, if the War Department wants an additional building, it wants it as near the department building as possible.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. And the rents, as a rule, are much higher near the department buildings?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Rents as a rule are much higher. We are paying $24,000 a year rent for the Mills Building, situated on the corner by the War and Navy Department building. I guarantee that if you will make a calculation on the cost of that building you will find that is an enormous rent.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Do you know of any other similar instances?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Yes.

Mr. BINGHAM. I have no criticism to make of the remarks of either gentleman, but this is a subject which does not belong to this bill. It belongs to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. It has been overlooked in all the bills. I simply want to call the attention of the House to these facts, so that we may get at this reform in some bill after due consideration by Congress.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn, and the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Bureau of Education: For Commissioner of Education, $5,000; chief clerk, $2,000; editor, $2,000; statistician, $1,800; specialist in charge of land-grant college statistics, $1,800; translator, $1,800; collector and compiler of statistics, $2,400; specialist in foreign educational systems, $1,800; specialist in educational system, $1,800; 2 clerks of class 4; 2 clerks of class 3; 4 clerks of class 2; 7 clerks of class 1; 5 clerks, at $1,000 each; 6 copyists; 2 copyists, at $800 each; copyist, $720; 2 skilled laborers, at $840 each; 1 messenger; 1 assistant messenger; 3 laborers, at $480 each; laborer, $400; in all, $59,000.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against the words "five thousand dollars," in line 24, page 122, being an increase of the salary of the Commissioner of Education.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] desire to be heard?

Mr. GILLETT. I think the item is clearly subject to the point of order, if the gentleman insists upon it. It was recommended last year and went out on a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. GILLETT. Inasmuch as the gentleman has caused it to be stricken out, I will submit an amendment, putting the salary back at $4,500.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Massachusetts offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

In lieu of the matter stricken out in line 25, page 122, insert "$4,500."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. GILLETT. I also ask that the total at the end of the paragraph may be corrected.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection the total at the end of the paragraph will be corrected.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Bureau of Manufactures: Chief of bureau, $4,000; assistant chief of bureau, $3,000; chief of division, $2,100; stenographer to chief of bureau, $1,600; 2 clerks of class 4; 1 clerk of class 3; 2 clerks of class 2; 4 clerks of class 1; 3 clerks, at $1,000 each; 5 clerks, at $900 each; 4 assistant messengers; 2 laborers; in all, $35,200.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against the language "three thousand dollars," in lines 6 and 7, page 48, it being an increase of salary.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas makes a point of order against the item in lines 6 and 7, page 48, reading "$3,000 for the assistant chief of bureau."

Mr. BURLESON. I would like to ask the gentleman from Arkansas if he would withdraw his point of order if it could be shown that this employee is justly entitled to this compensation.

Mr. MACON. Certainly. I will reserve the point of order, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. BURLESON. I will say to the gentleman that this employee is engaged in the important work of revising reports that are made by special agents sent out by the Department of Commerce and Labor for the purpose of promoting our foreign trade. Two of these special agents devote themselves to the industries in which one section, the South, is particularly interested, cotton-oil industry and the cotton-manufacturing industry. This employee devotes considerable of his time to the revision of these reports and the preparing of them for publication for the use of the trade. The Committee on Appropriations looked into the work he was doing most carefully, and we felt he was fairly entitled to this compensation.

Mr. TAWNEY. If the gentleman will pardon me, I want to suggest that since the appointment of this man as assistant chief of division he has had assigned to him the duties of chief clerk of the division, which prior to his appointment were performed by another employee.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee a question, and that is whether this man has taken the place of an extra man?

Mr. TAWNEY. He has. He is doing the work of not only the assistant chief of division but is now doing the work of chief clerk of the division, which work was performed at the time of his appointment by another employee. And in addition to that, in the absence of the chief of division he performs the duties of chief.

Mr. BURLESON. And he is one of the most valuable employees of the department.

Mr. MACON. There is nothing in the report or in the language of the bill that indicates that anybody has been dropped or that any salary has been done away with by the removal of an officer.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. If the gentleman will allow me, nobody has been dropped, but this man stands in the place of a man who would have to be appointed.

Mr. MACON. A chief clerk would have to be appointed?

Mr. MANN. They have three chiefs in the bureau now—the chief, the assistant chief, and a chief of division.

Mr. MACON. I can not see my way clear, Mr. Chairman, to violate the policy I have been pursuing since I have been a Member of this House, for I have felt that it was wrong to increase salaries on an appropriation bill.

Mr. TAWNEY. If the gentleman will pardon me, the recommendation of the committee is to reduce the salary rather than to increase it, for the reason that this man for $3,000 is doing the work which heretofore the Government has been paying $2,500 for to one man and $1,800 to another man.

Mr. MACON. What has become of the $1,800 salary?

Mr. TAWNEY. That has been wiped out.

Mr. MACON. Well, I asked the question a while ago if anybody had been taken out.

Mr. TAWNEY. There is no longer a chief clerk.

Mr. MACON. Of course if there is a saving of $1,800——

Mr. TAWNEY. Thirteen hundred dollars.

Mr. MACON. A saving of $1,300. Does the gentleman state that to be a fact?

Mr. MANN. Is that the case?

Mr. TAWNEY. I would suggest to the gentleman from Arkansas that in order to make it specific he offer an amendment to the effect that this man shall perform the duties of chief clerk, so that there will be no question about his being required to do the work of the chief clerk.

Mr. KEIFER. There is no appropriation here for a chief clerk.

Mr. MANN. Was there ever such an appropriation?

Mr. KEIFER. Yes.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I can not do much about amending these appropriation bills, because the committee is stronger than I am before the House, and I have to avail myself of such opportunities as present themselves to me to enable me to accomplish anything. I might offer an amendment that would consume the time of the House and yet not be able to accomplish anything as long as my weakness was opposed by the strength of this great committee.

But under the law I can save the American people $500 as an individual, as a representative of the people upon this floor at this particular time, and the reasons given by the gentlemen of the committee not being satisfactory to my mind, I must insist upon the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will inquire of the gentleman from Arkansas what the appropriation fixed in the last appropriation bill for this official was?

Mr. MACON. Two thousand five hundred dollars.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, then I move to insert the $2,500 at the proper place.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 148, line 6, insert "$2,500."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the totals will be changed to correspond with the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

The unexpended balance of the appropriation to complete the investigation into the industrial, social, moral, educational, and physical condition of woman and child workers in the United States, undertaken in accordance with act of Congress approved January 29, 1907: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be expended for the employment of any person in making said investigation who is not now in the employ of the Government or hereafter regularly appointed after competitive examination and certification through the Civil Service Commission, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, is hereby reappropriated and made available for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word of the paragraph ending on line 6, page 151. The proviso in this section, Mr. Chairman, is that no person shall be appointed, and no part of this fund shall be paid to any person who is not now in the employ of this Government unless he shall undergo a competitive examination and be certified by the Civil Service Commission.

Mr. MANN. That is the existing law?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. What I want to find out is, if anybody is in this service who has not stood the civil-service examination. This is a great civil-service administration. Why this limitation upon it? Is there anybody there who has not gone through the civil-service board?

Mr. GILLETT. This provides that nobody shall be. The gentleman does not object to this provision, does he? This was passed last year. It was agreed upon in conference between the House and the Senate.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Does the gentleman know why this provision is here? Have people been appointed to this place in disregard of the civil-service law that the committee felt called upon to insert this limitation?

Mr. GILLETT. I have forgotten the exact details. It was arranged last year in conference in the Senate. This was agreed upon. Just why I do not now remember, but it certainly is unobjectionable in its present form.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. I am not objecting to it, but I want to find out from that committee if the civil-service law has been so flagrantly violated that the committee felt called upon to incorporate this proviso in this appropriation bill.

Mr. GILLETT. It is put in this appropriation bill because it was in last year; that is all.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. But back of the proviso I want to know why it is.

Mr. TAWNEY. I will state to the gentleman what the history of that proviso is. When this law was originally enacted by Congress, it left the matter of the appointment of the people to make this investigation entirely outside of the classified service. It was so intended, and the Committee on Appropriations, in appropriating the first $150,000 that was recommended to defray the expense of this investigation, qualified it by the language in this proviso so as to prevent the appointment of any one outside of the classified service or limited the employment to those then in the classified service or to those certified by the Civil Service Commission after a competitive examination. It was in conference between the two Houses that this proviso was added to the provision appropriating the money for the investigation which the law authorized.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, it is exceedingly unfortunate that we find it necessary from year to year to hamper this appropriation with this limitation. I hope, therefore, that there will be no objection to an amendment which I want to offer, and that is on line 23, page 150, after the word "that," insert the word "hereafter."

Mr. MANN. This applies only to this appropriation.

The CHAIRMAN. The pro forma amendment, without objection, will be withdrawn, and the gentleman from South Carolina offers an amendment which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 150, line 23, after the word "that," insert the word "hereafter."

Mr. TAWNEY. It has never been expended heretofore except under this proviso.

Mr. MANN. It applies only to this.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Carolina is recognized.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. If I had time to perfect the amendment, I think I could make it permanent law, but as it is a limitation upon this particular appropriation——

Mr. TAWNEY. I will say to the gentleman that this investigation will be completed with the money now appropriated. There is no new money asked to carry it on. It is to enable the Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor to extend the work over into the next fiscal year and expend the unexpended balance of the appropriation made for the fiscal year 1909 to meet the expenses in the fiscal year 1910.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. And with due regard to the civil-service law?

Mr. TAWNEY. Yes.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Then I withdraw the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I renew the amendment as to striking out the last word.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Carolina withdraws the amendment, and the gentleman from Illinois moves to strike out the last two words.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from South Carolina is slightly in error in one thing, I think. The civil-service law did not apply to appointments under this appropriation. The appointments under this appropriation are not in the classified service, were not in the classified service unless covered in by act of the President, and for that reason it was thought desirable not to prevent a violation of the civil-service law and to enforce conformity with the spirit of the civil-service law, but to prevent the appointment of outside persons in this investigation. But I would like to ask the gentleman from Minnesota whether this provision of the law has in fact been obeyed both in letter and in spirit?

Mr. TAWNEY. It has.

Mr. BURLESON. As far as you know.

Mr. MANN. I have been informed to the contrary.

Mr. TAWNEY. I will state to the gentleman that the persons engaged in making this investigation are people who were transferred from the Census Bureau and from other bureaus in the Department of Commerce and Labor regularly appointed under civil-service law, or people who took the civil-service examination in accordance with the provisions of this statute and who were certified to the head of the department under whose jurisdiction the investigation is made as being qualified for appointment.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman is aware, of course, of the intention at one time to appoint a number of persons entirely outside of the service.

Mr. TAWNEY. Yes.

Mr. MANN. I do not know what the facts may be, but I have been informed that some of these people are now engaged in doing this work. How they got into the service I do not know, but I am quite certain not through a competitive examination.

Mr. TAWNEY. I should say to the gentleman from Illinois that the head of the Department of Commerce and Labor, just before the first appropriation became available, expressed sincere regret—and did so to me—that Congress saw fit to limit the employment of people in this service to those now in the classified service or to those who may pass the examination required under the statute; that they did have a number of people who were instrumental in securing the enactment of the law authorizing and directing this investigation to be made that they wanted to appoint, and they found now that it was impossible to do so under this provision. If there has been anybody who have gone in there without taking this examination, I do not know it.

Mr. OLMSTED. What is the meaning of this language: "Not now in the employ of the Government or hereafter regularly appointed?" Ought not it to read that "No one shall be employed who has not been appointed after a competitive examination?"

Mr. TAWNEY. Well, the investigation, so far as that is concerned, has been practically completed. The work now of compiling the information obtained as a result of the investigation is all that is necessary to entirely complete the work under this statute, and the Commissioner of Labor informed the committee investigating the estimates for all appropriations under this bill that they would not ask for any additional appropriation, but they did want the unexpended balance left over from the two previous appropriations made available in order that the compilation of the results of the investigation might be made.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Minnesota if he can state whether any persons transferred from any other bureau to do the work under this appropriation had gone in the civil service as a result of a noncompetitive examination?

Mr. TAWNEY. I can not state.

Mr. FITZGERALD. And then been transferred in here, or, in other words, have got in——

Mr. TAWNEY. Assuming there were some in the bureaus appointed without reference to civil service who have been transferred?

Mr. FITZGERALD. No; I am not assuming it, because under the law a man or woman might be appointed under civil service as the result of noncompetitive examination; but what was the fact, or does the gentleman know whether that has been done, that somebody went into another bureau as the result of a noncompetitive examination and had then been transferred into this?

Mr. MANN. This provision covers all that.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I know what the provision contemplates, but I would like to know what has been done.

Mr. MANN. I know; but under this provision it could not be done. I do not say it has not been done, and the provision does not speak of transfers. The provision speaks of people now in the service, now in the employ of the Government, or hereafter to be appointed by a competitive examination, and it expressly forbids the suggestion which the gentleman makes.

Mr. OLMSTED. But there might now be persons in the service of the Government and not in the classified service.

Mr. MANN. That is true, of course, but this provision, the gentleman from Pennsylvania understands, is in the law now and was not in the law when this appropriation was made.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. TAWNEY. I ask for five minutes more; I desire to offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota asks unanimous consent for five minutes more. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. OLMSTED. I would like to ask if there is not some typographical error in the printing of this. It seems to me, beginning on the third line, "for the fiscal year" ought to go in before the proviso.

Mr. TAWNEY. I was going to offer an amendment correcting that. That was prepared by the department and passed over in committee without having been given careful consideration. I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be withdrawn. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Transpose all after "commission," in line 3, page 151, down to and including line 6, and insert same after word "seven," in line 23, page 150.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing with the amendment.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization: For Commissioner-General of Immigration, $5,000; assistant commissioner-general, who shall also act as chief clerk and actuary, $3,500; private secretary, $1,800; statistician and stenographer, with authority to act as immigrant inspector, $2,000; 2 clerks of class 4; 3 clerks of class 3; 5 clerks of class 2; 3 clerks of class 1; 8 clerks, at $1,000 each; 6 clerks, at $900 each; 2 messengers; 1 assistant messenger; in all, $47,100, which, together with all other expenses of regulating immigration, shall be paid from the permanent appropriation for expenses of regulating immigration.

Mr. MACON and Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina rose.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. MACON] is recognized.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the language found on page 153, line 6, "five thousand dollars," and in line 8, "three thousand five hundred dollars."

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Will the gentleman withhold the point of order?

Mr. MACON. I will reserve the point of order.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I do not suppose that the point of order will hold against the Commissioner-General of Immigration. My recollection is that we give him the same salary that he held before. Am I right about that?

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will allow me, this is subject to the point of order, but I think if the gentleman understood it he would withdraw it, because by statute he now gets $4,000, but there is paid to him annually, and has been for many years, under the sundry civil bill, $1,000 in addition from the fund for the Chinese exclusion. So he gets the same salary. We thought it would be better to show on the face of it just what his salary was, and to make it one sum, so that while in phrase this is an addition, and while in appearance and technically it is subject to the point of order, it really does not substantially make any difference, and we thought it better legislation to have just what he was getting appear in one place.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. In regard to the other salary, I want to repeat to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. MACON] that this is the same salary he has been getting, namely, $1,000 from the lump sum of the head tax of the immigrants, and instead of having his salary in that state we withdrew the thousand dollars from the lump sum of the head tax and made his salary $5,000.

In regard to the other salary that the gentleman makes a point of order upon, Mr. Chairman, I will say this gentleman is the assistant commissioner-general, and for the last twelve months, or very nearly twelve months, he has been acting commissioner-general and was really entitled to that gentleman's salary all this time. He is not only the assistant commissioner-general, but he is the chief clerk. He is not only the chief clerk, but he is the actuary of that bureau. He is the busiest man, perhaps, of any man in the service in Washington. And that is not all. He is one of the most valuable men that we have in the service, and the three duties which I have mentioned have been put on him. Now, we could have given the commissioner-general an assistant at $3,000. We could have kept him as chief clerk and actuary at his old salary of $3,000. This increase of $500 saves to the Government, if he is able to continue to perform these duties, the salary of an assistant commissioner-general.

Mr. FITZGERALD. When will this gentleman be relieved from the necessity of performing the duties of the commissioner-general?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. He will not be relieved at all.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will he not be able to devote his time to his other duties and perform them properly without this increased compensation?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. He is assistant commissioner-general, Mr. Chairman, now. He will be assistant commissioner-general if this law is passed and approved by the President for the next fiscal year. The gentleman is presuming that he will be free from it; but he will not be.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I think the gentleman is mistaken in what he attributes to me. The gentleman asserted that this man had for the past year been performing the duties of the commissioner-general, in addition to his other duties. That was due to the unfortunate illness of the recent occupant of the office, who died.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Suppose this new man gets sick. This man must do the work.

Mr. FITZGERALD. This new man is not going to get sick, because he is an active, vigorous man, who contributed valuable services to the Republican party in the recent campaign. Such men do not get sick immediately after taking office under this administration.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I am not speculating as to the future, and do not want to gamble on it in this instance; but the facts remain, all the same, that when the commissioner is absent, either from sickness or any other cause, this man fills his place. He is the assistant commissioner-general, and I want to say to the gentleman from Arkansas that this is a saving of money, to give this sum of $500 to a man who holds three positions in the bureau, a man who can not be spared, and one of the most valuable men in the service.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman from Georgia yield to a question?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. Is the reason that the committee recommended the increase in the salary of the assistant commissioner the fact that it is supposed that the new commissioner, having been recently appointed purely for political reasons, will be disqualified from performing the actual duties of the office, and they expected the assistant commissioner to keep on really performing them?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. At present the new commissioner is not conversant with the duties of his position.

Mr. MANN. Is that what actuated the committee?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. No. He is a new man. The Secretary of Commerce and Labor, before the President issued the order that there should be no recommendation of increases, put this man in for $4,500; but when the President issued the order that there should be no increases recommended, of course the $4,500 went out.

Mr. TAWNEY. Will the gentleman from Georgia yield to me for a question?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Certainly.

Mr. TAWNEY. Is it or not a fact that the assistant commissioner has two subordinates who are receiving higher compensation than he is?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. He has two division chiefs, Mr. Powderly and Mr. Campbell, who receive $3,500 as chiefs of divisions, and they are under this man. They are under him as chief clerk, and they are under him as assistant commissioner.

Mr. MACON. I wish I could get after them. If I could I would reduce their salaries a thousand.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, I think we ought to be frank about this matter. The Commissioner-General of Immigration has been receiving a salary of $4,000 a year, and $1,000 additional from the Chinese-exclusion fund. The man who recently occupied this place was an effective, an efficient, and honest commissioner-general. He enforced the Chinese-exclusion act in so efficient a manner that he was directed by a superior not to be so active in the enforcement of the act. He protested to the Committee on Appropriations two or three years ago that because of these instructions the Chinese were coming into this country in violation of the law. If that law is not to be enforced as it should be, of course it would be improper to pay this $1,000 as additional compensation out of the fund placed at the disposal of the commissioner-general, because of the additional duties supposed to be performed by him. This new chief of the bureau, recently appointed under circumstances with which all are familiar, will not under this order enforce the Chinese-exclusion act in the manner intended by Congress. Therefore, these additional duties will not be devolved upon him, and there is no reason why he should receive the compensation for that purpose. But in order to give this gentleman the same compensation, it is now proposed to do away with the pretense and hypocrisy, and increase his compensation to $5,000. I have no sympathy with the proposal. I am glad that the gentleman from Arkansas has made the point of order, and I sincerely trust he will insist upon it.

Another thing in connection with the late Mr. Sargent, who was Commissioner-General of Immigration. He was practically stripped of his powers as the head of that bureau by the recent organization of the Bureau of Naturalization and Immigration.

He was pushed to one side and not permitted to perform his duties in the manner in which he was capable of performing them. This assistant commissioner, who for a year, during the commissioner's illness, was performing those duties and also his own duties of assistant commissioner, as well as the duties of the actuary and the duties of the chief clerk, must have had a pretty easy task in one or another of these positions in order to be able to perform the duties of so many places so efficiently. Now that an efficient man has been appointed to discharge the most important duties that must be discharged in that office, relieving the assistant to that extent and enabling him to devote his great talents and genius to the performance of the duties of the other three or four offices, it is proposed not only to relieve him from some of his labors, but to increase his salary as a compensation for the relief that is given to him. There is a lot of hypocrisy about the whole business, and I hope that the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. MACON], now that he has been furnished some real information about the matter, will insist on his point of order. I have no sympathy with the movement to pay political debts in this manner. We have had a lot of it recently, and it is time to stop it, and stop it effectively.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I insist on a division of the proposition. The gentleman from Arkansas has two amendments.

The CHAIRMAN. The question will be divided.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, I regret very much that even a suggestion of politics has been drawn into this matter. When it comes to legislating for the country's good, I do not think we ought ever to allow ourselves to be drawn away from the real issue or to allow our minds to be poisoned against what we are undertaking to do by a suggestion of politics. Politics should have nothing to do with legislation here if it is our purpose to do the best we know how for our country.

The first point of order that I made was against the increase of the salary of the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization. I insist that that point of order must necessarily be good, because the salary heretofore paid him has been $4,000 per annum.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is ready to rule on the point.

Mr. MACON. Since gentlemen have said so much about the matter, I should like to have an opportunity to say a few words myself, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. MACON. As I said, Mr. Chairman, the salary heretofore has been $4,000. By this bill it is sought to make it $5,000. When that amount once gets into an appropriation bill as the salary of the commissioner it will be $5,000 forever, or until it is increased by some future Congress, for it will never be reduced. We have no assurance whatever that this will be the only amount that will be paid this commissioner if we allow this appropriation to stay in this bill, for when the sundry civil bill is brought in it may carry a provision giving him $1,000 for his services in connection with the enforcement of the Chinese-exclusion act, just as has been done heretofore, and then he will receive $6,000 instead of the $5,000 carried in this bill. Anyway, sir, I prefer that the language of the law as now written shall remain upon the statute, rather than have it changed to give him a straight salary of $5,000 in this bill, with the possibility—nay, probability—of his having the $1,000 given to him in the sundry civil appropriation bill. We could not make a point of order against it then, because it has been carried in appropriation bills from time to time and has become existing law by reason thereof. So I insist upon the point of order against that provision.

Now, as to the second point of order which I have made against the increase of the assistant's salary, I will say that if it could be shown that the increase is only to be given for the same period of time that the gentleman has had to perform a double duty—that of the commissioner as well as the duties of his own position—I would not raise my voice against it, because that would, in a measure, be just. But if you increase his salary for all time because he did for a few months discharge the duties of the commissioner, you will have overdone the thing, and consequently will have done an injustice to those who are called upon to pay the increase.

I do not think that a wise policy, a wise plan of legislation. I believe that the salary now given to the gentleman is ample compensation for all of the services that he is being called upon to perform at this time, and that is all that we have got to deal with—conditions as they now are, the necessities as they now exist. For that reason, Mr. Chairman, I insist on the second point of order. Politics has nothing to do with it. I know no North, no South in connection with this question. I do not know whether anybody is being paid a political debt on the one side or on the other. The question to be considered is, Is it right? If it is right to increase the salary in this way, then the provision ought to remain in the bill; but if not right, then I want it to come out.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the Chair understand that the gentleman insists on both points of order?

Mr. MACON. I do.

The CHAIRMAN. The first point of order is directed to the item giving $5,000 to the Commissioner of Immigration, and the Chair sustains the point of order.

The second point of order is to the provision giving $3,500 to the assistant commissioner-general, and the Chair sustains the second point of order.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment that the original salaries there be restored as in the present law—$4,000 to the commissioner-general and $3,000 to the assistant commissioner-general.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend so as to read:
"To the Commissioner-General of Immigration, $4,000; to the assistant commissioner-general, who shall also act as chief clerk and actuary, $3,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. I make this motion for the purpose of calling the attention of the committee to what appears to me to be very unwise legislation and an evil that ought to be corrected. A year and a half or two years ago Congress provided for a special commission of immigration. That commission consists of three Senators, three Representatives, and three citizens appointed by the President of the United States. No life was fixed for the commission. It continues indefinitely. Nobody has control over it. Its expenses are paid out of a permanent fund. It is a permanent appropriation over which Congress has no control, and the Department of Commerce and Labor has no control over it except to pay its bills.

In order that the committee may understand the situation as it now exists, I send to the Clerk's desk to have read in my time the hearings before the committee.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Can you tell us what it cost for the congressional party's trip abroad?

Secretary STRAUS. You mean the commission that was appointed under the last immigration act?

Mr. GILLETT. About a year ago.

Secretary STRAUS. I can only give you the amount of money that they have drawn from the immigration fund.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. That is what I am after.

Secretary STRAUS. I can give you the sum total, but I can not give you any of the items of expenditure. They are not under my jurisdiction in any form, shape, or manner.

Mr. TAWNEY. Under whose jurisdiction are they?

Secretary STRAUS. Under the jurisdiction of that commission. That commission simply makes drafts upon us for $25,000 or $50,000 at a time.

Mr. TAWNEY. Who audits their accounts?

Secretary STRAUS. I can give you no answer upon that subject.

Mr. TAWNEY. Their accounts must be audited.

Mr. BURLESON. Their accounts are audited by the Auditor for the State and other Departments.

Secretary STRAUS. They are entirely outside the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Can you furnish us with an itemized statement as to the expenditures at Ellis Island?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. BURLESON. You can put in your remarks the amount that they have drawn from the immigration fund?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir; I can give you a statement of the amount of money they have drawn.

Mr. BURLESON. When you come to revise your remarks, put it in.

Secretary STRAUS. I certainly can. Only yesterday or the day before they drew $15,000.

Mr. GILLETT. The law authorizes them to do that?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Have they developed or secured any information so far that we could not have gotten out of your department, to the best of your knowledge and belief?

Secretary STRAUS. I do not feel that I am in a position, as the head of the Department of Commerce and Labor, to answer that question, for the reason that I am not informed, except in a small degree, of the line of work they have done.

Mr. BURLESON. Surely you can state whether they have brought any information to you which has been of value to you as head of your department.

Mr. BINGHAM. Did the act of Congress give you in any way authority as to their action or responsibility as to their action?

Secretary STRAUS. It did not.

Mr. BINGHAM. Therefore, you know nothing about it officially?

Secretary STRAUS. No, sir.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Will you designate somebody in your department—and I know you have him—who can give us the information I have asked for? Have they developed so far anything to the advantage of the Government or the country or the world that could not have been obtained right out of your office?

Secretary STRAUS. I think I am about as competent to answer that question as perhaps anybody in the department.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I think so, too.

Secretary STRAUS. I have no objection to designating anyone in the department if you have in view anybody in the department that you desire to come before you. I do not want you to misunderstand me on that subject. I want to make it as clear as it is possible to make it.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. You see what I want to get. I want to get the expense and the value of that expense to the country, if I can.

Secretary STRAUS. I understand.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. How much value have they been to us?

Secretary STRAUS. I understand that, but, as I said, it is impossible for me or anyone in the department to give you a comprehensive or satisfactory answer to your question, because neither I nor anyone else in the department is entirely conversant, with the exception of the assistant secretary of the department, who is also a member of the Immigration Commission.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I should think he was competent.

Secretary STRAUS. He ought to be competent to answer that question, because he has knowledge of what the commission has performed as well as what is done in the department. Assistant Secretary Wheeler, I should think, would be able and ought to be able to answer that question, not because he is Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor alone, but because he is a member of that commission and subsequently was employed as Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Mr. TAWNEY. How many years has this commission been working?

Secretary STRAUS. It organized in accordance with the last immigration act, section 39, I think.

Mr. TAWNEY. Three years ago?

Secretary STRAUS. No; about a year and a half ago. The act went into effect on the 1st of July, 1907. I think that it is in accordance with that provision of law.

Mr. TAWNEY. The expenses of the commission were appropriated out of the permanent appropriation?

Secretary STRAUS. Out of the immigration fund.

Mr. TAWNEY. That is a permanent fund?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. It is one of the permanent annual appropriations.

Secretary STRAUS. I want to answer a little further the question of Mr. LIVINGSTON. There have been some matters brought to the attention of my department by members of that commission in reference to an investigation made, especially in connection with the Chinese immigration and particularly in southern California, which are not yet concluded, showing certain irregularities in that service which have been of benefit to the department.

Mr. BURLESON. Of minor benefit?

Secretary STRAUS. I should say of minor benefit.

Mr. TAWNEY. Were the discoveries made of such a character that an intelligent immigration agent or inspector could not ordinarily have made the same discoveries in the exercise of his duties?

Secretary STRAUS. All the matters that have been brought to the attention of the department by this commission were such that the department itself could have readily discovered them.

Mr. BINGHAM. That commission makes its report to Congress and not to you?

Secretary STRAUS. That is correct.

Mr. BINGHAM. And further than that, the item in this bill under your department that covers the salaries for the Bureau of Immigration is in no wise connected with the special act for the organization of this commission?

Secretary STRAUS. Not in any way.

Mr. BINGHAM. The commission is wholly independent?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir; that is very correct. I think it will be found that considerable of the work of the commission has been run on lines that the department works on.

Mr. TAWNEY. Who constitute this commission?

Secretary STRAUS. There are three members of the Senate, three Members of the House, and three members appointed by the President. The three members appointed by the President are Commissioner Neill, of the department; Mr. Wheeler, who since his appointment on that commission has been appointed Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor; and Professor Jenks, of Cornell University.

Mr. TAWNEY. What is the life of the commission?

Secretary STRAUS. There is no life fixed for it.

Mr. BURLESON. Is it perpetual?

Secretary STRAUS. There is no life fixed.

Mr. TAWNEY. There is no tenure of office?

Secretary STRAUS. No, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. And the expense is about $300,000 a year?

Secretary STRAUS. I think, according to my best recollection, it has cost at the rate of about $300,000 a year, maybe a little less.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. How long was the commission abroad?

Secretary STRAUS. I am unable to answer that question. I think not all the members were abroad. I know Mr. Neill was not; he had too much work here.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Secretary, I see that, among other things, section 39 of the immigration act creating this commission provides that:

"Such sums of money as may be necessary for the said inquiry, examination, and investigation are hereby appropriated and authorized, to be paid out of the 'immigrant fund' on the certificate of the chairman of said commission, including all expenses of the commissioners and a reasonable compensation, to be fixed by the President of the United States, for those members of the commission who are not members of Congress."

There are three members of this commission who are not members of Congress. What compensation has the President fixed for those three members?

Secretary STRAUS. I can not tell you from accurate knowledge; but my belief is that the amount that they are entitled to receive is $7,500 a year.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. And expenses?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. Two of the members appointed by the President on that commission are holding office under the Government now?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. Commissioner Neill and Assistant Secretary Wheeler, of the Department of Commerce and Labor?

Secretary STRAUS. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. Do they receive $7,500 in addition to their salaries as Commissioner of Labor and as Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor?

Secretary STRAUS. No, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. Do they not receive the salaries allowed by law as Commissioner of Labor and as Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor?

Secretary STRAUS. My understanding is that to their present salaries is added an amount to equal $7,500. In other words, the Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor's statutory salary is $5,000, and, I think, he receives out of the fund of the commission an additional $2,500, making $7,500. Of course, they will be able to answer that question.

Mr. TAWNEY. I did not know whether you knew it or not.

Secretary STRAUS. I know it from hearsay.

Mr. TAWNEY. The compensation received by Professor Jenks is $7,500?

Secretary STRAUS. That is my understanding.

Mr. TAWNEY. He is not in the Government's employ?

Secretary STRAUS. He is not; no, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. And he receives that compensation without regard to the amount of time he devotes to the work of the commission?

Secretary STRAUS. I think the commission will have to answer that question, because I do not know.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Now, Mr. Chairman, in perfect good faith, I want to appeal to the chairman of this committee, or to those in authority, to say how long we are to continue under this system of permanent appropriations that Congress can have no control over from year to year. How long are we to have commissions appointed to whose existence there is no end fixed by law, absolutely without limitation and absolutely without the jurisdiction of any government authority, as this commission seems to be? It seems to be an evil way of legislating and an unwise way of conducting the Government. I am not responsible for the laws as they are or as they may be. I simply call attention to this fact, which I consider a great evil.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, in answer to the gentleman from South Carolina, I will say that I can not say to him or to the House how long the practice of enacting permanent appropriations will continue. He does not regret it any more than I do, but thus far it has been impossible to check the growth of permanent appropriations or to repeal any of those that are now on the statute books. We are this fiscal year expending about $155,000,000 under permanent appropriations, some of them definite and some of them indefinite. The particular permanent indefinite appropriation out of which the expense of this immigration commission has been paid will be repealed at this session of Congress if the recommendation the Committee on Appropriations will hereafter make to the House is adopted, which recommendation will be in line with the recommendation of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

In the estimate submitted for the specific appropriations for carrying on this service, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor recommends the repeal of this permanent appropriation; but how long the Government will continue to expend money under permanent appropriation laws nobody can tell, for at every session of Congress we are increasing the number of permanent appropriations on the statute books and increasing the aggregate amounts paid by the Government of the United States under such permanent appropriations. These expenditures are expenditures over which Congress has no control whatever. The expenditures are made without any report from the department in most of the cases as to the object or purposes for which the expenditure is made, and the expenditures in most instances are made within the discretion of the heads of the departments or the bureau chiefs authorized under the law to make such expenditures. Whether we shall ever get down to a business basis of appropriating annually for annual expenditures is a question that neither I nor any other Member of Congress can answer until Congress ceases to make these appropriations. The responsibility for them is upon Congress and not upon any committee of Congress nor upon any executive department of our Government.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn, and the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

For the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of the act approved June 29, 1906, entitled "An act to establish a Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization, and to provide for a uniform rule for the naturalization of aliens throughout the United States," namely: Chief of Division of Naturalization, $3,500; assistant chief of division, $2,500; 3 clerks of class 4; 3 clerks of class 3; 5 clerks of class 2; 7 clerks of class 1; four clerks, at $1,000 each; 2 clerks, at $900 each; 1 messenger; 1 assistant messenger; in all, $38,960.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to return to the first paragraph on this immigration section for the purpose of offering an amendment to change the totals to correspond with amendments.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Massachusetts asks unanimous consent to return to the preceding paragraph for the purpose of offering an amendment changing the totals. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. Without objection, the totals will be made in accordance with the provisions adopted.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

For chief of division, $3,500; assistant chief of division, $2,500; 2 clerks of class 4; 1 clerk of class 3; 2 clerks of class 2; 3 clerks of class 1; 1 clerk, $900; 1 messenger; in all, $19,340, which shall be paid from the permanent appropriation for expenses of regulating immigration.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word, merely for the purpose of saying that a few moments ago, on the other paragraph, there was more or less discussion in regard to the new Commissioner of Immigration. Whatever may have been the fact, or whatever may be the fact concerning the reasons for his appointment, so far as politics are concerned, whether his appointment was made in conformity with any agreement in advance or in payment of political service in any way, I think it is absolutely true, it is certainly fair to him to understand it and to state it if it be true, that Mr. Keefe is well qualified for the performance of the duties of that office, and is just as anxious to enforce the Chinese immigration law as the gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD], whom I do not see just at present in his seat, but who assumed that under the new régime that law would not be enforced. I dare say there is no man in the country more anxious to observe the Chinese immigration law or the other labor laws of the country affecting immigration than the Commissioner of Immigration, who stands high in labor circles and who has always through his work shown his ability to perform his work well.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment will be considered as withdrawn, and the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 4. When estimates hereafter transmitted to the Treasury for submission to Congress do not in form and arrangement comply with the provisions of section 4 of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act, approved June 22, 1906, they shall, under direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, be rearranged so as to comply with said requirements of law.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 5. Immediately upon the receipt of the regular annual estimates of appropriations needed for the various branches of the Government it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to estimate as nearly as may be the revenues of the Government for the ensuing fiscal year, and if the estimates for appropriations, including the estimated amount necessary to meet all permanent and continuing appropriations, shall exceed the estimated revenues the Secretary of the Treasury shall at once transmit a detailed statement of all of said estimates to the President, to the end that he may, in giving Congress information of the state of the Union and in recommending to their consideration such measures as he may judge necessary, advise the Congress how in his judgment the estimated appropriations could with least injury to the public service be reduced so as to bring the appropriations within the estimated revenues, or, if such reduction be not in his judgment practicable without undue injury to the public service, that he may recommend to Congress such loans or new taxes as may be necessary to cover the deficiency.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, on that I reserve the point of order.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, in the early history of this Government, when the collection of revenue and the expenditure of it were both under the charge of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House, a means was at hand to see to it that the expenses of the Government did not exceed its revenues. With the separation of the work of the Appropriation Committee from that of the Ways and Means Committee and with the subsequent assignment of many bills for the appropriation of money to other committees than that upon appropriations, we have ceased to have any single person or body charged with the duty of seeing that the expenses of the Government are brought within its revenues.

We are perhaps the only country that has no provision whatever of this nature. In countries having a responsible ministry the burden rests upon the ministry to see that the expenses of the government do not exceed the revenues of the government. Under our system each bureau and branch of the department reports its estimates to the head of the department; the head of the department sends these estimates to the Secretary of the Treasury; the Secretary of the Treasury sends them to Congress; they are here distributed among numerous committees having no charge of the revenues; each committee is impressed with the importance of its branch of the public service, and the direct tendency, therefore, is for each appropriating committee to think that the necessary reductions should be made in some other branch of the public service than that under their immediate control.

This amendment seeks to establish means for bringing the expenses within the revenues by providing that whenever the estimated expenses in any year exceed the estimated revenues, the Secretary of the Treasury shall transmit those estimates to the President of the United States, who is the head of all the departments, that he may recommend reductions to Congress to bring the expenses within the revenues, or if that be impracticable, that he may recommend to Congress what loans shall be made or new taxes be imposed to meet the deficiency. It thus casts upon the head of the Government and the head of all the departments the direct responsibility for seeing to it that the expenses do not exceed the revenues. Such a measure was never more heeded than now, and for several reasons. In the very year in which we now are it is probable that the expenses of the Government will exceed the revenues by more than $100,000,000, and the estimates of appropriations for next year exceed the estimated revenues by about $140,000,000.

There can be no excuse in a land like this, in time of profound peace and unbroken prosperity, for us to spend annually more money than we take into the Treasury, and some method must be devised for bringing the expenses within the revenues. Recently the President of the United States admonished the Cabinet that they must not recommend increases to this Congress, and this serves to illustrate how easy it is for the head of the Government, in its executive branch, to aid in keeping the estimates within the revenues, and this bill provides that these estimates shall be sent to him, first, that he may reduce the estimates, and secondly, if that be impossible, that he may report to Congress where means are to be derived, whether from loans or new taxes upon the people, to meet the deficiency. I hope that the point of order will not be made and that this amendment will be unanimously accepted by the House.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Iowa a question or two, if I may. As to the effect of this, as far as I can see the only effect of the amendment is to require a statement in detail of the estimates, together with the estimated receipts, to be transmitted to the President of the United States.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. And to cast upon him, as far as may be done under the Constitution, the responsibility, as head of all the departments, for a deficiency, if one exists.

Mr. MANN. Well, I take, so far as casting responsibility upon the President is concerned concerning his annual messages, that the Constitution itself fixes the responsibility upon him of making recommendations, and that it is not within the province of Congress to tell the President what recommendations he shall make or along what line he shall make recommendations. We have no such constitutional authority.

This, as far as I can see now, only gives to him or brings to his attention certain information which otherwise might not be brought to his attention, and gives him an opportunity to make such recommendations as he might choose under the Constitution.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. The gentleman in a sense is right that we have no power, and as this bill is drawn we have no means of requiring the President to send a specific message to Congress, but if the Congress provides for sending these estimates to him that he may advise them, I have no doubt that any ordinary President would receive this practical request from Congress that they wanted him to supervise the estimates of the departments, of which he is in fact the head.

Mr. MANN. Well, Mr. Chairman, upon that point the very essence of our constitutional government requires that the method of raising additional tax shall be made in this body; and if the purpose of the amendment be to require the President, at the beginning of every session of Congress, to send to this body specific recommendations as to how additional taxes can be made, it is highly improper.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. The gentleman is in error.

Mr. MANN. I am not so sure whether I am or not.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. In this sense, that while the bill must originate in this House, the thoughts do not have to originate in this House; and repeatedly Presidents of the United States have recommended new taxation systems to the country, and probably there is no one subject that has been referred to more often in the messages of the Presidents of the United States than the revenues of the United States.

Mr. MANN. All of which is absolutely true. The President, under the Constitution, has the power to make such recommendations as he may deem proper for the benefit and welfare of the country, but for us to require the President, or to request the President, to give us specific directions as to how additional taxes should be raised is only waiving half of our present privileges.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. It does not waive any privilege whatever. We have absolute control over the matter, but we request that the one who recommends that we spend more money than we are going to receive shall at the same time tell how he expects to get the money to pay that expense. That is all.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Suppose you confine it to the Secretary of the Treasury?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. That would be utterly impracticable. The Secretary of the Treasury would not control the estimates of any other department of this Government but his own, and if such a power should be conferred upon him it would be unwise, because the whole tendency would be to make the cut in other departments and not the Treasury Department.

Mr. MANN. Undoubtedly the purpose of the amendment is to require the President of the United States to see that we can get the money when he recommends the expenditure. The purpose of the amendment is to put the President in a hole. But my observation has been that we seldom have a President who is not fully able under such circumstances to put the House of Representatives in the hole and not be in the hole himself.

Mr. TAWNEY. If the gentleman from Illinois will permit me, as I understand——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. TAWNEY. I ask that the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] have five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. TAWNEY. As I understand the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH], it is not so much to require or request the President to advise how additional revenues shall be raised in order to meet the deficit, but for the purpose of getting his aid and assistance in keeping down the estimated expenditures for the next fiscal year. If the President exercises that power, there is no question but that he can reduce expenditures more effectively and to a far greater extent than it is possible for Congress to do without a recommendation of that kind from him.

Mr. MANN. Doubtless there is a great deal in the proposition of sending in some way to the President the estimates, so as to call his attention to the fact that the estimated expenses are invariably larger than the estimated receipts.

Mr. TAWNEY. No; the appropriations have not been invariably larger than the estimated expenditures.

Mr. MANN. I do not think there has been a year since the gentleman has been in Congress, or in the last forty years, where the estimated expenses have not been larger than the estimated receipts.

Mr. FITZGERALD. The gentleman is very much mistaken. If he will read the President's message, he will see that since 1892 there have been only two years in which the estimated expenditures have been greater than the estimated revenues.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman is mistaken. There have only been two years when the estimated revenues have not been greater than the actual expenditures, and the gentleman is confusing actual expenditures with estimated expenditures.

Now, here is a proposition to submit the Book of Estimates to the President for his perusal. It may be that members of the Committee on Appropriations read the Book of Estimates through. Nobody else ever does. It does not require the President to read, it only requires him to act upon it. I have very great doubt myself of the desirability of such an amendment without fuller consideration. The general purpose of the amendment I think everybody is in accord with.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman insist upon his point of order?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. None has been made.

The CHAIRMAN. It was reserved, not made.

Mr. MANN. I am perfectly willing to let the House take the responsibility of waiving its privileges if it wants to, right after the assault on its privileges by the President, and that you shall have the privilege of saying whether you shall go on kissing the hand that beats you.

Mr. GARRETT. I reserve the point of order.

Mr. MANN. I withdraw the point of order.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I renew it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair sustains the point of order. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk resumed and concluded the reading of the bill.

Mr. BINGHAM. I ask unanimous consent to make some changes in the totals and some clerical amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 27, in line 2, strike out "five hundred and eighty" and insert "four hundred and twenty."

On page 41, in lines 24 and 25, in lieu of the sum proposed insert "$259,800;" and on page 117, in line 20, strike out the semicolon and insert in lieu thereof a comma.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendments will be agreed to.

There was no objection.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I move you, sir, that the committee do rise and report the bill and amendments to the House, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and the bill as amended do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. CURRIER, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill H. R. 23464—the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill—and had instructed him to report the same back with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the bill as amended do pass.

Mr. BINGHAM. I move the previous question on the bill and amendments to its passage.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. Is a separate vote demanded on any of the amendments? If not, the amendments will be voted on in gross.

No separate vote was demanded.

The question was taken, and the amendments were agreed to in gross.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. BINGHAM a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

PERSONAL REQUEST.

Mr. PRINCE, by unanimous consent, obtained leave of absence for five days on account of important business.

Mr. WEEKS, by unanimous consent, obtained leave to withdraw from the files of the House, without leaving copies, the papers in the case of William H. Gildersleeve (H. R. 2984), Fifty-ninth Congress, no adverse report having been made thereon.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. BINGHAM. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 11 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the commissioner of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company, transmitting the report of the company for the year ended December 1, 1908—to the Committee on Banking and Currency and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a report of action taken during the year ended June 30, 1908, upon claims of postmasters on account of burglary, fire, theft, etc.—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the seventh annual report of the Reclamation Service—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, transmitting a supplemental report as to the disposal of nonreservation Indian schools—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, with a copy of a letter from the Auditor for the Post-Office Department, a recommendation of legislation for the relief of deputy auditors—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. WANGER, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 22879) to amend an act entitled "An act to amend an act to authorize the city of St. Louis, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River," approved January 23, 1908, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1794), which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of the following bills, which were referred as follows:

A bill (H. R. 23137) for the relief of Malcolm Gilliss—Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (H. R. 13704) granting a pension to Jacob Metzger—Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23706) to amend the act approved May 28, 1908, entitled "An act to regulate the employment of child labor in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: A bill (H. R. 23707) to incorporate the Imperial Palace, Dramatic Order, Knights of Khorassan—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A bill (H. R. 23708) authorizing a survey, plans, and estimates for the purpose of establishing an ice harbor on the Ohio River at or near the outlet of Mill Creek at Cincinnati, Ohio—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. FULTON: A bill (H. R. 23709) to establish an enlisted men's naval academy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. PRINCE: A bill (H. R. 23710) to resubdivide squares 37 and 38 of C. Wilhelmina Dobbins's addition to the city of Washington—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 23711) to build a bridge across the Santee River, South Carolina—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. MALBY: A bill (H. R. 23712) for the improvement of the harbor at Plattsburg, N. Y.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. SMITH of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23713) authorizing the construction of a bridge across Current River, in Missouri—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. PEARRE: A bill (H. R. 23714) for the laying out and construction of a boulevard as a memorial to Abraham Lincoln from the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, to the battlefield of Gettysburg, in the State of Pennsylvania, by way of the battlefield of Antietam, in the State of Maryland—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 23715) relative to outward alien manifests on certain vessels—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HAWLEY: A bill (H. R. 23716) extending the operation of pension laws in favor of the officers and soldiers of Indian wars to include the officers and soldiers of the Bannock war, Oregon and Washington, of 1878 and 1879—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HUMPHREY of Washington: A bill (H. R. 23717) to extend the time for construction and beginning construction of the Alaska Short Line Railroad in Alaska—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. KEIFER: A bill (H. R. 23718) granting an increase of pension to all persons who have lost the sight of one eye from causes originating in the military or naval service of the United States—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GODWIN: A bill (H. R. 23719) for the relief of sufferers from the flood which occurred by the overflow of the Cape Fear River in the counties of Bladen, Cumberland, and Harnett, in the State of North Carolina, in the month of August, 1908—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GOULDEN: A bill (H. R. 23720) to create in the War and Navy departments, respectively, a roll to be known as the "civil war officers' annuity honor roll;" to authorize placing thereon, with pay, certain surviving officers who served in the Volunteer or Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States in the civil war, and who are not now on the retired list of the Regular Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LOWDEN: A bill (H. R. 23847) to provide for the erection of a public building at Rochelle, in the State of Illinois—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 202) authorizing the granting of permits to the Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies on the occasion of the inauguration of the President-elect on March 4, 1909, etc.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAIR: A bill (H. R. 23721) granting a pension to Amos Headley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23722) granting a pension to Benjamin F. Seman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23723) granting an increase of pension to William Voorhes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. AMES: A bill (H. R. 23724) granting a pension to John Collins—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23725) granting a pension to Michael Lanergan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: A bill (H. R. 23726) granting a pension to Eliza Oldham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BANNON: A bill (H. R. 23727) granting an increase of pension to John S. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23728) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Rainey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23729) granting an increase of pension to William W. Hoffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: A bill (H. R. 23730) for the relief of Freeman, Richardson & Co.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. BARNHART: A bill (H. R. 23731) granting a pension to Clark R. Parcel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23732) granting a pension to T. B. Hedges—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23733) granting a pension to William Wildermuth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 23734) for the relief of the heirs of James King, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURTON of Delaware: A bill (H. R. 23735) for the relief of Charles W. Johnston and of Harry C. Maull and Charles S. Morris, administrator of Elihu J. Morris, his sureties—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CALDWELL: A bill (H. R. 23736) to correct the military record of Charles P. Brace—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23737) granting an increase of pension to John Purkapile—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CANDLER: A bill (H. R. 23738) for the relief of the heirs of Louisa Elliott, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CAULFIELD: A bill (H. R. 23739) granting an increase of pension to Caroline Land—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23740) granting an increase of pension to George B. Sheridan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23741) granting a pension to Herman J. Wacker—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CONNER: A bill (H. R. 23742) granting an increase of pension to William Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23743) granting an increase of pension to James S. Lea—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23744) granting an increase of pension to Howard Haworth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COUSINS: A bill (H. R. 23745) granting an increase of pension to Samuel M. Edmonds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CRUMPACKER: A bill (H. R. 23746) granting an increase of pension to Charles J. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23747) granting an increase of pension to Green Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23748) granting an increase of pension to John Harrigan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 23749) granting an increase of pension to Charles C. Eaton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23750) granting an increase of pension to Isaac V. Mossman—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23751) granting an increase of pension to James Orr—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23752) granting an increase of pension to William Lane—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23753) granting an increase of pension to James T. Phillips—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23754) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Fox—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. DAVENPORT: A bill (H. R. 23755) granting an increase of pension to David Meredith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23756) granting an increase of pension to David W. Rump—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23757) granting an increase of pension to Israel Hait, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: A bill (H. R. 23758) granting an increase of pension to William Dutcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: A bill (H. R. 23759) granting an increase of pension to David S. Brower—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 23760) granting a pension to Henry F. Watkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 23761) granting an increase of pension to John T. Becker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23762) granting an increase of pension to Joshua O. Beall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HACKNEY: A bill (H. R. 23763) granting an increase of pension to Alfred A. Hulett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23764) granting an increase of pension to Harrold Tubbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23765) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Yoachum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMLIN: A bill (H. R. 23766) to correct the military record of Francis Campbell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23767) to correct the military record of Oliver T. Worman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HAYES: A bill (H. R. 23768) granting a pension to Charles Francis Marshall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 23769) granting an increase of pension to Philander G. Woodworth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23770) granting an increase of pension to Everill J. Hills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOBSON: A bill (H. R. 23771) granting an increase of pension to Arthur Gable—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23772) granting a pension to Martin J. Tierney—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23773) granting a pension to Olaus Anderson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23774) granting a pension to Frank A. Meier—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HOLLIDAY: A bill (H. R. 23775) granting an increase of pension to Edmond B. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23776) granting an increase of pension to James Clark Hollick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23777) granting an increase of pension to Frank Waters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23778) granting an increase of pension to William H. Owen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23779) granting an increase of pension to Absalom E. Gentry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23780) granting an increase of pension to Wesley W. Wildman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23781) granting an increase of pension to Francis Heath—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23782) granting an increase of pension to Jasper N. Woods—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23783) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23784) granting an increase of pension to George W. Newell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23785) granting an increase of pension to Reason Husbands—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWLAND: A bill (H. R. 23786) granting an increase of pension to Thomas O'Kelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23787) granting a pension to George Stephens, sr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23788) granting an increase of pension to Solomon Winningham—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 23789) granting a pension to John Dillon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KELIHER: A bill (H. R. 23790) granting a pension to Mary E. O'Neil—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23791) granting a pension to Henry F. Short—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23792) granting an increase of pension to John C. Bean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDSAY: A bill (H. R. 23793) granting an increase of pension to George H. Peck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23794) granting an increase of pension to Robert McGuire—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LONGWORTH: A bill (H. R. 23795) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ewert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 23796) granting an increase of pension to Royal J. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23797) granting a pension to Robert Splane—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 23798) granting an increase of pension to Christian Ankele—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23799) for the relief of William Francis—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 23800) granting a pension to Wardell Guthrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23801) granting an increase of pension to Rollin B. Organ—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 23802) for the relief of the heirs of James C. Connor, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23803) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Kansinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOUSER: A bill (H. R. 23804) providing for the naturalization of Louis Bossing—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23805) granting an increase of pension to Albert McHenry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: A bill (H. R. 23806) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Poe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23807) granting an increase of pension to William H. McIntyre—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PADGETT: A bill (H. R. 23808) for the relief of Capt. J. W. Hanner—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23809) granting a pension to Mary J. Broadstreet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PATTERSON: A bill (H. R. 23810) for the relief of the heirs at law of William Corley, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ROBERTS: A bill (H. R. 23811) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Goss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23812) granting an increase of pension to James H. Haney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 23813) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Owen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23814) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Saul—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23815) granting a pension to Mary C. Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23816) granting a pension to Jennie Bowles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STURGISS: A bill (H. R. 23817) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 23818) granting a pension to Ralph G. Tanner—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23819) granting an increase of pension to August J. Sunden—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SWASEY: A bill (H. R. 23820) granting an increase of pension to Hosea B. Fowler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TALBOTT: A bill (H. R. 23821) granting an increase of pension to John E. Buffington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THISTLEWOOD: A bill (H. R. 23822) granting an increase of pension to Kate G. Andrews--to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23823) granting an increase of pension to George W. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23824) granting a pension to Virginia E. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23825) granting an increase of pension to Sarah J. Berry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TIRRELL: A bill (H. R. 23826) granting an increase of pension to Daniel W. Ricker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WANGER: A bill (H. R. 23827) granting an increase of pension to Levi F. Kepler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23828) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Birkey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23829) granting an increase of pension to James D. Sands—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23830) granting an increase of pension to Joseph T. Watts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23831) granting a pension to Malinda K. Erlenmeyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WASHBURN: A bill (H. R. 23832) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEBB: A bill (H. R. 23833) granting a pension to Millie Riddle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23834) granting an increase of pension to Andrew S. Hicks—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 23835) granting an increase of pension to Edwin V. Graves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23836) granting an increase of pension to Gilbert H. Tremain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. AIKEN (by request): A bill (H. R. 23837) granting a pension to Christopher Williams—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 23838) granting an increase of pension to William L. Wommack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23839) granting an increase of pension to Elry P. Parsons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23840) granting an increase of pension to William A. McWhorter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23841) granting an increase of pension to Francis J. D. Wolff—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23842) granting a pension to C. A. Bills—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 23843) granting an increase of pension to George S. Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: A bill (H. R. 23844) granting an increase of pension to Edward W. Freeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23845) granting an increase of pension to John E. Heppeard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23846) granting an increase of pension to Jacob A. Nonnamaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 23848) granting an increase of pension to Henry Van Keuren—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: Resolution (H. Res. 452) for the payment of a certain sum of money to Richard H. Meshaw and John W. Meshaw—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. CRAIG: Resolution (H. Res. 453) to pay to J. J. Speight a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Petition of the Veteran Army of the Philippines, praying for recognition of August 13 as a legal holiday for the soldiers of legal occupation of the Philippine Islands—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, praying for the construction of rivers, harbors, and canals and the improvement of California rivers and harbors and the construction of navy-yards along the Pacific coast and for the encouragement of greater industry and various other enterprises—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of Levi Barber, of Bushnell, Ill., and 10 others, ex-officers of the volunteer forces of the civil war, praying for the enactment of a law for the volunteer retired list—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Illinois State Dental Society, praying for the enactment of legislation and creation of a commissioned dental corps in the army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of John Gee and 14 others, protesting against the passage of a bill entitled "An act for the proper observance of Sunday in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of the Synod of Indiana of the Presbyterian church, praying for the enactment of a law requiring corporations engaged in interstate commerce to give to their employees who work on Sunday a full day of rest during the week—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of William A. Bastick, of Goodwell, Okla., praying for legislation to enable homesteaders who live on their land in good faith to make a second homestead entry—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of the Synod of Indiana of the Presbyterian Church, praying for legislation to prevent Sunday banking in post-offices and the handling of money orders and registered letters—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of H. K. Mosher and 15 others, of Liberal, Kans., remonstrating against the passage of the act for the proper observance of Sunday in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of the Presbyterian Synod of Kansas, praying for legislation to prevent Sunday banking in post-offices and to provide for Sunday rest of the employees of interstate commerce corporations—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the various councils of the Order of the Knights of Columbus, praying for legislation to make the date of discovery of America by Christopher Columbus a legal holiday—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Agustus May, of New Orleans, La., praying for legislation for the relief of those who took out letters patent—to the Committee on Patents.

Also, petition of the Synod of Illinois, praying for legislation to prevent Sunday banking in post-offices and handling money orders and registered letters—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Spokane (Wash.) Chamber of Commerce, in favor of increasing the salaries of the circuit and district judges of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of C. A. Teller, of Yauco, P. R., in relation to the proposed legislation conferring citizenship upon the inhabitants of Porto Rico—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

Also, petition of the general committee of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, praying for legislation to suppress the importation, manufacture, and sale of opium, except guardedly for proper medicinal uses—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, praying for legislation to provide for the improvement of the Ohio River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Catherine J. Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Paper to acccompany bill for relief of Peter Everly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Smith & Schott Company, of Millersburg, Ohio, favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BOOHER: Petition of United States United Military Telegraphers, favoring legislation to provide pension for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Charles W. J. Strong (H. R. 23493)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bills for relief of William F. Pike (S. 807; H. R. 6358)—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BRODHEAD: Petition of Ebert's Company, of Bethlehem, Pa., favoring the removal of the duty from raw and refined sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James King—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURKE: Petition of Standard Leather Company, favoring removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CANDLER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Louisa Elliott—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CASSEL: Petition of John R. Ebersole and others, against S. 3940 (religious legislation in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CAULFIELD: Papers to accompany bills for relief of Herman J. Wacker, Caroline Land, and George B. Sheridan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAWSON: Petition of Local No. 695, International Association of Machinists, of Davenport, Iowa, favoring changes in immigration laws—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. DRAPER: Petition of Squires, Sherry & Galusha, of Troy, N. Y., for removal of duty on sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DWIGHT: Petition of J. C. Stowell and Blackman Brothers, of Ithaca, N. Y., asking for the removal of the duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ESCH: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William Dutcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Petition of Veteran Army of the Philippines, J. G. Harbord, department commander, asking legislation that will permit the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps to observe August 13 as a legal holiday—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. FLOYD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John W. Hughes (H. R. 12492)—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James Red (H. R. 21651)—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Kelley Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: Paper to accompany bills for relief of John T. Buker and Joshua O. Beall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of J. B. Hoffman, of Shiloh, N. Y., favoring Fuller bill (H. R. 19250), to create a volunteer officers' retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Illinois Manufacturing Association, against further legislation against corporations—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. GARNER: Petition of citizens of Lavernia, Tex., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of citizens of Texas, against any parcels-post legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Petition of H. N. Patterson and C. N. Patterson, of Sharpsburg, Pa., favoring the Tirrell bill (H. R. 12405) and the Bacon bill (S. 5151), relative to sale of intoxicants, etc.—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

Also, papers to accompany bills for relief of Alexander Snodgrass, Alexander Ingram, and Samuel L. Jennison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Iowa: Petition of citizens of Iowa, against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HAMLIN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John L. Norris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HASKINS: Petition of citizens of Worcester, Vt., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HAYES: Petition of A. E. Yoell, for legislation enacting more stringent immigration laws against Asiatics—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Board of Trade of San Francisco, for appropriation to continue and enlarge the work by the Bureau of Soils—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Philander G. Woodworth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOBSON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of F. A. Meier—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John W. Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUBBARD of Iowa: Petition of citizens of Sibley, Iowa, against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Rezin W. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of F. K. Teele, of San Francisco, Cal., and T. H. Wiltz, favoring an Asiatic exclusion law—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of Board of Trade of San Francisco, for appropriation to enlarge and extend work of Bureau of Soils—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WILLIAM W. KITCHIN: Petition of Synod of North Carolina, for enactment of H. R. 11805, to prevent Sunday banking by post-offices—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. LINDBERGH: Petition of citizens of Wadena County, Minn., against enactment of the Johnston Sunday bill (S. 3940)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George H. Peck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of New York City, against the Johnston bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LOUD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Royal G. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Kansinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of James C. Conner—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James Nipper (previously referred to the Committee on War Claims)—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PADGETT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George W. Brewer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Pulaski Board of Trade, favoring S. 4825 (establishment of Appalachian and White Mountains National Forest Reservation)—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of J. W. Harmer—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. PEARRE: Petition of voters of Liberty election district, Maryland, for the Acheson bill (H. R. 4850), giving States control over all liquor commerce—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. PRAY: Petition of Aldrich Local Union, No. 57, for investigation and regulation of the Treadwell Mining Company, of Douglas Island, Alaska—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Also, petition of business firms of Havre, Mont., against parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. ROBERTS: Petition of Veteran Army of Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenyt-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of Massachusetts Society of Sons of the American Revolution, favoring permanent maintenance of Fort McHenry as a garrison post—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Engineering Society of the Carolinas, favoring legislation for extension of national forests—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. ROBINSON: Petition against S. 3940, providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. STAFFORD: Petition of Saengerbund of the Northwest, against amendment of section 3893 of the United States Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of Saengerbund of the Northwest, against unjust prohibition legislation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. STEENERSON: Petition of George T. Hughes, for legislation establishing a bureau of health at Washington—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of citizens of Minnesota, against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. STURGISS: Petition of Pugh & Beavers Grocery Company, of Grafton, W. Va., favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel J. Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: Petition of Merrimack Lodge, No. 266, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Nashua, N. H., for literacy test as a means of restricting the present immigration of cheap labor—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. TIRRELL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Daniel W. Ricker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VREELAND: Petition of residents of Wellsville, N. Y., against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WASHBURN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of Massachusetts, against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WHEELER: Petition of Armstrong Grocery Company, of Sharon, Pa., favoring removal of customs duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: Petition of Elmer Sholer and 21 other residents of Williamsport; Roy Wilkinson and 74 others, of Sunderlinville; and Grayce Gardner and 21 others, of Galeton, all of the State of Pennsylvania, against the passage of S. 3940, entitled "An act for the proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

SATURDAY, December 12, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRIVATE PENSION BILLS.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, under an order of the House bills on the Private Calendar which would have been in order yesterday were set for consideration on the day following the passage of the legislative bill, but the Committee on Appropriations did its work so perfectly and completely that all that was necessary for the House to do yesterday was to say amen, instead of taking several days in the consideration of the bill, as it frequently does. I now ask unanimous consent to substitute Thursday next for the consideration of the bills on the Private Calendar that otherwise would be in order to-day.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to substituting Thursday for to-day for pensions under the rule?

There was no objection.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York demands the regular order. The Clerk will call the committees.

The Clerk proceeded with the call of committees.

The Committee on the Judiciary was called.

UNITED STATES COURTS, CLARKSDALE, MISS.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary, I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 21736) to provide for holding terms of the United States courts at Clarksdale, Miss.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the counties of Coahoma, Bolivar, Quitman, Tunica, Sunflower, Tallahatchie, and Leflore shall constitute a part of the northern judicial district of the State of Mississippi and shall be known as the Delta division of said district. Circuit and district courts for the transaction of business pertaining to persons or property in said Delta division shall be held at the city of Clarksdale, in Coahoma County, on the third Monday in June and December in each year, and shall continue for twelve days or so long as business may require.

SEC. 2. That said courts to be held at Clarksdale, as provided in section 1 of this act, shall be possessed of and shall exercise all the powers and jurisdiction now possessed or exercised, or which may hereafter be granted to or exercised, by the circuit and district courts in said district now held at Oxford, Miss., and all laws regulating and defining how suits against persons or property located or found in judicial districts shall be brought shall be applicable to and govern the bringing of suits in said Delta division; and all laws touching the removal of causes from the state courts to the United States courts shall apply to said court hereby established; but all crimes and offenses heretofore committed within the counties composing said Delta division shall be prosecuted, tried, and determined in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of the clerks of the courts now held at Jackson, Oxford, and Vicksburg, on demand of either party to any suit now pending in either of said courts, and properly belonging to the courts to be held at Clarksdale, to make out and certify a copy of the record and proceedings in said suit and transmit the same to the deputy clerk of the proper court at Clarksdale; and he shall enter said cause on his docket, and the same shall be proceeded with as if it had been originally brought in said court. The fee for such transcript shall be paid for by the party applying for same.

SEC. 4. That the marshal and clerk of said northern district of Mississippi shall appoint deputies who shall reside at Clarksdale and act as marshal and clerk in place of their principals: Provided, That the Government shall not be subjected to any expense on account of the provisions of this act.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, if no gentleman desires to ask any question about the bill, I ask for a vote.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was accordingly read the third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. JENKINS, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

JUDICIAL DIVISIONS IN THE DISTRICT OF INDIANA.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary, I call up the bill (H. R. 21898) to provide for the establishment of judicial divisions in the district of Indiana, designating the places where court shall be held, and for other purposes connected therewith.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the judicial district of Indiana is hereby divided into six divisions, which shall be known, respectively, as the first division, the second division, the third division, the fourth division, the fifth division, and the sixth division of the district of Indiana. The counties of Allen, Dekalb, Steuben, Lagrange, Noble, Elkhart, Kosciusko, Wabash, Miami, Huntington, Whitley, Wells, Adams, Blackford, and Jay shall constitute the first division, and the court for said division shall be held at Fort Wayne, Ind. The counties of Lake, Porter, Laporte, St. Joseph, Marshall, Starke, Fulton, Pulaski, Carroll, White, Jasper, Newton, Benton, Tippecanoe, and Warren shall constitute the second division, and the court for said division shall be held at Hammond, Ind. The counties of Vanderburg, Posey, Warrick, Spencer, Perry, Dubois, Pike, Gibson, Knox, Daviess, and Martin shall constitute the third division, and the court for said division shall be held at Evansville, Ind. The counties of Floyd, Harrison, Crawford, Orange, Washington, Clark, Jackson, Scott, Jennings, Jefferson, Ripley, Ohio, and Switzerland shall constitute the fourth division, and the court for said division shall be held at New Albany, Ind. The counties of Sullivan, Greene, Lawrence, Vigo, Clay, Vermilion, and Parke shall constitute the fifth division, and the terms of court for said division shall be held at Terre Haute, Ind. The remaining counties embraced in said district shall constitute the sixth division, and the terms of court for said division shall be held at Indianapolis, Ind.

SEC. 2. That the terms of said courts shall be held: In the first division, at Fort Wayne, Ind., on the first Monday in May and the third Monday in November of each year; in the second division, at Hammond, Ind., on the third Monday in April and the first Monday in November in each year; in the third division, at Evansville, Ind., on the third Monday in March and the first Monday in October of each year; in the fourth division, at New Albany, Ind., on the first Monday in March and the third Monday in September of each year; in the fifth division, at Terre Haute, Ind., on the first Monday in April and the third Monday in October of each year; in the sixth division, at Indianapolis, Ind., on the third Monday in May and the first Monday in December of each year: Provided, however, That if a trial is in progress in either of the divisions aforesaid at the time when the term of court in either of said other divisions is to begin, then the court shall continue in session in said first-named division until said case is disposed of.

SEC. 3. That all civil suits not of a local nature which shall be hereafter brought in said district against a single defendant, or where all the defendants reside in the same division of said district, shall be brought and tried in the division in which the defendant or defendants reside; but if there are two or more principal defendants residing in different divisions, such suit or proceeding may be brought and tried in either division, and all mesne and final process subject to the provisions of this act, issued in either of said divisions, may be served and executed in any or all of said divisions.

SEC. 4. That in all cases of removal of suits and proceedings from the courts of the State of Indiana to the courts of the United States in said district, such removal shall be to the United States courts in the division in which the county is situated from which the removal is made, and the time within which the removal shall be perfected, in so far as it refers to or is regulated by the terms of the United States courts, shall be deemed to refer to the terms of the United States courts in such division.

SEC. 5. That prosecutions for crimes or offenses hereafter committed in said district shall be tried within the division in which such crimes or offenses are committed, and all grand and petit jurors summoned for service in any division shall be residents of such division.

SEC. 6. That all civil suits and proceedings now pending in the circuit or district courts of said district which would, if instituted after the passage of this act, be required to be brought or tried in any particular division thereof, shall be transferred to such division and there disposed of in the same manner and with like effect as if the same had been there instituted; and all process, writs, and recognizances relating to such suits and proceedings so transferred shall be considered as belonging to the terms of the court in the divisions of said district in which they are tried, in the same manner and with like effect as if they had been issued or taken in reference thereto originally.

SEC. 7. That full records in all actions and proceedings in any division shall be kept in the office of the clerk in such division, and that the clerk of the district and circuit courts for the district of Indiana and the marshal and district attorney for said district shall perform the duties appertaining to their offices, respectively, for said courts; and said clerk and marshal shall appoint deputies in each of said divisions in which a deputy clerk and deputy marshal does not already reside, who shall reside in and keep their offices at the place of holding court in each of said divisions.

SEC. 8. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, if there are no questions to be asked and no argument is desired, I ask for a vote.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was accordingly read the third time and passed.

CERTAIN OFFENSES AGAINST THE POSTAL LAWS.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary, I call up the bill (H. R. 21051), amending the penal laws of the United States.

The bill was read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 5467 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be, and the same hereby is, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 5467. Whoever, being a postmaster or other person employed in any department of the postal service, shall unlawfully detain, delay, or open any letter, postal card, package, bag, or mail intrusted to him or which shall come into his possession, and which was intended to be conveyed by mail, or carried or delivered by any carrier, messenger, agent, or other person employed in any department of the postal service, or forwarded through or delivered from any post-office or station thereof established by authority of the Postmaster-General; or shall secrete, embezzle, or destroy any such letter, postal card, package, bag, or mail; or shall steal, abstract, or remove from any such letter, package, bag, or mail, any article or thing contained therein, shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, what change does this make in the present law?

Mr. JENKINS. I will yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BATES], who introduced the bill.

Mr. BATES. Mr. Speaker, the only change made by the bill, as I understand it, is to substitute the word "or" instead of the word "and." By this change the penalty for a certain grade of what might be called "minor offenses against the postal laws" is lodged in the discretion of the court as to whether there shall be fine or imprisonment, or both. The law now provides fine and imprisonment. This change leaves it in the discretion of the court to separate the penalty, inflicting one or the other, or both, as the court may see fit.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Will the gentleman from Pennsylvania enumerate the offenses that this statute covers?

Mr. BATES. Tampering with the mail bags; unlawfully opening letters or mail bags are the main offenses.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. JENKINS, a motion to reconsider the vote whereby the bill was passed was laid on the table.

ESTABLISHING BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN COLORADO AND NEW MEXICO AND OKLAHOMA.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary I call up Senate resolution 78, establishing the boundary line between the States of Colorado and Oklahoma and the Territory of New Mexico.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the establishment of the boundary line between the States of Colorado and Oklahoma and the Territory of New Mexico, authorized by the act of Congress approved July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. L., p. 574), "For the resurvey and reestablishment on the line of the thirty-seventh parallel of north latitude * * * ," it being the boundary line established by the enabling act (March 3, 1875; 18 Stat. L., p. 474) under which Colorado was admitted into the Union; said survey having been made and monuments set on said line and having been approved and accepted by the Interior Department under date of February 25, 1904, and known as the "Carpenter survey," be, and the same is hereby, accepted by the United States on its part as the proper location of the thirty-seventh parallel and the true boundary line between the said States and Territory.

Mr. BONYNGE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the chairman of the Judiciary Committee if he will not consent that this bill may go over without prejudice. My colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] from the Second Congressional District is familiar with the facts and desirous of being present when the matter comes before the House. I do not know anything about the facts myself, but I stated to my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] that if it came up in his absence I would request that it go over until he was present.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on the Judiciary would have no hesitancy in agreeing to the request of the gentleman from Colorado, but this matter has been pending for a long time. Gentlemen in the Senate are very much interested in the passage of this resolution, and have asked us to get it promptly passed. Every gentleman in the delegation of both Houses has been notified and has appeared and, as we understand it, has acquiesced.

Mr. BONYNGE. I understand my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] does not acquiesce, that he is very much opposed to the resolution. It is a matter that affects the southern boundary of Colorado and is a matter of considerable importance; and, while it is outside of my district, I should be very glad if the gentleman who represents the second district specifically could be present when the matter comes before the House.

Mr. JENKINS. The gentleman from Colorado will appreciate the fact that the committee has already postponed this matter two or three times to accommodate absent gentlemen. It is impossible to do business if we have to wait until every man interested in a proposition can be present. We would not press it if it were not that the gentlemen behind this matter say that it is important that it should pass early.

Mr. BONYNGE. I hope the gentleman from Wisconsin will grant my request and let it go by without prejudice when it can come up Monday morning if possible. It changes the boundary line of the State and it is a matter of vital importance that the gentleman who represents that district should be present at the time it is considered.

I called up his office a moment ago, thinking possibly that I might get him up here, but learned that he had gone to the White House, and I expect him here shortly. Can not the gentleman take up some other measure in the meantime, if he has other measures from the committee, and I will endeavor to get Mr. HAGGOTT here?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I would like to ask the chairman of the committee if this bill affects the boundaries of any State or Territory other than Oklahoma, Colorado, and New Mexico?

Mr. JENKINS. It does not. Mr. Speaker, I will ask unanimous consent for the present that the bill be withdrawn.

Mr. BONYNGE. I will immediately try and get my colleague here.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. I object, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. JENKINS. Then, Mr. Speaker, I will yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CLAYTON], a member of the committee.

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I will endeavor to explain this matter briefly, if it is desired, to the House. On July 1, 1902, Congress made an appropriation of $31,500—for the resurvey and reestablishment, on the line of the thirty-seventh parallel of north latitude, of the boundary line between the State of Colorado and the Territories of New Mexico and Oklahoma, which is coincident with said parallel between the twenty-fifth and thirty-second degrees of west longitude from Washington, at a rate per mile to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior, and for the examination in the field of said resurvey, a calculated distance of 387⅛ miles.

Under this authority a contract was entered into July 7, 1902, with Howard B. Carpenter, United States surveyor and astronomer, for the execution of the required survey and reestablishment. The work was commenced in September, 1902, and completed in October, 1903, and said resurvey and reestablishment was approved and accepted by the Interior Department February 25, 1904.

This joint resolution confirmed the action of the Interior Department and establishes the southern boundary line on the thirty-seventh parallel as fixed by the act making Colorado a Territory (Feb. 28, 1861, 12 Stat. L., 172) and by the enabling act under which that State came into the Union.

This survey makes no change in the line, but is only an attempt to find out where the line is and establish the monuments on the line, which the Interior Department now says has been done. It takes no territory from the State of Colorado, and in case of a question arising would not be binding on the State.

Senate Document No. 89, Fifty-eighth Congress, third session, gives a full history of the matter, and will be found attached to the report accompanying this resolution.

This report No. 1726 gives a full history of the whole matter, and if any gentleman wants further explanation than that which I have given he can find it in that appendix to the House Report No. 1726.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. CLAYTON. Certainly, with pleasure.

Mr. MANN. I understood the gentleman to say that this did not change the boundary of the State.

Mr. CLAYTON. That is my understanding.

Mr. MANN. Of course this establishes the thirty-seventh parallel of latitude.

Mr. CLAYTON. Yes.

Mr. MANN. And, as I understand it, establishes it on a different line from where it has heretofore been established by the government surveyors. The thirty-seventh parallel is the south boundary line of the State of Colorado, and when you change the location of that you do change the boundary line of the State.

Mr. CLAYTON. I may say, Mr. Speaker, in reply to the suggestion of the gentleman that there has been some dispute about where this line was, and this resolution merely fixes upon this line as designated in the resolution confirming the action of the Interior Department and for the purpose of preserving the monuments which define the limits of the State of Colorado in that part of the State.

Mr. MANN. May I make another suggestion to the gentleman?

Mr. CLAYTON. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. As I understand the matter from reading the report, the gentleman from Colorado who represents that portion of the State [Mr. HAGGOTT] not being present, the gentleman will excuse me for calling attention to it——

Mr. CLAYTON. Oh, the gentleman needs no excuse. He always contributes to every subject he discusses.

Mr. MANN. As I understand the matter from reading the report, the parallel of latitude has heretofore been fixed by a survey.

Now, some of the monuments of that survey were lost. It was desirable to reestablish the line, and to establish new monuments; but upon a new survey made under a contract with an outside person he found that the line was not correctly fixed in the first place, and thereupon he fixes another line, in some places north of the old line and in some places south of the old line and in some places entirely changing the State in which cities are located.

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman has, I think, exaggerated the case very largely; and then I think the gentleman in stating that this survey is made by an outsider is in error. This survey, and the monuments which have been erected under that survey, was made by Howard B. Carpenter. He is a United States surveyor and astronomer, and was acting officially under the Interior Department. It was a regular government survey, made in a regular way.

Mr. MANN. I am not reflecting on Mr. Carpenter, but he made the survey under a contract.

Mr. CLAYTON. With the Interior Department, yes; pursuant to an act of Congress.

Mr. MANN. And probably has the line correctly established.

Mr. CLAYTON. No doubt of that, in my judgment.

Mr. MANN. Well, two surveyors survey the same line. One locates it at one place and one at another. People have settled on the land, builded towns and made cities based on the first survey and line, and now, without even hearing from the gentleman who represents the district, it is proposed to change that line and put parts of the cities that he represents into Oklahoma or New Mexico.

Mr. CLAYTON. Well, I think the gentleman is hardly fair in the statement of that. If he had been on the committee that dealt with this question; if he had been in the Senate with the committee there that dealt with the question, I think he would not hold that view. If the gentleman will recall, at the last session of the House this matter was brought up and, for the convenience of some gentleman who thought he had some objection to it, it was postponed for further consideration.

There was no disposition on the part of the committee, on the part of the members of the committee, or the House, and none, I am quite sure, in the other branch of our National Legislature to take advantage of anybody. It is only a ratification of what has already been done by the Interior Department pursuant to law. It does not create the disturbance that the gentleman mentions, and it in no wise takes any territory from the State of Colorado. I desire to again emphasize the fact that it takes no territory from the State of Colorado, and in case of a question arising would not be binding upon that State; and also, in reply to a suggestion of the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. FULTON], I will say it takes no territory from the State of Oklahoma.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman says it takes no territory from the State of Colorado, but if this line be accepted as the true line, then it does take territory from the State of Colorado in one place and adds to the State in another place.

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman and I disagree about that; the findings of the committee are contrary.

Mr. MANN. I got my information from the report of the committee. I will be very glad to read it.

Mr. CLAYTON. I refer to the findings of the Senate committee. I prefer the opinion of that committee to the opinion of the distinguished gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Will the gentleman permit me to make this statement about this? As I understand it, when Colorado was made a Territory in 1861 the line was established on the thirty-seventh parallel. Now, this resolution is to confirm the established line there, putting it where it was intended it should be when Colorado was made a Territory.

Mr. CLAYTON. Exactly.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. That is my understanding.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Colorado?

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I thought I had the floor. I was not aware of the fact that I had yielded the floor. I simply yielded to a question.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would like to ask whether the gentleman has the floor in his own right or was yielded to by the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Alabama is proceeding on time that was yielded him by me.

Mr. FULTON. The question I want to ask the gentleman is, Which line of Oklahoma does this affect—the line between Oklahoma and Colorado, New Mexico, or Texas?

Mr. CLAYTON. It does not affect the Texas line at all.

Mr. FULTON. I do not know that you are familiar with the map of this tract——

Mr. CLAYTON. I do not suppose I am as familiar with the topography of the country as the gentleman from Oklahoma is.

Mr. FULTON. What I was trying to get at is this——

Mr. CLAYTON. My whole knowledge is derived from documents, and not personal knowledge of the situation there.

Mr. FULTON. I notice in here it states that it does not take anything from the State of Colorado.

Mr. CLAYTON. It does not.

Mr. FULTON. Does it add anything to the State of Colorado?

Mr. CLAYTON. As I understand it, not a thing. It merely preserves the monuments of the original line of the State of Colorado under the statutes at large establishing the Territory of Colorado, and it was ratified and again recognized in the enabling act under which Colorado came into the Union, and it merely preserves that original line and the monuments.

Mr. FULTON. Is there any difference between the line that, as a matter of fact, was established and this line which it is sought to establish?

Mr. CLAYTON. Not the correct line.

Mr. FULTON. There has been some line established there.

Mr. CLAYTON. I am not aware of any line that has been established under legal authority and acquiesced in except this particular line which is now sought to be ratified.

Mr. FULTON. There have been disputes about the line?

Mr. CLAYTON. Evidently there are some, but this——

Mr. FULTON. Are two lines supposed to be established?

Mr. CLAYTON. I can not answer the gentleman that there were two lines, but there was some dispute about this particular line, and this simply preserves the original line and the monuments marking the original line.

Mr. FULTON. What I am trying to get at is this: There must be some reason for reestablishing the line; in other words, there must be some misunderstanding about it.

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman uses the word "reestablish," to which I do not agree. This merely further recognizes the line which has heretofore been established, and is for the preservation of the monuments that indicate that line which has been established under authority of law.

Mr. FULTON. Then the gentleman states there is some difference between the line that has been understood as being the line——

Mr. CLAYTON. The correct line, yes; I say "yes," but there is no difference I have ever heard suggested, no document I have had the opportunity to examine which discloses any difference.

Mr. FULTON. For instance, take the town of Texoma, which is right on the line now between Oklahoma and Texas, on the line that is supposed to be the right line. Will the establishment of this line change the location of that town to Texas?

Mr. CLAYTON. It will not.

Mr. FULTON. And in another instance, the town of Kenton is on the line between Oklahoma and Colorado, on this line which is supposed to be the correct line——

Mr. CLAYTON. And a great, young, flourishing, populous city——

Mr. FULTON. Something like a hundred souls.

Mr. CLAYTON. That is my understanding, and those hundred souls can rest themselves in peace and patience.

Mr. FULTON. They are Democrats, and I do not like to have them taken out of the State of Oklahoma.

Mr. CLAYTON. I quite agree with the gentleman. I would like to preserve every Democrat in the State of Oklahoma in his rights, as well as every Republican.

Mr. KINKAID. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman certainly can.

Mr. KINKAID. Does the new line intended by this bill supplant the old line?

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman confuses the real situation. There is no new line. This is merely to preserve the monuments establishing the original line. As I said just now, this is a line which was established by the act of Congress creating the Territory of Colorado, and then when the enabling act was passed under which Colorado came in as a State this same line was recognized in that enabling act. Now, the purpose of this is merely to keep up that line, which was defined originally, and to preserve the monuments so that there must be no dispute hereafter about where the line is.

Mr. KINKAID. Then you do not really mean that the old line was an incorrect line?

Mr. CLAYTON. I do not know what the gentleman means by "new line" and "old line." I have stated the facts as best I could.

Mr. KINKAID. The gentleman stated that this line was the correct line, and I do not know but he expressly stated also that the old line was incorrect.

Mr. CLAYTON. No, sir; I did not use the words "old line" at all, and I did not use the word "incorrect." I will state it again for the information of the gentleman. Under the act creating the Territory of Colorado this line was established. You will find it in the Statutes at Large. Then, when the State of Colorado was created, the enabling act also recognized this particular line and defined it as a part of the limitation of the territory, and afterwards the limitation of the State or the defined boundary part of the State of Colorado. So it was, according to my contention, the original boundary, and was preserved when the State was created. This survey merely—if you want to use the word "reestablish"—reestablishes or redefines, or defines the original line, and establishes monuments and preserves the old monuments, re-marks or designates it; but it is the original line.

Mr. KINKAID. Or identifies it?

Mr. CLAYTON. The purpose is simply to preserve the monuments identifying that line.

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. CLAYTON. Certainly.

Mr. BONYNGE. Is it not a fact, if this resolution were to pass there is territory now and towns under the jurisdiction of the State of Colorado that would be transferred to the jurisdiction of the Territory of New Mexico?

Mr. CLAYTON. That is not my understanding.

Mr. BONYNGE. I will say to the gentleman that that is the understanding I get from my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] without having read the report.

Mr. PAYNE. That statement is contained, not in the report, but in the accompanying document. It says that there is a town thickly populated that will be on the south of the line, that has been hitherto regarded as a part of Colorado.

Mr. CLAYTON. I did not so understand.

Mr. BONYNGE. Are there not coal lands in this territory that would be transferred from the present jurisdiction of the State of Colorado to the jurisdiction of the Territory of New Mexico?

Mr. CLAYTON. Not as I understand it.

Mr. PAYNE. It is so stated in the document to which I referred.

Mr. BONYNGE. That is what my colleague, who is unfortunately engaged at the White House this morning, has stated to me.

Mr. CLAYTON. I am in possession of such evidence as the documents show to be the action of the Interior Department, the action of the Senate committee, the House committee; and all the documents. I have no personal knowledge of the matter.

Mr. PAYNE. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. CLAYTON. Certainly.

Mr. PAYNE. Did not Mr. Richards, Commissioner of the Land Office, report that one town was transferred from Colorado to one of these Territories by this survey of Mr. Carpenter's?

Mr. CLAYTON. I do not recall.

Mr. PAYNE. And a portion of two other towns, a line passing in one place through the main street of the town?

Mr. CLAYTON. In reply to the gentleman from New York, my friend and Representative from Colorado [Mr. COOK] says that statement is not correct.

Mr. PAYNE. I think we ought to have in addition to that——

Mr. CLAYTON. And if I must take somebody's personal knowledge, knowing the high character of the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. COOK], I will take his word on that or any other proposition.

Mr. PAYNE. I want to ask the gentlemen of the Committee on the Judiciary whether the question of the boundary line of a State, whether between that State or another State or the boundary line between a State and a Territory, is not a question of which the Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction, and not Congress, and the court has so decided a number of times. I ask if that is not correct?

Mr. CLAYTON. I did not understand the gentleman's question.

Mr. PAYNE. I asked whether the Supreme Court has not decided a number of times the question of the boundary line between States or between one State and another State or a State and a Territory is a question of which they have exclusive jurisdiction, and not Congress?

Mr. CLAYTON. That the Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction?

Mr. PAYNE. Yes; and not Congress.

Mr. CLAYTON. I can not answer the gentleman categorically on that question. I recall but one case of that kind. I know in some litigation as to the boundary line between the States of Georgia and Alabama that the Supreme Court of the United States did pass upon that.

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. CLAYTON. But whether they held the Supreme Court had exclusive power to pass upon that question I do not remember.

Mr. PAYNE. The report of Mr. Richards, attached to the gentleman's report, makes the statement that in half a dozen cases the court has held that doctrine.

Mr. CLAYTON. I can not agree that it has ever been definitely settled as a legal proposition; but even if it had been, I do not see how it could affect the merits of this case.

Mr. PAYNE. I understood that the original line was the thirty-seventh parallel north.

Mr. CLAYTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. PAYNE. That is, when the Territories were divided, and that was fixed a number of years ago, and the monuments placed along it by the surveyors.

Mr. CLAYTON. So I understand.

Mr. PAYNE. In the course of years some of them became obliterated.

Mr. CLAYTON. That is correct.

Mr. PAYNE. And under an act of Congress Mr. Carpenter was employed to make a resurvey.

Mr. CLAYTON. The gentleman has so far a correct comprehension of the facts.

Mr. PAYNE. And he reported that a number of the landmarks or monuments had been obliterated, and he tried to fix the line, by astronomical observation and otherwise, on the thirty-seventh parallel.

Mr. CLAYTON. Yes; I understand so.

Mr. PAYNE. And it is his survey this joint resolution seeks to make the line between the State and Territory, is it not? Is not that correct?

Mr. CLAYTON. I did not hear the latter part of the gentleman's statement.

Mr. PAYNE. And it is Carpenter's survey that this joint resolution proposes to make the line between the State of Colorado and these Territories?

Mr. CLAYTON. That is correct. If I understand the gentleman's question, I answer yes.

Mr. PAYNE. Now, I want to read a passage from Mr. Richards's report.

Mr. CLAYTON. Now the chairman of the committee——

Mr. PAYNE. The chairman said he would give me five or ten minutes.

Mr. CLAYTON. If the gentleman will pardon me, I will yield back the time to the gentleman from Wisconsin, the chairman of the committee. I do not feel that I am privileged to yield time further.

Mr. BONYNGE. Mr. Speaker, I did not expect to take any part in this controversy. This is a matter that affects the southern boundary line of the State of Colorado. We have three Representatives from Colorado. One represents the State at large, Mr. GEORGE W. COOK; and we have two districts; I represent the first district which is the northeastern portion of the State, and my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] represents the second district, which includes all the southern portion of the State of Colorado. Unfortunately my colleagues [Mr. COOK and Mr. HAGGOTT], do not agree as to whether this resolution should pass or not. I had expected that they would take care of the proposition themselves, and that I would not participate in any way in the discussion. I simply asked this morning that the matter might be passed without prejudice in order that my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] might be present when the matter was presented to the House. Unfortunately, it seems to me, my colleague [Mr. COOK] saw fit to object when the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. JENKINS] proposed that the matter should be passed without prejudice. I have never given to the resolution, or to the report which accompanies it, any attention. I had not even read the report for the reasons I have heretofore stated. The gentleman from New York has called my attention, however, to a paragraph in the report which I desire to read:

Prior to this resurvey the town of Edith was supposed to be in the State of Colorado, the old state boundary line being in doubt at that point. Mr. Carpenter's survey shows the greater part, if not all, of the town to be in New Mexico. An examination of the field notes and plats of this survey shows that the line established by Carpenter passes through the villages of Ortiz and La Costilla, all of which have heretofore been assumed to lie in the State of Colorado. This line is continuously marked by iron posts at mile intervals, and with 8 large stone monuments marking the points of astronomical stations where observations were taken for determination of the parallel.

Now, as I understand from conversations that I have had with my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] and others in reference to this matter, and from what has been presented here this morning, the parallel is not changed by the resolution, but the determination as to where the parallel actually does lie is changed by the adoption of this resolution. If this resolution should pass, as I understand the situation it would take the town of Edith out of the State of Colorado and put it in the Territory of New Mexico. It would take portions of two other towns in Colorado and transfer them to the jurisdiction of New Mexico. I am further advised that it would take valuable coal mines that have always been supposed to lie in the State of Colorado and transfer them to the Territory of New Mexico. Under these circumstances, as the State of Colorado has a Representative from the Second Congressional District, whose business made it impossible for him to be present this morning, I trust that at this time at least the Members of the House will vote down this resolution, and that a matter of this importance may be presented at a time when both of my colleagues, who disagree upon this proposition, may be fully heard, and the House may have full knowledge and information upon all the points involved. [Applause.]

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to say in reply to the gentleman from Colorado, and I want to say for the information of this House, that it is going to be very embarrassing and very difficult for us to do any business if we are compelled to postpone every bill that is called up until some gentleman who is interested in it comes in——

Mr. BONYNGE. If the gentleman will permit me, my colleague [Mr. HAGGOTT] is now present.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, this bill was sent over from the Senate a long time ago. It was approved by both of the Senators, and they have been over here repeatedly asking the Committee on the Judiciary to act as promptly as possible with reference to this important matter. Every gentleman from Colorado was notified and had an opportunity to appear.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. And did not appear.

Mr. JENKINS. Not a single gentleman from Colorado appeared before the committee in opposition to this measure. There never has been one word of opposition presented to the Committee on the Judiciary; but when we sought to pass this bill in the last session, we were asked to postpone it in order to accommodate absent gentlemen, which we did. Now, personally, I am perfectly willing to postpone this bill, but it appears that there is a question here, and that question has got to be settled; and this House is as competent this morning to settle it as it will be two or three years hence. It is only respectful to the Senators who have been urging the passage of this bill that we act with some degree of promptness.

Mr. MANN. Who are those Senators?

Mr. JENKINS. They are the Senators from Colorado. The other Senators have been notified, and no one has made any objection. I now yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. COOK].

Mr. COOK of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I am somewhat surprised that my colleague [Mr. BONYNGE] should make the statement that under this new survey the town of Edith and two other towns will be taken from our State and placed in New Mexico. That is not true. Not one soul will be taken from the State of Colorado or from New Mexico or from the State of Oklahoma. I took the trouble and expense last summer to spend several days riding on horseback along this thirty-seventh parallel in order to satisfy myself. What we want determined is the boundary line between the States of Colorado, New Mexico, and Oklahoma. As to the statement made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE], the State of Colorado must pass upon this matter after Congress passes this bill, which I believe it will do. The legislature of our State must take action on it.

Mr. PAYNE. But the State of New Mexico does not have the opportunity.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. I do not suppose the gentleman would want us to wait until the admission of New Mexico. At the last session of Congress I saw my colleague, Governor HAGGOTT, and asked him to go with me before the Judiciary Committee and fight this thing out in a friendly way before that committee. He laughingly said that if he did not forget it, he would come before the committee. Evidently he did forget it, because he did not appear. The Senators from our State would like to have this bill passed. After Congress passes this bill it will be necessary under the law, as we understand it, for our legislature to accept this boundary line. The Interior Department desires the boundary line established, and we in Colorado want it established, except one coal company, that has not been paying taxes on thousands of acres of coal. That is the only objection to the passage of this bill, and I hope Members will pass the resolution unanimously.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. HAGGOTT] have ten minutes, not to come out of the time of the Judiciary Committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin asks unanimous consent that the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. HAGGOTT] have ten minutes, not to come out of the time of the Judiciary Committee. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, in regard to the resolution before the House, I want to say that I have just come in and did not know that it was to be taken up this morning, and I have heard but a few of the statements regarding the matter. One of the statements by my colleague from Colorado [Mr. COOK] was that I did not go before the Judiciary Committee. I did appear before the Judiciary Committee at one time about this matter, and I went to the committee room to appear again, but when I arrived there the matter had been reported upon by the committee. I went there to oppose the resolution, for the reason that it does take territory from the State of Colorado and adds it to that of the Territory of New Mexico and to the State of Oklahoma. This is my only purpose in opposing the resolution. It affects nearly every county in the southern part of the State of Colorado, and takes more or less territory from each of those counties and adds it to the Territory of New Mexico or to Oklahoma.

Many people living along the boundary line have been citizens of Colorado ever since Colorado has been a State, and they seriously and strongly object to the passage of this measure, and as a Representative of Colorado in this House, I am most strongly opposed to the resolution.

The present southern boundary line of Colorado has existed as such ever since Colorado was admitted into the Union, and long before that time; and it is not right that the citizens of Colorado who live along the southern boundary line of the State should be alienated and their property legislated into the Territory of New Mexico. Now I heard the statement made by my colleague that the only influence in opposition to the passage of this bill is that certain coal companies——

Mr. COOK of Colorado. One coal company.

Mr. HAGGOTT. One coal company that owns coal lands near the southern boundary line of Colorado is opposed to the bill. A coal company or coal companies——

Mr. COOK of Colorado. One coal company.

Mr. HAGGOTT. He says that a coal company owning lands near the southern boundary line of Colorado has escaped taxation for years.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. That is true.

Mr. HAGGOTT. I want to challenge that statement, and I do here challenge it. And, furthermore, Mr. Speaker, I might make the statement on the floor of this House that the only influence of which I have ever heard supporting the passage of this measure is that a certain coal company wants it passed. I myself have been asked to withdraw my opposition to this bill on account of that fact.

Now, gentlemen, I sincerely hope that for the sake of the State of Colorado this bill will not be passed; we do not want to surrender any part of our territory to any other State or Territory.

Mr. BONYNGE. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. HAGGOTT. Certainly.

Mr. BONYNGE. Does this measure transfer any of the voting population of Colorado to New Mexico?

Mr. HAGGOTT. It does.

Mr. BONYNGE. How many people would find themselves under the jurisdiction of New Mexico if this resolution passes?

Mr. HAGGOTT. I can not say the exact number, but several hundred people.

Mr. BONYNGE. And who have been paying taxes in the State of Colorado?

Mr. HAGGOTT. Yes, and are now paying taxes in the State of Colorado. They never have escaped taxation and never want to.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. I would like to ask the gentleman if he has any personal knowledge that this new survey takes a single soul, a single man, woman, or child, from the State of Colorado and puts them into the Territory of New Mexico?

Mr. HAGGOTT. Yes, I have.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. Has the gentleman been over this survey?

Mr. HAGGOTT. I have not been over the entire line, but I have been to several places on it.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. Did not the gentleman say that he would go over it with me?

Mr. HAGGOTT. I did not.

Mr. COOK of Colorado. The gentleman made that direct promise.

Mr. HAGGOTT. The gentleman is mistaken. It would be foolish for any person but an experienced engineer to attempt such an undertaking in a short, limited time, as the country is for a great part along the line very rough and rugged.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the bill to its final passage.

The question was taken, and a division was called for by Mr. HAGGOTT.

Pending the division Mr. HAGGOTT withdrew his demand.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman withdraws his demand. The ayes have it, and the question is on the third reading of the Senate joint resolution.

The question was taken, and the Chair announced himself in doubt.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I demand a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 74, noes 65.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I demand tellers.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman demands tellers. As many as are in favor of ordering tellers will rise and stand until counted.

The Speaker proceeded to count.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the demand for tellers.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman withdraws his demand for tellers. The ayes have it, and the third reading of the Senate joint resolution is ordered.

The joint resolution was read a third time.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. JENKINS) there were—ayes 90, noes 88.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 126, nays 112, answered "present" 8, not voting 144, as follows:

YEAS—126.

Adair	Estopinal	Jenkins	Russell, Mo.
Alexander, Mo.	Ferris	Johnson, S. C.	Russell, Tex.
Ansberry	Finley	Jones, Va.	Ryan
Ashbrook	Fitzgerald	Kimball	Sabath
Barnhart	Floyd	Kipp	Saunders
Bates	Foster, Ill.	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Shackleford
Beall, Tex.	Fulton	Lawrence	Sheppard
Bell, Ga.	Gaines, Tenn.	Lenahan	Sherley
Booher	Garrett	Lever	Sherwood
Bowers	Gilhams	Lloyd	Sims
Brundidge	Gill	Macon	Small
Burleson	Gillespie	Moon, Tenn.	Smith, Mo.
Burnett	Gillett	Moore, Tex.	Smith, Tex.
Burton, Ohio	Gordon	Nelson	Sparkman
Byrd	Greene	Nicholls	Stanley
Candler	Hackney	O'Connell	Steenerson
Capron	Haggott	Olmsted	Sterling
Carter	Hamilton, Iowa	Page	Stevens, Minn.
Caulfield	Hamlin	Parker	Thomas, N. C.
Chaney	Hammond	Patterson	Thomas, Ohio
Clark, Mo.	Hardwick	Peters	Tirrell
Clayton	Hardy	Porter	Tou Velle
Cook, Colo.	Hay	Pou	Underwood
Cooper, Tex.	Helm	Rainey	Wallace
Cox, Ind.	Henry, Conn.	Randell, Tex.	Watkins
Craig	Henry, Tex.	Ransdell, La.	Webb
Cravens	Hitchcock	Rauch	Weisse
Davenport	Hobson	Reid	Wiley
De Armond	Houston	Richardson	Williams
Denver	Howard	Roberts	Wilson, Pa.
Dixon	Humphreys, Miss.	Robinson
Ellerbe	James, Ollie M.	Rucker

NAYS—112.

Acheson	Burton, Del.	Currier	Durey
Allen	Caldwell	Cushman	Dwight
Barchfeld	Chapman	Dalzell	Edwards, Ky.
Bede	Cole	Darragh	Ellis, Mo.
Birdsall	Conner	Davidson	Ellis, Oreg.
Bonynge	Cooper, Pa.	Dawson	Englebright
Boyd	Cooper, Wis.	Draper	Esch
Brownlow	Crumpacker	Driscoll	Fassett
Fordney	Howell, N. J.	Loud	Payne
Foss	Howell, Utah	Lovering	Pearre
Foster, Ind.	Howland	Lowden	Perkins
Foster, Vt.	Hubbard, Iowa	McCreary	Smith, Cal.
French	Hubbard, W. Va.	McGuire	Snapp
Gaines, W. Va.	Huff	McKinlay, Cal.	Southwick
Gardner, Mass.	Hughes, N. J.	McKinley, Ill.	Sperry
Gardner, Mich.	Hull, Iowa	McKinney	Stafford
Gardner, N. J.	Humphrey, Wash.	McLachlan, Cal.	Sturgiss
Goebel	James, Addison D.	McLaughlin, Mich.	Sulloway
Gronna	Jones, Wash.	McMorran	Tawney
Guernsey	Kahn	Madison	Taylor, Ohio
Hamilton, Mich.	Keifer	Mann	Townsend
Harding	Kennedy, Iowa	Mondell	Volstead
Haskins	Kennedy, Ohio	Moore, Pa.	Washburn
Hawley	Kitchen, Claude	Morse	Weems
Hayes	Knapp	Murdock	Wheeler
Hepburn	Knowland	Nye	Wilson, Ill.
Hinshaw	Lindbergh	Overstreet	Woodyard
Holliday	Longworth	Padgett	Young

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—8.

Adamson	Brantley	Cockran	Goulden
Bartlett, Ga.	Carlin	Douglas	McGavin

NOT VOTING—144.

Aiken	Denby	Kinkaid	Needham
Alexander, N. Y.	Diekema	Knopf	Norris
Ames	Edwards, Ga.	Küstermann	Olcott
Andrus	Fairchild	Lafean	Parsons
Anthony	Favrot	Lamar, Fla.	Pollard
Bannon	Flood	Lamar, Mo.	Pratt
Barclay	Focht	Lamb	Pray
Bartholdt	Foelker	Landis	Prince
Bartlett, Nev.	Fornes	Langley	Pujo
Beale, Pa.	Foulkrod	Laning	Reeder
Bennet, N. Y.	Fowler	Lassiter	Reynolds
Bennett, Ky.	Fuller	Law	Rhinock
Bingham	Garner	Leake	Riordan
Boutell	Glass	Lee	Rodenberg
Bradley	Godwin	Legare	Rothermel
Brodhead	Goldfogle	Lewis	Scott
Broussard	Graff	Lilley	Sherman
Brumm	Graham	Lindsay	Slayden
Burgess	Granger	Livingston	Slemp
Burke	Gregg	Lorimer	Smith, Iowa
Burleigh	Griggs	Loudenslager	Smith, Mich.
Butler	Hackett	McCall	Spight
Calder	Hale	McDermott	Stephens, Tex.
Calderhead	Hall	McHenry	Sulzer
Campbell	Hamill	McLain	Swasey
Cary	Harrison	McMillan	Talbott
Cassel	Haugen	Madden	Taylor, Ala.
Clark, Fla.	Heflin	Maiby	Thistlewood
Cocks, N. Y.	Higgins	Marshall	Vreeland
Cook, Pa.	Hill, Conn.	Martin	Waldo
Coudrey	Hill, Miss.	Maynard	Wanger
Cousins	Hughes, W. Va.	Miller	Watson
Crawford	Hull, Tenn.	Moon, Pa.	Weeks
Davey, La.	Jackson	Mouser	Willett
Davis, Minn.	Johnson, Ky.	Mudd	Wolf
Dawes	Keliher	Murphy	Wood

So the Senate joint resolution was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

For this day:

Mr. WOOD with Mr. WOLF.

Mr. WATSON with Mr. SULZER.

Mr. VREELAND with Mr. SPIGHT.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan with Mr. ROTHERMEL.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa with Mr. TAYLOR of Alabama.

Mr. SLEMP with Mr. PUJO.

Mr. SCOTT with Mr. CARLIN.

Mr. REYNOLDS with Mr. BRODHEAD.

Mr. PRINCE with Mr. PRATT.

Mr. OLCOTT with Mr. MURPHY.

Mr. NORRIS with Mr. MCLAIN.

Mr. MILLER with Mr. MCHENRY.

Mr. NEEDHAM with Mr. LINDSAY.

Mr. MADDEN with Mr. LIVINGSTON.

Mr. MARSHALL with Mr. LEWIS.

Mr. MCMILLAN with Mr. LASSITER.

Mr. MCCALL with Mr. LEAKE.

Mr. LOUDENSLAGER with Mr. LAMB.

Mr. LAFEAN with Mr. JOHNSON of Kentucky.

Mr. KÜSTERMANN with Mr. HULL of Tennessee.

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia with Mr. HEFLIN.

Mr. HILL of Connecticut with Mr. HARRISON.

Mr. HAUGEN with Mr. HAMILL.

Mr. GRAFF with Mr. HACKETT.

Mr. FULLER with Mr. GREGG.

Mr. FOCHT with Mr. FAVROT.

Mr. DENBY with Mr. GODWIN.

Mr. COUDREY with Mr. GARNER.

Mr. COCKS of New York with Mr. FLOOD.

Mr. CAREY with Mr. EDWARDS of Georgia.

Mr. CAMPBELL with Mr. DAVEY of Louisiana.

Mr. BINGHAM with Mr. BURGESS.

Mr. BEALE of Pennsylvania with Mr. BARTLETT of Nevada.

Mr. BARTHOLDT with Mr. BROUSSARD.

Mr. BARCLAY with Mr. AIKEN.

Mr. BANNON with Mr. GRANGER.
Mr. RODENBERG with Mr. STEPHENS of Texas.
Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota with Mr. GOLDFOGLE.
Mr. ANDRUS with Mr. CRAWFORD.
Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania with Mr. WILLETT.
Mr. CALDER with Mr. SLAYDEN.
Mr. FOULKROD with Mr. MCDERMOTT.
Mr. ALEXANDER of New York with Mr. LEE.
Mr. GRAHAM with Mr. KELIHER.
Mr. LAW with Mr. LAMAR of Missouri.
Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania with Mr. RHINOCK.
Mr. LORIMER with Mr. HILL of Mississippi.
Mr. WALDO with Mr. MAYNARD.
Until further notice:
Mr. DEIKEMA with Mr. CLARK of Florida.
Mr. FAIRCHILD with Mr. LAMAR of Florida.
Mr. AMES with Mr. LEGARE.
Mr. BURLEIGH with Mr. BRANTLEY.
Mr. MUDD with Mr. TALBOTT.
Mr. FOELKER with Mr. GLASS.
For the session:
Mr. WANGER with Mr. ADAMSON.
Mr. BRADLEY with Mr. GOULDEN.
Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania with Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia.
Mr. BOUTELL with Mr. GRIGGS.
Mr. BENNET of New York with Mr. FORNES.
Mr. SHERMAN with Mr. RIORDAN.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I wish to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The SPEAKER. Call the name of the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. HAGGOTT's name was called, and he voted "aye."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I move a reconsideration.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Colorado enters a motion to reconsider.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin moves to lay that motion on the table.

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. HAGGOTT) there were—ayes 70, noes 42.

Mr. HAGGOTT. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 113, nays 83, answered "present" 5, not voting 189, as follows:

YEAS—113.

Alexander, Mo.	Floyd	Kipp	Russell, Tex.
Ansberry	Foster, Ill.	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Ryan
Ashbrook	Fuller	Lawrence	Sabath
Barnhart	Gaines, Tenn.	Lenahan	Saunders
Bartholdt	Garner	Lever	Shackleford
Bates	Gilhams	Livingston	Sherley
Beall, Tex.	Gill	Lloyd	Sims
Bell, Ga.	Gillespie	Macon	Small
Booher	Gillett	Moon, Tenn.	Smith, Mo.
Bowers	Godwin	Moore, Tex.	Smith, Tex.
Burnett	Greene	Nelson	Sparkman
Candler	Hackney	Nicholls	Stanley
Capron	Hammond	O'Connell	Sterling
Carter	Hardwick	Olmsted	Stevens, Minn.
Caulfield	Hardy	Page	Swasey
Chaney	Haskins	Parker	Taylor, Ala.
Clark, Mo.	Hay	Patterson	Thomas, N. C.
Clayton	Heflin	Peters	Tirrell
Cockran	Henry, Conn.	Pou	Tou Velle
Cook, Colo.	Henry, Tex.	Rainey	Underwood
Cox, Ind.	Hitchcock	Randell, Tex.	Watkins
Cravens	Houston	Ransdell, La.	Webb
Davenport	Humphrey, Wash.	Rauch	Weisse
De Armond	Humphreys, Miss.	Reid	Wiley
Dixon	James, Ollie M.	Richardson	Williams
Douglas	Jenkins	Roberts	Wilson, Pa.
Estopinal	Johnson, S. C.	Robinson
Finley	Jones, Va.	Rucker
Fitzgerald	Kimball	Russell, Mo.

NAYS—83.

Acheson	Edwards, Ky.	Hepburn	Landis
Anthony	Ellis, Oreg.	Hinshaw	Lindbergh
Beale, Pa.	Englebright	Holliday	Loud
Bonynge	Esch	Howell, N. J.	Lovering
Boyd	Foss	Howland	McCreary
Brownlow	Foster, Vt.	Hubbard, W. Va.	McGuire
Calderhead	French	Huff	McKinlay, Cal.
Chapman	Gaines, W. Va.	Hughes, N. J.	McKinley, Ill.
Cooper, Wis.	Gardner, Mich.	Hughes, W. Va.	McKinney
Crumpacker	Gardner, N. J.	Hull, Iowa	McLachlan, Cal.
Cushman	Goebel	Jones, Wash.	McLaughlin, Mich.
Dawson	Gronna	Kahn	McMorran
Draper	Haggott	Keifer	Madden
Driscoll	Hamilton, Mich.	Kitchin, Claude	Madison
Durey	Harding	Knapp	Mann
Dwight	Hawley	Knowland	Moore, Pa.
Morse	Pearre	Snapp	Taylor, Ohio
Nye	Pollard	Southwick	Townsend
Overstreet	Pray	Sperry	Volstead
Padgett	Reynolds	Stafford	Young
Payne	Smith, Cal.	Sulloway

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—5.

Adamson	Fassett	Goulden	Sherman
Carlin

NOT VOTING—189.

Adair	Dalzell	Hobson	Murphy
Aiken	Darragh	Howard	Needham
Alexander, N. Y.	Davey, La.	Howell, Utah	Norris
Allen	Davidson	Hubbard, Iowa	Olcott
Ames	Davis, Minn.	Hull, Tenn.	Parsons
Andrus	Dawes	Jackson	Perkins
Bannon	Denby	James, Addison D.	Porter
Barchfeld	Denver	Johnson, Ky.	Pratt
Barclay	Diekema	Keliher	Prince
Bartlett, Ga.	Edwards, Ga.	Kennedy, Iowa	Pujo
Bartlett, Nev.	Ellerbe	Kennedy, Ohio	Reeder
Bede	Ellis, Mo.	Kinkaid	Rhinock
Bennet, N. Y.	Fairchild	Knopf	Riordan
Bennett, Ky.	Favrot	Küstermann	Rodenberg
Bingham	Ferris	Lafean	Rothermel
Birdsall	Flood	Lamar, Fla.	Scott
Boutell	Focht	Lamar, Mo.	Sheppard
Bradley	Foelker	Lamb	Sherwood
Brantley	Fordney	Langley	Slayden
Brodhead	Fornes	Laning	Slemp
Broussard	Foster, Ind.	Lassiter	Smith, Iowa
Brumm	Foulkrod	Law	Smith, Mich.
Brundidge	Fowler	Leake	Spight
Burgess	Fulton	Lee	Steenerson
Burke	Gardner, Mass.	Legare	Stephens, Tex.
Burleigh	Garrett	Lewis	Sturgiss
Burleson	Glass	Lilley	Sulzer
Burton, Del.	Goldfogle	Lindsay	Talbott
Burton, Ohio	Gordon	Longworth	Tawney
Butler	Graff	Lorimer	Thistlewood
Byrd	Graham	Loudenslager	Thomas, Ohio
Calder	Granger	Lowden	Vreeland
Caldwell	Gregg	McCall	Waldo
Campbell	Griggs	McDermott	Wallace
Cary	Guernsey	McGavin	Wanger
Cassel	Hackett	McHenry	Washburn
Clark, Fla.	Hale	McLain	Watson
Cocks, N. Y.	Hall	McMillan	Weeks
Cole	Hamill	Malby	Weems
Conner	Hamilton, Iowa	Marshall	Wheeler
Cook, Pa.	Hamlin	Martin	Willett
Cooper, Pa.	Harrison	Maynard	Wilson, Ill.
Cooper, Tex.	Haugen	Miller	Wolf
Coudrey	Hayes	Mondell	Wood
Cousins	Helm	Moon, Pa.	Woodyard
Craig	Higgins	Mouser
Crawford	Hill, Conn.	Mudd
Currier	Hill, Miss.	Murdock

So the motion to lay the motion to reconsider upon the table was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following additional pairs:

Until further notice:
Mr. WOODYARD with Mr. WALLACE.
Mr. WILSON of Illinois with Mr. SHERWOOD.
Mr. TAWNEY with Mr. SHEPPARD.
Mr. PORTER with Mr. HOWARD.
Mr. PERKINS with Mr. HOBSON.
Mr. LOWDEN with Mr. HAMMOND.
Mr. LONGWORTH with Mr. HAMILTON of Iowa.
Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio with Mr. GORDON.
Mr. KENNEDY of Iowa with Mr. GARRETT.
Mr. HUBBARD of Iowa with Mr. FULTON.
Mr. HOWELL of Utah with Mr. FERRIS.
Mr. HAYES with Mr. ELLERBE.
Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts with Mr. DENVER.
Mr. DAWES with Mr. CRAIG.
Mr. DAVIDSON with Mr. CALDWELL.
Mr. GRAHAM with Mr. BYRD.
Mr. DALZELL with Mr. COOPER of Texas.
Mr. CURRIER with Mr. RYAN.
Mr. COLE with Mr. BURLESON.
Mr. BARCHFELD with Mr. BRUNDIDGE.
Mr. ALLEN with Mr. ADAIR.
For this vote:
Mr. KELIHER (in favor) with Mr. WEEKS (against).

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

JUDICIAL DIVISIONS IN DISTRICT OF INDIANA.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask unanimous consent that the order of this morning under which H. R. 21898 was passed be vacated, and that the same be now considered. My reason for making the motion, Mr. Speaker, is this: The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] was very much interested in the passage of this bill. He was unavoidably detained in the Post-Office Committee and could not reach the floor of the House before the passage of the bill. I have consulted with the gentleman from Indiana who introduced the bill [Mr. CHANEY], and he says that he will make no objection.

I therefore ask unanimous consent that the order be vacated, and that the bill be now considered.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, to that I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to say, for what it is worth, that some days ago the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] came to the Chair and stated that he was exceedingly busy in connection with the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and unavoidably absent most of the time. He asked the Chair that if this bill was reached he should be notified. Gentlemen coming to the Chair and engaging his attention, the matter escaped the notice of the Chair until it was under consideration. The Chair merely wants to state that if he had noticed the bill was about to be considered, he would have tried to notify the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET].

Mr. JENKINS. Now, Mr. Speaker, if the House will permit me to make this statement, I desire to supplement just exactly what the Speaker has said. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] did call upon me as chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, and said that he had had objections to this bill; that he would not enter any frivolous objection, but that he wanted to be heard in the House in justice to his constituents. I told him as far as lay in my power I would give him the necessary information. Understanding somewhat hurriedly this morning that the committee was going to be called, I instructed the clerk of our committee to furnish all the bills that had been reported to the House. This came up without any opportunity on my part to consider it. I saw that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CHANEY] introduced the bill. I stepped over and called his attention to it. I forgot entirely what the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] had said, and think it only justice to him that we give him opportunity to register his opposition to this bill. I shall vote for the bill when the time comes.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Speaker, if I may be indulged for just a moment, I will say that this is a bill of long standing in the House, going back for more than the present term of Congress. Several different bills covering substantially the same principle were introduced by different Members from Indiana. I have been careful before the committee in my opposition and watchful upon the floor. Members know that the duties of the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads necessarily compel the absence from the floor not only of the chairman of the committee, but of other members, during the sessions of the House. I requested both the Speaker and the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary not that the bill should not be called up or considered, but merely that I might have notice when it was called up for consideration, that I might come from the committee room to appear in opposition. This same arrangement included Mr. LANDIS, of Indiana, who had also requested to be notified should the bill be called up. I was engaged this morning until almost 1 o'clock with the committee, as I have been engaged every morning since the House convened. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but during two different days of the present session since the 7th of December I was careful to appear upon the floor during the call of committees, because I knew it was possible to call up this measure during the call of committees. Twice the committees were called, and this bill was not brought up for consideration. I do not believe, in my fourteen years' experience as a Member of this House, a committee call has been made three times in one week as it has been in the present week. Naturally, I felt that without negligence I had been careful to be here during the calls of committees, and it was wholly a surprise to me this morning when I learned that for the third time in one week the committees were called.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state, in justice to myself, I was not present, either, this morning. I was at work in the Committee on Military Affairs in the preparation of the military appropriation bill. This matter has been before Congress a long time. It has not been acted upon, sometimes by reason of the fact that we could not get it called up, and other times by reason of the absence of my colleague [Mr. OVERSTREET], and very frequently we gave way to accommodate him. Under all the circumstances, with the statement made by the gentleman, I withdraw my objection.

Mr. CHANEY. Then, Mr. Speaker, in order that we may gather together all the data that relates to the merits of this measure, I would ask that it go over for the time being.

Mr. JENKINS. Then I ask that the bill be continued without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks unanimous consent that the motion to reconsider be taken from the table and agreed to and the bill be put on engrossment and third reading, and that the bill go over without prejudice.

Mr. MANN. May I ask what is "going over without prejudice?"

The SPEAKER. The bill.

Mr. MANN. What does that mean—"going over without prejudice?"

The SPEAKER. That it can be called up any time that the Committee on the Judiciary has the call.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. It is before the House now.

Mr. MANN. I have no objection, but I wanted to know what is meant by "without prejudice."

The SPEAKER. If this is agreed to, and the committee is passed without prejudice as to this bill, then upon any day of the call of committees this committee will have the preference to call up the bill.

Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary, I call up the bill (H. R. 11733) for punishing conspiracy to intimidate any person in the exercise of his rights under the Constitution and laws of the United States.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Speaker, I rise to make a motion to go into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, an hour having passed.

The SPEAKER. The motion of the gentleman is privileged, one hour having passed since the call began.

Mr. SHERLEY. There is no question but what the motion of the gentleman from Michigan is in order, but the point I want to know is if it is in order after the House has taken up a bill?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman, as the Chair understands the rule: When the committees are on call, after the expiration of sixty minutes it is then in order for any Member of the House, as a privileged question, to move that the House take up a bill on the Calendar, designating it; or that the House take up a bill on the Union Calendar, designating it; or that the House proceed to consider bills on the Union Calendar.

Mr. SHERLEY. I understand the rule, but the point I was making was whether it was in order to do that when a bill had been regularly called up on the call of the Calendar.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the precedents have been that this motion would take a Member off his feet even if he were addressing the House upon a bill or when a bill was pending, after the expiration of sixty minutes.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 15447).

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, may I ask what is the subject of that bill?

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the title of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 15447) providing for an investigation of controversies affecting interstate commerce, and for other purposes.

Mr. CLAYTON. I am opposed to that bill anyhow.

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Division!

The House divided; and there were—ayes 86, noes 70.

Mr. CLAYTON and Mr. ADAMSON. Yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 103, nays 112, answered "present" 6, not voting 169, as follows:

YEAS—103.

Allen	Esch	Huff	Nye
Bannon	Fassett	Humphrey, Wash.	Olmsted
Barchfeld	Fordney	Keifer	Payne
Beale, Pa.	Foss	Kennedy, Ohio	Perkins
Bede	Foster, Vt.	Knapp	Pollard
Bingham	French	Küstermann	Reynolds
Birdsall	Fuller	Lawrence	Roberts
Bonynge	Gaines, Tenn.	Lindbergh	Russell, Mo.
Boyd	Gilhams	Longworth	Russell, Tex.
Brownlow	Gillett	Loud	Smith, Cal.
Butler	Goebel	Lowden	Sperry
Capron	Greene	McCreary	Stafford
Chaney	Gronna	McGuire	Steenerson
Chapman	Hale	McKinlay, Cal.	Stevens, Minn.
Cockran	Hamilton, Mich.	McKinney	Sulloway
Crumpacker	Harding	McLachlan, Cal.	Taylor, Ohio
Currier	Haskins	McLaughlin, Mich.	Thistlewood
Dalzell	Henry, Conn.	McMorran	Tirrell
Davidson	Hepburn	Madison	Townsend
Douglas	Higgins	Mann	Volstead
Draper	Hinshaw	Martin	Vreeland
Driscoll	Howard	Mondell	Weeks
Durey	Howell, N. J.	Moore, Pa.	Weems
Dwight	Howell, Utah	Morse	Wheeler
Edwards, Ky.	Howland	Murdock	Young
Ellis, Oreg.	Hubbard, W. Va.	Nelson

NAYS—112.

Adair	Estopinal	Johnson, S. C.	Ransdell, La.
Alexander, Mo.	Ferris	Jones, Va.	Rauch
Ansberry	Finley	Jones, Wash.	Reid
Ashbrook	Fitzgerald	Kahn	Richardson
Barnhart	Floyd	Kennedy, Iowa	Robinson
Bartlett, Ga.	Foster, Ill.	Kimball	Ryan
Beall, Tex.	Garner	Kipp	Sabath
Bell, Ga.	Garrett	Kitchin, Claude	Saunders
Booher	Gill	Kitchen, Wm. W.	Shackleford
Bowers	Gillespie	Knowland	Sheriey
Burnett	Godwin	Lenahan	Sherwood
Byrd	Hamilton, Iowa	Lever	Sims
Candler	Hamlin	Lloyd	Smith, Mo.
Carter	Hammond	Lovering	Smith, Tex.
Caulfield	Hardwick	Macon	Southwick
Clark, Mo.	Hardy	Madden	Sparkman
Clayton	Hay	Moon, Tenn.	Stanley
Cooper, Pa.	Hayes	Moore, Tex.	Sterling
Cooper, Tex.	Heflin	Nicholls	Taylor, Ala.
Cooper, Wis.	Helm	O'Connell	Thomas, N. C.
Cox, Ind.	Henry, Tex.	Padgett	Tou Velle
Craig	Hitchcock	Page	Underwood
Cravens	Houston	Parker	Watkins
Cushman	Hughes, N. J.	Patterson	Webb
Davenport	Hull, Tenn.	Peters	Weisse
Denver	Humphreys, Miss.	Pou	Wiley
Dixon	James, Ollie M.	Pray	Williams
Ellerbe	Jenkins	Rainey	Wilson, Pa.

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—6.

Adamson	Gardner, Mass.	Lee	Sherman
De Armond	Goulden

NOT VOTING—169.

Acheson	Davis, Minn.	Hughes, W. Va.	Overstreet
Aiken	Dawes	Hull, Iowa	Parsons
Alexander, N. Y.	Dawson	Jackson	Pearre
Ames	Denby	James, Addison D.	Porter
Andrus	Diekema	Johnson, Ky.	Pratt
Anthony	Edwards, Ga.	Keliher	Prince
Barclay	Ellis, Mo.	Kinkaid	Pujo
Bartholdt	Englebright	Knopf	Randell, Tex.
Bartlett, Nev.	Fairchild	Lafean	Reeder
Bates	Favrot	Lamar, Fla.	Rhinock
Bennet, N. Y.	Flood	Lamar, Mo.	Riordan
Bennett, Ky.	Focht	Lamb	Rodenberg
Boutell	Foelker	Landis	Rothermel
Bradley	Fornes	Langley	Rucker
Brantley	Foster, Ind.	Laning	Scott
Brodhead	Foulkrod	Lassiter	Sheppard
Broussard	Fowler	Law	Slayden
Brumm	Fulton	Leake	Slemp
Brundidge	Gaines, W. Va.	Legare	Small
Burgess	Gardner, Mich.	Lewis	Smith, Iowa
Burke	Gardner, N. J.	Lilley	Smith, Mich.
Burleigh	Glass	Lindsay	Snapp
Burleson	Goldfogle	Livingston	Spight
Burton, Del.	Gordon	Lorimer	Stephens, Tex.
Burton, Ohio	Graff	Loudenslager	Sturgiss
Calder	Graham	McCall	Sulzer
Calderhead	Granger	McDermott	Swasey
Caldwell	Gregg	McGavin	Talbott
Campbell	Griggs	McHenry	Tawney
Carlin	Guernsey	McKinley, Ill.	Thomas, Ohio
Cary	Hackett	McLain	Waldo
Cassel	Hackney	McMillan	Wallace
Clark, Fla.	Haggott	Malby	Wanger
Cocks, N. Y.	Hall	Marshall	Washburn
Cole	Hamill	Maynard	Watson
Conner	Harrison	Miller	Willett
Cook, Colo.	Haugen	Moon, Pa.	Wilson, Ill.
Cook, Pa.	Hawley	Mouser	Wolf
Coudrey	Hill, Conn.	Mudd	Wood
Cousins	Hill, Miss.	Murphy	Woodyard
Crawford	Hobson	Needham
Darragh	Holliday	Norris
Davey, La.	Hubbard, Iowa	Olcott

So the motion was rejected.

The Clerk announced the following additional pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. MALBY with Mr. SMALL.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan with Mr. PRATT.

Mr. MCKINLEY of Illinois with Mr. HACKNEY.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa with Mr. RUCKER.

Mr. DAWSON with Mr. RANDELL of Texas.

On this vote:

Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts (in favor of) with Mr. KELIHER (against).

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. WANGER, with whom I am paired, did not vote, and I wish to change my vote from "no" to "present."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The motion fails, and the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. JENKINS] is recognized.

CONSPIRACIES AGAINST ALIENS.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the Judiciary, I call up the bill (H. R. 11733) punishing conspiracy to injure or intimidate any person in the exercise of a right under the Constitution or laws of the United States.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That if two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate any person in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same, they shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

The following committee amendment was read:

Amend by striking out all of line 4 after the word "any;" all of line 5, and "laws," the first word of line 6, and insert in lieu thereof "alien in his free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him under any treaty."

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the House that this is a very important matter; and if any gentleman desires to ask any question, we shall be very glad to hear it now.

Mr. SHERLEY rose.

Mr. JENKINS. I yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for order. This is a very important matter.

Mr. JENKINS. It is a very important matter.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin yields to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] ten minutes. The House will be in order.

Mr. SHERLEY. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to give to the Federal Government jurisdiction of conspiracies against the rights of aliens, such rights being conferred by treaty. Under the existing law there is no power that enables the Federal Government to punish such offenses, and in the past history of this country we have had several instances showing the vital need of such a law. No foreign nation looks to any individual State in its intercourse with this country, and any treaty that is made with a foreign nation must of necessity be made with the United States; and where there is responsibility there ought to be power. If the Federal Government can under a treaty confer certain rights upon aliens, it ought to have the right to punish persons who undertake to violate such rights. This question arose in a case growing out of some trouble in California many years ago in regard to the Chinese. The case was ultimately carried to the Supreme Court, and that court, construing section 5508 of the Revised Statutes, declared that the word "citizen" did not embrace aliens, and that there was no law that enabled the Federal Government to punish such offenses. Section 5508 of the Revised Statutes says practically that if two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any rights guaranteed under the Constitution or laws of the United States, they shall be punished, and so forth. I introduced a bill that changed that section simply by the substitution of the word "persons" in place of the word "citizens," because the Supreme Court in that case, the case of Baldwin v. Frank, has said that "citizens" was not as broad as "persons," and practically stated that the use of the word "persons" would give jurisdiction over aliens.

But the Judiciary Committee in its wisdom thought that was too broad a designation, and so it reported the bill with an amendment which uses the words "alien in his free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him under any treaty." And while it does not go as far as my bill, in that it does not embrace fully rights under the Constitution of the United States, but expressly limits it to a treaty, it does make substantial progress. There have been in the past some objections to a law of this kind, because it was believed that the States themselves could control such a situation, and I know that there is no one in this House who believes more in the exercise of state power, where that exercise can be had, than myself. But repeating again what I believe to be a fundamental proposition, I say that where there is responsibility there ought to be power, and it is a humiliating position for the United States of America, in dealing with a foreign nation, when called upon to enforce a treaty right, to reply, "We have no jurisdiction and you must look to the individual State." In the trouble that grew up in Louisiana, the "Mafia trouble," Italy made a demand upon this country, and this Government, while not acceding to the demand as a principle, did pay to the Government of Italy a substantial sum on account of wrongs done Italian subjects then resident in Louisiana, but this Government was unable to punish any of the perpetrators of that wrong.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Were they citizens?

Mr. SHERLEY. They were not citizens. They were aliens resident in Louisiana.

Mr. MANN. As I understand, it is proposed to make it an indictable offense in a federal court for any two or more persons to conspire against the rights of an alien, which rights are secured by treaty.

Mr. SHERLEY. That is right, sir.

Mr. MANN. Those rights, as a rule, are that an alien shall be treated the same as a citizen. That is practically what the treaty rights are. Suppose, then, that this trouble in New Orleans had been a labor strike and these people had been alien laborers, could the people who interfered with those laborers have been indicted in the federal courts instead of the state courts under this provision?

Mr. SHERLEY. Unquestionably, if the conspiracy existed.

Mr. MANN. Suppose in the case of a labor strike there are some aliens endeavoring to take the place of strikers, in such cases can they go into the federal court and obtain an indictment charging that the labor leaders in charge of the strike have organized a conspiracy against them instead of relegating them to the state court?

Mr. SHERLEY. Unquestionably; if there was a conspiracy charged against the right of the alien secured by treaty, the federal court would have jurisdiction.

Mr. MANN. As I understand it—and the gentleman is the best informed on this subject in the House, and I therefore appeal to him—these treaty rights are practically the ordinary rights of citizens, and the alien shall receive the same rights; receive the same protection of the law and be entitled in every way to the benefit of our laws as far as personal protection is concerned as citizens, and if the violation is against the alien he goes into the federal court, and if it is against the citizen he goes into the state court.

Mr. SHERLEY. The latter part of the gentleman's statement is not altogether correct. There is now on the statute book section 5508, which protects any citizen against the conspiracy of a right guaranteed to him under the Constitution and laws of the United States.

Mr. MANN. That was the gentleman's original bill as to aliens, but now the rights guaranteed to aliens under the treaty are different from the rights guaranteed to citizens by the Constitution of the United States and the statutes; they do not enter into the personal protection of the citizen of the State.

Mr. SHERLEY. Except, the gentleman will bear in mind, the use of the word "law" would embrace a treaty; so as the bill was originally drawn it would not only embrace the treaty rights, but any other rights which could be given by federal law or the Constitution.

The action of the Committee on the Judiciary has been to narrow the bill and not to enlarge it. Now, there is, of course, the objection which has been suggested by the questions of the gentleman from Illinois, and that is that an alien might be enabled to get protection from the federal court in a matter where the citizen would not be able to; but there is this to be said in favor of that proposition—that the alien rights come from the Federal Government, and the country to which he belongs looks to the Federal Government for the enforcement and guaranty of those rights. There is no reason why, in a labor dispute or in any other dispute, if a mob is organized and enters upon a conspiracy against the rights given the alien under a treaty, the mob should not be punished by the federal law that guaranteed the alien that right.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from Kentucky and I both agree about that. The gentleman does not get quite what I am trying to direct his attention to, probably because I have not made it very clear. Under this provision, as I understand it, the rights of an alien guaranteed under a treaty apply to his protection under the statutes of the State, and an alien under the treaty is as much entitled to protection of the laws of Illinois as a citizen of Illinois. The gentleman's original bill did not undertake to confer any power on the federal court over the enforcement of a law relating to Illinois; but under this provision, it seems to me—and I ask the gentleman for information—if the alien in the State of Illinois is not given the same protection that the citizen has, and if he claims that he is injured in those rights by reason of the conspiracy, he can go into the federal court and get an indictment for the violation of the Illinois statute.

Mr. SHERLEY. I am inclined to think this—the gentleman asks a very intricate and interesting question—if the right is directly traceable to a treaty, the federal jurisdiction exists; but if he has a right under the state law irrespective of the treaty, then this law would not give the federal court jurisdiction, but he would have to look to the state law. But it is to be borne in mind that this proposed law does not deal with minor offenses, where one individual attacks another. Those, while sometimes aggravated, as a rule can be left to the local or state law; but here the crime must rise to the dignity of a conspiracy——

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey rose.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HENRY], a member of the committee, who desires to speak in opposition to the bill.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Texas to yield one minute to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] in order that he may answer a question.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I yield one minute to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Is there any doubt in the mind of the gentleman of the ability of the state court now to protect or to punish anybody for entering into a conspiracy against aliens or citizens or anyone else?

Mr. SHERLEY. That depends upon the particular State and the state law, and sometimes, unfortunately, it depends upon the amount of local feeling that may exist. At the time of the Chinese trouble some twenty years ago, there was a condition in the State of California where it was not to be expected that that State would punish violations against the treaty rights of the Chinese.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. As I understand the gentleman, then, there is no question as to the law on the subject. We do not need any more laws in order to protect aliens from conspiracy.

Mr. SHERLEY. That is the gentleman's own assumption. I think we do need this law, else I would not advocate it.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Is there any State in which there is not a law against conspiracy, or which makes a qualification or exception in case of an alien?

Mr. SHERLEY. No State that I know of.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, what I desire to say on this bill can be stated in a few words. While it is true the bill comes to the House with the indorsement of the Committee on the Judiciary, yet there are some of us who reserved the right to oppose it on the floor of the House. I was one of the number, and now desire to record my opposition to it and briefly give my reasons for such action. It will be remembered this same proposition was up when we were considering the bill to recodify the statutes of the United States. We had a vote on the question and this House voted it down.

Mr. SHERLEY. Will the gentleman yield for a moment?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Certainly.

Mr. SHERLEY. Will not the gentleman bear me out in the statement that when that amendment was offered by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD] I myself objected to it being considered at that time, because we had objected to affirmative propositions in the consideration of a revision report, and that as the author of the bill I asked that it be not considered at that time, so that here has been no real consideration by the House?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. My recollection is that we considered it and it was voted down. At least it was ascertained that the sentiment of the House was against it. Now, Mr. Speaker, this bill proposes to confer rights upon aliens not conferred and which perhaps could not be conferred by States of the Union. It provides:

> That if two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate any alien in his free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him under any treaty of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same, they shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

The bill is short, and I have set it out in full. It may be that a State would deny certain rights to an alien. Perhaps it would act with wisdom in doing so, and yet it might be that under some treaty of the United States with a foreign country a right could be conferred upon an alien which could not be enjoyed by a citizen of a State. Therefore I believe these questions should be remanded to the States for settlement in their legislatures. I contend that the rights of suffrage, domestic relations, public schools, and such questions should be determined by the States and not be wrapped up in some treaty that may be entered into with foreign countries, and for that reason my opposition is here interposed to giving jurisdiction to federal courts in regard to rights of aliens in this way, and especially where the same rights are not enjoyed by the citizens of this country. You will remember, to be perfectly frank, that there was some question in California not long ago in reference to the Japanese, and that State was in a controversy with the President and federal executive authorities about it. I think the citizens of California had a right to take the position they did on that issue, and do not believe Congress should put it in the power of an alien or anyone else to override the sovereignty of a State on such a question as this. [Applause.] It is one of purely domestic concern; each State can and will determine it according to the sentiment and welfare of its people. If California or any other State does not wish to admit Orientals into their public schools, such right of action remains with, and should so remain under our Constitution, with a sovereign State. No treaty made under proper constitutional limitations can or should nullify this sovereign will of a State and force Japanese and Chinese into the white schools of a State. There is no power, can be none, and there should be none, to authorize by treaty with a foreign nation Asiatics and aliens to enter our public schools and intermingle with our children. Our fathers never wrote it in the Constitution; it is not in the treaty-making power, and should never be. It was never intended by the treaty-making power to rob the States of such rights, and by the provisions of this federal statute we should not endeavor to make the privileges of aliens superior to state laws.

Mr. Speaker, I would not take one just power from this Government given it under the Constitution, and do not invoke a strict construction of the Constitution on such questions as this. It is not necessary, and I only call for a proper construction. But I certainly say it is going too far to take a circuitous route and confer rights upon aliens which have not been conferred upon them by the sovereign States of this Union. Every State now has ample law to punish every offense against the rights of aliens. They have every protection in their personal rights now vouchsafed to citizens. Gentlemen can not name a single just right of aliens taken from them in a solitary State of the Union—not one. They are challenged to point it out. Hence it is not necessary to take away or throttle state jurisdiction and throw this and kindred domestic problems into federal domain and the forum of federal courts. For that reason I am opposed to this measure and say it is radical and wrong. There is nothing calling for legislation by Congress. Therefore I shall vote against it; and, having reserved the right to oppose it in the Committee on the Judiciary, feel warranted in attacking it here.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Has the gentleman investigated the question of what right Congress has to make it an offense within a State to commit an offense against an alien that it would not have to make an offense against a citizen of the State who committed a like offense?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I certainly think there is no such right.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. This bill undertakes to do that.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. And I am opposing the bill.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I understand so.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. And I thank the gentleman for his suggestion. It is a strong point coming from the gentleman from Georgia, a most able lawyer.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman at that point will permit, if he has read, as he doubtless has, the decision of Baldwin against Frank, the Supreme Court in so many words says it is not a question of power, but simply that Congress had not so legislated. It clearly declares that the power exists, and the constitutionality of this law is beyond question.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Conceding the decision, as the gentleman states, I am opposed to this bill on the question of broad policy and say Congress should take its hands off the question and leave it to the States. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. JENKINS. If the gentleman will permit, I understood the gentleman from Texas to say if aliens obtained any rights they should obtain them from the States.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. No; I did not say that.

Mr. JENKINS. That is what I understood the gentleman from Texas to say, and I did not want him to be misunderstood. Is it not a fact that if an alien obtains any rights under the Government he must obtain them through the Federal Government; that he comes here and becomes a citizen of the State under the law of that State by the prior authority of the Federal Government?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Of course I know the States have nothing to do with our international relations as States, but have everything to do with the question of their own domestic affairs.

Mr. DOUGLAS. If the gentleman will permit, does not the gentleman think the rights of aliens guaranteed to them by the treaties of the Nation ought to be protected somewhere?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I think they ought to be protected, but I think we ought not to confer greater rights upon aliens than upon citizens. I believe the rights of citizens are at least equal to those of aliens. And I declare they are now abundantly protected by the laws of every State in the Union. And this applies to treaty rights as well as all others.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. SHERLEY. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Texas, I do not know of any power under the treaty-making clause of the Constitution that enables the Federal Government to confer upon aliens rights superior to those possessed by citizens. I myself have always believed that the treaty-making power was a restricted power, and upon this floor took occasion to point out some limitations which were on that power. Now, this proposed law does not undertake to say what rights can be conferred upon aliens. What it does undertake to say is this: That when the Government of the United States confers a right upon an alien as a result of a formal treaty made with a sovereign power, that it owes it to its standing as a member of the great nations of the world to see that that right is maintained and enforced. [Applause.] This matter is not a new proposition. President after President has sent messages to Congress asking that something be done to give the Federal Government power to enforce its treaties. What a humiliating position the United States is in when it is called upon by a government with which it has entered into a formal treaty to enforce a right guaranteed by such treaty, and has to answer that it has no power, and that such foreign nation will have to look to a State which that nation does not recognize.

Now, I agree with this much of what the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HENRY] says. We ought to be exceedingly careful as to what right we confer under treaty. There ought to be the utmost caution in that regard, and I by no means agree with those gentlemen who believe that we can confer all sorts of rights, such as were claimed relative to the situation in California recently, but to the extent that we can confer rights, having done it, we ought to be prepared to enforce those rights. I believe in state law and in state sovereignty, but the matter of the treaty-making power we gave to the Federal Government, and expressly prohibited it to the States. We did it because it was necessary that all the States should speak with one voice, that they should deal with foreign countries through one government, and having dealt that way that one government ought to have the power to enforce its decree. No innocent man need fear this. It relates only to conspiracy. It requires an indictment by a grand jury; it requires a trial by a petit jury. It throws about the accused man every safeguard that the Anglo-Saxon law knows; it simply gives to the Government the power to make effective its obligations. [Applause.]

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CLAYTON], a member of the committee.

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was under consideration in the Committee on the Judiciary I gave notice that I should antagonize it on the floor of the House. So, Mr. Speaker, that explains my attitude in opposing a measure that has come from the committee of which I am a member.

This bill, Mr. Speaker, ought not to pass this House, either as amended or in its original form. I am not going to go into a lengthy discourse—I could not if I would—but I am merely going to suggest some of the ideas why I am opposed to it, and leave it to the intelligent consideration of the Members of the House to supply the argument that I would make were I as capable of making it as is the average Member of this House.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the multiplication of federal offenses. We have too many now. For years and years we have had commissioners and successive commissioners trying to codify the statutes of the United States. This House has been for more than a decade grappling with the proposition of trying to simplify the multitudinous criminal statutes we already have.

Now, as I have said, there is no necessity for it. There is no necessity for passing this law in its form as originally introduced by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY]. Certainly the argument made against it as amended—the alien proposition—as elucidated and sustained by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HENRY] here, ought to be convincing on that phase of the question. Now, why should this pass? There is not an alien or citizen of this country who is oppressed by virtue of any conspiracies among anybody but has a remedy already. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

We have enough laws, and we go ahead from time to time creating more laws—more and unnecessary laws. Whenever any alien's rights are violated by criminal conspiracies there is no State in this Union that does not furnish adequate remedy or punishment. The same men who constitute a grand and petit jury in a federal court constitute it in a state court. And I, somehow or other, have enough notion of the old states rights doctrine still left in me to believe that our state judges are just as honest and just as capable, just as learned and just as well suited for the enforcement of the rights of any man, through the means of criminal prosecution, as the federal judges are. And I think this is an unnecessary law, should we pass it. Let us leave the law as it is. The alien and the citizen have adequate protection under the law in every State in this Union as it now stands. [Applause.]

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to my friend from Alabama [Mr. CLAYTON] and the Members of this House that no man ever stood upon this floor more jealous of the rights of a State than I have always been. But, Mr. Speaker, whenever there was an opportunity to exercise a federal power, and when there was a demand for it, and it would not conflict with the rights of a State, I have never hesitated to put that power in operation as far as my vote was concerned. I voted in the Committee on the Judiciary for this bill, and I stand here upon the floor of this House in support of this measure. I think we would be derelict in our duty to-day if we did not pass this bill. There is no use in talking about referring to the laws of the States of Alabama or Mississippi or Wisconsin or any other State of the Union. They have no provision upon the statute books that meets this question.

This is an absolute necessity. It did not originate with the Committee on the Judiciary; it was recommended to the Committeee on the Judiciary by the Department of State, which is very much interested in this great question.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Will the gentleman permit an interruption?

Mr. JENKINS. Certainly.

Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania. Is it not true that in every State of the Union there is a law which gives as much protection to the alien against conspiracy as to the citizen?

Mr. JENKINS. No, sir; and no gentleman who clearly understands the subject would ask that question. This is aimed to prevent conspiracy against an alien, and we have had many such cases in this country, that has made it very difficult for the administration to dispose of.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. If the gentleman will permit me to interrupt him——

Mr. JENKINS. Certainly.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Take the case of the Japanese and the Chinese in the State of California, where their children were sent to the oriental schools in San Francisco. The Japanese raised considerable controversy over the matter; and there was contention that they had the right under a treaty with the United States to enter the white schools in the city of San Francisco and the State of California. They went into court and insisted upon that right, and they undertook to go into these schools and claimed that there was discrimination against them. A conspiracy would be alleged against the board or anyone, acting by their direction, who required them to go in a separate school. Under this act, could they be compelled to go into the separate schools?

Mr. JENKINS. Let me answer that question in my own way. I want to say to my friend, long before the opening of Congress, when that question arose, I gave an interview to the newspapers of this country and stood for the State of California against the Federal Government. I want the House to understand me on that subject; so far as that question is concerned every State can and ought to have the absolute right to say who shall enter their schools [applause]; and we all remember the Federal Government, after taking a position, abandoned it.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I remember that there was considerable discussion on the matter, and the Chinese and Japanese tried to send their children to the white schools in California. Suits were brought, and they were denied the right.

Mr. JENKINS. The suits were abandoned. That has absolutely nothing to do with this.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Let me suggest that the legislature of the State of California appropriated $10,000 to prosecute litigation in order that the Chinese and Japanese might be kept out of these schools and make them attend their own.

Mr. JENKINS. I say here, and I want to repeat it, openly and publicly, that every State of the Union has an absolute right as against the Federal Government to say who shall enter their schools and who shall not. [Applause.] And there is no attempt upon the part of the Federal Government here to interfere with this question. But the State Department informs this House, through its Judiciary Committee, that they have immense complications growing up. I want to say to this House to-day that the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] is entitled to great credit from this House for taking upon himself the responsibility of bringing into this House this great and important question.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will the gentleman permit me to ask him a question?

Mr. JENKINS. Certainly.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will the gentleman state what State in the Union there is in which the alien would not have the protection of her laws at the present where this law would be of some benefit to him?

Mr. JENKINS. Well, I can only state to my friend from New York in a most general way that this provides that there shall be no conspiracy upon the part of two or more against aliens. Now, we have never been able to punish that under any law in any State. We know, of course, to-day that if an alien is murdered or interfered with in any State, an appeal can be made to the State for protection. There is nothing in this law that any Democrat or any Republican need be afraid of. It is simply to clothe a department of this Government with the power to protect aliens under the terms of treaty obligations.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Will the gentleman permit a suggestion?

Mr. JENKINS. Certainly.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The gentleman is aware of the fact that in civil suits the alien can take cases into the federal courts and they have jurisdiction where the citizen can not have it under the same circumstances, and they have had that privilege for half a century.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I submit that the gentleman did not answer my question. I know that he wants to be candid and will do so. Suppose it is contended that such a right as I refer to is conferred by treaty and then it is alleged that a conspiracy has been entered into by this board of education; would this statute apply to such a case as that?

Mr. JENKINS. I say again to my friend upon the committee, who is a fair and honorable gentleman, entitled to an answer to his question, that this bill goes to this extent and this only—it simply says that if two or more persons conspire to injure or interfere with the rights of any alien, under a treaty the federal power can protect him.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I take it, then, that the gentleman agrees with me on that proposition.

Mr. JENKINS. I am perfectly willing to leave to every State the question of every local matter that may arise therein, but there is no provision in any State of the Union that meets this matter.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Suppose it was undertaken to confer such a right as that?

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman will permit me, in answer to the query of the gentleman from Texas, no right can be conferred on an alien except under our Constitution. Now, if such a right can be conferred, ought it not to be protected? The mere fact that some man claims it is a conspiracy against a right does not make it a fact, and in each instance under an indictment the court would have to determine whether constitutionally such a treaty right could be and had been conferred.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Still, that does not answer the question. I think it is very clear that this statute would apply to that San Francisco case. Of course, I understand that this Government can not confer any rights that the Constitution does not authorize it to confer.

Mr. JENKINS. Then let me answer the question of the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. I would like to have an answer to that.

Mr. JENKINS. I will answer it. I agree with the gentleman from Texas that if two or more persons in the city of San Francisco, Cal., conspired together to prevent one of these aliens going into the public schools this law would apply.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. That is all I wanted to know.

Mr. SHERLEY. Will the gentleman qualify his statement with this further——

Mr. JENKINS. Let me answer the question by saying that that does not determine or settle the question as to whether or not they can enter the schools.

Mr. SHERLEY. No; and in such a case would it not be permissible to raise the question whether such a treaty right could be conferred, and instead of having pronouncements from certain high authorities as to what rights could be conferred, you would have a court of the land determine it and settle the matter?

Mr. HENRY of Texas. But you might have a court hold that such a right did exist under the treaty, and that is the reason I am opposed to the bill.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the Supreme Court of the United States held that the right could be conferred, then the Federal Government ought to be able to enforce that right.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Oh, if the Supreme Court did it; but some local court might so hold it first, and it might not get to the Supreme Court.

Mr. JENKINS. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. HUGHES].

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill, for the reasons which caused me to oppose a similar provision in the revision of the criminal code. It is clear to my mind that under this bill, as under that provision of the code, men engaged in labor disputes are liable to come constructively within the provisions of this act. It has been held in my State, and it has been practically held by the Supreme Court, that an agreement to go upon a strike in certain cases is a conspiracy against the employer. It might be held that it was a conspiracy also against those who would seek that employment, and any conduct of those engaged in the dispute in any way directed against those who would take their places might be regarded under this act as a conspiracy.

Now, where I come from we are within 15 miles of the port of New York, and it is no uncommon thing for strike breakers to be imported in the early days of a strike. That remedy is known to everybody. They are brought there. Now, little trivial things can be seized upon, things that may occur at any time in the heat of an industrial fight of that character, and be said to be the outcome of a conspiracy, and then what do we have? We have this dispute transferred to a tribunal far away from home; they take these men or women to the federal court, where nobody understands the local conditions. The people so indicted—and they have been indicted and sent to prison in my State for engaging in a strike—they can be indicted, and if these men are shown to be aliens and a conspiracy is alleged and proved by ex parte witnesses, they can be indicted under this bill and tried. Now if they are indicted, tried, and convicted of conspiracy against an alien they can be punished by a $5,000 fine.

You can not get away from that, under the language of the bill. There is no chance for the court to say that the provocation was great, or that there was doubt about the guilt, or to take into consideration the previous good conduct.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman from New Jersey will read the bill he will see that it says "not more than $5,000." The fine can be made as low as $1.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Well, in any event, in my State no such penalty could be inflicted for that crime. Aliens under this bill could engage in a conspiracy against a citizen the citizen would be subjected to.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman will pardon me, section 5508 of the Revised Statutes would cover that case. That says that if two or more persons conspire against any citizen. This says if two or more persons conspire against an alien; it complements it.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. I have not the gentleman's knowledge of the Revised Statutes, but I am discussing this bill.

Mr. NICHOLLS. I would like to ask the gentleman from New Jersey if the bill does not provide drastic punishment for a conspiracy to violate a right, possibly not yet granted, or which may be granted, and one that might be obnoxious to citizens of this country, and one that perhaps could not be passed through this representative body. And yet this bill provides a punishment for a conspiracy to violate a right not yet granted.

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. I should prefer not to answer that question, as I do not exactly catch the trend of it.

Mr. NICHOLLS. Does not the bill provide for the violation of a right that may be granted by treaty in the future and which does not now exist?

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. Undoubtedly.

Mr. NICHOLLS. For the violation of rights not now known to the people of this country?

Mr. HUGHES of New Jersey. That is right, and that is a good point, too. What I am apprehensive about is that men may be punished under this bill for conspiracy to keep aliens from taking employment. As the gentleman from Pennsylvania says, there may be hundreds of these rights conferred by treaty that we do not regard seriously enough to apply such a procedure to their abrogation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired.

Mr. JENKINS. I now yield five minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DE ARMOND].

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I expect to vote against this measure either in its original form or as the amendment proposed would make it, for the double reason that I consider it unnecessary legislation and dangerous legislation. It is unnecessary because the federal statutes and state statutes—one or the other, in many instances both—practically provide for everything that could be reached, or ought to be reached, by this measure. It is dangerous, because no man can tell what might be and what might not be embraced within it or comprehended under it. Wherever any United States district attorney, if this were the law, might choose to have an indictment found against any citizen or person for the violation of the provision which this would carry into the law, and found a grand jury ready to act upon his suggestion, anybody might be indicted for practically anything, carried to the federal court, and the result, of course, there, as elsewhere, would depend upon the construction of the law by the court or the verdict of a jury.

Now, no man can tell, no man can determine, what particular offenses would be embraced within this act, and it would be almost equally difficult to tell actually what would be excluded from it.

That if any two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate—

As the original bill reads—

any person in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same, he shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

Now, the ingenuity of man is not sufficient to classify or to make a statement, no matter how much time might be given, of all the things that might be embraced within that. What are the rights secured to persons by the Constitution of the United States? It would be very hard to catalogue them. What would two or three or more persons conspiring together have to conspire to do in order to violate the provisions of that act? How little or how much would be necessary?

Now, as the committee proposes to amend it, it would provide that if "two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate any alien in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right secured to him under any treaty of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same, they shall be fined," and so forth.

I have always been opposed and am now to selecting out the alien for particular favor in our law. I believe that the man who sojourns in a foreign country is entitled to no more than what the law of that country gives to its inhabitants and citizens. There is not a State in this Union where the alien has not in law the same protection that the citizen has. It is no defense anywhere against any charge made in any court or under any circumstances that the person alleged to have been injured or the victim of alleged wrongdoing is an alien and not a citizen. It is not necessary to charge that the person injured or against whom an attempt at injury has been made is a citizen, and it is no defense for anyone to allege or to show that he is not a citizen. So the alien and the citizen are equally within the protection of our laws. There is no reason for picking out the alien for a special favor.

The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] alludes to the circumstance that in certain proceedings of a civil nature the alien has the right to go to the United States court. That is because the Constitution so provides; but that is very far from an argument in favor of the proposition that the Congress, by legislation, should provide for his going to the United States courts in other and criminal cases.

Mr. KAHN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. DE ARMOND. Yes.

Mr. KAHN. A large number of the States of the Union provide that there shall be separate schools as between white and colored children. Now, in the State of California the law provides that boards of education may organize oriental schools, which the children of alien Chinese and Japanese parents must attend. If this bill were to be enacted into law, would it not be giving a greater right to an alien than it would to a citizen of the United States?

Mr. DE ARMOND. I think, Mr. Speaker, that it would be. That question has been very clearly presented, and I think very conclusively answered, by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. HENRY].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes more.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, if this bill were to be passed and a federal grand jury anywhere were to see proper to indict for a conspiracy, so denounced, the members of a school board or any other persons on account of the exclusion of any one from any school because of color, then such persons would have to stand trial in a federal court. This is giving jurisdiction to the federal court of that kind of cases, providing there be anything upon which jurisdiction could rest. In other words, if transfers from the state courts to the federal courts that kind of cases.

I suppose a particular treaty might be made (certainly as to the form of it it could be) to expressly provide that the children of certain aliens should be admitted to the schools of the United States upon precisely the same terms as and with the children of white citizens. I am not conceding that such a treaty would be valid, but I say it is possible to make such a treaty, and it is altogether possible that some such treaty might be made. Granting that it is made, and that by direct phraseology or by reasonable implication that provision is contained in it, and suppose that there is denial of the children of any of these aliens on account of color, we will say, to admission to the schools to which white children are sent, then under this bill, either in its original form or in the form in which the amendment would leave it, the persons alleged to be guilty of that offense would clearly come within the jurisdiction of the act, and clearly could be dealt with in the United States courts.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DOUGLAS rose.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I grant enough time to the gentleman from Missouri to answer a question by the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, is it not perfectly well recognized in the law of conspiracy that no official of any board can be held to answer to a charge of conspiracy merely for the exercise of his judgment as a member of the board? Such has been my understanding of the law since I was a prosecuting attorney.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Yes; I think that is correct.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Then how could it be that a member of a school board could be indicted for conspiracy under any circumstances, as suggested by the gentleman from California [Mr. KAHN]?

Mr. DE ARMOND. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. DOUGLAS] seems to lose sight of the very important distinction between the power to indict and the right to convict. Clearly a grand jury, if it sees proper to indict for any offense that is within the cognizance of the court within which that grand jury sits, can do so; and when the indictment is found, the person indicted may be brought before the court, and there he can make his defense.

Now, then, if persons were charged with conspiracy, they would be charged not with the exercise of their judgment; they would not be charged with error of judgment; they would be charged with the offense of conspiracy; and the circumstance that they may be members of a school board or that their official relations may change the condition, would be no sufficient answer to that charge, because persons who are members of a school board or who are in any other official position, are physically and mentally and legally capable of being guilty of the crime of conspiracy. They would be charged with being conspirators within the provisions of this law, and as to what the result would be upon trial that would be another matter. The law, I think, as I said in the outset, or the proposition to make a law of this kind, is not needed. It would serve no good purpose. The enactment of this provision, at almost any time and under circumstances that we can very easily imagine without any stretch of imagination, about which we can reason and out of reason arrive at a conclusion, might bring trouble and danger. I hope the bill will be defeated. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that I blame my Democratic friends for applauding that statement, but I want to say to every gentleman upon the floor of this House that we ought not to make a political question of this bill. We are interested here as citizens of the United States, not as Democrats, not as Republicans. We have power in this Government to negotiate treaties with foreign governments, and all we are asking here is that this Federal Government protect any alien who comes here and obtains any treaty rights, and every gentleman of any intelligence knows that it is not within the power of any State to protect an alien under his treaty rights. Now, look at the bill for a moment; and I regret very much when my friend from California, whom I respect so much, asks if it would interfere with his schools out in San Francisco. That has been very clearly stated here to-day. I do not think there is a man of intelligence in the United States to-day, no matter what his political affiliations may be, but who agrees that that question is solely within the power of the State, and I never want to live long enough to find that the Federal Government has power enough to overrule the State with reference to that question. [Applause.] And when the State of California says just how her schools shall be created and who shall enter and who be excluded, she has the exclusive power and paramount right, and the Federal Government can not interfere with it.

Mr. DE ARMOND and Mr. HENRY of Texas rose.

Mr. JENKINS. I yield first to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question at that point: Suppose this law were passed, and suppose in some treaty the right were given to aliens of a different color and a different race to enter our white schools, and suppose that some person in authority denied them admission, and suppose there was an effort made to indict those persons. Could that effort be pursued in the federal court under this provision, if enacted?

Mr. JENKINS. I do not think I am sufficiently conversant with the Bible to quote it correctly, but I think the Bible says, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." I do not think there is any Senate of the United States that will come after us that will make a treaty that overrides the rights of the States. We have no such treaty regulation to-day.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Let me ask one other question, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. JENKINS. Yes; I will yield.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Suppose under the leading of the district attorney a grand jury in a federal court, assuming this bill were passed and a law, were to indict a person. Could there be a question whether that indictment might be urged under this particular provision?

Mr. JENKINS. I think I can say to the gentleman any future Congress would repeal this law in a moment if there were any danger of any such treaty regulation as the gentleman suggests.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman will permit, right on the threshold of the case you could raise the question of whether any treaty right has been violated.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. The gentleman stated that this ought not to be a partisan question. I agree with him; it ought to be an American question. Now I will ask him to name one right that any State of this Union has denied an alien of which the gentleman has information.

Mr. JENKINS. Well, I will say to the gentleman I do not know whether any State has denied it, because they have no power to make——

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Can the gentleman name one right any State has denied to the alien?

Mr. JENKINS. There is no State in the Union which can give protection to the alien against any conspiracy against his treaty rights.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Name one of the fifty, then. The gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] says he can name fifty.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman will read just the history of the trouble in California, he will find even the right of residence, the right to conduct a laundry, the right to live—every sort of a right—was denied to the Chinese during that intense excitement there.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Does the gentleman mean to say that there was no law to protect those rights?

Mr. SHERLEY. I say there was no state law that did protect those rights.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. The gentleman means to say that the state law was violated, perhaps?

Mr. SHERLEY. I mean to say the State did not protect the alien, and the Federal Government did not have the power to do so.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to simply say in conclusion to the Members of this House, as far as I am concerned, that every gentleman on the floor of this House knows that this Government has perfect power to enter into treaty relations with other governments. Therefore we should clothe the Federal Government with power to protect aliens under any treaty regulations that this Government might make, and that is all we are insisting upon and all we ask.

I now yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. SHERLEY. Mr. Speaker, I dislike to take so much of the time of the House, but, as has been well said, this is an important matter.

In reply to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DE ARMOND], I might say that there is no law——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the gentleman from Kentucky will suspend, the Chair will state that the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. JENKINS] has only five minutes of time remaining.

Mr. JENKINS. Then I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. SHERLEY. There is no law that has not been subject to imaginary abuses. We have to-day a conspiracy section upon the federal statute books under which a grand jury, willing to disregard the law and under the instigation of a district attorney willing to disregard the law, could indict most anybody for most any offense under the sun. But we can not pass laws on this sort of supposition. If an indictment was found against any man engaged in a conspiracy to deprive a man of a right guaranteed under a treaty, the very first question that would be met on the threshold of the case would be to determine whether such right had been granted and whether it could be constitutionally granted. Now, the gentlemen talk about the Federal Government conferring rights on aliens to go to state public schools. I do not believe they have such rights. I do not believe the Federal Government can, under treaty, give such a right, and if men were indicted for denying that right, it would be in their power to challenge at once the right of the Federal Government, and that being a constitutional question, it would go to the Supreme Court of the United States, and there we could have a determination as to the limits upon the treaty-making power. The only thing that can be punished is an offense against a legal right that can be given, and that offense ought to be punished.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the bill to its final passage.

The question was taken, and the previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question first comes on the amendment.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The question was taken, and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 62, noes 85.

Mr. BEALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, to save the time of the House, I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 104, nays 98, answered "present" 6, not voting 182, as follows:

YEAS—104.

Acheson	Douglas	Howland	Marshall
Alexander, N. Y.	Draper	Hubbard, W. Va.	Martin
Allen	Edwards, Ky.	Huff	Mondell
Bannon	Ellis, Mo.	Humphrey, Wash.	Moore, Pa.
Barchfeld	Ellis, Oreg.	Jenkins	Morse
Bates	Esch	Jones, Wash.	Nelson
Bede	Foss	Keifer	Nye
Birdsall	Foster, Ind.	Kennedy, Iowa	Parker
Bonynge	Foster, Vt.	Kennedy, Ohio	Payne
Boutell	Fuller	Kinkaid	Pollard
Boyd	Gaines, W. Va.	Knapp	Pray
Calderhead	Gardner, Mass.	Küstermann	Reynolds
Campbell	Graff	Lawrence	Scott
Capron	Gronna	Lindbergh	Stafford
Caulfield	Guernsey	Longworth	Steenerson
Chaney	Hale	Loud	Sterling
Chapman	Hamilton, Mich.	Lovering	Sturgiss
Cole	Harding	Lowden	Sulloway
Cook, Colo.	Haskins	McCreary	Tawney
Cooper, Wis.	Hawley	McGuire	Thistlewood
Currier	Henry, Conn.	McKinley, Ill.	Thomas, Ohio.
Cushman	Higgins	McLachlan, Cal.	Tirrell
Dalzell	Hinshaw	McLaughlin, Mich.	Volstead
Darragh	Hitchcock	McMorran	Weems
Davidson	Howell, N. J.	Madison	Wheeler
Denby	Howell, Utah	Mann	Young

NAYS—98.

Adair	Ellerbe	Helm	Rainey
Aiken	Englebright	Henry, Tex.	Rauch
Alexander, Mo.	Estopinal	Hobson	Reid
Ansberry	Ferris	Houston	Robinson
Ashbrook	Finley	Howard	Russell, Mo.
Barnhart	Fitzgerald	Hughes, N. J.	Saunders
Beall, Tex.	Floyd	Hull, Tenn.	Shackleford
Bell, Ga.	Foster, Ill.	Humphreys, Miss.	Sheppard
Booher	Gaines, Tenn.	James, Ollie M.	Sherwood
Bowers	Garner	Johnson, S. C.	Sims
Brundidge	Gill	Jones, Va.	Smith, Mo.
Burleson	Gillespie	Kahn	Smith, Tex.
Candler	Godwin	Kitchin, Claude	Stanley
Carlin	Goebel	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Thomas, N. C.
Carter	Gordon	Knowland	Tou Velle
Clark, Mo.	Greene	Lever	Underwood
Clayton	Hackney	McHenry	Wallace
Cooper, Tex.	Hamilton, Iowa	Macon	Watkins
Cox, Ind.	Hamlin	Moon, Tenn.	Webb
Craig	Hammond	Moore, Tex.	Weisse
Cravens	Hardwick	Nicholls	Wiley
Davenport	Hardy	Padgett	Williams
De Armond	Hay	Page	Wilson, Pa.
Denver	Hayes	Patterson
Dixon	Heflin	Peters

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—6.

Adamson	Brantley	Lee	Sabath
Bartlett, Ga.	Goulden

NOT VOTING—182.

Ames	Beale, Pa.	Broussard	Burnett
Andrus	Bennet, N. Y.	Brownlow	Burton, Del.
Anthony	Bennett, Ky.	Brumm	Burton, Ohio
Barclay	Bingham	Burgess	Butler
Bartholdt	Bradley	Burke	Byrd
Bartlett, Nev.	Brodhead	Burleigh	Calder
Caldwell	Goldfogle	Livingston	Roberts
Cary	Graham	Lloyd	Rodenberg
Cassel	Granger	Lorimer	Rothermel
Clark, Fla.	Gregg	Loudenslager	Rucker
Cockran	Griggs	McCall	Russell, Tex.
Cocks, N. Y.	Hackett	McDermott	Ryan
Conner	Haggott	McGavin	Sherley
Cook, Pa.	Hall	McKinlay, Cal.	Sherman
Cooper, Pa.	Hamill	McKinney	Slayden
Coudrey	Harrison	McLain	Slemp
Cousins	Haugen	McMillan	Small
Crawford	Hepburn	Madden	Smith, Cal.
Crumpacker	Hill, Conn.	Malby	Smith, Iowa
Davey, La.	Hill, Miss.	Maynard	Smith, Mich.
Davis, Minn.	Holliday	Miller	Snapp
Dawes	Hubbard, Iowa	Moon, Pa.	Southwick
Dawson	Hughes, W. Va.	Mouser	Sparkman
Diekema	Hull, Iowa	Mudd	Sperry
Driscoll	Jackson	Murdock	Spight
Durey	James, Addison D.	Murphy	Stephens, Tex.
Dwight	Johnson, Ky.	Needham	Stevens, Minn.
Edwards, Ga.	Keliher	Norris	Sulzer
Fairchild	Kimball	O'Connell	Swasey
Fassett	Kipp	Olcott	Talbott
Favrot	Knopf	Olmsted	Taylor, Ala.
Flood	Lafean	Overstreet	Taylor, Ohio
Focht	Lamar, Fla.	Parsons	Townsend
Foelker	Lamar, Mo.	Pearre	Vreeland
Fordney	Lamb	Perkins	Waldo
Fornes	Landis	Porter	Wanger
Foulkrod	Langley	Pou	Washburn
Fowler	Laning	Pratt	Watson
French	Lassiter	Prince	Weeks
Fulton	Law	Pujo	Willett
Gardner, Mich.	Leake	Randell, Tex.	Wilson, Ill.
Gardner, N. J.	Legare	Ransdell, La.	Wolf
Garrett	Lenahan	Reeder	Wood
Gilhams	Lewis	Rhinock	Woodyard
Gillett	Lilley	Richardson
Glass	Lindsay	Riordan

So the bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Until further notice:

Mr. DRISCOLL with Mr. FULTON.

Mr. DWIGHT with Mr. KIMBALL.

Mr. FASSETT with Mr. LEE.

Mr. FRENCH with Mr. LENAHAN.

Mr. GILLETT with Mr. LLOYD.

Mr. HEPBURN with Mr. O'CONNELL.

Mr. BROWNLOW with Mr. BYRD.

Mr. DAWSON with Mr. KELIHER.

Mr. MADDEN with Mr. POU.

Mr. OLMSTED with Mr. RANSDELL of Louisiana.

Mr. ROBERTS with Mr. RICHARDSON.

Mr. SOUTHWICK with Mr. SHERLEY.

Mr. SWASEY with Mr. RUSSELL of Texas.

Mr. TOWNSEND with Mr. COCKRAN.

Mr. VREELAND with Mr. SPARKMAN.

Mr. WOODYARD with Mr. TAYLOR of Alabama.

Mr. ANTHONY with Mr. SABATH.

For the balance of the day:

Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio with Mr. GRIGGS.

On this vote:

Mr. MCKINNEY with Mr. BURNETT.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know whether the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BUTLER] voted on this roll call.

The SPEAKER. He did not.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I am paired with him, Mr. Speaker. I desire to withdraw my negative vote and answer "Present."

The name of Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia was called, and he answered "Present."

The bill was accordingly engrossed and read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, upon that question I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 101, nays 100, answered "present" 3, not voting 187, as follows:

YEAS—101.

Alexander, N. Y.	Currier	Gardner, Mass.	Jenkins
Allen	Cushman	Gardner, Mich.	Jones, Wash.
Bannon	Dalzell	Gilhams	Keifer
Bartholdt	Darragh	Graff	Kennedy, Iowa
Bede	Dawes	Gronna	Kennedy, Ohio
Bonynge	Denby	Guernsey	Kinkaid
Boutell	Douglas	Hamilton, Mich.	Knapp
Boyd	Draper	Haskins	Küstermann
Calderhead	Edwards, Ky.	Hawley	Landis
Campbell	Ellis, Mo.	Higgins	Lawrence
Capron	Ellis, Oreg.	Hinshaw	Lindbergh
Caulfield	Esch	Hitchcock	Longworth
Chaney	Fordney	Howell, N. J.	Lovering
Chapman	Foss	Howell, Utah	McCreary
Cole	Foster, Ind.	Howland	McKinley, Ill.
Cook, Colo.	Foster, Vt.	Hubbard, Iowa	McKinney
Cooper, Wis.	Fuller	Hubbard, W. Va.	McLachlan, Cal.
Crumpacker	Gaines, W. Va.	Humphrey, Wash.	McMorran

Madison	Payne	Stafford	Tirrell
Mann	Pray	Steenerson	Volstead
Marshall	Reynolds	Sterling	Wheeler
Martin	Scott	Sturgiss	Young
Moore, Pa.	Sherley	Sulloway	The Speaker.
Nelson	Smith, Iowa	Swasey
Nye	Southwick	Tawney
Parker	Sperry	Thomas, Ohio

NAYS—100.

Adair	Estopinal	Hull, Tenn.	Rainey
Aiken	Ferris	Humphreys, Miss.	Randell, Tex.
Alexander, Mo.	Finley	James, Ollie M.	Rauch
Ansberry	Fitzgerald	Johnson, S. C.	Reid
Ashbrook	Floyd	Jones, Va.	Robinson
Barnhart	Foster, Ill.	Kahn	Russell, Mo.
Beall, Tex.	Gaines, Tenn.	Kitchin, Claude	Ryan
Bell, Ga.	Garner	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Saunders
Booher	Gill	Knowland	Shackleford
Bowers	Gillespie	Lamb	Sheppard
Brundidge	Godwin	Lee	Sherwood
Burleson	Goebel	Lenahan	Sims
Burnett	Greene	Lever	Smith, Mo.
Carlin	Hackney	Lloyd	Smith, Tex.
Clark, Mo.	Hamilton, Iowa	McHenry	Taylor, Ala.
Clayton	Hamlin	Macon	Thomas, N. C.
Cooper, Tex.	Hammond	Moon, Tenn.	Tou Velle
Craig	Hardwick	Moore, Tex.	Underwood
Cravens	Hardy	Needham	Wallace
Davenport	Hay	Nicholls	Watkins
De Armond	Hayes	Padgett	Webb
Denver	Heflin	Page	Weisse
Dixon	Helm	Patterson	Wiley
Ellerbe	Henry, Tex.	Peters	Williams
Englebright	Hughes, N. J.	Pou	Wilson, Pa.

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—3.

Bartlett, Ga.	Bradley	Sabath

NOT VOTING—187.

Acheson	Driscoll	Johnson, Ky.	Pearre
Adamson	Durey	Keliher	Perkins
Ames	Dwight	Kimball	Pollard
Andrus	Edwards, Ga.	Kipp	Porter
Anthony	Fairchild	Knopf	Pratt
Barchfeld	Fassett	Lafean	Prince
Barclay	Favrot	Lamar, Fla.	Pujo
Bartlett, Nev.	Flood	Lamar, Mo.	Ransdell, La.
Bates	Focht	Langley	Reeder
Beale, Pa.	Foelker	Laning	Rhinock
Bennet, N. Y.	Fornes	Lassiter	Richardson
Bennett, Ky.	Foulkrod	Law	Riordan
Bingham	Fowler	Leake	Roberts
Birdsall	French	Legare	Rodenberg
Brantley	Fulton	Lewis	Rothermel
Brodhead	Gardner, N. J.	Lilley	Rucker
Broussard	Garrett	Lindsay	Russell, Tex.
Brownlow	Gillett	Livingston	Sherman
Brumm	Glass	Lorimer	Slayden
Burgess	Goldfogle	Loud	Slemp
Burke	Gordon	Loudenslager	Small
Burleigh	Goulden	Lowden	Smith, Cal.
Burton, Del.	Graham	McCall	Smith, Mich.
Burton, Ohio	Granger	McDermott	Snapp
Butler	Gregg	McGavin	Sparkman
Byrd	Griggs	McGuire	Spight
Calder	Hackett	McKinlay, Cal.	Stanley
Caldwell	Haggott	McLain	Stephens, Tex.
Candler	Hale	McLaughlin, Mich.	Stevens, Minn.
Carter	Hall	McMillan	Sulzer
Cary	Hamill	Madden	Talbott
Cassel	Harding	Malby	Taylor, Ohio
Clark, Fla.	Harrison	Maynard	Thistlewood
Cockran	Haugen	Miller	Townsend
Cocks, N. Y.	Henry, Conn.	Mondell	Vreeland
Conner	Hepburn	Moon, Pa.	Waldo
Cook, Pa.	Hill, Conn.	Morse	Wanger
Cooper, Pa.	Hill, Miss.	Mouser	Washburn
Coudrey	Hobson	Mudd	Watson
Cousins	Holliday	Murdock	Weeks
Cox, Ind.	Houston	Murphy	Weems
Crawford	Howard	Norris	Willett
Davey, La.	Huff	O'Connell	Wilson, Ill.
Davidson	Hughes, W. Va.	Olcott	Wolf
Davis, Minn.	Hull, Iowa	Olmsted	Wood
Dawson	Jackson	Overstreet	Woodyard
Diekema	James, Addison D.	Parsons

The Clerk announced the following additional pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. BARCHFELD with Mr. STANLEY.

Mr. MCLAUGHLIN of Michigan with Mr. HOBSON.

Mr. HUFF with Mr. HOUSTON.

Mr. FASSETT with Mr. RUSSELL of Texas.

Mr. DUREY with Mr. COX of Indiana.

Mr. DAVIDSON with Mr. CARTER.

For the balance of this day:

Mr. BATES with Mr. RUCKER.

On this vote:

Mr. LOWDEN with Mr. CANDLER.

Mr. POLLARD. I should like to be recorded as present.

The SPEAKER. Was the gentleman present and listening?

Mr. POLLARD. I was not here.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not bring himself within the rule.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I was mistaken as to the call. I had voted on the previous question, and was under the impression that this was another call on that vote. I was ready to vote, but did not hear my name.

The SPEAKER. Was the gentleman giving attention, listening, when his name should have been called?

Mr. HOBSON. I was giving general attention, but did not expect my name to be called.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman hardly brings himself within the rule.

Mr. HOBSON. Within two numbers, the name after mine or the next after that, they told me the Clerk had just passed my name, and I did not know it.

The SPEAKER. The meaning of the rule is the supposition that the gentleman's name was not called. Therefore, under the rule, the gentleman should have been present giving attention when his name should have been called, and did not hear it.

Mr. HOBSON. I was present, giving attention.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman says that he was not expecting to vote, but others heard his name called, and his attention was called to it one or two names further along. The rule forbids the Chair to entertain the request, unless the gentleman brings himself within the rule.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, in view of the conditions——

The SPEAKER. The vote has not been announced yet. On this vote the yeas are 100, the nays 99, present 4.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a recapitulation of the vote.

The SPEAKER. The vote is so close the Chair will order a recapitulation.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, again may I ask the indulgence of the Chair?

The SPEAKER. Undoubtedly.

Mr. HOBSON. I have been very careful to try to vote, and was under the impression that I had voted on this question. I was just at the door of the cloakroom, and if I had heard my name I would have voted.

The SPEAKER. Has the gentleman any reason to state that his name was not called?

Mr. HOBSON. No, sir; I have reason to state that it was, because just after it was called some one told me my name was called, and I had not heard it myself.

The SPEAKER. Then, under the rule, the Chair is absolutely forbidden to entertain the request of the gentleman to vote.

Mr. HOBSON. If it had been called loudly enough, perhaps I would have heard it. [Laughter.] I was here and attentive, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. It seems to the Chair that the gentleman does not bring himself within the rule.

Mr. HOBSON. I was here, was giving attention, and was anxious to vote, and I did not hear my name; but some others did.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman also states, however, that he was under the impression that he had voted.

Mr. HOBSON. Yes; that I had voted on the first roll call.

The SPEAKER. This is the rule:

Upon every roll call the names of the Members shall be called alphabetically by surname, except when two or more have the same surname, in which case the name of the State shall be added; and if there be two such Members from the same State, the whole name shall be called; and after the roll has been once called, the Clerk shall call in their alphabetical order the names of those not voting; and thereafter the Speaker shall not entertain a request to record a vote or announce a pair unless the Member's name has been noted under clause 3 of this rule.

That is where a quorum fails, and is not this case. The Speaker has been accustomed, in the construction of this rule, where it appears that a gentleman was present giving attention, expecting to vote, and failed to vote because he failed to hear his name called, to allow the Member's name to be called again. That is as far as the construction of the rule has gone, and so far as the Chair knows or is informed, it has been the uniform construction of the rule by the Chair. Now, except for the construction of the rule by the Chair, the letter of the rule would not even cover that case.

Mr. HOBSON. I am very weak on the rules, and especially on the letter of the rules; but it does seem to me, with the indulgence of the Speaker, that the spirit of such a rule would be that a Member desiring to vote and not guilty of negligence, whether he was under a misapprehension as to whether he had voted or not, would be taken account of. I was under the impression that I had voted on this question, and therefore was not as keen for my name as otherwise, but I was present and anxious to vote when my time came to vote, and could have perhaps called out and interrupted the call of names within one or two names of my own. I was giving attention to the general call of the roll, not expecting my name would be called.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has heard the gentleman. The rule was adopted by the House, and under the strict interpretation of the rule the gentleman would not be entitled to vote even if he was giving attention when his name should have been called and did not hear it called. But the construction of the rule by former Speakers, adhered to by the Chair, has been that where a gentleman states that he was giving attention when his name should have been called, and that he failed to hear his name called, to allow him to vote. Now, if the Chair should enlarge this construction of the rule, it would practically nullify the rule. It is quite in the power of the House to change the rule. The Chair does not think the gentleman has brought himself within the rule. The Clerk will recapitulate the vote.

The Clerk then recapitulated the vote.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call my name.

The Clerk called the name of Mr. CANNON, and he voted "aye."

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I make the point that the Speaker stands in the same position as any other Member of the House and that he must be subjected to the same inquiry to bring himself within the rule.

The SPEAKER. The Speaker's name is never called and is not printed on the roll. It has been the invariable practice for the Speaker to vote at the end of the roll call if he votes at all.

Mr. DE ARMOND. The vote had been entirely concluded, there had been an announcement of it and a recapitulation of it, and after all that had been concluded the Speaker asked the Clerk to call his name.

The SPEAKER. Precisely, and it is for the very reason that the recapitulation is called and that threw the vote open. Any Member would have been at liberty to change his vote if he had seen proper so to do.

Mr. DE ARMOND. That I concede, but did the Speaker vote and change his vote?

The SPEAKER. The Speaker did not vote; and the uniform practice has been, time out of mind, of all Speakers, his name not being printed on the roll, to vote, if he votes at all, after the roll has been called.

Mr. DE ARMOND. I make this point, however, that the Speaker directs the Clerk to call his name while the call is going on and not after the entire proceeding is ended.

The SPEAKER. The vote as announced was—100 ayes, noes 99. Now, then, a demand for a recapitulation was made, and the recapitulation was ordered, and very properly so, as the vote was so close. The order of that recapitulation threw the matter open, so that any Member could have changed his vote and any Member entitled to vote under the rule could have voted.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to be heard a moment on that point of order.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Did the Speaker vote before the recapitulation was ordered?

The SPEAKER. Oh, no; he did not.

I read from paragraph 6 of Rule I of the Rules of the House of Representatives:

He—

Referring to the Speaker—

shall not be required to vote in ordinary legislative proceedings, except where his vote would be decisive or where the House is engaged in voting by ballot; and in all cases of a tie vote the question shall be lost.

Until the conclusion of the vote, how could the Speaker know whether his vote would be decisive or not, and the Chair understands for that reason, followed by uniform practice of the House, the Speaker's name is not printed upon the roll?

Mr. KIMBALL. Mr. Speaker, has the recapitulation of the vote any other purpose than to ascertain that no errors have been made in recording the votes or the names of those who have not voted?

The SPEAKER. The object of the recapitulation is to show whether or not their recorded vote is correctly recorded, but the recapitulation throws the whole matter open, and if there have been mistakes they are corrected.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to be heard a moment on that point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I understand the situation to be this: That the vote was taken and concluded, and the Speaker announced, upon the report from the Clerk, that the ayes were 100, the noes 99. Then a Member of the House asked for a recapitulation of the vote. The Speaker ordered that recapitulation. The vote was recapitulated, and I understand it turned out upon that recapitulation that the vote was 100 to 100—a tie. Now, that vote had been concluded. The Speaker has the same right to vote as any other Member, but I make the point of order that it is the Speaker's business to determine whether he will vote or not vote before the vote is concluded.

As to the suggestion made by the Speaker that the recapitulation opens the matter and entitles anybody to vote who was entitled to vote before, I respectfully submit that that is an erroneous conclusion. It is not an opening of the matter to further voting—it is an ascertaining of what has been determined by the vote already taken. The recapitulation has no purpose on earth except the ascertaining of the result of a closed vote. Now, a vote closed is closed to the Speaker just as it is to any other Member of the House. The Speaker has said that upon the conclusion of the recapitulation any Member entitled to vote may vote. I most respectfully call the attention of the Speaker to what seems to me to be the fact—that he has dropped into error in regard to that conclusion. It does not open up the vote; it is not a reconsideration. The vote is concluded. The vote was concluded, Mr. Speaker, and the Speaker knew perfectly well he could vote in voting time if he chose to do it. He knew perfectly well if he chose he could refrain from voting. He deliberately and purposely refrained from voting.

The vote was concluded. Suppose there had been no call for a recapitulation, the vote would have been announced. There was a call and there was a recapitulation, but it does not change the condition of things. There simply remains the duty of the Speaker to announce the result of the vote, not ascertained particularly by recapitulation, but verified by recapitulation.

Now, when it comes around to the point of announcing the result obtained and concluded and verified by the recapitulation, the Speaker assumes the right to vote himself, when the time for voting, for him as for all others, upon the pending question has passed. I submit, not with reference to the merits of this bill, not that I care particularly about that—I have indicated where I stand by my vote—I submit as a matter of correct parliamentary proceeding; I submit as a matter of right and justice; I submit in justice to the House; aye, Mr. Speaker, I submit in justice to the Speaker himself, that the Speaker ought not to allow himself to be carried to the point of voting on this matter when he has no right to vote and when his vote may be an invasion of the legislative rights of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is prepared to rule. This is a very plain matter. The Speaker is not required to vote unless his vote would be decisive. The vote as announced by the Speaker showed that the bill passed by a majority of 1. Then the demand for recapitulation was made and the order to recapitulate was also made and recapitulation was had. Now, then, that recapitulation showed that the vote was a tie. The very object of the recapitulation was to see whether or not the announcement of the Speaker was correct, or whether there had been a mistake at the Clerk's desk, and that threw the matter open, so that the Speaker was entitled to vote. And years ago the Chair is informed that there is a precedent of this kind, that where there is a mistake in a vote taken to-day, or, say, on one day and that mistake is corrected on another legislative day so as to make a tie, the Speaker in that case votes the day after. In other words, it is an ascertainment of the vote. Under the rule and under the practice such ascertainment shows that the vote was a tie upon recapitulation, and the Speaker is very clear as to the question of practice as well as the question of right that he is entitled to vote, and therefore votes "aye." [Applause.]

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker——

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I appeal from the decision of the Chair. I do so respectfully, but I do it earnestly, because I think the Chair is wrong, and I would like to have the House settle it.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman can enter his appeal and the House will pass upon it.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Do I understand——

The SPEAKER. The motion to appeal is entered.

Mr. PAYNE. Did the gentleman vote in the affirmative?

Mr. DE ARMOND. I appealed from the decision of the Chair and do not need to vote in the affirmative to do that.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Missouri appeals from the decision of the Chair that the Chair had the right to vote, and pending that appeal the gentleman from Wisconsin moves that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken, and the Chair announced the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. DE ARMOND and others. Division, Mr. Speaker.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 95, noes 93.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. The yeas and nays, Mr. Speaker.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 99, nays 95, answered "present" 1, not voting 195, as follows:

YEAS—99.

Allen	Foster, Vt.	Keifer	Pollard
Bartholdt	French	Kennedy, Iowa	Pray
Bonynge	Gaines, W. Va.	Knapp	Reynolds
Calderhead	Gardner, Mass.	Knowland	Rodenberg
Campbell	Gilhams	Küstermann	Scott
Capron	Graff	Lawrence	Smith, Cal.
Caulfield	Greene	Lindbergh	Smith, Iowa
Chaney	Guernsey	Lowden	Southwick
Chapman	Hamilton, Mich.	McCreary	Sperry
Cook, Colo.	Haskins	McGuire	Stafford
Cooper, Pa.	Haugen	McKinley, Ill.	Steenerson
Cooper, Wis.	Hawley	McKinney	Sterling
Currier	Hayes	McLachlan, Cal.	Sturgiss
Dalzell	Higgins	McMorran	Sulloway
Darragh	Hinshaw	Madison	Swasey
Davidson	Holliday	Mann	Tawney
Dawes	Howell, N. J.	Marshall	Thistlewood
Denby	Howell, Utah	Mondell	Thomas, Ohio
Draper	Howland	Morse	Townsend
Edwards, Ky.	Hubbard, Iowa	Murdock	Volstead
Ellis, Mo.	Hubbard, W. Va.	Nelson	Weeks
Ellis, Oreg.	Huff	Nye	Wheeler
Esch	Humphrey, Wash.	Overstreet	Wilson, Ill.
Foss	Jenkins	Parker	Young
Foster, Ind.	Kahn	Payne

NAYS—95.

Adair	Ferris	Humphreys, Miss.	Randell, Tex.
Aiken	Finley	James, Ollie M.	Rauch
Alexander, Mo.	Fitzgerald	Johnson, S. C.	Reid
Ansberry	Floyd	Jones, Va.	Richardson
Ashbrook	Foster, Ill.	Kimball	Robinson
Barnhart	Gaines, Tenn.	Kipp	Russell, Mo.
Bartlett, Nev.	Garrett	Kitchin, Claude	Ryan
Beall, Tex.	Gillespie	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Sabath
Bell, Ga.	Godwin	Lamb	Shackleford
Booher	Hackett	Lee	Sheppard
Bowers	Hackney	Lenahan	Sherley
Brundidge	Hamilton, Iowa	Lever	Sherwood
Burleson	Hamlin	Lloyd	Sims
Burnett	Hammond	McHenry	Smith, Mo.
Candler	Hardy	Macon	Smith, Tex.
Clark, Mo.	Hay	Moon, Tenn.	Thomas, N. C.
Clayton	Heflin	Nicholls	Tou Velle
Cox, Ind.	Helm	Padgett	Wallace
Craig	Henry, Tex.	Page	Watkins
Cravens	Hobson	Patterson	Webb
De Armond	Houston	Peters	Weisse
Denver	Howard	Pou	Wiley
Dixon	Hughes, N. J.	Pratt	Wilson, Pa.
Estopinal	Hull, Tenn.	Rainey

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1.

Bartlett, Ga.

NOT VOTING—195.

Acheson	Cole	Goldfogle	Lewis
Adamson	Conner	Gordon	Lilley
Alexander, N. Y.	Cook, Pa.	Goulden	Lindsay
Ames	Cooper, Tex.	Graham	Livingston
Andrus	Coudrey	Granger	Longworth
Anthony	Cousins	Gregg	Lorimer
Bannon	Crawford	Griggs	Loud
Barchfeld	Crumpacker	Gronna	Loudenslager
Barclay	Cushman	Haggott	Lovering
Bates	Davenport	Hale	McCall
Beale, Pa.	Davey, La.	Hall	McDermott
Bede	Davis, Minn.	Hamill	McGavin
Bennet, N. Y.	Dawson	Harding	McKinlay, Cal.
Bennett, Ky.	Diekema	Hardwick	McLain
Bingham	Douglas	Harrison	McLaughlin, Mich.
Birdsall	Driscoll	Henry, Conn.	McMillan
Boutell	Durey	Hepburn	Madden
Boyd	Dwight	Hill, Conn.	Malby
Bradley	Edwards, Ga.	Hill, Miss.	Martin
Brantley	Ellerbe	Hitchcock	Maynard
Brodhead	Englebright	Hughes, W. Va.	Miller
Broussard	Fairchild	Hull, Iowa	Moon, Pa.
Brownlow	Fassett	Jackson	Moore, Pa.
Brumm	Favrot	James, Addison D.	Moore, Tex.
Burgess	Flood	Johnson, Ky.	Mouser
Burke	Focht	Jones, Wash.	Mudd
Burleigh	Foelker	Keliher	Murphy
Burton, Del.	Fordney	Kennedy, Ohio	Needham
Burton, Ohio	Fornes	Kinkaid	Norris
Butler	Foulkrod	Knopf	O'Connell
Byrd	Fowler	Lafean	Olcott
Calder	Fuller	Lamar, Fla.	Olmsted
Caldwell	Fulton	Lamar, Mo.	Parsons
Carlin	Gardner, Mich.	Landis	Pearre
Carter	Gardner, N. J.	Langley	Perkins
Cary	Garner	Laning	Porter
Cassel	Gill	Lassiter	Prince
Clark, Fla.	Gillett	Law	Pujo
Cockran	Glass	Leake	Ransdell, La.
Cocks, N. Y.	Goebel	Legare	Reeder
Rhinock	Slemp	Sulzer	Washburn
Riordan	Small	Talbott	Watson
Roberts	Smith, Mich.	Taylor, Ala.	Weems
Rothermel	Snapp	Taylor, Ohio	Willett
Rucker	Sparkman	Tirrell	Williams
Russell, Tex.	Spight	Underwood	Wolf
Saunders	Stanley	Vreeland	Wood
Sherman	Stephens, Tex.	Waldo	Woodyard
Slayden	Stevens, Minn.	Wanger

So the motion was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following additional pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. CUSHMAN with Mr. CARLIN.

Mr. CRUMPACKER with Mr. COOPER of Texas.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan with Mr. DAVENPORT.

Mr. GOEBEL with Mr. ELLERBE.

Mr. LOVERING with Mr. GILL.

Mr. LONGWORTH with Mr. HARDWICK.

Mr. LOUD with Mr. HITCHCOCK.

Mr. LOUDENSLAGER with Mr. GARNER.

Mr. OLMSTED with Mr. MOORE of Texas.

Mr. PEARRE with Mr. UNDERWOOD.

Mr. ROBERTS with Mr. WILLIAMS.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 27 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Navy submitting an estimate of appropriation for a floating derrick—to the Committee on Naval Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Chief Signal Officer of the Army reporting expenditures in connection with the extension and betterment of the Washington-Alaska military cable and telegraph system—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting recommendation of legislation for the relief of H. H. Wadsworth, Morton L. Tower, and G. G. McDaniel—to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting reports of receipts and expenditures on account of the appropriations for contingencies for the army, 1907—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting a detailed statement of expenditures of contingent appropriations for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of resurvey of East River and Hell Gate, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, rtansmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of State submitting an estimate of appropriation for purchase of manuscript of a work entitled "A Chronological History of the Department of State and the Foreign Relations of the Government"—to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Skagit River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of appropriation for fortifications in insular possessions—to the Commitee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a copy of the annual report of the Board of Ordnance and Fortification—to the Committees on Military Affairs and Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for pay and travel of Indian inspectors in connection with irrigation works—to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a copy of a letter from the Quartermaster-General of the Army, a report in relation to acquisition of land adjacent to the Chalmette (La.) National Cemetery—to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, transmitting a statement of contingent expenditures for the period from July 1, 1907, to November 30, 1908—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Estero Bay, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of survey of Clearwater Harbor and Boca Ceiga Bay, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

Mr. SULLOWAY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 23849) granting pensions and increase of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the civil war and certain widows and dependent relatives of such soldiers and sailors, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1795), which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. BRADLEY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 23850) granting pensions and increase of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the civil war and certain widows and dependent relatives of such soldiers and sailors, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1796), which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of the following bills, which were referred as follows:

A bill (H. R. 23099) for the relief of the estate of Phillip Null, deceased—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on War Claims.

A bill (H. R. 23101) granting a pension to George A. Womack—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 23150) for the relief of Ann Ford Mattingly—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on War Claims.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. MARSHALL: A bill (H. R. 23851) to authorize the issuance of patents to Indians of the Turtle Mountain band of Chippewa Indians for allotments and selections made under the act of April 24, 1904—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. THISTLEWOOD: A bill (H. R. 23852) for acquiring a site and the erection of a federal building for the post-office at Marion, Ill.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23853) for acquiring a site and the erection of a federal building for the post-office at Carbondale, Ill.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MOUSER: A bill (H. R. 23854) appropriating an additional amount of money for the purchase of a building site for the city of Tiffin, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. NYE (by request): A bill (H. R. 23855) to resubdivide squares 37 and 38 of C. Wilhelmina Dobbins's addition to the city of Washington—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 23856) for the relief of telegraph operators who served in the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. RAUCH: A bill (H. R. 23857) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Huntington, Ind.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. GODWIN: A bill (H. R. 23858) to provide for the erection of a levee or levees upon the Cape Fear River above Wilmington, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. SMITH of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 23859) making appropriations for the improvement of the Mississippi River at and south of Point Rest, Mo., and other points in Perry County, Mo.—to the Committee on Levees and Improvements of the Mississippi River.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 23860) to provide for the erection of a levee or levees upon the Cape Fear River above Wilmington, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. LOWDEN: A bill (H. R. 23861) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Savanna, in the State of Illinois—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 23862) to provide for raising a volunteer army of the United States in time of actual or threatened war—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: A bill (H. R. 23863) for the exchange of certain lands situated in the Fort Douglas Military Reservation, State of Utah, for lands adjacent thereto, between the Mount Olivet Cemetery Association, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and the Government of the United States—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ALLEN: A bill (H. R. 23864) authorizing the widening and extension of Minnesota avenue SE. from its present terminus near Pennsylvania avenue SE. to the Sheriff road—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. NYE: A bill (H. R. 23865) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to appraise certain land in the Red Lake Indian Reservation for certain purposes therein named—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23866) to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a bridge between Fort Snelling Reservation and St. Paul, Minn." approved March 17, 1906—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: Resolution (H. Res. 454) to pay for the services of a messenger to the Committee on Invalid Pensions—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. SULLOWAY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions: A bill (H. R. 23849) granting pensions and increase of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the civil war and certain widows and dependent relatives of such soldiers and sailors—to the Private Calendar.

By Mr. BRADLEY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions: A bill (H. R. 23850) granting pensions and increase of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the civil war and certain widows and dependent relatives of such soldiers and sailors—to the Private Calendar.

By Mr. ANSBERRY: A bill (H. R. 23867) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Jauch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: A bill (H. R. 23868) granting a pension to Lucy Ann Good—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: A bill (H. R. 23869) granting an increase of pension to James Shoemaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 23870) granting an increase of pension to Gertrude S. Walker—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 23871) granting an increase of pension to Florence A. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 23872) granting an increase of pension to McKendree N. Dodge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDWELL: A bill (H. R. 23873) to remove the charge of desertion now standing on the records against John Pilcher—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: A bill (H. R. 23874) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Sleeth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 23875) granting an increase of pension to Brown M. Parkinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CONNER: A bill (H. R. 23876) granting a pension to Permelia L. Dutcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CRUMPACKER: A bill (H. R. 23877) granting an increase of pension to George H. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23878) granting an increase of pension to John W. Jennings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 23879) granting an increase of pension to Alfred B. Hicks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23880) granting an increase of pension to Charles Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23881) granting an increase of pension to Helen D. Rogers—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. DENVER: A bill (H. R. 23882) granting an increase of pension to James M. Sutton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23883) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Musinon—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23884) granting an increase of pension to John W. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23885) granting an increase of pension to William H. Warner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23886) granting an increase of pension to Adam Erskine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23887) granting an increase of pension to James Gaines—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23888) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brookover—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23889) granting an increase of pension to Henry Babb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23890) granting an increase of pension to John W. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23891) granting a pension to James I. Taylor—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23892) granting a pension to Samuel Wolf—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23893) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Zurner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. EDWARDS of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 23894) granting an increase of pension to Thomas O. Letcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23895) granting an increase of pension to James K. Wesley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23896) granting an increase of pension to William R. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23897) granting an increase of pension to John T. James—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23898) granting an increase of pension to James W. Hoskins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23899) granting an increase of pension to William Harvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: A bill (H. R. 23900) granting an increase of pension to A. W. Sefton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23901) to correct the military record of James M. Wiley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FAIRCHILD: A bill (H. R. 23902) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Graham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 23903) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Geiger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23904) granting an increase of pension to Charles Kretchmar—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23905) granting a pension to Harry A. Benedict—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 23906) granting an increase of pension to Forest M. Lentz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23907) granting an increase of pension to Jerome B. Cundiff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23908) for the relief of Charles Geisler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23909) granting a pension to Mary M. Brooks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23910) granting an increase of pension to Daniel M. Eveland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 23911) granting an increase of pension to William Hubbell, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENRY of Texas: A bill (H. R. 23912) granting an increase of pension to Richard H. Foord—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HEPBURN: A bill (H. R. 23913) granting an increase of pension to James W. Pray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 23914) granting a pension to Ruth Walston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23915) granting a pension to Nelson Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23916) granting an increase of pension to Richard Lowe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23917) to correct the military record of William H. Phillips—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 23918) for the relief of the heirs of Robert Fullerton, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23919) granting a pension to James B. Prosser—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HUBBARD of West Virginia. A bill (H. R. 23920) granting a pension to Elizabeth Barnhart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 23921) granting an increase of pension to John H. Burns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23922) granting an increase of pension to Sylvester B. Fuller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 23923) granting a pension to Roselth A. Knapp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 23924) granting an increase of pension to William H. Stevenson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23925) granting a pension to Anna Day—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MADISON: A bill (H. R. 23926) granting an increase of pension to Robert L. McConaughey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 23927) for the relief of Isaac Bettelyoun—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 23928) for the relief of the heirs of Samuel Tucker, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MORSE: A bill (H. R. 23929) granting an increase of pension to Frank A. Hoyt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23930) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Michaelson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NICHOLLS: A bill (H. R. 23931) granting an increase of pension to Levi Getz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NYE: A bill (H. R. 23932) granting an increase of pension to William W. Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PADGETT: A bill (H. R. 23933) for the relief of Holly Prater, alias Plater—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PATTERSON: A bill (H. R. 23934) for the relief of Harmony Lodge, No. 17, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of Barnwell, S. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PETERS: A bill (H. R. 23935) granting a pension to Martha A. Goodall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBINSON: A bill (H. R. 23936) for the relief of the heirs of Eliza Ann Ashcraft—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SMITH of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 23937) granting a pension to William Daniels—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23938) granting a pension to Edward C. Marsh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23939) granting a pension to Oliver S. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, bill (H. R. 23940) granting a pension to William I. Ellis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23941) granting a pension to Orren Wakeley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23942) granting a pension to Oscar J. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23943) granting a pension to William A. Sperl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23944) granting a pension to William N. Ash—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23945) granting a pension to Milon Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23946) granting a pension to Charles N. Bacon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23947) granting a pension to Theodore Pack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 23948) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Tribble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 23949) granting an increase of pension to Peter Therien—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23950) granting a pension to Mary Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 23951) granting an increase of pension to Carlo J. Emerson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23952) granting an increase of pension to John F. Frost—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23953) granting an increase of pension to C. W. Lamb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23954) granting an increase of pension to James A. Craig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOU VELLE: A bill (H. R. 23955) granting an increase of pension to John K. Todd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WASHBURN: A bill (H. R. 23956) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 23957) granting an increase of pension to Peter McHugh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23958) granting an increase of pension to Adelbert B. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23959) granting an increase of pension to Charles Ihde—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23960) granting an increase of pension to Ferdinand Fetter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23961) granting an increase of pension to August Moldenhauer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23962) granting a pension to Fred C. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY: A bill (H. R. 23963) granting an increase of pension to J. L. Adams—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 23964) granting an increase of pension to Charles B. Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 23965) granting an increase of pension to Mary Whelchel—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 23966) granting an increase of pension to Lawrence Agnew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MILLER: A bill (H. R. 23967) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Van Horn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THISTLEWOOD: A bill (H. R. 23968) granting an increase of pension to William White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 23969) granting an increase of pension to Solomon L. Motsinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 23970) granting an increase of pension to William R. Harper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Memorial of Rivers and Harbors Congress, favoring authorization of bond issue and other authorizations for a plan of river and harbor improvement—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. ADAIR: Papers to accompany bills for relief of John M. Tracey and Amos Headley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William H. Bascue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALEXANDER of New York: Petition of Messrs. Race Kennedey, T. and E. Campson, and Stanley E. Hawkins, of Buffalo, N. Y., for the removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ANSBERRY: Petition of citizens of Ohio City, Ohio, against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ASHBROOK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Lucy Ann Good—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BATES: Petition of C. A. Curtze, of Erie, Pa., for removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: Petition of citizens of New York, for legislation pensioning members of the United States Telegraph Corps in the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of New York City, for legislation to pension members of the Telegraph Corps of the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: Petition of Stephen M. Bull, of Newburgh, N. Y., for repeal of duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CHANEY: Petition of Bierhaus Brothers, favoring removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DARRAGH: Petition of Stroebel Brothers and 40 other citizens of Charlevoix and Antrim counties, Mich., against parcels-post legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of citizens of Gratiot County, Mich., against the passage of S. 3940 (proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Nathan E. Harrelson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of citizens of Missouri, against S. 3940 (religious legislation in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DUREY: Petition of Beach Nut Packing Company, of Canajoharie, favoring removal of duty from raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of J. E. Larrabee and others, residents of Amsterdam, N. Y., against enactment of parcels-post legislation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. DWIGHT: Petitions of McKinney & Co. and the McTighe Grocery Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., and the F. H. Cobb Company, of Cortland, for removal of duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. EDWARDS of Kentucky: Papers to accompany bills for relief of William Harvey and Thomas O. Letcher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ELLIS of Missouri: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William V. Malenburg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John H. Hecky—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FAIRCHILD: Petition of J. H. Timpson, for removal of duty on sugar—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Petition of officers and men of U. S. S. Alabama, New York Navy-Yard, favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. FLOYD: Petition of citizens of Arkansas, against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. FOCHT: Petition of merchants of Waynesboro, Pa., favoring parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of J. D. Mulhollen and others, of Huntingdon County, Pa., against Johnston bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. FULLER: Petition of Veteran Army of the Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Forest M. Lentz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of A. L. Wells, of Shabbona, Ill., favoring the Fuller bill (H. R. 19250), creating a volunteer officers' retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Jerome B. Cundiff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULTON: Petition of citizens of Blaine County, Okla., against Senate bill 3940 (religious observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columba.

By Mr. GAINES of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for relief of estate of John Rick—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GARNER: Petition of citizens of Texas, against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. GILLETT: Petition of citizens of Athol and Orange, Mass., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. GOEBEL: Petition of George Washington Garrison, Army and Navy Union, favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HAMILTON of Iowa: Petition of citizens of Blakesburg, Iowa, favoring legislation to provide pension for the United States Military Telegraph Corps of the United States Army during civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMMOND: Petition of M. Leatherman and others, against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HARDWICK: Papers to accompany bills for relief of sureties of E. J. O'Connor and J. B. Schweers—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HAYES: Petition of C. H. Parker, for legislation to effectively exclude inassimilable Asiatics—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, for legislation appropriating $500,000 for a new marine hospital at San Francisco—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HEPBURN: Petition of citizens of Clarinda, Page County, Iowa, against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HOWARD: Papers to accompany bill for the relief of Elizabeth C. Galloway, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Petition of Asiatic Exclusion League, for more stringent laws for exclusion of Asiatics—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HULL of Iowa: Petition against enactment of S. 3940—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LANDIS: Petition of citizens of Onaway, Mich., against Johnston bill (S. 3940), providing for religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. MADDEN: Petition of citizens of Chicago, Ill., favoring the pensioning of members of the Military Telegraphers' Corps in civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANN: Petition of Commercial Club of Chicago, favoring increase of salaries of federal judges—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Veteran Army of Philippines, for legislation making August 13 a legal holiday, to be known as "Occupation Day"—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MARSHALL: Petition of citizens of North Dakota, against any parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. MAYNARD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Samuel Tucker—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NICHOLLS: Petitions of Sanker & Williams, J. A. Eberts & Co., and J. O. Ackerman, of Scranton, Pa., for removal of duty on raw and refined sugars—to the Commitee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. NYE: Petition of citizens of Minneapolis, Minn., against enactment of the Johnston Sunday bill (S. 3940)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PATTERSON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of William Carley—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RYAN: Petition of Plimpton, Cowan & Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., for the removal of duty from raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of A. Ethridge Company, of Rome, N. Y., favoring removal of duty from raw and refined sugars—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STURGISS: Petition of Elkins Board of Trade, favoring Senate bill 4825, providing for Appalachian and White Mountain National Forest Reserves—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. VREELAND: Petition of residents of Delevan, N. Y., against Senate bill 3940, entitled "An act for proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of residents of Jamestown, N. Y., favoring the enactment of the Bacon original-package bill, the Tirrell bill, etc.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. WASHBURN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Charles W. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WHEELER: Petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, against S. 3940 (Sunday observance in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WILSON of Pennsylvania: Petition of Rear-Admiral H. F. Pickering Naval Garrison, No. 4, of Erie, Pa., favoring retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy after twenty-five years of actual service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of John A. German and 24 others, of Williamsport, Pa., against S. 3940 (religious legislation in the District of Columbia)—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 14, 1908.

The Senate met at 12 o'clock m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Edward E. Hale.

Mr. BENJAMIN R. TILLMAN, a Senator from the State of South Carolina, appeared in his seat to-day.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of the proceedings of Thursday last, when, on request of Mr. KEAN, and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Journal stands approved.

ELECTORAL VOTES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting certified copies of the final ascertainment of electors for President and Vice-President for the States of North Carolina, Vermont, Illinois, West Virginia, South Dakota, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Ohio, Virginia, New Hampshire, Missouri, and Maryland, which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to be filed.

POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN'S RELIEF FUND.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting, in response to a resolution of March 27, 1908, a complete report upon the policemen and firemen's relief fund, together with a draft of proposed legislation for the reorganization of the entire system for pension and relief for the police and fire departments of the District of Columbia, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia and ordered to be printed.

CLAIMS OF POSTMASTERS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, stating that, pursuant to law, he had transmitted to the Speaker of the House of Representatives a report of the action taken during the year ended June 30, 1908, upon claims of postmasters for credit or reimbursement, or on account of losses resulting from burglary, fire, or other unavoidable casualties, etc., which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads and ordered to be printed.

CADMUS B. CRABILL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, stating that he had transmitted to the Speaker of the House of Representatives the claim of Cadmus B. Crabill, postmaster at South Bend, Ind., for the credit of $18,653.50 on account of postage stamps lost by burglary November 15, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads and ordered to be printed.

CHAMBERLAIN (S. DAK.) INDIAN SCHOOL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a supplemental report as to the disposition of nonreservation Indian schools, particularly with reference to the Indian school at Chamberlain, S. Dak., etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF BOARD OF ORDNANCE AND FORTIFICATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting the eighteenth annual report of the Board of Ordnance and Fortification for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed.

DANIEL K. PONDER V. UNITED STATES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact found by the court in the cause of Daniel K. Ponder v. United States, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. Browning, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 5473) to authorize the Secretary of the Navy in certain cases to mitigate or remit the loss of rights of citizenship imposed by law upon deserters from the naval service, with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message also announced that the House had passed the joint resolution (S. R. 78) establishing the boundary line between the States of Colorado and Oklahoma and the Territory of New Mexico.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 6145. An act to refund to the Territory of Hawaii the amount expended in maintaining light-house service on its coast from the time of the organization of the Territory until said light-house service was taken over by the Federal Government;

H. R. 21051. An act amending the penal laws of the United States;

H. R. 21736. An act to provide for holding terms of United States courts at Clarksdale, Miss.; and

H. R. 23464. An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House had passed a concurrent resolution providing that when the two Houses adjourn on Saturday, December 19, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian Monday, January 4, 1909, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented resolutions of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, favoring the enactment of legislation to authorize the issuance of bonds to the amount of $500,000,000, the proceeds to be used exclusively in such river and harbor works as shall be authorized by Congress, which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. FRYE. I think it may be well to have the resolutions printed in the RECORD, and I make that request.

There being no objection, the resolutions were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The National Rivers and Harbors Congress approves the plan urged by the President of the United States for the creation of a commission or department of the National Government that shall adopt a general scheme for the conservation of all the natural resources of the country.

But this congress realizes that of necessity it will be some time before such a plan can be legislatively adopted and the commission or department formulate its detailed policy, and believing that the need of river and harbor improvement, that we may have adequate water transportation, is imperative, and realizing that there are now a number of river and harbor projects sufficiently matured and the need for which is so pressing as to warrant the Congress of the United States in immediately bringing about their adoption and completion, it is the sense of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress that—

First. The Congress of the United States should at its present session authorize the issuance of bonds of the Government to an amount of $500,000,000, to be sold from time to time in such quantities as may be necessary, the proceeds of same to be used in the payment exclusively of such river and harbor work as shall be authorized by Congress, the provisions for the issuance of said bonds to be similar to those authorizing the bonds for the construction of the Panama Canal.

Second. We further urge that the Congress at this session authorize the completion of such river and harbor projects heretofore entered upon as are of such a character as to surely fit into and carry into effective use any larger, comprehensive, and connected waterway system that may be subsequently adopted.

Third. That Congress also adopt such new projects as are of a like character as those just mentioned.

Fourth. We further recommend the appointment by the president of this organization of a committee of five, of which he shall be a member, to prepare a bill for introduction in the Congress of the United States for providing for the bond issue above set forth, and the creation of a statutory commission to study the waterways of this and foreign countries, and suggest to Congress in a full and detailed report a comprehensive plan and policy for improving our waterways.

Fifth. We further urge that the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, should be at least double its present size, utilizing in the permanent organization as far as practicable the present United States assistant civil engineers, and that the Corps of Engineers be given authority to formulate and propose to the Congress plans and projects for river and harbor improvement.

Respectfully submitted.

JOS. E. RANSDELL, Chairman.

J. F. ELLISON, Secretary.

Mr. BROWN presented a petition of the Republican platform convention of the State of Nebraska, praying that a further increase of appropriation be made in aid of the Reclamation Service of the United States, which was referred to the Committee on Irrigation.

Mr. BURKETT presented a petition of members of the Bar Association of Omaha, Nebr., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of the circuit and district court judges, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. OVERMAN presented a petition of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Newbern, S. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit Sunday banking in post-offices in the handling of money orders and registered letters, which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Quincy, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a nonpartisan tariff commission, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a petition of Merrimac Lodge, No. 266, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Nashua, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for an application of the illiteracy test for immigrants and remonstrating against any modification of the present immigration law, which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for a high-pressure water system for the District of Columbia, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

He also presented the petition of Edward Tarring, of the city of Washington, praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia, which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented resolutions adopted by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and resolutions adopted by the Board of Trade of the city of Washington, favoring the recommendations of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia that in making appropriations for the District of Columbia Congress shall distinguish between the items for the extraordinary projects of improvements and the items of current expenditures, which were referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. PLATT presented a petition of the West Chester Woman's Club, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish a national children's bureau to investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children, which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of members of the Bar Association of Erie County, of Buffalo, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for an increase in the salaries of circuit and district court judges, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of the State of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GAMBLE presented a petition of the South Dakota Synod of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit Sunday banking in post-offices in the handling of money orders and registered letters, which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of members of the Lawrence County Bar Association, of South Dakota, praying for the enactment of legislation providing for an increase in the salaries of circuit and district court judges, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the South Dakota Synod of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, praying for the enactment of legislation requiring individuals and corporations engaged in interstate commerce to grant certain privileges to their employees, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. SCOTT presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Elkins, W. Va., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish a national forest reserve in the southern Appalachian and White mountains, which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. ANKENY presented a petition of sundry citizens of Everett, Wash., praying for the enactment of a Sunday rest law for the District of Columbia, which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. NELSON presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 7413) granting an increase of pension to George W. Hawkins, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. STEPHENSON presented a petition of the Medical Association of Horicon, Wis., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a national department of public health, which was referred to the Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine.

He also presented a petition of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of Milwaukee, Wis., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a volunteer retired list in the War and Navy departments for the surviving officers of the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CURTIS presented a petition of sundry volunteer officers of the civil war, inmates of the National Military Home, Kansas, and a petition of sundry volunteer officers of the civil war, of Russell, Kans., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a volunteer retired list in the War and Navy departments for the surviving officers of the civil war, which were referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Garden City, Galena, and Wichita, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. KEAN presented a petition of sundry citizens of the State of New Jersey, praying for the enactment of legislation granting pensions to the surviving members of the United States Military Telegraph Corps who served in the civil war, which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Orange, N. J., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution granting the right of suffrage to women, which was referred to the Select Committee on Woman Suffrage.

Mr. WARREN presented a petition of sundry citizens of Liberty, Wyo., praying for the enactment of legislation extending the time from three to five years for making final applications on mineral claims on the Wind River Indian Reservation in that State, which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. LONG presented a petition of the Medical Society of Rice County, Kans., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a national department of public health, which was referred to the Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine.

He also presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 7491) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Walker, which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. DOLLIVER on the 10th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to pay from the miscellaneous items of the contingent funds of the Senate the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the committee appointed by the Vice-President in arranging for and attending the funeral of the late Senator William B. Allison, from the State of Iowa, upon vouchers to be approved by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

EDITH E. M'DOWELL.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. GAMBLE on the 10th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Edith E. McDowell, widow of Robert E. McDowell, late clerk of the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, a sum equal to six months' salary at the rate he was receiving by law at the time of his demise, said sum to be considered as including funeral expenses and all other allowances.

EMPLOYMENT OF STENOGRAPHER.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. CURTIS on the 9th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Depredations be, and the same is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, at the rate of $1,200 per annum, said employment to continue during the Sixtieth Congress.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 7711) to establish and disburse a public-school teachers' retirement fund in the District of Columbia, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent that 200 additional copies of the bill be printed for the use of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GALLINGER. I present some papers relating to this subject which are of general interest. I ask that they be printed as a Senate document, and that 200 additional copies of the document be printed for the use of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 7712) granting a pension to Mary Miller, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7713) granting an increase of pension to William B. Hibbs;

A bill (S. 7714) granting an increase of pension to John C. Boren; and

A bill (S. 7715) granting an increase of pension to Edwin B. Brewster.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7716) for the relief of Freeman, Richardson & Co., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Territories:

A bill (S. 7717) to enable the people of Arizona to form a constitution and state government and to be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; and

A bill (S. 7718) to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and state government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7719) granting an increase of pension to Anthony Barleon, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7720) for the relief of the heirs of Matthew H. Fulton, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 7721) for payment to Robert B. Whitacre and Frederick T. Hildred the sum of $944.97 for blasting powder used by the United States Government to complete the Belle Fourche irrigation project, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7722) granting an increase of pension to E. E. Chase;

A bill (S. 7723) granting a pension to Harriet A. Kelliher (with the accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 7724) granting a pension to Christian Rauch (with the accompanying papers).

Mr. CURTIS introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7725) granting an increase of pension to Leander Stillwell;

A bill (S. 7726) granting an increase of pension to George E. Ray; and

A bill (S. 7727) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Runkle.

Mr. CURTIS introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7728) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Simpson;

A bill (S. 7729) granting an increase of pension to Isabella B. Hinton;

A bill (S. 7730) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Luess; and

A bill (S. 7731) granting an increase of pension to John W. Spencer.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7732) to increase the pensions of those who have lost limbs in the military or naval service of the United States during the war of the rebellion, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7733) for the relief of James Barrett, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. NEWLANDS introduced a bill (S. 7734) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Corwin, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GORE introduced a bill (S. 7735) granting an increase of pension to Joel E. Cox, which was ready twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HALE introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7736) granting an increase of pension to Stephen M. Gilley; and

A bill (S. 7737) granting an increase of pension to Charles F. Smith.

Mr. BAILEY (by request) introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 7738) for the relief of James Mack Brewer; and

A bill (S. 7739) for the relief of Ophelia V. Worsham.

Mr. BAILEY introduced a bill (S. 7740) for the relief of Emma L. Bryant, heir at law of Green Caswell Culp, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SCOTT introduced a bill (S. 7741) granting an increase of pension to Thomas C. Shankland, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEMENWAY introduced a bill (S. 7742) to increase the limit of cost for purchase of site and erection of a post-office building at Elwood, Ind., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7743) granting an increase of pension to Edward Price; and

A bill (S. 7744) granting an increase of pension to John W. Dyson.

Mr. STEPHENSON introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7745) granting an increase of pension to James G. Moe;

A bill (S. 7746) granting an increase of pension to Earl M. Rogers;

A bill (S. 7747) granting an increase of pension to John Blade;

A bill (S. 7748) granting an increase of pension to Mark Smith;

A bill (S. 7749) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Bassett;

A bill (S. 7750) granting an increase of pension to Levi Judd; and

A bill (S. 7751) granting an increase of pension to William R. Brabazon.

Mr. LODGE introduced a bill (S. 7752) for the relief of the Boston and Maine Railroad, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. RAYNER introduced a bill (S. 7753) for the relief of the legal representatives of Burgess Hammond, deceased, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7754) granting an increase of pension to George Bollinger (with the accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 7755) granting a pension to Ezra J. Yingling.

Mr. MONEY introduced a bill (S. 7756) granting an increase of pension to John F. Davis, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7757) for the relief of Louis T. Barnes, deceased, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 7758) to amend section 2 of article 9 of an act entitled "An act to ratify and amend an agreement with the Indians residing on the Shoshone or Wind River Indian Reservation in the State of Wyoming and to make appropriations for carrying the same into effect," approved March 3, 1905, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 7759) granting an increase of pension to Owen Sheehe, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a bill (S. 7760) for the relief of C. M. Cox, and to confirm and legalize his acts while acting as United States commissioner, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7761) granting an increase of pension to James Dixon;

A bill (S. 7762) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Andreu; and

A bill (S. 7763) granting an increase of pension to William H. McCormick.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 7764) for the relief of J. Randolph Peyton; and

A bill (S. 7765) to authorize the President to appoint Benjamin F. Clayton captain of infantry in the army, and to place him on the retired list.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7766) to correct the naval record of William Henry Beehler and to authorize the President to appoint him a rear-admiral on the retired list, which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. CULBERSON introduced a bill (S. 7767) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Longview, in the State of Texas, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. DIXON introduced a bill (S. 7768) granting a pension to Eugene Wessinger, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BORAH introduced a bill (S. 7769) providing for dismissal of indictments in case of failure to prosecute, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Territories:

A bill (S. 7770) to extend the provisions of section 4 of an act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, and for other purposes," approved August 18, 1894, and amendments thereto, to the Territory of New Mexico; and

A bill (S. 7771) to extend the provisions of section 4 of an act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, and for other purposes," approved August 18, 1894, and amendments thereto, to the Territory of Arizona.

Mr. GUGGENHEIM introduced a bill (S. 7772) to provide for instruction in forestry in the colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts established under the provisions of an act of Congress approved July 2, 1862, and for experiments in forestry in the agricultural experiment stations established under an act of Congress approved March 2, 1887, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. McCREARY introduced a bill (S. 7773) for the relief of the heirs of Jerry H. Powell, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7774) granting an increase of pension to W. T. McClure, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7775) granting an increase of pension to John H. Brandenburgh, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 7776) to provide for the distribution of the reports of the United States circuit courts of appeals and of the United States circuit and district courts to certain officers of the United States, and for other purposes, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7777) to authorize the St. Paul Bridge and Terminal Railway Company to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near St. Paul, Minn., which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7778) to give the Court of Claims jurisdiction of certain Indian claims, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. LONG introduced a bill (S. 7779) granting an increase of pension to Robert L. McConaughey, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7780) for the relief of the Watson Mill Company, of the city of Wichita, State of Kansas, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PILES introduced a bill (S. 7781) to extend the time for the construction and beginning construction of the Alaska Short Line Railroad in Alaska, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. FLINT introduced a bill (S. 7782) for the relief of James H. Owen, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7783) making an appropriation for the construction of a roadway across the United States military and naval reservations on Point Loma, in California, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7784) to cause a preliminary examination or survey to be made of the Colorado River in the vicinity of Needles, Cal., which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CRANE introduced a bill (S. 7785) relative to outward alien manifests on certain vessels, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7786) to authorize the reexamination of Maj. William P. Kendall, Medical Corps, U. S. Army, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7787) granting an increase of pension to Sarah Couch;

A bill (S. 7788) granting a pension to Louise M. Bishop; and

A bill (S. 7789) granting a pension to Emeretta A. Catlin.

Mr. KEAN introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7790) granting a pension to Jessie Stagg; and

A bill (S. 7791) granting a pension to Emily F. Freeborn.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7792) to correct the military record of Albert Van Sickle, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 7793) to provide for the naturalization of aliens who have served or shall hereafter serve five years in the United States Navy or Marine Corps, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. SUTHERLAND introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7794) granting an increase of pension to Henry E. Steele; and

A bill (S. 7795) granting an increase of pension to Emily W. Bailey.

Mr. WARNER introduced a bill (S. 7796) amending paragraph 14 of an act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883, and for other purposes," approved August 7, 1882, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. BULKELEY introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 7797) granting a pension to Isabella S. Hull; and

A bill (S. 7798) granting a pension to Emily C. Twitchell.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE introduced a bill (S. 7799) to create a commission to be known as the "public utilities commission of the District of Columbia" and to prescribe its powers and duties, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced the following bills, which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 7800) to correct the military record of Timothy Edwards; and

A bill (S. 7801) to correct the military record of James Payne.

He also introduced a bill (S. 7802) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Lewis, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 106) authorizing the granting of permits to the committee on inaugural ceremonies, on the occasion of the inauguration of the President-elect, on March 4, 1909, and so forth, which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. WARREN introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 107) providing for the issue of certain campaign badges, which was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 108) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point Mr. Demetrio Castillo, jr., of Cuba, which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

AMENDMENTS TO APPROPRIATION BILLS.

Mr. du PONT submitted an amendment proposing to appropriate $25,000 for the purchase of additional land for the enlargement of the post-office and court-house at Wilmington, Del., etc., intended to be proposed by him to the general deficiency appropriation bill, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

Mr. HEMENWAY submitted an amendment relative to the increase in the limit of cost for the purchase of a site and the erection of a post-office building at Elwood, Ind., intended to be proposed by him to the sundry civil appropriation bill, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

PRESIDENTIAL APPROVAL.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. M. C. Latta, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had on the 11th instant approved and signed the following act:

S. 3495. An act to authorize the transfer of books from the Treasury Department library to life-saving stations of the United States.

CONSULAR BUILDINGS IN CHINA, JAPAN, AND KOREA.

Mr. CULLOM submitted an amendment proposing to appropriate $1,373,643 for the purchase of suitable lands and buildings to be connected with the consular establishments in China, Japan, and Korea, intended to be proposed by him to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed.

Mr. CULLOM. Somewhat akin to the amendment just submitted, I present sundry papers, including a lengthy letter from the Secretary of State, with reference to the purchase of grounds and buildings in China, Korea, and Japan for use of our diplomatic service in those countries. I move that they be printed as a document and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The motion was agreed to.

OMNIBUS CLAIMS BILL.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. President, I submit an amendment intended to be proposed by me to what is known as "the omnibus claims bill." I wish particularly to call the attention of Senators to the amendment. It proposes to repeal those sections of the Tucker-Bowman acts under which claims are transmitted to the Court of Claims. I move that the amendment be printed and lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

COMPANIES B, C, AND D, TWENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I present an amendment to the bill (S. 5729) to correct the records and authorize the reenlistment of certain noncommissioned officers and enlisted men belonging to Companies B, C, and D, of the Twenty-fifth U. S. Infantry, who were discharged without honor under Special Orders, No. 266, War Department, November 9, 1906, and the restoration to them of all rights of which they have been deprived on account thereof.

I ask that the amendment I have just offered may be printed in the RECORD, and that it may be also printed and lie on the table; and in order that the bill, as it is so proposed to amend it, may be before the Senate, I ask that the bill as it will read when so amended, if this amendment should be adopted, may also be printed in the RECORD, and be printed, and lie on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment and the bill as proposed to be amended are as follows:

By Mr. FORAKER:

An amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 5729) to correct the records and authorize the reenlistment of certain noncommissioned officers and enlisted men belonging to Companies B, C, and D of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry who were discharged without honor under Special Orders, No. 266, War Department, November 9, 1906, and the restoration to them of all rights of which they have been deprived on account thereof.

On page 2, lines 1 and 2, strike out the words "any duly authorized enlisting officer of the United States Army or Navy" and insert in lieu thereof the words, "the commission provided for by section 2, or who shall file with such commission an affidavit showing."

On page 2, line 13, after the word "is," insert the words "subject to the provisions of section 2 of this act."

On page 2, line 14, after the word "therefor," insert the words, "to any duly authorized recruiting or enlisting officer of the United States Army or Navy."

On page 2, line 15, after the word "time," strike out the word "within" and insert in lieu thereof the word "after."

On page 2, line 15, after the word "months," insert the words "and within one year."

On page 4, at the end of line 5, add as new sections the following:

SEC. 2. That Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, U. S. Army, retired; Lieut. Gen. John C. Bates, U. S. Army, retired; Maj. Gen. George W. Davis, U. S. Army, retired; Maj. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, U. S. Army, retired; Brig. Gen. Aaron S. Daggett, U. S. Army, retired, are hereby constituted and appointed a commission to hear and determine all charges or objections tending to identify any of said noncommissioned officers and enlisted men mentioned in section 1 hereof as having participated in said shooting affray or as having withheld or refused to give knowledge with respect to said shooting affray that would lead to the identification of the participators therein.

The said commissioners shall meet in such place in the city of Washington as the Secretary of War may designate, and shall organize by the selection of a chairman and a secretary, and the appointment of such other officers, assistants, or help as they may deem necessary. They shall have power to subpœna witnesses, compel their attendance, administer oaths, employ a stenographer, and incur all expenses necessary to the proper discharge of their duties. They are also authorized to consider in connection with any case brought before them any testimony that may have been heretofore given by such accused party, whether in the form of affidavit or otherwise.

They shall keep a record of all testimony taken by them and of their finding as to each case that may be presented.

They shall have authority to receive said charges and objections tending to establish the identity of the participators in said affray or the withholding of information with respect thereto for the period of three months from and after the passage of this act. Upon the filing of any such charge against any of said noncommissioned officers or enlisted men the commission shall give notice to the party against whom the same have been filed, and give him an opportunity to be heard in answer to such charges and any testimony that may be offered in support thereof, and the party so appearing to answer said charges and said testimony may employ counsel to represent and assist him in making his defense and in producing counter testimony.

It shall be the duty of the commission upon the conclusion of the hearings in each case to make a finding as to whether or not, in its opinion, the party so charged has been shown to have participated in the said affray or to have withheld information which, if given, would have disclosed who the participators were.

If the party so charged shall be acquitted by the judgment of the commission, and not otherwise, he shall then be permitted to reenlist and to enjoy all the rights and privileges by this act conferred.

For the purpose of fully hearing and determining all such cases as may be presented, the commission is hereby authorized to continue its sittings and hearings beyond the period of three months from and after the date of this act until its work is finally concluded.

SEC. 3. The provisions of section 1 for the reenlistment of said noncommissioned officers and enlisted men shall be available to all of said men from and after the expiration of three months and within one year from the passage of this act against whom no charges have at that time been filed with said commission. From and after that date all said noncommissioned officers and men may be reenlisted against whom such charges have been filed, but as to whom said charges have been found by said commission not to have been sustained, provided they reenlist within three months after such finding is announced.

SEC. 4. That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prohibit the prosecution and punishment of any soldier reenlisting under the provisions hereof as to whom it may at any time hereafter appear from testimony taken before said commission, or otherwise, that he did participate in said shooting affray or have knowledge thereof which he has withheld.

SEC. 5. That all reenlistments under the provisions hereof of soldiers who at the time of their discharge without honor were serving terms of enlistment which have not yet expired shall be held to be for only the remaining portion of said unexpired term, respectively.

SEC. 6. If for any cause a vacancy should occur in the membership of said commission, it may be filled by such person as the remaining members thereof may select.

SEC. 7. The members of said commission shall receive full pay and allowances according to their rank, respectively, as though on the active list, during the period of their services hereunder.

A bill (S. 5729) to correct the records and authorize the reenlistment of certain noncommissioned officers and enlisted men belonging to Companies B, C, and D of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry who were discharged without honor under Special Orders, No. 266, War Department, November 9, 1906, and the restoration to them of all rights of which they have been deprived on account thereof.

Be it enacted, etc., That any noncommissioned officer or enlisted man belonging to Company B, C, or D of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, discharged without honor under Special Orders, No. 266, War Department, dated November 9, 1906, on account of the shooting affray that occurred at Brownsville, Tex., on the night of August 13–14, 1906, who shall make oath before the commission provided for by section 2, or who shall file with such commission an affidavit showing that he did not participate in said affray, and that he does not know of any soldier belonging to any of said companies who did participate in the same, and that he has not at any time heretofore and does not now withhold any knowledge with respect to that occurrence which, if made public, would or might lead to the identification of any participator in said shooting affray or any accessory thereto, either before or after the fact, and that he has answered fully to the best of his knowledge and ability all questions that have been lawfully put to him by his officers or others in connection therewith, shall be, and hereby is, subject to the provisions of section 2 of this act, made eligible to reenlist in the military or naval forces of the United States on his application therefor to any duly authorized recruiting or enlisting officer of the United States Army or Navy at any time after three months and within one year from and after the passage of this act, any statute or provision of law or order or regulation to the contrary notwithstanding; and that upon such reenlistment he shall be allowed full pay, according to the rank he held and the pay he was receiving at the date of discharge, until his reenlistment: Provided, That all the rights and privileges to which the soldiers reenlisting under the provisions of this act were entitled, respectively, at the time of their discharge shall be, and hereby are, fully restored to them, and the record showing their discharge without honor shall be, and hereby is, annulled, set aside, and held for naught, and the time elapsing since their discharge without honor until the date of such reenlistment shall be computed in determining all rights to which they may be respectively entitled on account of continuous service as though they had been in the service without interruption, and they shall not suffer any forfeiture of any right or privilege by reason of such discharge: Provided further, That in any case where the regular term of enlistment which the soldier was serving at the time when discharged without honor has in the meanwhile expired, his record shall be, and hereby is, corrected so as to show an honorable discharge at the time of the expiration of such enlistment, and he shall be allowed full pay and all rights and privileges until that time; and in the event of the reenlistment of such soldier under the provisions of this act his term of reenlistment shall be deemed to have commenced as of the time when his previous enlistment expired, and his service under such reenlistment shall be without prejudice of any kind by reason of his former discharge without honor: And provided further, That in case any of the noncommissioned officers or enlisted men belonging to said companies and discharged without honor shall have died since they were so discharged and before the passage of this act, but who shall have testified under oath or made affidavit before their death that they did not participate in said shooting affray or have any knowledge with reference thereto, their respective records shall be, and hereby are, corrected in accordance with the provisions of this act, and their legal representatives shall be entitled to all pay that would have become due to them from the time of their discharge until the time of their decease.

SEC. 2. That Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, U. S. Army, retired; Lieut. Gen. John C. Bates, U. S. Army, retired; Maj. Gen. George W. Davis, U. S. Army, retired; Maj. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, U. S. Army, retired; Brig. Gen. Aaron S. Daggett, U. S. Army, retired, are hereby constituted and appointed a commission to hear and determine all charges or objections tending to identify any of said noncommissioned officers and enlisted men mentioned in section 1 hereof as having participated in said shooting affray or as having withheld or refused to give knowledge with respect to said shooting affray that would lead to the identification of the participators therein.

The said commissioners shall meet in such place in the city of Washington as the Secretary of War may designate and shall organize by the selection of a chairman and a secretary and the appointment of such other officers, assistants, or help as they may deem necessary. They shall have power to subpœna witnesses, compel their attendance, administer oaths, employ a stenographer, and incur all expenses necessary to the proper discharge of their duties. They are also authorized to consider in connection with any case brought before them any testimony that may have been heretofore given by such accused party, whether in the form of affidavit or otherwise.

They shall keep a record of all testimony taken by them and of their finding as to each case that may be presented.

They shall have authority to receive said charges and objections tending to establish the identity of the participators in said affray or the withholding of information with respect thereto for the period of three months from and after the passage of this act. Upon the filing of any such charges against any of said noncommissioned officers or enlisted men, the commission shall give notice to the party against whom the same have been filed, and give him an opportunity to be heard in answer to such charges and any testimony that may be offered in support thereof; and the party so appearing to answer said charges and said testimony may employ counsel to represent and assist him in making his defense and in producing counter testimony.

It shall be the duty of the commission upon the conclusion of the hearings in each case to make a finding as to whether or not, in its opinion, the party so charged has been shown to have participated in the said affray or to have withheld information which, if given, would have disclosed who the participators were.

If the party so charged shall be acquitted by the judgment of the commission, and not otherwise, he shall then be permitted to reenlist and to enjoy all the rights and privileges by this act conferred.

For the purpose of fully hearing and determining all such cases as may be presented, the commission is hereby authorized to continue its sittings and hearings beyond the period of three months from and after the date of this act, until its work is finally concluded.

SEC. 3. The provisions of section 1 for the reenlistment of said noncommissioned officers and enlisted men shall be available to all of said men from and after the expiration of three months and within one year from the passage of this act, against whom no charges have at that time been filed with said commission. From and after that date all said noncommissioned officers and men may be reenlisted against whom such charges have been filed, but as to whom said charges have been found by said commission not to have been sustained, provided they reenlist within three months after such finding is announced.

SEC. 4. That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prohibit the prosecution and punishment of any soldier reenlisting under the provisions hereof as to whom it may at any time hereafter appear from testimony taken before said commission, or otherwise, that he did participate in said shooting affray or have knowledge thereof which he has withheld.

SEC. 5. That all reenlistments under the provisions hereof of soldiers who, at the time of their discharge without honor, were serving terms of enlistment which have not yet expired shall be held to be for only the remaining portion of said unexpired term, respectively.

SEC. 6. If for any cause a vacancy should occur in the membership of said commission, it may be filled by such person as the remaining members thereof may select.

SEC. 7. The members of said commission shall receive full pay and allowances according to their rank, respectively, as though on the active list during the period of their services hereunder.

Mr. FORAKER. Now, I ask the Senate to indulge me just a moment until I explain what the amendment is and why I offer it. I ask as explanatory of it that the Secretary will read, commencing at section 2, from that on.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary read as directed.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, it must have been observed by every Senator who listened to the reading of this proposed amendment that the purpose of it is to establish a tribunal before which charges against these men, tending to identify them or any one of them as having participated in the shooting affray at Brownsville, may be heard—a tribunal before which they can appear where the charges can be presented and where the persons against whom the charges are made can have a chance to be heard in answer.

It is an elementary proposition in American law and in consonance with the spirit of American institutions that the accused shall always have an opportunity to confront the accuser and to answer testimony with testimony.

I did not suppose, when the bill was framed and introduced by me, that it would be necessary to have any further hearing of this character; but during the months of the vacation there have been coming to me letters written by one of these discharged soldiers—I hold a bundle of them in my hand—informing me how men claiming to be detectives representing the United States Government (of course not secret-service men, for they could not lawfully be so employed, but nevertheless detectives, as they turned out to be—at least claimed to be) visited them, engaged them in conversation, dwelling and abiding with some of them, telling them what different members of the battalion had already stated in the nature of confessions, and appealing to them, if they would save themselves from prosecution, to make a like confession.

I will not detain the Senate to read at length, but I have, through my stenographer, copied out in typewritten form, which I will send to the desk, omitting all names that might lead to the identity of the person, a sample of these letters. This letter is from a soldier who has told how he has been approached by two or three different detectives on two or three different occasions, and how various things have been told him to persuade him and to induce him and then to threaten him into making a confession of some kind.

Do you know an ex-soldier (by the name of) ———?

I said, "No, sir; I don't know him."

He said, "Well, he knows you, and said you and ——— and ——— said you were going to shoot up that town."

I said, "I haven't seen that negro; haven't told him anything; furthermore, I was ——— that night and couldn't have ——— if I wanted to."

He said, "Remember, you are not the only soldier talking; we have 20 talking, and they are peaching, too; as I said, I will protect you.

"Tell us the story; don't be afraid; we have almost got it like we want it, and remember the Government never gives a thing up until it is finished."

He said, "We have been able to prove that B Company did the shooting, and what I want you to tell me is just the men that did the shooting. I know you can, if you will. We already know three men that did it, but we want the whole gang."

I omit some paragraphs:

He said: "I want to ask you a few more questions. I want to know, and I want you to tell me the truth; tell me who talked with you in Washington before you went on the stand?"

I told him no one.

"Now," he said, "isn't it true that Mr. FORAKER told you all how to swear before you went in committee room?" I said, "No, sir. I saw him passing, and some one said there goes Senator FORAKER."

He said, "Who met you at the train when you went to Washington?" I told him no one.

Then he wanted to know if I had any letters from Mr. FORAKER.

There seems to be a good deal of curiosity about my correspondence.

I said, "Sir, I have only one letter from him." Then he asked me if I had it with me.

I said, "No, sir; but I can get it as quick as you ever saw anybody get anything, if you think it will do you any good." He said, "I will be glad for you to go and get it; I would like to see some of the Senator's writing." I came home and got the letter and showed it to him. He read it, and quickly folded it, and handed it back to me, and said, "There is nothing there to hurt anyone." Then he asked me to give him the names of all the ball players in B Company.

He asked me did I have a group of the boys. I told him I did. He told me he would like to see it; for me to go and get it, if it wasn't much trouble. I told him it wouldn't be any trouble; so I got it and showed it to him. Then he took their names down, right to left, like they were on the picture; then he begin to point out some of the men on the picture to Mr. ——— that he thought was implicated in the matter; then he wanted to know if I had any of the rest of the soldiers' pictures; if so, he wanted to see them. I showed him all I had. He kept trying to persuade me to tell him who did the shooting, which was impossible for me to tell him; he also repeats there is a lot of them talking now; said ——— has acknowledged that he was in the shooting.

I said, "Mr. ———, if ——— has been man enough to tell you he was in the shooting, it looks funny he didn't tell you who else was in it." He said, "That's all right; it's all coming out."

Then he began to ask me about my family; said it would be bad for me to have to leave a young family and be turned over to the State of Texas. I told him before I would be willing to swear a lie on anybody I would be willing to go to Texas or anywhere else, because the truth stands in its place. He said, "You know if you go to Texas nobody knows the result. You will get there. You may never return here any more." I said, "God's will must be done. If it is His will for me to go, I suffer His will may be done."

Now, I might read at length to the same character, but it is not necessary. I have read what I have read only to show, if there be any truth in this, that there is still an effort being made on the part of the Government to find out, by seeking for confessions and otherwise, how to identify some of these discharged soldiers as having participated in that offense.

Mr. President, I have no objection to that. Upon the testimony as it stands now I am of the opinion none of the soldiers did any shooting in that town that night; but about that, as I have repeatedly said, I may be mistaken. I do not know who did it, but I do know that if there be a guilty man in that battalion, no man should throw a straw in the way of having that guilt established.

But, Mr. President, there is a right way and a wrong way to do these things. It seems to me that these men, poor, helpless, friendless, as they are, should at least have the benefit secured to them by the Congress of the United States of having an opportunity to confront their accusers, to answer testimony with testimony; that it is contrary to the spirit of American institutions that men should be found guilty of crime, serious crime, the crime of murder, if you please, as well as numerous crimes that go hand in hand with the commission of this offense, in this instance, by such methods as are represented in the letter from which I have read briefly.

Therefore it is not for the purpose of standing in the way of any proper investigation, but for the purpose of authorizing such further investigation as may be desired that I have undertaken to create a tribunal, and I have undertaken to name the members who shall compose that tribunal. I have selected retired army officers.

I have sought to name men who are high enough in rank and old enough in age as well as in service to be absolutely free and independent, to have absolutely free and unbiased minds to bring to bear in passing judgment upon charges that may be offered before them. The charge contemplated to be there offered and passed upon is simply the charge of any nature that will tend to identify any one of these soldiers against whose reenlistment anybody may desire to offer any such objection.

Now, I want to remind Senators that this whole subject has come down to a very narrow point. There is no longer before us any question as to the constitutional power of the President to discharge, for whether he has that power or not he has discharged these men; they are out of the service. We have heard everybody testify who was willing to come before us or whom we could subpœna from whom we thought we could get any evidence that would give us any light.

The case in that respect was entirely made up when the committee made its report; and as a result of the testimony so taken and reported by the committee to the Senate, the President himself joining with a majority of the members of that committee, came to the conclusion that there were innocent men in this battalion who ought to be given permission to reenlist. But recognizing that there was no power except in Congress to authorize the reenlistment, the President sent us a special message asking us to authorize the reenlistment of every man of the battalion whom he had discharged who could establish to his satisfaction his innocence.

I introduced a bill which omitted that requirement and put in some others. Inasmuch as two years, or nearly that, had then elapsed without any evidence being offered by anybody to identify any individual, and inasmuch as great effort had been made to get a clew of evidence that would identify some individual, it seemed to me all should be reenlisted, but that the right should be reserved—and I so provided in the bill I introduced—to prosecute any and all before any civil or military tribunal, as the case might require, against whom any evidence might hereafter be brought by anybody to show that they did have participation in that offense.

I thought that would be sufficient. I thought it was at the time. But now that more time has elapsed and that these efforts are going on, and especially in view of the fact that I am informed by these letters, and the Senate is informed by what I have read, that it is claimed by men who claimed that they were representing the Government that some of these soldiers have been giving affidavits which tend to establish their guilt, I think the whole thing should be brought out into the open, and that the bill should be amended in the way I have suggested or in some other proper way. I am not particular as to the special manner in which this wrong, in so far as a wrong has been committed, shall be righted, but I am anxious to get a bill that will be fair to the army, fair to the soldiers, fair to the people of this country, and fair to the Senate that is called upon to consider it.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, while we are upon this subject of the Brownsville outrage I will state that my information is that there has been communicated to the Senate this morning a message from the President upon the subject, and in order that we may have what appears in the RECORD to-day consecutively I ask that the message be now read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a message from the President of the United States, which will be read.

The Secretary read the message, as follows:

To the Senate:

I inclose herewith a letter from the Secretary of War transmitting a report of the investigation made by Mr. Herbert J. Browne, employed by the department in conjunction with Capt. W. G. Baldwin to investigate as far as possible what happened at Brownsville on the 13th and 14th of August, 1906. The report and documents contain some information of great value and some statements that are obviously worthless, but I submit them in their entirety.

This report enables us to fix with tolerable definiteness at least some of the criminals who took the lead in the murderous shooting of private citizens at Brownsville. It establishes clearly the fact that the colored soldiers did the shooting; but upon this point further record was unnecessary, as the fact that the colored soldiers did the shooting has already been established beyond all possibility of doubt. The investigation has not gone far enough to enable us to determine all the facts, and we will proceed with it; but it has gone far enough to determine with sufficient accuracy certain facts of enough importance to make it advisable that I place the report before you. It appears that almost all the members of Company B must have been actively concerned in the shooting, either to the extent of being participants or to the extent of virtually encouraging those who were participants. As to Companies C and D, there can be no question that practically every man in them must have had knowledge that the shooting was done by some of the soldiers of B Troop, and possibly by one or two others in one of the other troops. This concealment was itself a grave offense, which was greatly aggravated by their testifying before the Senate committee that they were ignorant of what they must have known. Nevertheless, it is to be said in partial extenuation that they were probably cowed by threats, made by the more desperate of the men who had actually been engaged in the shooting, as to what would happen to any man who failed to protect the wrongdoers. Moreover, there are circumstances tending to show that these misguided men were encouraged by outsiders to persist in their course of concealment and denial. I feel, therefore, that the guilt of the men who, after the event, thus shielded the perpetrators of the wrong by refusing to tell the truth about them, though serious, was in part due to the unwise and improper attitude of others, and that some measure of allowance should be made for the misconduct. In other words, I believe we can afford to reinstate any of these men who now truthfully tell what has happened, give all the aid they can to fix the responsibility upon those who are really guilty, and show that they themselves had no guilty knowledge beforehand and were in no way implicated in the affair, save by having knowledge of it afterwards and failing and refusing to divulge it. Under the circumstances, and in view of the length of time they have been out of the service, and their loss of the benefit that would have accrued to them by continuous long-time service, we can afford to treat the men who meet the requirements given above as having been sufficiently punished by the consequences they brought upon themselves when they rendered necessary the exercise of the disciplinary power. I recommend that a law be passed allowing the Secretary of War, within a fixed period of time, say, a year, to reinstate any of these soldiers whom he, after careful examination, finds to have been innocent and whom he finds to have done all in his power to help bring to justice the guilty.

Meanwhile the investigation will be continued. The results have made it obvious that only by carrying on the investigation as the War Department has actually carried it on is there the slightest chance of bringing the offenders to justice or of separating not the innocent, for there were doubtless hardly any innocent, but the less guilty from those whose guilt was heinous.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask that the report of the Secretary of War which accompanies the message be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the accompanying report will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, December 10, 1908.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: I have the honor to send you herewith a report of investigation made by Mr. Herbert J. Browne, who was employed by this department in conjunction with Capt. W. G. Baldwin to investigate as far as possible the occurrence at Brownsville on the 13th and 14th of August, 1906.

Sincerely, yours,
LUKE E. WRIGHT.

The PRESIDENT.

GENERAL REPORT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 5, 1908.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report relative to the investigation of the Brownsville raid:

Ex-Private Boyd Conyers, of Company B, Twenty-fifth Infantry, now at Monroe, Ga., told William Lawson, a detective in the employ of Capt. William G. Baldwin, of Roanoke, Va., that he and three [or four] other men of the Twenty-fifth Infantry were the leaders in the Brownsville raid. This information was obtained at different dates during the month of June, 1908. (See Exhibit A.)

I submit the affidavit as presented. There are certain discrepancies of a minor character, due to the fact that Lawson is illiterate and had to depend on his memory for details. But it should be borne in mind that Lawson was unacquainted with the details of the Brownsville raid and was given information which could have come only from one familiar with the secret history of the affair. Lawson's first report included the names of Conyers, John Holloman, John Brown, and "another man." Subsequently he supplied the name of James Powell, but I think the original name given was that of Robert L. Collier, Company C, one of the relief guard. This information was corroborated in the presence of witnesses, but before Lawson could finish his work Conyers became suspicious and would give no further evidence incriminating himself. From then on he furnished to A. H. Baldwin, Capt. W. G. Baldwin, and to myself information piecemeal and reluctantly. The name of Carolina de Saussure, his bunk mate, was the last one obtained.

Conyers tried to commit suicide after he found that he had made his statements to a detective, declaring that the other negroes would kill him when it got out. He finally wrote to Senator FORAKER and received a reply, a copy of which is annexed. That reply he construed to mean that he should stick to his original story told before the Senate committee at all hazards, and there he stands. I have every reason to believe that his confession is genuine and gives for the first time the true secret history of the Brownsville raid.

The list of participants given in this report Conyers furnished me personally. I believe it is substantially correct, but with the influences shown to be backing Conyers to adhere to his false testimony given before the Senate committee still being exerted he can not be relied on to support his own confession until it is thoroughly sustained from other sources.

Evidences of similar encouragement to stick to the lies told at Brownsville and before the Senate committee were found in many places, and subsequent to the date of the Foraker letter they became stronger and more obstructive than ever.

The investigation has been conducted with strict recognition of the advisability of preserving secrecy, and with discretion. No promises of immunity were made. The knowledge on the part of the ex-soldiers that the Government could not punish them after their separation from the service, coupled with the belief that by preserving silence they would aid in the passage of the relief legislation now pending in Congress, has added to the difficulty of securing information.

The issue has evidently become racial. The colored detectives would be confronted frequently in the smaller towns where these men are living with a demand from colored men for information as to their business.

We have located over 130 of these ex-soldiers, and have been in 30 States in quest of information. The appendices give statements as to the results obtained. They indicate a general knowledge on the part of the ex-soldiers that the raid came from inside the fort and that the soldiers of Company B were the guilty parties.

We earnestly urge that we be permitted to continue the investigation. Several detectives are still in the field, and within the coming week a number of affidavits will be forthcoming.

With some repetition of matter appearing later in the report, Boyd Conyers's story is given here in narrative form:

"The rumors of trouble over the assignment of colored troops to Brownsville were circulated before the troops left Fort Niobrara, and preparations were made among the men to 'get even with the crackers,' so the whites were called. Some cartridges were held out at range practice, but more en route to Brownsville. Pretense was made that they were given away at stations along the road. Some were, but a large number were secreted.

"At inspection in Brownsville Lieutenant Lawrason, Company B, threatened punishment to the men who were short of ammunition, but nothing was done about it, and the deficiency was supplied.

"The friction with citizens of Brownsville began at once. In Boyd Conyers's language, 'Whisky made all the trouble. If we hadn't been drinking we wouldn't have had the nerve to shoot up the town.'

"It was agreed at a gathering of a few men in the saloon of Allison, the colored ex-soldier, on the afternoon of August 13, 1906, that the raid should take place that night at 12 o'clock. It seems to have been delayed a few minutes to let Tamayo, the Mexican scavenger, get away from the B barracks.

"John Holloman, the money lender of Company B, was the chief conspirator and leader in the raid and custodian and distributor of the cartridges, but his plans could not have been carried out had not Sergt. George Jackson, of Company B, in charge of the keys to the gun racks in B barracks, and Sergeant Reid, in command of the guards, cooperated both before and after the raid.

"The four men who led the raid were John Holloman, John Brown, Boyd Conyers, and Carolina de Saussure, all of Company B (and probably R. L. Collier, of Company C). Holloman was in barracks, Brown in the bake shop, Conyers and De Saussure in the guardhouse. The two latter were in the same detail and had been relieved at about 11 o'clock, De Saussure on the post at the guardhouse, and Conyers on No. 2, around the barracks and facing the town. Holloman got the party together. Conyers and De Saussure slept on the same bunk in the guardhouse, claiming that they wanted to get under the mosquito net, and they had the trick of taking their guns into the bunk instead of placing them in the open rack, on the excuse that they didn't rust so badly under cover, but really so the absence of the guns from the open guardhouse rack would not attract attention, and their own absence would be ascribed to a visit to the closet, which was back of the guardhouse. These two men slipped out the rear door of the guardhouse, passed through the sally port, and joined Holloman and Brown.

"The party crossed the wall of the fort down near the end of A barracks, went up the roadway to the entrance to the Cowen alley, where the signal shots were fired. These shots were immediately tallied onto by the alarm shots of Joseph B. Howard, guard on No. 2, and formed the series testified to by Mrs. Katie E. Leahy, of Brownsville. Her testimony is further borne out by the statement that not over thirty seconds elapsed before a number of the men of Company B swarmed out on the upper gallery and opened a fusillade on the town.

"It is an absolute certainty that it would have been impossible for Sergeant Jackson to have opened the gun racks, for the men to have assembled, secured their guns, loaded them, gone out to the gallery, and started firing all after the first shot was fired, all aroused, as they testified unanimously, from sound slumber in less than two minutes in the confusion of a dark barrack room. Beyond the possibility of a doubt the racks had been opened and the inside conspirators were ready to pour out on the signal shots. The testimony is ample that there were scarcely twenty seconds between the last of the signal shots and the first general volley from B barracks.

"The number firing from the barracks is unknown, but perhaps 20 men were involved. A smaller number went to the ground and followed the leaders up the alley. It will be remembered that one of the witnesses testified to hearing some one of the group of soldiers exclaim, 'There they go!' Whereupon these men leaped over the wall and ran up the alley.

"Boyd Conyers is the man whose gun jammed at the exit of the alley by the Cowen house, testified to by Herbert Elkins, and it was taken from him by De Saussure and fixed in the street where the light from the street lamp at the corner of Elizabeth street shone on them.

"Less than five minutes elapsed from the time the first shot was fired until these men were all back inside the fort.

"Conyers stated that Reid was told that they were going to shoot up the town, and he had laughed and said, 'Don't go out there and let the crackers get the best of you.'

"When Conyers and De Saussure reached the guardhouse they ran in the back way and got into their bunks. Sergeant Reid came in and swore at them, but Conyers was so excited and out of breath that he could hardly stand, so Reid stationed him at the rear of the guardhouse in the dark where he could not be scrutinized so closely.

"Holloman came around with extra cartridges about daybreak and Reid passed them out. The guns were all cleaned before daylight."

This day personally appeared before me William Lawson, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

"On June 5, 1908, I was sent to Monroe, Ga., to interview Boyd Conyers, one of the soldiers who was stationed at Brownsville, Tex., in August, 1906. I was sent by Mr. Baldwin to get in with Conyers and ascertain if he knew who did the shooting at that point. I was not given the names of any of the members of either of the companies stationed at that point, nor was I given any other information, except the fact that a shooting occurred at the time and place above mentioned and that Boyd Conyers was suspected of knowing who did same.

"I arrived at Monroe, Ga., on June 5, and stopped at the home of Esther Crews, colored. I met Boyd Conyers, who is known as 'Buddie' Conyers, on the morning of June 6, but had very little conversation with him, but was introduced to him as an old soldier. On the morning of June 8, between 8 and 9 o'clock, I met Conyers about halfway between the station house and Main street. We talked some twenty or twenty-five minutes. I broached the Brownsville case, and mentioned the fact that the soldiers had shown their good sense by keeping their mouths while at Washington. I then asked him what the motive was for the shooting. He told me that the 'crackers' at Brownsville had made threats that they would have no negro soldiers at Brownsville, and the soldiers had made it up in their minds that if they bothered them that they would go in and clean up the ground. He also said that they mentioned this to Sergeant Reid, who was commander of the guards, and that Reid said, 'All that I have to say is to take care of yourself and the boys when you go down there.' S. H. Parker, whose home is at Charleston, S. C., was present and heard the same conversation.

"About then a gentleman called Conyers to come and clean some clothes, and Conyers left, and nothing further was said about the matter at this time. I was with Conyers nearly every day, and went to Gainesville, Ga., on an excursion with him on the 15th of June. I did not mention the Brownsville matter to Conyers again until on the 29th of June, when I returned from Atlanta, having gone there on June 27. On this date I met him at Joe Blassingame's, and had a pint bottle of liquor, offered him a drink—he would not drink in the house, but we went up the street and we stopped under a storehouse porch, near Main street. We took a drink or two, and I started the Brownsville case again. He told me that he was doing guard duty at the time of the shooting at Brownsville, and was stationed at the outlet toward the town. He said that when the guard was called the night of the shooting they mentioned to Sergeant Reid what had occurred downtown, and he said, 'Boys, if you are not satisfied, you will have to go and get satisfied,' and they remarked that they were going to get satisfaction that night. Reid then laughed and said, 'Boys, don't you go down there and let them get the best of you.' He then assigned the guard and went away.

"In this conversation Conyers told me that John Brown, J. H. Holloman, and a man named Powell, and several others, came down where he was on guard, and that they went downtown and just gave them hell, and after they shot out all of their cartridges they ran back to the barracks, and when they got back to the barracks they found that the alarm had been sounded and the officers were calling the roll. Holloman, Brown, and himself were late for roll call, but that some one answered for Brown and Holloman, but that he was late, and that Reid told him that they had gotten themselves and himself in a hell of a hole, and told him to go to the guardhouse and pretend to be asleep, which he did.

"He told me that they had slipped a few cartridges when at target practice, and that before inspection, after the shooting, Reid gave him some cartridges to replace the ones he had used. He further said that they had all agreed before they went out that they would keep their mouths, and that he would have told them at the investigation at Washington all about the shooting, but that he was afraid. I had no further talk with Conyers, because I saw that I was being suspected by the negroes around Monroe, Ga.

"WILLIAM (his x mark) LAWSON."

Witnesses:
H. J. BROWNE.
GEO. W. MADERT.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, ss:

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a notary public in and for the District aforesaid, this 16th day of October, A. D. 1908.

[SEAL.] GEO. W. MADERT,
Notary Public.

This day personally appeared before me Herbert J. Browne, of Washington, D. C., who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

"I was employed by the War Department in May, 1908, in company with Capt. William G. Baldwin, of Roanoke, Va., chief of the Baldwin Detective Agency, to investigate the conduct of the battalion of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, stationed at Brownsville, Tex., which conduct resulted in the Brownsville raid, so called, on the night of August 13–14, 1906, wherein one Frank Natus was killed, Lieutenant of Police Dominguez badly wounded, and the houses of several citizens were shot into. Captain Baldwin has charge of the secret work for the Norfolk and Western Railway, the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, the Southern Railway, and the Atlantic Coast Line, and is one of the best-known and most responsible detectives in the country.

"In conjunction with him I have been continuously employed upon this work since its inception, in May.

"The facts set forth in my report addressed to Gen. George B. Davis, Judge-Advocate-General, War Department, under date of December 5, 1908, are true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

"In particular I visited Monroe, Ga., to corroborate the investigation at that point of William Lawson, a colored detective in the employ of Captain Baldwin, whose affidavit and reports are annexed to and made a part of my report of December 5, 1908, above referred to.

"I had several interviews at Monroe with Boyd Conyers, ex-private of Company B, Twenty-fifth Infantry, one of the guard on the night of the Brownsville raid, and found that William Lawson's statements regarding Conyers were substantially and essentially correct. I personally obtained from Conyers further information detailing how the cartridges used in the raid were surreptitiously and illegally obtained and distributed, how the principal raiders proceeded, when and by whom the gun racks in Company B were unlawfully and secretly opened for the purpose of the raid, how the raiders were protected during and subsequent to the raid and given opportunity to clean their guns, and, in particular, was furnished by Conyers with the names of 8 participants in the raid other than the 3 named by him in his statements to William Lawson, a total of 11, including himself, the said Conyers, all members of Company B, Twenty-fifth Infantry.

"The leaders of the raid, as named by Boyd Conyers, were John Holloman, John Brown, Carolina de Saussure, and himself. Following them were William Anderson, James Bailey, Charles E. Cooper, William Lemons, Henry Jimerson, James (Rastus) Johnson, and Henry (Sonny) Jones. Sergeant Reid, in charge of the guard, was accused by Conyers of knowledge before and after the raid. Sergt. George Jackson, in charge of the keys of the gun racks of Company B, was accused of opening the racks for the raiders, and of again opening them subsequent to the raid in order that the guns might be removed and cleaned.

"I found Boyd Conyers in a disturbed frame of mind. No claim is made that his original declarations to William Lawson were other than those of a criminal boasting to one of his own race of his crime and of his success in escaping discovery. His subsequent declarations to me were given partly during moments of contrition and in a desire to unload his conscience by a confession and partly as the result of careful and persistent questioning.

"I found the effect of the letter from Senator FORAKER to Conyers extremely obstructive. He seemed to regard it as a mandate to adhere to the false story told by him before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and as absolving him from any and all obligations to aid in uncovering the truth. Similar influences were encountered at many points, adding largely to the difficulty of obtaining admissions of even the most obvious facts relative to the raid.

"HERBERT J. BROWNE."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 9th day of December, 1908.

[SEAL.] J. B. RANDOLPH, Notary Public.

THE GUARD.

Analyzing the admitted facts and recorded testimony concerning the guard on the night of August 13–14, 1906, the following is presented:

The guard consisted of 17 men, to wit:
Sergt. J. R. Reid, Company B, in charge.
Corpl. Ray Burdett, Company B.
Corpl. Anthony Franklin, Company B.
Corpl. Samuel Wheeler, Company D, on post.
Musician Hoyt Robinson, Company D.
Pvt. Boyd Conyers, Company B.
Pvt. Carolina de Saussure, Company B.
Pvt. Lawrence Daniels, Company B.
Pvt. Frank Bounsler, Company C.
Pvt. R. L. Collier, Company C.
Pvt. Joseph Rogers, Company C.
Pvt. Andrew Mitchell, Company C.
Pvt. S. M. Battle, Company D.
On post:
No. 1, Pvt. B. F. Johnson, Company D.
No. 2, Pvt. Joseph Howard, Company C.
No. 3, Pvt. Charley Hairston, Company B.
No. 4, Pvt. Alexander Ash, Company D.

None of the men on post is implicated in the charges as active participants in the raid.

Of the men on relief Pvt. Boyd Conyers's statements directly affect himself and Pvt. Carolina de Saussure as two of the principal participants and ringleaders, and Sergt. J. R. Reid as having guilty knowledge before and after the raid, using his position to aid in covering and protecting the raiders.

There is strong circumstantial evidence pointing to the participation of Pvt. R. L. Collier in the raid and guilty knowledge after the raid on the part of several of the guard relief. Of the relief guard, noncommissioned officers and men alike, none could have escaped some knowledge of the more or less incriminating evidence against the guardsmen now directly charged with participation in the raid.

The guardhouse, situated east of the center of the parade, had a west-front entrance, with rooms for the noncommissioned officers to the right and left of the entrance, a general bunk room for the privates, a rear door leading into a sally port which crossed the building entirely from north to south, open at each end, and separating the front portion from the prison cells in the rear. This rear door of the front portion furnished an easy and safe exit and entrance for the conspirators without passing the sentinel in front. The latrine was at the rear of the building, separate therefrom, and the men customarily went out the rear door and through the sally port to reach it. An absence of ten or fifteen minutes would not attract especial attention.

There was a bright light from a lamp in the guardroom, according to the testimony of Pvt. Joseph Rogers, who claims to have been reading a novel when the firing began. His original statement was that he was asleep on his bunk when the firing began and that he was awakened by Sergeant Reid. His various statements are confused and contradictory—he is evidently lying—but as to there being a light in the guardhouse, there has been no denial. Rogers had been court-martialed five times. The existence of the light is also proved by the statement of Private Johnson.

Attention is directed to the singular fact that no statement under oath was taken from Sergt. J. R. Reid, though a vitally important witness. On page 75, Senate Document No. 402, appears a brief summary of his statement (not under oath) to Maj. A. P. Blocksom, to the effect that he did not have the call to arms sounded until the shots came so fast that he thought the post was attacked. He stated also that he formed the guard before having the call sounded.

From this point Reid disappears as a witness. He was serving his fourth enlistment. He was discharged without honor November 16, 1906, with the rest of the battalion. His testimony was not taken at any of the subsequent courts-martial and investigations. He simply disappeared from view. Efforts to locate him have been unsuccessful. He is constantly on the move, and acts like a fugitive from justice. We have followed him into seven States, and spent more time and money in the search than on any other man. For some months shortly after his discharge he was traveling with a negro minstrel troupe through the South in company with John Holloman.

Boyd Conyers declared that Reid was informed that they were going to shoot up the town that night. Reid is reported to have said:

"Boys, if you are not satisfied, you will have to go and get satisfied."

And later, when Reid posted the guard:

"Boys, don't you go down there and let the 'crackers' get the best of you."

Reid seems to have understood that the raid was to be started by these men while on sentry duty and not while on relief, for Conyers declares that, after he (Conyers) returned and threw himself, out of breath, on his bunk, Reid came in and dragged him out declaring, with an oath, that he would have to stand for it or be court-martialed.

Conyers further declares that when John Holloman brought around the extra cartridges before inspection the next morning, to avoid detection, Reid attended to their distribution.

It is obvious that if Reid intended to protect the raiders he would post them away from the front of the guardhouse, where they could recover breath and clean their guns without being under observation. The printed testimony bears this out.

Senate Document No. 402, page 156: Boyd Conyers testifies that he was posted in the rear of the guardhouse after the guard was formed. Does not remember who or how many were in line when the guard was formed.

Senate investigation, page 706, Conyers says he and Lawrence Daniels were posted at the rear of the guardhouse, and that he lay down on the ground to avoid the bullets, though he doesn't claim to have heard any coming that way; had been off post about half an hour. Daniels testified that he was posted at the guardhouse, but does not say whether front or rear.

Senate Document 402, page 152, Pvt. R. L. Collier, of Company C, testified that he had just come off post, and was in the closet when the firing began. (S. I., pp. 1260–1263.) His statement is confused as to when he came off post or how long he was at the closet, or who was in the guardhouse. He was out of sight for an indefinite period, and was likewise posted at the rear of the guardhouse. He testifies that Sergeant Reid, in calling the roll, called up to No. 13 instead of calling by fours. No one else supports this assertion, and it is highly improbable that he was in line when the first call was made. He could not tell who was in the guardhouse.

Senate Document 402, page 158, Pvt. Carolina de Saussure was sent after the alarm and guard call with Corporal Wheeler and Privates Mitchell and Battle toward quarters, and he was later stationed over near the officers' quarters, where he had ample opportunity to clean his gun. (S. I., p. 676). De Saussure is very uncertain about whom he saw in the guardhouse. The time that he was sent toward quarters was later than he claimed. He admits that he had his gun and ammunition in bed with him, but says nothing about being in the same bunk with Boyd Conyers. He says there was no rack for guns in the guardhouse.

Conyers declares now that he and De Saussure were in the same bunk and both had their guns in bed and their ammunition belts on, though this important fact was not brought out in his testimony. He said that his gun got "jammed" in Fourteenth street by the Cowen house as he came out of the Cowen alley, and that De Saussure fixed it for him. This corroborates the testimony of Herbert Elkins, clerk in the Leahy Hotel. (See Senate Doc. 402, Part II, p. 51, last paragraph; Penrose court-martial, p. 443; S. I., vol. 3, p. 2313.) Conyers was a recruit and not very familiar with his weapon, while De Saussure was serving his third enlistment.

The published testimony of the noncommissioned officers on post bears evidence that they were embarrassed by conflicting purposes—to satisfy the inquiries being made and yet not betray the guilty men. The guardhouse was well lighted, and its inmates easily to be seen and identified. As stated, there is no testimony from Sergeant Reid, in charge of the guard. Corporal Wheeler, on post, testified (Macklin trial, p. 67) that Sergeant Reid was asleep in the noncommissioned officers' room, that he himself was in the guardhouse awake, but that (S. Doc. No. 402, p. 120) he didn't know who was in the guardroom.

Corporal Franklin testified (S. Doc. 402, p. 122) that he thought all his relief was present, but wasn't certain whether they were present or absent. He had dozed off when the firing began. The relief was formed double rank in front and held for fifteen or twenty minutes, he testifies, before being thrown into skirmish line lying down.

Corporal Burdett testifies (S. Doc. 402, p. 121) that he was asleep, but doesn't remember how many privates were in the guardhouse.

Musician Hoyt Robinson is equally uncommunicative. He was asleep in the entrance to the guardhouse. Was awakened (S. Doc. 402, p. 145; S. I., p. 567) by Sergeant Reid and Corporal Wheeler and told to sound the alarm. Went back into the guardroom before doing so to see the time by the clock; found it was 12 o'clock. Saw Privates Johnson and Battle, but doesn't remember any others. (Johnson was sentinel in front of the guardhouse, post No. 1.)

Privates Lawrence Daniels, Bounsler, Mitchell, and Battle gave very brief testimony at Brownsville and were not examined thereafter. They all stated that they were asleep in the guardhouse, but made no statement as to the other members of the relief.

Pvt. Joseph Rogers first testified that he was asleep (S. Doc. No. 402, p. 130), but at the Macklin trial (Macklin, p. 153) and at the Senate investigation (S. I., pp. 984–985) claims that he was awake, reading a novel; doesn't remember what novel or what it was about; was sent to awake Captain Macklin, but told several conflicting stories of what he did, and is discredited by the officers of the battalion. He didn't know how many men or who were present, but said "they were supposed to be there." He admitted at the Macklin trial that he had been court-martialed at least five times, yet was discharged with "character good" at each of his first two enlistments.

Summarizing the testimony as to the presence of the privates of the relief guard in the guardroom, it is extremely noncommittal and uncertain as to who were there and who were absent when the alarm was sounded. In justice to the commissioned officers of the battalion it should be stated that for weeks they conducted a painstaking, personal, searching investigation and examination of the soldiers in their endeavor to ferret out the guilty parties, but the seal of secrecy had been put on the mouths of the men. The few soldiers who conscientiously tried to aid the officers were called "dog robbers," and made to feel the displeasure of their fellows. Pvt. Elmer Brown, Company B, who slept in the corral the night of the raid, testifies to this.

THE SENTINELS.

Pvt. B. F. Johnson, Company D, on post No. 1, in front of the guardhouse, is personally sufficiently accounted for. He retreated behind a dense cloud of ignorance when interrogated at Brownsville. He didn't know anything; didn't even know who was the corporal of his detail; heard seven shots together, and knew nothing more. Didn't know what corporal posted him; what corporal relieved him, who came in or went out. He was not further examined and was finally discharged under a general court-martial November 22, 1906.

Pvt. Joseph H. Howard, of Company D, on post No. 2, around the barracks, has been thoroughly examined. Following the first shots of the raiders he fired the alarm signal, retreating between B and C barracks, of three shots aimed generally over the officers' quarters, and perhaps thereby explaining the bullets which several witnesses testified to having heard whistling over the post. His several statements differ widely as to the place where the first shots of the raiders were fired from down near the Allison saloon, several hundred yards east of him, to a point near the Cowen alley, and in time from four minutes to two seconds before he called the alarm and fired his rifle. In better position than any other private to see, hear, and know what actually occurred in and near the rear of the barracks, he succeeded in demonstating how much he could say and how little he could tell in four examinations—at Brownsville, at the Macklin and Penrose courts-martial, and before the Senate committee.

Pvt. Charley Hairston, Company B, on post No. 3, around the officers' quarters, throws considerable light on several mooted questions. At the Macklin trial he stated (pp. 79 and 89) that he had carried out Major Penrose's instructions to have the call to arms sounded, had then listened to the roll call of Company B, and had gone back to his post before Private De Saussure came up and told him that Sergeant Reid wanted him to call Captain Macklin, the officer of the day. This places De Saussure's mission considerably later than his own testimony would indicate and increases sufficiently the margin of time needed for De Saussure to have participated in the raid and returned to the guardhouse.

Hairston further reports hearing two pistol shots (S. I., p. 741) off to the southeast some twenty minutes before the real fusillade. This would cover Howard's confused effort to couple these shots with the firing at the entrance to the Cowan alley and to bring them all with his firing the alarm into the limit (extreme time) of four minutes. Hairston also heard bullets whistling overhead, evidently Howard's three shots, and thought he heard horses galloping, presumably the Mexican scavenger's cart hurriedly driven to a place of safety from the rear of the barracks. Hairston located the general fusillade correctly back of B Company barracks.

Pvt. Alexander Ash, Company D, on post No. 4, was remote from the whole affray—in the far southeastern end of the fort, around the corral. He threw no especial light on the situation. He had the confidence of his commanding officers as a reliable soldier.

BAKE SHOP.

John Brown, the last member of the principal conspirators, was disposed of in three lines in the investigation at Brownsville. He claimed he was asleep in the bake shop. He was not subsequently examined. He was serving his third enlistment. On Boyd Conyers's statement, made at Monroe, Ga., Brown was sought in Atlanta. James Powell, who had claimed to have been a discharged soldier of the Ninth Cavalry and to have been in Brownsville the night of the raid, proved an all-around liar and romancer, who, however, had learned much of the inside of the affair from Brown. He also gave Brown the news that detectives were looking for him.

Brown fled to Philadelphia early last August, where his trail was lost for a time. Finally it was learned that he had skipped to Tampa on a phosphate-rock vessel. From Tampa he doubled back to Jacksonville, where he now rests in fancied security. He had been a sailor before he entered the army.

Pvt. Wesley Mapp, Company D, was the only other occupant of the bake shop. He claims (S. Doc. No. 402, p. 141) that he slept through the whole shooting and did not wake till Sergt. Israel Harris, Company D, came, after it was all over. He was serving his second enlistment, was a frequenter of the Allison saloon, and after his discharge disappeared. He has not been located.

THE RAIDERS.

Boyd Conyers furnished the following list of 7 men, all of B Company, who took part in the raid, besides John Holloman, John Brown, Carolina de Saussure, and himself:

William Anderson.
James Bailey.
Charles E. Cooper.
William Lemons.
Henry Jimerson.
James (Rastus) Johnson.
Henry (Sonny) Jones.

Elmer Brown, Company B, who slept in the corral, furnished the following list of suspects:

James Bailey.
Carolina de Saussure.
C. E. Cooper.
John Holloman.
James (Rastus) Johnson.
Henry Jimerson.
William Lemons.
J. L. Wilson.

He also believed, agreeing with Conyers, that Sergt. George Jackson knew all about it and opened the gun racks for the raiders before the shooting, and again after the guns had been returned to the racks at 2 o'clock in the morning, that they might be cleaned. Boyd Conyers made the same statement as a part of the history of the raid.

The two lists of raiders agree with the addition by Brown of the name of J. L. Wilson, though furnished independently. Wilson's gun was one in which shells picked up in the alley were found to fit.

It is noted that Cooper, Holloman, Lemons, Jimerson, Johnson, and Wilson all belonged to Company B baseball team, and ran together.

Other members of the baseball team were: Corpl. Wade Harris, James Allen, Henry Carmichael, Edward L. Daniels, Henry Jones, George Mitchell, and Isaiah Raynor.

Cooper was the coach and Jimerson and Lemons substitute players.

Conyers's list is 4 short of the 15 raiders whom reliable witnesses counted in the alley.

George Mitchell was a bad egg; was given six months at Fort Reno for desertion.

Isaiah Raynor slept in the kitchen on the ground floor, and gave confused testimony as to how he got upstairs. He testified that his own gun was in the fourth section rack, but he got S. R. Hopkins's gun out of the third section rack (S. I., p. 1754). This is in line with the testimony of James H. Ballard, clerk of Company B, that the men got guns indiscriminately from the first rack they could get to. Raynor also said that "Sergeant Allison" told him to take a gun from the third section. Allison was the ex-soldier who ran the Holloman saloon.

Allison's testimony was never taken. If Raynor's reference is not a mistake, it should be inquired into as to what Allison was doing in the barracks.

Raynor says he got his own gun for inspection the next morning and Lieutenant Lawrason stood him back because it was foul. He slept in the northeast corner of the ground floor of the barracks, the corner nearest the fort wall and the gate, yet would only admit that he heard the shooting in "the back part of the town, in the rear of B Company, going down the street." (S. I., p. 1760.) Raynor's testimony was not taken at Brownsville.

The baseball crowd tried to protect the guilty men by deliberate lying. For instance, Corpl. Wade Harris testified (S. Doc. No. 402, p. 121) that the firing had ceased when Sergeant Jackson was trying to unlock the second section rack. This is manifestly false, for those of the second section who were not on the raid were pouring downstairs with their guns while the firing was still going on.

Before proceeding to examine the testimony relative to the raiders, the testimony of First Sergt. Mingo Sanders was taken by Lieutenant-Colonel Lovering, at Brownsville, September 25, 1906, nearly six weeks after the raid, should be considered. Sanders lived in married quarters, east of the guardhouse. He was awakened by the shooting; dressed, and hastened to Company B barracks, arriving there after Lieutenant Lawrason, who testifies that he got there about five or six minutes after the shooting began and that he heard no shots after he joined his company. (Macklin trial, p. 31.) The last shots fired by the raiders were at the Tillman saloon, and it took them, perhaps, at the most a minute to run back to the fort and another minute to fall in.

At least eight minutes elapsed from the first fusillade to the time Mingo Sanders reached the front of B barracks. The distance from the Tillman saloon to the front of B barracks was 300 yards. The married quarters were distant between five and six hundred yards. Sanders is positive that he saw John Holloman before the shooting ceased. (S. Doc. No. 402, p. 118.) But there was desultory firing going on in town from aroused citizens for many minutes after the raid was over. Sanders testifies that the company was practically in line when he got there, which further proves his lateness, as all other testimony shows great confusion and delay in forming the company, men being sent back for guns and ammunition, and at least eight minutes elapsing from the first fusillade till the line was fairly in shape.

Lieutenant Lawrason testifies that it took him about five minutes from the time the shooting began to get to the company and several minutes to form the company; that all the firing took place in about five minutes, and that the farthest firing seemed to be at a distance of not more than 300 or 400 yards. (Macklin trial, p. 32.) He further says (Penrose trial, p. 486) that there was great confusion, that the men straggled in, and that the last man had taken his place five or six minutes after he arrived, about eight minutes after the first call to arms, and about nine minutes after the first shots were fired. The last shots of the raiders might very probably have been fired after B Company began to assemble, but the men were straggling in for at least five minutes.

THE EVIDENCE.

It is circumstantially absolute that if soldiers of B Company fired service rifles from the upper gallery of B barracks, from the ground inside the fort wall, and then crossed the wall to join the raiders, the fact was well known throughout the barracks, and their fellow-soldiers lied to conceal the facts and to protect the raiders. Yet the building up of alibis is extremely slight, and but little testimony was adduced in regard to the presence in the barracks of the members of the raiding party while the shooting was in progress. The witnesses generally deemed it safer to know nothing.

William Anderson, Company B, was one of the three musicians of that company. Henry Jimerson was the second and Henry Odom the third. Anderson and Jimerson are charged with being in the raiding party. Odom sounded the call to arms. (Corpl. Wade Harris, S. Doc. 402, p. 121.) Anderson claims to have been asleep (S. Doc. 402, p. 153), and John B. Anderson, his "bunkie," says that he saw him when he awoke. Very little testimony of identification was brought out, and it would have been of very doubtful value at best, if for no other reason than that the barracks were in total darkness. Sergeant Jackson claims to have unlocked the racks by aid of a tallow candle. Jimerson testified that he was asleep. (S. Doc. 402, p. 149.) Cooper, Johnson, Jones, and Lemons gave identical testimony that they were asleep. This was all before Lieutenant-Colonel Lovering at Brownsville, September 25, 1906. They do not appear again.

Henry Jimerson had a bad reputation as a trouble maker and tough.

Henry Jones was a bully and notorious from picking quarrels with recruits.

William Lemons was a tough. He deserted at Fort Reno, was captured and given six months in prison.

Carolina de Saussure was notably a hard case and reckless. He assaulted a member of the band at Niobrara and was given six months in the guardhouse.

James Bailey's case needs special examination. He was supposed to be in the hospital. The hospital was under charge of First Sergt. F. L. Oltmans, Hospital Corps (white), and located about 100 yards south of the guardhouse. Oltmans was in his quarters beyond the hospital. (S. Doc. 402, Part II, p. 128.) He was awakened by the firing, dressed, and went to the hospital. He saw his orderlies, Privates Nolan and Sanborn, and four colored patients. The firing, he says, was over when he got to the porch. He does not state how long it took him to dress and get to the hospital, but does not seem to have hurried.

Orderly William C. Nolan (white) was in bed, in the hospital, got up, lighted the lamp, and then went out on the porch, then went to Sergeant Oltmans's house to call him, then went back to the hospital. (S. Doc. 402, Part II, p. 126.) He says there were three or maybe four patients in the hospital, but identifies none of them.

Orderly Sanborn identifies no patient by name, and merely refers to the records as to how many men were there.

Pvt. John Kirkpatrick, Company C, who was in the hospital, testifies that there was only one other patient, William Harden, of Company B, and an orderly. Harden was a patient there, and was also cooking at the hospital. He makes no reference to Bailey.

So, apart from Bailey's own statement, he is not identified definitely as having been at the hospital at the time of the firing. He could have been absent and returned without attracting attention.

In summary, there is no reliable direct evidence precluding a single one of the suspects from having been on the raid. The circumstantial evidence would admit of every one of the list having been out.

In the annexed material, reports of Captain Baldwin's detectives, fair samples of a much larger list, it will be seen that very different opinions are held by several of the ex-soldiers from the ones appearing in their official testimony. The admissions are somewhat remarkable. Private Howard, Corporal Franklin, Corporal Thornton, and Pvt. Joseph L. Wilson express the opinion that it was done by the soldiers.

Many of the men make statements similar to those of Sergt. George Jackson, Corpl. Anthony Franklin, and Temple Thornton that "their Senator," or their attorney, had told them not to talk. Of course, if they had no guilty knowledge they could tell nothing to harm them.

The circumstances of the firing from B barracks, from the ground inside the wall, and the general comment which ensued among the men, makes absurd any theory that the members of the battalion in barracks B, C, and D could have failed to know that soldiers did the shooting. The general resentment among them at the hostile attitude of the citizens of Brownsville was sufficient to initiate the conspiracy of silence. Added thereto was the fact that a murder was committed, and that the State of Texas was taking a hand in seeking to punish the criminals. The discharge of the whole battalion, salutary and necessary as it was, made a racial issue. Had the battalion been of white soldiers instead of colored, no maudlin sympathy would have been aroused over its discharge without honor, and the whole affair would have blown over in a month.

THE CARTRIDGE SHELLS.

The expert evidence submitted to the Senate committee identifying certain cartridge shells picked up in the Cowen alley after the raid as having been fired from guns issued to members of Company B is conclusive. The sole flaw seemed to be in the identification of one of the guns issued to Private Blaney and supposed to have been locked up in an arm chest in the storeroom of B barracks. The records of gun issues were kept by the quartermaster-sergeant and showed numerous changes and irregularities.

There was no actual inspection of the guns in the arm chest by numbers until long after the raid. There was no absolute testimony from an unprejudiced source as to the Blaney gun being in the arm chest, and it was known and acknowledged that guns were being changed more or less among the men without authority. If the Blaney gun was out, there was ample opportunity to return it without detection. Pvt. Joseph L. Wilson so declared to Captain Baldwin.

The argument advanced in defense of the soldiers, that these shells came from a box of empty shells lying open in the gallery of B barracks, and that they had been taken by townspeople and scattered in the alley to throw suspicion on the soldiers, was buttressed by the further explanation that several of them showed double-firing marks, due to a failure of the first attempt, the firing mechanism being stiffened by the cosmoline on the weapons when issued. These shells had come from the target range at Fort Niobrara. This argument is destroyed by two facts now given:

First. The box mentioned contained over a thousand shells, discharged from nearly fifty rifles, thrown in indiscriminately, and roughly shaken in the transportation and numerous handlings from the range at Niobrara to the barracks at Fort Brown, thus being thoroughly mixed. There would be mathematically only one chance in hundreds of millions that out of this box 30 shells selected at random would exhibit the absolute firing marks of only 3 rifles out of nearly 50; therefore a practical impossibility.

Second. There were 6 of the 30 shells showing marks of having been inserted in a rifle twice. No such proportion of misfires—one in five, 20 per cent, was reported from Fort Niobrara—was in evidence on the remainder of the shells, or was claimed by the soldiers to whom the guns identified with the shells were issued.

But the conclusive evidence as to the double markings on these shells and three others referred to in the expert testimony of Lieut. W. J. Hawkins (S. I., p. 1319) can be had from Hon. M. D. Purdy, former Assistant Attorney-General, who gives the information that several of the shells picked up at Brownsville were in his presence inserted in a Springfield rifle and tested by an army officer at Fort Sam Houston to illustrate the working of the guns. This accounts for the double markings. Moreover, in case two attempts were made to fire a cartridge the primer markings of the first and unsuccessful attempt would be completely obliterated by the greater explosive blow of the second and successful attempt.

THE AMMUNITION.

Boyd Conyers furnishes the information that before the battalion left Fort Niobrara rumors were circulated that they would not be welcome at Brownsville; that there would be trouble with the citizens; and the rough element of the battalion determined to prepare for trouble. On the way down boys at the stations would importune the soldiers for cartridges. Some were given, but more were held out, and on inspection at Brownsville the shortage was accredited to their having been given away.

"Lieutenant Lawrason," declares Conyers, "scolded the men and threatened punishment, but he ordered more cartridges issued. Some had been held out at target practice. So there were plenty of cartridges. John Holloman took care of them, and I think he hid them over in the Allison saloon, which he backed. After the raid he brought around a lot to the guardhouse to make up the shortage and Sergeant Reid handed them around."

Lieutenant Lawrason gave an original estimate that from one-fourth to one-third of Company B came down to roll call at the time of the raid without their ammunition. Before the Senate committee he raised his estimate to one-half. This latter estimate coincides closely with the number whom Boyd Conyers states as having come out on the upper gallery of B barracks and blazed away after the signal shots. It is not claimed or charged that the men shot away all their cartridges, but the resulting confusion was evidently a part of the premeditated plan to secure as much delay as possible in calling the roll to let the raiders have time to get back in line. From eight to ten minutes elapsed before the roll call was fairly started, and the raiders were all back.

The entire distance traversed by the raiders from the fort to the Tillman saloon, the farthest point, and return, can be and was covered in less time than six minutes from the firing of the first shot. A fast walk out and a run back will do it in less than three minutes by actual test. The distance is less than one-sixth mile each way. Allow a speed of a mile in twelve minutes out and of a mile in six minutes back and it can be covered in three minutes. Allow a minute for delays in firing and it is all done in four minutes. The raid was carefully planned and well timed.

REVOLVERS.

There is a confusion of testimony as to the use of revolvers by one or more of the raiders. No evidence has been obtained that service revolvers had been surreptitiously taken and used; but it is well known that at Fort Niobrara a search was made and several revolvers collected from members of the battalion. They could have had them, and probably several of them were used. One bullet from a pistol was dug out of a post near the Crixell saloon. Its source was not well established. Testimony as to the sound of pistol shots was, under the circumstances, not conclusive, nor of great importance.

JOHN HOLLOMAN.

John Holloman, the chief conspirator and organizer of the raid, is an interesting character. He was serving his fourth enlistment, and had been previously discharged with "character good," "character excellent," "character very good." His reputation among his fellow-soldiers does not bear out his official character. Said to be the offspring of a small Jewish trader and a mulatto woman in middle Georgia, his position as the battalion Shylock is accounted for. He was not only a money lender, charging 20 per cent usury and upward for fractions of a month between pay days, but he was a successful gambler and card sharp.

Half the battalion owed him money. Even the impeccable first sergeant, Mingo Sanders, was in his debt at the time of the raid. He was, moreover, the financial backer and half owner of the Allison saloon. What of the battalion money he didn't get in usury and card playing he received over the bar of his "bodega." Boyd Conyers acted as one of his clerks and runners.

Perhaps the most singular omission in the record of the raid is in his case. John Holloman's testimony was never taken at Brownsville or anywhere else by army officers, government officials, not even by the representatives of the Constitution League. He appeared at neither the Macklin or Penrose courts-martial nor before the Senate committee. After his discharge he disappeared in company with Sergeant Reid, one of his chief aides in the conspiracy. They traveled for some months in a negro minstrel troupe and then separated. Holloman is now in Macon, Ga., where he is known to very few, even among his own color. He keeps very much to himself. He lives with a woman who passes as his wife and runs a small grocery in a negro suburb.

It is worthy of note that John Holloman, at Macon; Boyd Conyers, at Monroe; Carolina de Saussure, at Savannah; R. L. Collier, at Barnesville; and John Brown, at Atlanta, brought five of the principals into close touch. They have kept track of each other ever since they were discharged.

It is further noteworthy that it has been comparatively easy to trace up the location of the former members of Companies C and D and extremely difficult to find men of Company B, especially the suspects.

HERBERT J. BROWNE.

Gen. GEORGE B. DAVIS,
Judge-Advocate-General,
War Department, Washington, D. C.

LOUISVILLE KY., May 6, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

Arrived here this morning. Have located James Howard at 1015 Thirteenth street, and will try to get board in the neighborhood.

May 8.—Have gotten board two doors from Howard. Have met him and hope to be able to get some information. Have arranged to go out with him either to-night or to-morrow night.

May 10.—Was out with Howard last night. Talked freely over the Brownsville matter, but does not seem to know very much about the shooting. He tells me that he was not a member of Company B, but that he was in Company D, and knew nothing whatever about the shooting. This man is either telling the truth or he is a great deal smarter than I gave him credit for being when I first saw him. I have an engagement to go out with him to-night, and will try to sound him further.

May 11.—I was out with Howard last night and got him full of whisky, and am satisfied now that he knows absolutely nothing about the shooting. He said that the soldiers had been badly treated by the white people in Brownsville, and that he did not blame them for shooting up the town, and that he believed most of the shooting was done by men in Company B, but that he had never been able to get any information from any of the soldiers. He mentioned several little scrapes that he had been in himself, but I am thoroughly convinced that Howard knows, personally, nothing about the shooting.

I will await further orders here.

Respectfully,

GILBERT JONES.

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 9, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

Arrived here to-day. Located George Jackson at 1202 Walnut street, where he is employed by the street railway company. Have arranged to get board across the street from where Jackson lives, and understand he is fond of baseball and hope to be able to take him out on Saturday next.

May 11.—I met Jackson to-day. Only had a few minutes to talk with him, but will arrange to call at his house to-night.

May 12.—Was with Jackson about twenty minutes last night, and find that he was discharged from Company B and is pretty sore about the way he has been treated by the President. Jackson says that he does not believe that any of the soldiers did the shooting, but that it was done by town people. Have arranged to go out with him day after to-morrow night.

May 13.—I was with Jackson for some time last night and talked very freely over the shooting and the way the soldiers had been treated by the white people at Brownsville. He says he knows absolutely nothing about the matter, but stated that they had been warned by their attorneys and had been expecting some white detectives to call on him at any time to try to pump him. He said he did not intend to talk to anyone about the case, as he knew nothing about it. I feel sure that there is no chance to get anything further out of Jackson.

Respectfully,

C. J. TALLEY.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., May 11, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN:

I had some trouble locating J. Reeves, but found him at 225 West Grand avenue, this city. He was employed by the Myle-E Adams Cigar Company. This man is one smart negro.

May 12.—I saw Reeves again to-day and he refuses to talk anything about the case. Said he had told all he knew, and did not know anything in the first place, and could not tell anything if he wanted to. Further stated he was satisfied that I was either working for the Government or for some of the Senators, or connected with some newspaper; that he knew nothing and did not want to be bothered.

Respectfully,

C. MAYFIELD.

EL RENO, OKLA., May 26, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

Just arrived here and have located Temple Thornton, 718 North Evange street. Had a talk with him and find that he was a member of Company D. He says he was asleep at the time of the shooting and that he did not believe any of the soldiers in his company knew anything about the shooting; that if it was done by any of the soldiers, it was done by either B or C company. He says he has never been able to tell who really did the shooting; that the majority of the soldiers believe it was done by the town people or the Mexicans.

May 28.—I saw Thornton again last night, but was unable to get anything further out of him. He says that all of the soldiers have been cautioned by friends and their attorneys not to do any talking in regard to the shooting. Am satisfied that this man has nothing to tell.

Very respectfully,

C. J. TALLEY.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL., May 30, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

I had considerable trouble in locating A. Franklin. Went to Des Moines, Iowa, 318 West Third street, and found that he had moved to Rock Island, where he is now located at 222 Twenty-second street. I lost several days locating him, but finally located him and have had a talk with him. Franklin is a pretty smart negro and will be hard to work. Am now trying to get board in the neighborhood, where I can see him often.

May 23.—I was not able to see Franklin yesterday or the day before. Saw him to-day. Had quite a lot of talk with him and got very chummy. He told me that he was corporal at Brownsville at the time of the trouble, but that he was not on duty when the shooting began; that he was asleep at the guardhouse; said he knew nothing about most of it, but he thought some of the soldiers fired back from the barracks.

May 25.—I had another talk with Franklin to-day and am thoroughly satisfied that he does not know who did the shooting, although he said enough to me to convince me that in his own mind he believed it was done by some of the soldiers. Franklin said he had been warned not to talk by his lawyers and also by his Senator, but would not say who the Senator was.

Respectfully,

C. J. TALLEY.

JOLIET, ILL., June 12, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

Arrived here day before yesterday and have located Joseph L. Wilson, one of the negro soldiers who was at Brownsville. This negro boards at 129 South Bluff street and works in a barber shop. He is a kind of dude negro and will be pretty hard to get in with.

June 15.—Have been out two or three times with Wilson, but he is not much of a talker and very smart. I think you had better come here and see if you can help me out.

Respectfully,

G. JONES.

STATEMENT OF W. G. BALDWIN, JUNE 19, 1908.

Have just returned from Joliet and Chicago, where I met Joseph L. Wilson, who is one of the smartest and brightest negroes I have seen for some time. I told him that I had been employed by a syndicate of magazines of New York to get the facts of the Brownsville case, as they wanted to write a series of magazine articles. I gave him to understand that we simply wanted to get the facts as to where the shooting occurred and what company did the shooting and that we cared very little about the individuals who did same.

Wilson told me that he believed that the shooting was done by some of the soldiers, but that he could not tell to save his life who they were. Said that he believed George Gray and William Haskins would likely know more about the case than most anyone else. I then employed Wilson and sent him to Charleston, W. Va., to get in with Gray. I returned to Roanoke and sent one of our best men to Charleston to also get in with Gray and watch Wilson to see if Wilson was loyal.

W. G. BALDWIN.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., June 21, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

Have just returned from Atlanta, Ga., where I saw our negro. He states that Conyers told him that sometime ago he received a telegram to go to Washington, where he was present at an investigation, and that he did not tell them anything. He stated that he was in the crowd that did the shooting; that the corporal of the guard on duty that night was fully aware as to the situation, and knew every man who went out of the barracks.

Respectfully,

A. H. BALDWIN.

ATLANTA, GA., July 3, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

I met our man here to-day and he tells me that Conyers made the following statement to him:

That he was a member of Company B and on night of shooting was on duty as outer guard. He states that Conyers told him that Holloman, a negro named Brown, and another negro whose name he could not remember did the shooting. Stated that he hid in the guardhouse after the shooting; just before roll call Sergeant Reid gave him some cartridges to replace those used, so that he would not be caught if an inspection was ordered. Conyers stated that Holloman lived in Macon and Brown lived in Atlanta. I believe this information is correct, as I never told our negro anything about the shooting, the name of the company, or the people who were suspected. Our man claims that a negro named Parker, who lived in Charleston, S. C., was present when Conyers made above statement.

A. H. BALDWIN.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON PACIFIC ISLANDS AND PORTO RICO,
Cincinnati, Ohio, August 26, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS, Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: On my return here I found awaiting me your letter of July 24. I hardly know from what you state just what it is that has transpired, nor do I know just what it is I should do to get the character of information to which you refer. If you will write me again at your convenience, giving me a clearer account, I will be glad to avail myself of it to the extent it may be useful.

I remember you very well as a witness before the committee, and I am sure you did not there testify to anything except only the truth.

Very truly, yours, etc.,

J. B. FORAKER.

ATLANTA, GA., June 27, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

I located James Powell at 304 Fourth street and was with him several times to-day. He talks very freely, and knows Buddie Conyers, Holloman, and Brown and several other members of Company B. I have an engagement with him again to-morrow.

June 28.—I was with Powell to-day, and he told me that he was at Brownsville at the time of the shooting and that he met Brown, Holloman, and Conyers at a barroom at 7 o'clock, and that there was some talk of shooting up the town that night—that the colored soldiers had been treated badly by the citizens. Powell bragged considerably about what they did in the way of shooting up the town, but I could not get out of him any of the names except Brown, Holloman, and Conyers. He told me that he had been serving in the army, at San Francisco, and had been discharged, and had only been in Brownsville a few days when the shooting occurred and that he left there soon afterwards and had not seen any of the boys since, except Brown, who was living in Atlanta.

Respectfully,

W. LAWSON.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., August 29, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN, Roanoke, Va.:

I had conversation with James Powells to-day, in which he stated that he served in the Tenth U. S. Cavalry, and in August, 1906, he had received an honorable discharge at San Francisco, and immediately left that point for Brownsville, Tex., arriving there two or three days before the shooting took place. He stated that on the afternoon and evening of the shooting he had been in company with John Brown and a negro named Hallman and Boyd Conyers, all members of the negro regiment then stationed at Brownsville. He stated that they were in a saloon together in the afternoon, and there was some talk of shooting up the town that night.

He claims he left Conyers between 6 and 8 o'clock that evening and did not see him again that night. He claims that he was at a boarding house at the time of the shooting, but immediately after the shooting he rushed over to the barracks, arriving there about the time they finished the roll call. He saw Holloman and Brown, but could not find Conyers, and while he stayed at the barracks about an hour, he never did see Conyers. This man claims that he had no hand in the shooting and was not with the party that did it.

A. H. BALDWIN.

STATEMENT OF W. G. BALDWIN.

ATLANTA, GA., September 11, 1908.

I went to Atlanta and found James Powell, whose home is 305 Fort street, and who works for Dr. William Crenshaw at a double cottage in Atlanta. I told this negro that I represented a magazine of New York, and that we were anxious to get the facts of the Brownsville shooting. Before calling on Powell I sent George W. Gray, who was in Company C, and whose parents live in Roanoke, and I believe is one of the most reliable negroes I know in this country, to see Powell and find out what he had told Lawson and others. After a short interview Gray came back to the hotel and stated that Powell was lying; that he had tripped him up in a number of his statements; and that he was satisfied that he had never been in Brownsville or knew anything about the case.

My calling on Powell a few minutes afterwards evidently excited him, and when I began to ask him about the Brownsville case he told me that he knew absolutely nothing about it and that he was not at Brownsville, but had formerly belonged to the Tenth Cavalry and had been discharged at San Francisco about six years ago. I then confronted him with the letter he had written Boyd Conyers on August 14 and asked him what he meant by this. His explanation was very unsatisfactory, and he admitted to the authorship of the letter, but said that he had formerly known Conyers was the reason for his reply to Conyers's letter written to him about August 10. He denied knowing James Brown, a member of Company B, although he and James Brown left Atlanta for Philadelphia on the same train about three weeks ago. Brown is still in Philadelphia.

I called on Doctor Crenshaw, who told me that he knew that this negro, James Powell, had not been out of Atlanta for three years, except on this trip to Philadelphia.

W. G. BALDWIN.

P. S.—It subsequently developed that Powell was for a short time in a volunteer regiment. He was never in Brownsville, but had gotten his information from John Brown, one of the raiders.

ATLANTA, GA., 304 FORT STREET,
August 13, 1908.

DEARE FRIEND:

I received your letter today and was truly glad to heare from you it found me well and truly hope when these few lines reach you it will find you the same I was jest thanking about you when I got your letter John Brown went to Philadelphia a bought three weeks ago I have heard of eny rest of the boys except John Jone he was throw heare and went to Chicago I will meet the lawer when he come You ask me abought the chracker I haven had the opportunity to meet that Entertainment I have three good guns and if eny thaing should start I will be with them When are you coming to Atlanta Buddie I will take you for my Edader because I dont no wheare eny rest of the boys

You must excuse bad writing write soon and let me heare from you from your friend

JAMES POWELS

MACON, GA., September 3, 1908.

W. G. BALDWIN:

I arrived here to-day and have located Holloman. He is in business here and I will try and get something out of him as early as practicable.

September 4.—I have been unable to get anything out of Holloman and he is evidently on his guard.

September 8.—I have now been here a week and find it is impossible to get anything out of Holloman. I will meet you in Atlanta on the 10th.

Respectfully, W. LAWSON.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, the papers and reports that have just been read show conclusively, I think, the propriety and the wisdom of our adopting a provision such as that embodied in the amendment which I offered this morning. At a later time I will discuss that at more length.

I wish now to address myself to these affidavits and to some of the statements made in them. And, first, let me say I had no knowledge of these when I prepared the amendment I offered this morning. I prepared the amendment a week ago and showed it to some of my colleagues on the Republican side, and perhaps to some on the other side of the Chamber. I am not sure about that. And I did it solely by reason of the prompting given to me by the correspondence from which I read briefly this morning, for it seemed to me, Mr. President, that it was one of the worst features of this whole unfortunate business that these men who have appeared and testified and who have been examined and cross-examined should now be pursued in this kind of way by detectives proceeding in the manner described in the letter from which I have read.

I do not pretend to know what are the facts as to how these detectives proceeded; but that detectives were employed, that they did represent the Government, that they were under the direction of the War Department are facts established by the affidavits and the reports that have just been read and by the President's message. In that particular the soldier from whose letter I read is entirely corroborated.

I have a very distinct recollection of Boyd Conyers. I think, perhaps, every other member of the Military Affairs Committee who was present when he testified will remember him. I have no recollection of ever seeing him except only while he was on the witness stand. I have just now turned to the record, and I see that I presided on that occasion and administered the oath to him. But I remember him without being refreshed by the record. It is from his letter that I read a moment ago. I had prepared that extract before I knew any message was coming. I know nothing about Conyers except only as he appeared on the witness stand. He impressed me as an intelligent and absolutely truthful witness. I believe he testified to the exact truth, so far as he knew it, in answer both to the examination and the cross-examination to which he was subjected.

He went his way when he was dismissed, and I never saw him again and never heard of him again until the following letter was received at my office in Cincinnati during my absence on a summer vacation. It is dated "Monroe, Ga., July 24, 1908." Now that this message from the President and this report from the Secretary of War and these affidavits from these detectives and this argument based on a review of the testimony by one of these detectives who was employed to represent the Government have been read, I want the Senate to indulge me until I can read this poor, helpless man's correspondence with me. You were told there—and I wish the Clerk would turn and see at what point it was in the investigation of this soldier at Monroe, Ga., that it is stated that my letter which Boyd Conyers received had a bad effect upon him in making him stubborn and obstinate, and that it made it impossible for them to get the truth. [A pause.] Meantime, while the Clerk is looking that up, I will read this letter:

Monroe, Ga., July 24, 1908—

I had never heard from him from the moment he left the witness stand until this letter came, as I say, in my absence—

MONROE, GA., July 24, 1908.

Mr. FORAKER.

DEAR SIR: As you have been a great friend of the discharged soldiers of Brownsville, Tex., I thought I would write you and explain a matter to you concerning a negro detective that has been hanging around for some time.

Mr. FORAKER, I have been away with Captain Mobley and the soldiers for ten days, waiting on them. They have been camping at Chickamaugua Park, and when I returned home I learned the negro was here to pick me about the Brownsville affair, and as soon as I heard it I had the high sheriff to arrest him—

Now that, according to his statement, is what this criminal, who was engaged in the shooting, did. It does not look to me like the work of a guilty man—

I had the high sheriff to arrest him and investigate the matter, and as I pushed him close and he didn't have time to have a private conversation with me, he told the sheriff lies, and goes on to say that I have been drunk with him since he has been here, but I can prove that I have not by the highest authorities of Monroe; that I don't drink enough whiskey to get intoxicated.

The way the news got out that he was here for that business is there was another negro that roomed with him, and he had to get him to read his letters and write them, and this negro told what he was up to—

I here call attention to the fact that this negro Lawson, who makes such a smooth and high sounding, logical and comprehensive affidavit, signed it by his mark, according to the reading at the desk.

Oh, Mr. President, there has been a good deal connected with this matter which has caused thoughtful men to wish it had not happened, and I am of the opinion—and I do not hesitate to express it here—that when this particular matter has been probed to the bottom all honest men will be ashamed of it—

I have been receiving letters from Roanoke, Va.—

Where are they? They are not in this report—

I have been receiving letters from Roanoke, Va. In the first one, the man told me he would give me a position at $60 to $75 per month, and I answered the letter and told him I couldn't accept the position then, as my wife was sick and I couldn't leave her. In the next one he said he wanted me to serve in Cuba. I didn't answer it, and in the last one he told me if I would accept the position to let him know and he would send me a ticket to come; he wanted me by the 15th. I asked him in each letter what kind of work he wanted me to do, but he never would tell. So I learned this negro is here working for him. The man I have been getting the letters from goes in the name of Wallace L. Gray—

He was commented upon in one of these affidavits. I will not stop now to do more than to call attention to that fact—but that is not his real name. However, he receives his mail in that name, and when we found that was not the right name the papers the negro had were searched this morning and found out he only receives his mail in that name.

Mr. FORAKER, I do hope this letter will be some help to you in your case. You have been a great friend to us, and I am sure I appreciate your kindness toward us and thank you very much; and I also ask you for a little of your help in this case, as the negro states that he will have a man here for me in a few days, and I feel that I am worthy of your help, as I am from a good family and the best and highest white people of Monroe, Ga., are my friends. I have had some of the best men to tell me to-night if you need their assistance in this case they are willing and ready to help you do anything for me.

Mr. FORAKER, I am writing this letter because Capt. A. B. Mobly had me to write you—

Captain Mobly is captain of a local national guard company there—to introduce you to him through this letter. He is one of the most popular men of Monroe, Ga., and the cashier of the Farmers' Bank of this place.

Mr. FORAKER, I want to tell you from my heart the statement I made in Washington is the truth, so help me God, and I have no changes to make in it whatever, and I am just as innocent of taking any part in that trouble that night as God is on high; and the fact is I don't know any more than I have told you about it—

He evidently means told the committee, for he never told me anything except in the committee—

I am waiting for a reply at once from you, and I would like to have all the advice you can give me.

Very respectfully,

BOYD CONYERS,
Monroe, Ga.

Now, this is the answer that was sent him:

JULY 30, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS,
Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: Your registered letter of the 24th of July, addressed to Senator FORAKER at Washington, has been forwarded here. The Senator is away on his summer vacation, from which he does not expect to return until about the 1st of September. I do not know that anything can be done in the meanwhile. What you have written will be brought to his attention at the first convenient opportunity, for I know he will be glad to hear from you.

Regretting I can not write you more definitely, I am,

Very truly, yours,

——— ———.

It was signed by one of my clerks.

September 1, 1908, Boyd Conyers wrote again, addressing me as follows:

DEAR SIR: Your letter was received August 27—

I want right here, before I read this letter from him, to have the Secretary read the letter I wrote him, which they claim made so much trouble.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary read as follows:

Conyers tried to commit suicide after he found that he had made his statements to a detective, declaring that the other negroes would kill him when it got out. He finally wrote to Senator Foraker and received a reply, a copy of which is annexed. That reply he construed to mean that he should stick to his original story told before the Senate committee at all hazards, and there he stands.

Mr. FORAKER. Will the Secretary kindly read the letter. It says it is attached.

Mr. WARREN. While we are waiting for the Secretary to find the letter, I should like to ask whether there are any papers or exhibits accompanying the message which were not read in full.

Mr. FORAKER. Nothing, as I understood the Secretary. Now let him read the letter.

Mr. WARREN. We want them all, of course.

Mr. FORAKER. We will get them all, of course, now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary read as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON PACIFIC ISLANDS AND PORTO RICO,
Cincinnati, Ohio, August 26, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS,
Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: On my return here I found awaiting me your letter of July 24. I hardly know from what you state just what it is that has transpired, nor do I know just what it is I should do to get the character of information to which you refer. If you will write me again at your convenience, giving me a clearer account, I will be glad to avail myself of it to the extent it may be useful.

I remember you very well as a witness before the committee, and I am sure you did not there testify to anything except only the truth.

Very truly, yours, etc.,

J. B. FORAKER.

Mr. FORAKER. I am still of that opinion. In response to that, he wrote September 1 as follows:

MONROE, GA., September 1, 1908.

Mr. J. B. FORAKER, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR: Your letter was received August 27—

The letter that has just been read—and was glad to hear from you.

Mr. FORAKER, from what I can learn the negro was working under a detective of Roanoke, Va., seeking and trying to find the guilty party that taken part in the Brownsville affray, and he was here five or six weeks and didn't even have any talk with me.

On my return home from Chickamauga I learned he was here to see what he could pick out of me about the Brownsville affray, and as soon as I heard it I decided I would investigate the matter; had him arrested, and he showed me he was here for that purpose. I haven't been bother with him since. As soon as he was turned loose he went off on the first train that left out, and the man he said was coming for me has never come.

The day after the negro left some one called up the high sheriff and asked him what had become of his detective; said he had run him out of town. The sheriff, Mr. E. C. Arnold, said he hadn't run him anywhere; said he must have got scared and left.

Why I wrote you at the time, my family was worrying; they didn't know what the negro would go back and tell. My wife had just gotten out of the bed from a long spell of sickness. I was very weak; and that made me worry; but so far as the Brownsville affair, that didn't worry me, because I knew I was innocent of that; I felt if I would write you and hear from you my people would be better satisfied, because they knew you were our friend and would do all you could for me.

If anything else happens concerning the matter I will let you know at once.

Mr. FORAKER, this is about as plain as I can explain this matter about the detective.

I hope this will find you well and enjoying a good life.

I will close. Hope to hear from you again, because I am always glad to hear from you.

Very respectfully, yours,

BOYD CONYERS.

I did not answer that letter, it seems. It came September 1. I did not hear from him again until October 8. This is a little tedious, but I think it is due to this soldier and due to the truth and due to common decency that this whole story should be told.

MONROE, GA., October 8, 1908.

Mr. J. B. FORAKER.

DEAR SIR: I have been waiting for an answer to the last letter I wrote you—

That was September 1—

but haven't received one; that's why I haven't written to you sooner. I was waiting for a reply from you.

Mr. FORAKER, I have found out Mr. Wallace L. Gray. He has been here himself. He is the captain of the Baldin Detective Company. His real name is Mr. G. W. Baldin, of Roanoke, Va., and arrived here on the 5.30 p. m. train, September 9, and asked for me, who was easy found. I goes up to the sheriff's office that night and talked with him in the presence of the sheriff. The first question he asked me was I in Brownsville, Tex., Monday night, August 13, 1906. I told him I was, and he asked me what had taken place there. I told him shooting occurred that night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, I suppose. Then he said, "Who did the shooting?" I told him I did not know. He asked me where was I at when the shooting taken place. I told him: "On guard and don't know who did the shooting, sir; I wasn't on post. I was asleep when the shooting occurred, but was quickly awakened by the alarm of Private Howard's gun and also the voices in the guardhouse hollering, 'Outside, guards; get your guns.'" Then Mr. Baldin said: "That tale is all right."

Now, this was in the presence of the sheriff, a white man, who does not appear in the record as brought before the Senate this morning, who heard what was said, as I understand it—but I want to ask you a question, Do you know an ex-soldier by the name of Powell? No, sir; I do not know him. He says he knows you—

That is Powell; they have it there—and says he heard you, John Brown, John Hollomon, and ex-soldier Allison, who ran the saloon, make a plot that day before the shooting had taken place to shoot up the town that night, and I told Mr. Baldin that couldn't be true because I was on guard and wasn't allowed to speak to anybody, let alone being in Allison's saloon that day. That morning we were on practice march—

The testimony shows that they did not return from that practice march until almost noon. This man was immediately put on guard duty, and while on guard duty, he was not on post at the time, the firing occurred, but he was asleep in the guardhouse and was awakened. That is testified to by as respectable witnesses as can be found in the whole record, absolutely truthful men; and, let it be remembered, the character of these men is testified to as to truth and veracity, and in all other respects by all the officers of the battalion—to shoot up the town that night. I told Mr. Baldin that couldn't be true, because I was on guard and wasn't allowed to speak to anybody, let alone being in Allison's saloon that day. That morning we were on practice march and I had to go on guard as soon as we returned—

They marched out in the country 6 miles and back again—

He said that part is allright, too, but don't you know that men of B Company did that shooting that night. No, sir; I do not know and furthermore I don't believe the soldiers did it; he said oh! there aint no story about that; we know they did it and know the most of them that did it; I said I am glad you all have been able to find the guilty party; he said now what about the negro Lawson—

That is the detective who makes his mark to a long statement which would do credit to an ex-newspaper man—

I sent down here; what did you tell him?" I said, "Sir, I didn't even have any private talk with Lawson at all." And he said, "Why, Lawson said you did, and taken a drink with him." And I said, "I can prove I didn't talk with him while he was here, and, furthermore, Mr. Baldin, if you take his word, he will have to prove by good authorities that he did talk with me, for I am just as reliable as Lawson, and if you trace our character I am more reliable than he is." Then he said, "I learn before I came here you are a straight and reliable man, and also since I came to Monroe." Then Mr. Baldin volunteered and told me he did not know anything about this Lawson; said his brother sent him to him, and he just taken him and sent him out, and said he had caught him in several lies since he has been out. By the way, just a few days before he came here he sent one of the boys here whom I soldiered with—he is one of C Company; his name is George Gray, private; was discharged when I was; he arrived here on the 11.30 train a. m. I forget the date now, but can get it if we need it. George asked for me when he came, and a little boy showed him where I live. He came to my home, and I prepared dinner for him and treated him nice, and also taken near a half day off from work to carry him around and introduce him to my friends and people and good white friends.

I guess he saw that I was doing so well he wouldn't have anything to say about the Brownsville affair, which he didn't say anything about it. Mr. Baldin talked on a while, and asked me if I had seen any of the discharged soldiers since I returned from Washington. I said I have only seen one, and that was George Gray, and he said he was here looking for his cousin who was here nursing for some white people. Then Mr. Baldin, said Boyd, I sent George here after Lawson came back and made his reports to see if you did tell him anything, and George said you didn't have anything to say about the Brownsville affair; he didn't mention it to you.

Mr. FORAKER, there was another detective here on the 6th of this month, I will write you another letter soon and tell you about him; his name is Mr. S. J. Brown—

I suppose we ought to read it H. J. Brown, in view of the affidavit—

He registered from Atlanta, Ga.
I hope this letter will be some help to you in the case.
I will close for to-night. Hope to receive an early reply from you.
Respectfully, yours,
BOYD CONYERS.

That was on the 12th. I answered that as follows—be it remembered, the witness says that my letters caused this man to be more difficult to get confessions from; I take great pleasure in submitting my letters:

CINCINNATI, OHIO, October 12, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS, Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: I have your letter of October 8, and have read with much interest and appreciation the account of your interviews with the different men who have called upon you. If you will kindly keep me informed, I will be still further obliged.

Very truly, yours, etc.,
J. B. FORAKER.

On October 21 I next heard from him. He wrote on that day as follows:

MONROE, GA., October 21, 1908.

Mr. FORAKER.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 12th of October—

The one I have just read—

MONROE, GA., October 21, 1908.

Mr. FORAKER.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 12th of October was received and read with pleasure and care.

Well, Mr. FORAKER, I will finish my story about the detectives. I am glad I didn't tell you about Mr. Brown at first, because he has made another trip here; his first visit was the 6th of October and the last on the 11th.

Mr. Brown walks in and asks, "Is this Boyd Conyers?" I told him it was, and he said, "You are the man I am here after." I said, "Well, I am here; guess you can get me; I am not gone anywhere;" and he said, "No. I am not after you this time. I want to talk with you and see if you will tell me the same story you have told others about this Brownsville affair." I said, "Sir, I haven't told anybody more than I told in Washington, and that was nothing but the truth." Then he said, "Now, Boyd, I remember that. I am not here to do you any harm. I am here to protect you, and don't you be afraid to tell me the whole story about Brownsville; let me hear from you."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated by the Secretary.

The SECRETARY. A joint resolution (S. R. 74) suspending the commodity clause of the present interstate commerce law.

Mr. KEAN. As the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. ELKINS], the chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, is absent, I ask that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Jersey asks that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FORAKER (reading):

I said, "Mr. Brown, I have told you all I know and that I stated in Washington." He said, "Well, I know you haven't, for you told two men here in this town that you help to do the shooting."

This is Mr. Brown testifying. He appears upon the scene—

I said, "I don't care if one of the white preachers of Monroe told you." I told him that he told a lie. He said, "No; it wasn't any preacher that told me; it was Lawson (the negro detective) said he had witness to prove it," and I said, "Please tell me the witness that Lawson has to prove." "I talked with him," he said, "I don't know the negro, but he said his name is Parker." I said, "Well, if that is his name he is the one that gave Lawson's secret away; hadn't been for him Lawson would 've been here now trying to get a chance to talk with me. I said, "Mr. Brown, Lawson had nothing to do but come up to me and say, 'I want to talk with you' and I would have talked with him, because I am not afraid to talk to no man." He said, "Well, Boyd, we sent Lawson here especially to see you about this Brownsville affair, and he sent us facts that no other man couldn't have found out about you, and it was not any make-up; he got it from you because he couldn't have got it from anybody else but you." I said, "As many papers that are printed in this world nobody had nothing to do but pick up one and read about this Brownsville affair and make up anything they want to about it." Then he said, "Lawson can't neither read or write." Then I said, "There you are. Mr. Brown, it's true, then, that Lawson had to get some one to do his reading and writing. Is that a fact?" and he said, "Yes; I guess he did," and I said, "It happened that he found a man that couldn't keep a secret and that the way it leaked out he had Parker doing his reading and writing, and he told his business before he was ready for it to be told." Mr. Brown said, "That's all right; Lawson is a truthful negro; he has been with the Baldin Detective Company for seventeen years." Then I said, "Mr. Brown, wait just one minute; let me speak one word to you." I said, "Do you know Mr. G. W. Baldin?" He said, "Yes; I know him." I said, "Is he a truthful man?" He said, "Yes; sure he is a truthful man." I said, "He stated before me and Mr. Arnold when he was here—

Mr. Arnold is the sheriff, you will remember—that Lawson hadn't been with him more than two or three weeks, and he didn't know anything about him more than his brother told him. He was sent to him by his brother and he had caught him in several lies." Mr. Brown said: "We won't go any further with that. I want to ask you a few more questions about another party." He said: "Do you know an ex-soldier Powell?"—

I am now commencing to read the extract which I quoted in my opening remarks—

I said: "No, sir; I don't know him."

He said: "Well, he knows you; and said you, John Holloman and John Brown said you all were going to shoot up that town." I said: "I haven't seen that negro; haven't told him anything; furthermore, I was on guard duty that night, and couldn't have gotten off if I wanted to." He said: "Remember you are not the only soldier talking; we have twenty talking, and they are peaching too; as I said, I will protect you. Tell us the story; don't be afraid; we have almost got it like we want it, and remember the Government never gives a thing up until it is finished."

He said: "We have been able to prove that B Company men did the shooting, and what I want you to tell me is just the men that did the shooting; I know you can if you will; we already know three men that did it, but we want the whole gang. The three are you, John Holloman, and John Brown.

He said, "Now, suppose you dream over it to-night and come in the morning and tell me and Mr. Arnold about it; we will see that nobody don't hurt you if you were in it." And I said, "Mr. Brown, what do you want me to do—tell a lie? Pick out this man and that man and say they were in it? It is impossible for me to do that; furthermore, Mr. Brown, if you all have proven that the shooting came from B Company barracks, it is just as impossible for me to know who the men are as it is for you, because I was on guard and you were at home." He said, "Well, we will go in for to-night; come back in the morning and tell me what you have thought about it."

Mr. FORAKER, he told me not to tell anybody he was in town; both of them told me that; we all parted and went home for the night.

The next morning I went to the Walton Hotel to see him; he told me he was fixing to go off on the morning train and asked would I go to the depot with him. I told him I would.

He asked what had I decided about the matter; had I decided to explain the story to him? I told him I had told him all I knew about it, unless I tell him a lie, and I would die before I would do that. He said: "Now is your chance, Boyd, to tell the story. Well, if you won't tell me anything, I will tell you good-bye, but I will return in a few days."

Now this is all for Mr. Brown's first trip. I will now tell you about his return on Sunday, October 11.

He came on the 11.30 train and sent for me to come up to Mr. Arnold's office at once, which I did about the first thing. He said to me, said he had good news for me, and I asked him what was the news. He said he had been to Atlanta and had had a close talk with this ex-soldier Powell; said Powell told him faithful that he was mistaken in my name; said he didn't know Conyers; said the man he had reference to was named Collier instead of Conyers, a fellow in C Company—

You will remember that the Secretary of War, or the President, or somebody else, in his comments that were read to us this morning, said they had some indication that Collier was liable as one of the participators, but it was not satisfactorily shown—and I told Mr. Brown I knew Powell lied if he said he knew me. Then Mr. Brown said, "Mr. Arnold, what did Conyers say when he came to have Lawson arrested?" Mr. Arnold said, "Boyd said he learned there was a negro here, claiming he was a detective, hunting him about the Brownsville affair, and the negro said there would be a white man here after him in a few days." Then Mr. Brown asked Mr. Arnold, "Did Boyd deny what Lawson said he told him?" Mr. Arnold said, "Sure he did; he told Lawson he told a dern lie." Mr. Brown then said, "What about the excursion trips?"

You will remember that in one of the affidavits sent us by the President it is set out that on an excursion, traveling on the train back and forth, this negro Lawson talked with Conyers. I want Senators to observe that there seems to be a white man—the sheriff of that county—present at nearly all these conversations. If the writer of this letter is telling an untruth about it, it will be very easy to disclose that fact; but if the writer of this letter be telling the truth, as I believe he is, it will be very easy to establish something else that will give some people more trouble than they expected to give this man.

Lawson said: You went on an excursion to Gainesville, Ga., with him and told him you help do the shooting. I told him I could prove I hadn't been on an excursion this, neither last year. He asked me this when he was here the first time. I forgot to state it before, and when he was here on the 11th, Mr. Arnold told him he had found out I hadn't been on any excursion at all. Then Mr. Brown said: "Boyd, you are a pretty hard case; we can't get on your track much."

He said: "I want to ask you a few more questions. I want to know, and I want you to tell the truth. Tell me who talked with you in Washington before you went on the stand." I told him no one. "Now," he said, "isn't it true that Mr. FORAKER told you all how to swear before you went in the committee room?" I said: "No, sir. I saw him passing, and some one said 'There goes Senator FORAKER.'" He said: "Who met you at the train when you went to Washington?" I told him no one. Then he wanted to know if I had any letters from Mr. FORAKER. I said: "Sir, I have only one letter from him." Then he asked me if I had it with me. I said: "No, sir; but I can get it as quick as you ever saw anybody get anything if you think it will do you any good." He said: "I will be glad for you to go and get it. I would like to see some of the Senator's writing." I came home and got the letter and showed it to him. He read it and quickly folded it and handed it back to me and said: "There is nothing there to hurt anyone." Then he asked me to give him the name of all the ball players in B Company. He asked me did I have a group of the boys. I told him I did. He told me he would like to see it; for me to go and get it, if it wasn't too much trouble. I told him it wouldn't be any trouble; so I got it and showed it to him. Then he took their names down, right to left, like they were on the picture. Then he began to point out some of the men on the picture to Mr. Arnold—

This sheriff, who was still there—that he thought was implicated in the matter; then he wanted to know if I had any of the rest of the soldiers' pictures; if so, he wanted to see them. I showed him all I had. He kept trying to persuade me to tell him who did the shooting, which was impossible for me to tell him; he also repeats, "There is a lot of them talking now;" said "John Brown has acknowledged that he was in the shooting." I said, "Mr. Brown, if John has been man enough to tell you he was in the shooting, it looks funny he didn't tell you who else was in it." He said, "That's all right; it's all coming out." Then he began to ask me about my family; said it would be bad for me to have to leave a young family and be turned over to the State of Texas. I told him, "Before I would be willing to swear a lie on anybody I would be willing to go to Texas or anywhere else, because the truth stands in its place." He said, "You know if you go to Texas nobody knows the results you will get there. You may never return here any more." I said, "God's will must be done; if it is His will for me to go, I suffer His will may be done."

Well, Mr. FORAKER, this is all I think he had to say in his talk with me.

Now, what I have stated in each letter you can depend on it to be the truth, so help me God. I also hope these letters will help you some in this case when it comes up again. I saw in to-day's Constitution—

I suppose that is the Atlanta Constitution—

where Oscar Reid, a discharged soldier without honor of the Twenty fifth Infantry, was going to get pay for his lost time he has been out, and I feel that we all are entitled to it.

I will close for to-night. Hope to get an early reply. I received the little pamphlet you sent me; was very glad to get it; sure did enjoy reading it.

Respectfully, BOYD CONYERS.

That was something connected with the case, I suppose. I do not remember about it.

I next heard from him November 30, and that is the last time I did hear from him. It is a very short letter, and I ask the indulgence of the Senate that I may put it also in the RECORD.

I now want to read my answer to the letter from him which I have just read:

OCTOBER 23, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS,
Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: I have your letter of October 21. I thank you for taking the trouble to give me in such detail the account of the interviews and conferences you have had with your visitors. I shall look after them at the proper time.

And that promise will be made good—

Hoping you will continue to keep me advised if there should be any further developments, I remain,

Very truly, yours, etc., J. B. FORAKER.

Then I heard from him next on November 30, when he wrote me as follows:

MONROE, GA., November 30, 1908.

Mr. J. B. FORAKER,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR: I had begun to think I wouldn't have to write you any more about the detectives, but I see I will. One visited me at my home Saturday night, November 28.

He is still trying to find out if the negro Lawson had any private conversation with me; he asked me if Lawson did have a talk with me. I told him, "No, sir." He then asked me were I acquainted with Lonza Henon, of Winder, Ga., the negro that runs the eating department there. I told him, "Yes, sir; I know him." He says, "Does he know you?" I said, "Yes, sir; I suppose he does." "Well, Lonza swears he saw you on the excursion to Gainesville and saw you, Lawson, and Joe Blasingame"— talking together going and coming. I have his affidavit in my pocket now, with his name signed to it." I told him I didn't care what he had; I could prove by every person on that train that I didn't go; and I have proved it. The excursion was run on the 15th day of June, and the people he asked that were on the train told him "No; I didn't go;" but his negro he had here went. I went by the depot that morning to see if my mother-in-law went off, and was talking to a lot of the boys and girls. I was in my work clothes and had my dinner with me to go to work. That is what all the people told the detective he asked. Now, Mr. FORAKER, you see by this that my witnesses have condemned both Lawson and Henon, and the white people of this town told me to have a case made against both of them for perjury, and I just told the white people I would just wait a few days on it before I went too far with it. Now, I would like to have your advice about what to do about the matter. I thought it best to ask you. I didn't want to go too far before I notified you, and I learned to-day through some of the people the detective talked with the negro was named Will Lawson. This detective shows his affidavit to Mr. E. C. Arnold, Joe Blasingame, and Lou Henon, the boy that works for Joe Blasingame in a pressing department, and he is also Lonza Henon's brother, from Winder, Ga.

Another one of the gentlemen who figure in that report—

I goes to him in a sly way and asked him did he see the detective; he said "Yes;" and saw the affidavit that his brother signed, but said he didn't believe his brother said it. I asked him in the presence of a reliable colored boy by the name of Joe Smith; he said the man also asked him did he see me on the excursion, and he said "No; he wasn't on it; he was in Elberton, Ga."

The boy then asked me what was the trouble. I told him not anything. I just wanted to get a little business straight. He came to me to-day and wanted to know if there was any way through me that I could help his brother out of it, if there was any trouble for him. I told him I didn't know that there was anything I could do for him, but he had better have his brother come down here and see me at once. He said he would have him here as soon as he could get him. Now, Mr. FORAKER, when he comes I am going to have him sign another affidavit in the presence of the reliable white men; then I think I will have him trapped all right. Now, I want to ask you, if I get him trapped, won't I have the negro Lawson, too; but I will work slow until I hear from you and get your advice. I won't write all that I have to write to-night. The man that was here Saturday night, he is another; Mr. Baldin, Mr. G. W. Baldin's brother. I haven't his address.

I will close for to-night, hoping to receive an early reply. I would like to ask you when does Congress go in session for this season; and do you think any of the soldiers will have to be in Washington on this case. Why I asked you this, Mr. Baldin wanted to know how much expense money I got, and how much they paid me a day, and who sent for me; and I told him D. M. Ransdell, Sergeant-at-Arms United States Senate.

Very truly, yours, BOYD CONYERS.

That letter reached Cincinnati after I had started to Washington, and on December 2 my clerk answered it as follows:

DECEMBER 2, 1908.

Mr. BOYD CONYERS,
Monroe, Ga.

DEAR SIR: I write, under general instructions, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th of November, and to say that Senator Foraker has started for Washington to attend the opening of the session of Congress next Monday, December 7. He expects to return to Ohio within a week or ten days, when your letter will be brought to his attention. I do not feel able to advise you about the matter therein referred to, but I know the Senator will be glad to have you keep him fully informed.

Regretting I can not write you more definitely, I remain,

Very truly, yours, etc.

I never made any answer to him. That is the whole correspondence that has passed between him and me. I submit, Mr. President, that there is nothing in the letter I read that anybody has any right to take any exception to. I submit that this testimony of this poor—I will not say ignorant man, for he is not that—but this ill-informed man, this helpless man, this defenseless man ought to go into this record, and ought to receive that same fair consideration that is to be attached to the statements made by those who were in the employment of the War Department, representing the Government in this species of espionage about which he informs us.

I am not going to argue the merit of his statements as set over against the merit of the statements on the other side, but I shall only call attention to the fact that enough has been shown to make it the imperative duty of the Senate of the United States to adopt either the amendment I have offered or some other amendment similar in character to it, to the end that these men may have a tribunal before which they can go and can be heard.

Mr. President, is there anything more atrocious than the way proceedings have been conducted against these men? This is the sixth time they have been on trial and five times they have been acquitted, in my judgment; and when the investigation of these charges now preferred is completed it will acquit them again, and triumphantly, for I see enough earmarks to justify me in saying that what I have indicated will be the result of such investigation.

Is there anything more atrocious than the conviction of men of crime upon secret ex parte testimony? Is there any occasion for it? What is the necessity for such treatment of these men?

By the testimony of every one of their officers—and no officers in the American Army stand higher than do Major Penrose and his associates of that battalion—these are men of good habits, men of good character, and men of truth and veracity.

They were first found guilty upon the testimony taken by the citizens of Brownsville and Major Blocksom, without having any opportunity to meet their accusers or to cross-examine or to offer testimony in answer.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Montana?

Mr. FORAKER. I do.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. President, I have deferred interrupting the Senator from Ohio, realizing his desire, and very proper desire, to place in the RECORD at the time the correspondence of the Secretary of War is there placed matter germane, relating to the subject; but I feel constrained, now that that has been done, to remind the Senator that this day has been devoted to a special order, and that the matter to which he is addressing himself will come up in due time as a special order on the 16th instant. I do not wish to rise to a question of order, but merely to remind the Senator that the time during which the special order of his day may be executed is fast passing.

Mr. FORAKER. I beg the Senator's pardon, and at the same time I thank him for the indulgence he has shown me. I am glad he has recognized it was such a case that all the time that has been taken should have been taken to put in the RECORD the story of this poor, humble, and, as I believe, absolutely truthful man in opposition to what has been fabricated by a lot of hired detectives, of whom I shall have something more to say at another time.

Now, I only want to add one word, if the Senator from Montana will allow me. I have said this was the sixth time they have undertaken to convict these men of the shooting. It may be they did it; I do not know. There has been no testimony yet offered that satisfies me that they did it. When I say "satisfies me," I do not mean there is no testimony tending to show that these men did this shooting—some of them of that battalion—but what I mean is that the testimony to show that they did not do it is, to my mind, overwhelmingly stronger than that which shows that they did it. But some Senators differ from me about that. I was just saying the first testimony was ex parte.

We did not have to go outside of this Chamber to dispose of it. A mere analysis of it here in debate prompted the President to send Mr. Purdy to Brownsville, and he convicted them again upon testimony taken in the form of affidavits purely ex parte, without their having any chance to be heard.

Then there came the Penrose court-martial, where Major Penrose himself was on trial and the men were not, but where Major Penrose, who was on trial, was acquitted, and the men, who were not on trial, were convicted—convicted until an analysis was made of what was done. Then the claim that they were convicted there appeared so utterly absurd and such an outrage on judicial procedure as to merit only everybody's criticism.

So I might go on. They were convicted again, I was about to say, by the shells and bullets which were subjected to a microscopic inspection. There was conclusive evidence, it was claimed, that these men had done this shooting, and yet, when the testimony was taken and application made of what that showed, the evidence was conclusive just the other way, that they had nothing whatever to do with it, and could not have had.

All that has been gone over. I do not want to go over it, but now, again, after the testimony is all taken, men are hired to pursue these men, to ferret the matter out, if they can, in the way described by this poor, helpless man, by going to him and saying, "This man, that man, and the other man have been making affidavits, and you, too, must make an affidavit; if you will, I will protect you."

Oh, shame upon a Government that will employ all its power, every power that it commands, not for the purpose of the protection of men in their right to be presumed innocent until they are proven guilty, but to prove men, who claim they are innocent, to be guilty of a heinous crime, and to do it behind the door and in the dark.

Mr. President, shooting a man out of the dark and in the back is the most cowardly and indefensible procedure of which I have any conception. But I must not take more time.

I had no idea when I arose to offer my amendment that I would take any time. I did not know then of the President's message. After I reached the Chamber I received a telegram, which is in my desk, stating that a message of this general nature was likely to be sent here this morning. That did not cause me to offer my amendment. I had already brought it here to offer it; in fact, I expected to offer it last week. Neither did it deter me from offering it. And now, Mr. President, let it once and for all be understood that in this whole matter I have no desire and no purpose except only to do my duty as I understand it. I have no embarrassments to work out for anybody as against anybody. I have no feeling of spitefulness or revenge as against anybody in connection with this matter.

All I have known from the beginning has been that here are 167 men, with as good records as any battalion in the American Army, every one of whom says he had nothing whatever to do with it. Until the committee unanimously decided that they need not go further, every one of them who was called before that committee and there examined and cross-examined in the most rigid way, acquitted himself so completely that no man in that committee presumed to say "There is a man as to whom I have a suspicion of guilt." So completely did they acquit themselves that the President of the United States himself sent us the message to which I referred a moment ago, asking us to authorize him by appropriate legislation to reenlist these men. That is all my bill does. Whether his bill or my bill or some other bill shall be adopted, let us not drift into a controversy over inconsequential matters, but let us once and for all do justice to these men by enacting some kind of a law under which they can be heard in their own defense before an independent and a just tribunal, as against such serious charges as we have listened to here this morning, and against such espionage as we are told by the President's message is to be continued pending our action.

I do not object to any fair method being continued to ascertain the truth as to Boyd Conyers or any other soldier of that battalion who may have been guilty of participating in that affray. Let the truth be established; and if convicted, let him suffer the penalty; but if not, let him go acquit. Let us give to the humblest what we would not hesitate to give to the highest—a fair chance to be heard, to present his own defense and to support his defense with appropriate testimony.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message and accompanying papers will lie on the table and be printed.

ADDITIONAL CLERK TO COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Mr. CLAPP submitted the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Affairs be, and it is hereby, authorized to employ an additional clerk, at an annual salary at the rate of $1,440 per annum, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate until otherwise provided for by law.

INDIAN LANDS IN OKLAHOMA.

Mr. CLAPP submitted the following resolution, which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be directed to request the House of Representatives to return to the Senate the bill (H. R. 16743) for the removal of the restrictions on alienation of lands of allottees of the Quapaw Agency, Okla., and the sale of all tribal lands, school, agency, or other buildings on any of the reservations within the jurisdiction of such agency, and for other purposes.

COUNTING OF ELECTORAL VOTES.

Mr. BURROWS submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the two Houses of Congress shall assemble in the Hall of the House of Representatives on Wednesday, the 10th day of February, 1909, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution and laws relating to the election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and the President of the Senate shall be their presiding officer; that two tellers shall be previously appointed on the part of the Senate and two on the part of the House of Representatives, to whom shall be handed as they are opened by the President of the Senate all the certificates and papers purporting to be certificates of the electoral votes, which certificates and papers shall be opened, presented, and acted upon in the alphabetical order of the States, beginning with the letter A, and said tellers, having then read the same in the presence and hearing of the two Houses, shall make a list of the votes as they shall appear from the said certificates; and the votes having been ascertained and counted in the manner according to the rules by law provided, the result of the same shall be delivered to the President of the Senate, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote, which announcement shall be deemed sufficient declaration of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice-President of the United States, and, together with a list of the votes, be entered on the Journals of the two Houses.

IMPROVEMENT OF SIUSLAW RIVER, OREGON.

Mr. FULTON submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, directed to cause such survey and examination to be made at the mouth of the Siuslaw River, in Oregon, as may be necessary in order to determine what project for its improvement can be completed by the expenditure of $100,000, in addition to a like amount to be provided by the residents of that locality.

CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF LINCOLN.

Mr. DICK submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

Whereas the 12th day of February, 1909, is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, a towering figure in history and one of the few truly great men the world has produced; and

Whereas his life and fame are the heritage of all nations, uplifting the lowly and humbling the mighty—proclaiming the brotherhood of man—his example a beacon as generations pass that will burn brighter so long as history endures. Of lowly birth and his youth an unceasing struggle, manhood brought him wisdom, destiny gave him leadership in the greatest crisis of our Nation's history, and death placed him among the immortals; not only a grand and great man, but a good man as well, with wisdom and heart to do the right as God gave him to see the right, with malice toward none, with charity for all, giving his life that government by the people might endure; by his martyrdom unifying a nation for all time—such being the estimate of him by the American people; and

Whereas a free people should honor and revere the memory of their great dead that posterity shall be encouraged to emulate their example, it is fitting that the one hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birthday be specially observed with appropriate ceremonies, not only by the Congress, but also by all the States and municipalities of the United States and by all organized bodies of citizens and the people generally: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That said 12th day of February, 1909, be set apart for a joint session of the two Houses of Congress to be assembled to pay tribute to Abraham Lincoln, the great emancipator; to listen to an appropriate address upon the life, character, genius, patriotism, and public services of the statesman who guided safely the ship of state through its greatest peril; and to otherwise commemorate in fitting manner his invaluable service to this Nation.

Resolved, further, That we recommend that the American people at home and abroad; the States and Territories and the District of Columbia; all municipalities and towns; all organized bodies of citizens, church as well as state; all associations, civil, military, patriotic, fraternal, scientific, and social; labor and trade societies; chambers of commerce and boards of trade, and other civic, commercial, and industrial bodies, and all others, set apart the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln to do reverent honor to his memory.

Resolved further, That we recommend that at all places where people gather for public purposes addresses be made in eulogy of Lincoln; that the emancipation proclamation be read, his Gettysburg speech repeated, and that wherever possible a short history of his life, his Gettysburg address, and suitable excerpts from his addresses and correspondence be printed for circulation in pamphlets, magazines, periodicals, and newspapers.

Resolved further, That inasmuch as his triumph over the adverse circumstances of early years should be an incentive to the youth of the land, we recommend that on this day special and appropriate exercises be held in colleges, universities, academies and schools, and all other seats of learning to teach the lesson of the life and achievements of this great exemplar of our American civilization.

Resolved further, That we recommend action looking to the erection in the city of Washington of a monument which shall be worthy his great fame, his service to humanity and to his country, and fittingly commemorate the grandeur of character, the nobility of life, and the epoch-making career of Abraham Lincoln.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON PACIFIC ISLANDS AND PORTO RICO.

Mr. FORAKER submitted the following resolution, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico be, and it is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer to report such hearings as may be held by it during the second session of the Sixtieth Congress, the expense thereof to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 6145) to refund to the Territory of Hawaii the amount expended in maintaining light-house service on its coasts from the time of the organization of the Territory until said light-house service was taken over by the Federal Government was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

H. R. 21051. An act amending the penal laws of the United States; and

H. R. 21736. An act to provide for holding terms of United States courts at Clarksdale, Miss.

H. R. 23464. An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

CITIZENSHIP OF NAVAL DESERTERS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 5473) to authorize the Secretary of the Navy in certain cases to mitigate or remit the loss of rights of citizenship imposed by law upon deserters from the naval service.

Mr. PERKINS. I move that the Senate disagree to the amendments of the House of Representatives and request a conference with that body upon the bill and amendments, the conferees on the part of the Senate to be appointed by the Vice-President.

The motion was agreed to; and the Vice-President appointed as the conferees on the part of the Senate Mr. PERKINS, Mr. GALLINGER, and Mr. TILLMAN.

HOLIDAY RECESS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Saturday, December 19, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian Monday, January 4, 1909.

CLAIMS OF ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH IN PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico and ordered to be printed:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, December 14, 1908.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report from Mr. Robert Bacon, Assistant Secretary of State, and Maj. Frank McIntyre, U. S. Army, of their mission to Porto Rico, under my oral instructions, to meet with representatives of the insular government of Porto Rico and of the Roman Catholic Church in that island, with a view to reaching some equitable settlement of the questions pending between that church on the one hand and the United States and the people of Porto Rico on the other.

The nature of these questions and the conditions of the controversy at the time of the meeting of the commission at San Juan are fully and clearly stated in the report, as is the basis for an equitable and complete settlement of all the questions in controversy unanimously agreed on by the members of the commission in a memorandum signed on August 12, 1908.

It will be seen that under the terms of this memorandum the United States is to pay to the Roman Catholic Church in Porto Rico the sum of $120,000 in full settlement of all claims of every nature whatsoever relative to the properties claimed by the church which are now in the possession of the United States and which are defined in the report.

The properties specifically in question form part of the land reserved for military purposes in San Juan and are now occupied by United States troops. I am informed that they are well suited to such purposes, and that to provide for the garrison of San Juan elsewhere would require the expenditure of many times the sum involved in the proposed settlement.

This basis of agreement has received my entire approval, and I trust that the Congress will see the great importance of the matter and will, at its present session, pass such legislation as is necessary to give the basis of the agreement effect on the part of the United States.

The legislative assembly of Porto Rico has already, by a joint resolution approved September 16, 1908, ratified the basis of agreement recommended by the commissioners, in so far as it affects that government, and enacted the necessary legislation to make it effective.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the Annual Report of the Secretary of Agriculture, covering the operations of the department for the year 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPHIC UNION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit to the Congress as a matter of public interest a copy of the report of the American delegates to the tenth conference of the International Telegraphic Union, which opened at the city of Lisbon, Portugal, on May 4, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

RIFLE PRACTICE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS, ETC.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War, submitting draft of a bill to promote rifle practice in public schools, colleges, universities, and civilian rifle clubs. I approve the recommendation of the Secretary of War and ask for its favorable consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

MILITARY EDUCATION IN CIVIL INSTITUTIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War, submitting draft of a bill to promote military education in civil institutions of learning in the United States. I approve the recommendation of the Secretary of War and ask for its favorable consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Congress a copy of the report by the register of copyrights of the Library of Congress on the proceedings of the International Congress for the Revision of the Berne Copyright Convention, held at Berlin, Germany, from October 14 to November 14, 1908, which congress he attended as the delegate of the United States.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. President, it was my intention this morning to address the Senate on the subject of postal savings depositories, with particular reference to the bill (S. 6484) to establish postal savings banks for depositing savings at interest with the security of the Government for repayment thereof, and for other purposes, made a special order for this day. At the conclusion of such remarks as I had intended to make it was my intention to move to make the bill the unfinished business; that is, formally to move that the Senate proceed with its consideration.

Numerous Senators have expressed a desire to address themselves to the merits of the bill at an early date, and I think it is due Senators with such disposition to be advised of the hours during which they may be prepared to address the Senate on the subject. I observe that the Senator in charge of the unfinished business is not at present in the Chamber, and I am therefore indisposed to make a motion to displace the existing order, and will, in consequence, reserve my remarks until immediately after the close of the morning business to-morrow. I now give notice that I will follow my observations with a motion that the Senate proceed regularly to the consideration of the postal savings depositories bill.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. CULLOM. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After fourteen minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened and (at 3 o'clock and 14 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 15, 1908, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate Monday, December 14, 1908.

ASSAYER.

Joseph U. Eldredge, jr., of Utah, to be assayer in charge of the assay office of the United States at Salt Lake City, Utah. New office. Created by act of Congress approved May 30, 1908.

CIRCUIT JUDGES FOR HAWAII.

John A. Matthewman, of Hawaii, to be judge of the circuit court of the third circuit of the Territory of Hawaii. A reappointment, his term expiring December 11, 1908.

J. Hardy, of Hawaii, to be judge of the circuit court of the fifth circuit of the Territory of Hawaii. A reappointment, his term expiring December 11, 1908.

Charles F. Parsons, of Hawaii, to be judge of the circuit court of the fourth circuit of the Territory of Hawaii. A reappointment, his term expiring December 11, 1908.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY.

Fred C. Cubberly, of Florida, to be United States attorney for the northern district of Florida, vice William B. Sheppard, resigned.

REGISTERS OF THE LAND OFFICE.

Charles L. Harris, of Billings, Mont., to be register of the land office at Billings, Mont., vice Elmer E. Esselstyn, resigned, and Robert P. Jackson, temporary appointee.

Harry H. Myers, of Brinkley, Ark., to be register of the land office at Little Rock, Ark., to fill vacancy caused by his resignation in October, and vice Lewis E. Eddy, temporary appointee.

Thomas B. Hiskey, of Kansas, to be register of the land office at Colby, Kans., vice John Thomas, resigned.

ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSIONER.

Lieut. Col. Harry F. Hodges, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, for appointment as a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission provided for by act of Congress approved June 28, 1902, entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

To be captains.

First Lieut. Charles L. Fisher, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 8, 1908, vice McAlister, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Charles D. Winn, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Ketcham, promoted.

First Lieut. Frank T. Hines, Coast Artillery Corps, from December 4, 1908, vice Balentine, resigned.

First Lieut. James Totten, Coast Artillery Corps, from December 8, 1908, vice Lamoreux, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. West C. Jacobs, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 8, 1908, vice Fisher, promoted.

Second Lieut. James W. Lyon, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Winn, promoted.

Second Lieut. Harold Geiger, Coast Artillery Corps, from November 8, 1908, vice Tompkins, deceased.

Second Lieut. Rodney H. Smith, Coast Artillery Corps, from December 4, 1908, vice Hines, promoted.

Second Lieut. Albert L. Loustalot, Coast Artillery Corps, from December 8, 1908, vice Totten, promoted.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Lieut. Commander Patrick W. Hourigan to be a commander in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Henry C. Gearing, promoted.

Lieut. Commander William G. Miller to be a commander in the navy from the 20th day of July, 1908, vice Commander Burns T. Walling, promoted.

Ensign William D. Greetham to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the navy from the 30th day of July, 1908, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

Lieut. Commander George W. Kline to be a commander in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Commander Clifford J. Boush, promoted.

Commander James H. Sears to be a captain in the navy from the 3d day of September, 1908, vice Capt. Greenleaf A. Merriam, deceased.

Capt. William P. Potter, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, with Capt. Gottfried Blocklinger, promoted.

Commander Charles C. Rogers to be a captain in the navy from the 30th day of October, 1908, vice Capt. Gottfried Blocklinger, promoted.

Capt. Nathan E. Niles to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 12th day of November, 1908, vice Rear-Admiral James M. Miller, deceased.

Capt. Newton E. Mason, an additional number in grade, to be a rear-admiral in the navy from the 12th day of November, 1908, with Capt. Giles B. Harber, promoted.

Commander John T. Newton to be a captain in the navy from the 12th day of November, 1908, vice Capt. Nathan E. Niles, promoted.

Commander Benjamin Tappan, an additional number in grade, to be a captain in the navy from the 12th day of November, 1908, with Commander John T. Newton, promoted.

Lieut. Commander George R. Evans to be a commander in the navy from the 12th day of November, 1908, vice Commander John T. Newton, promoted.

Lieut. Walter S. Turpin to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 28th day of January, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander William L. Howard, promoted, to correct the date from which Lieutenant-Commander Turpin takes rank as confirmed on January 30, 1908.

Lieut. William S. Whitted to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 30th day of January, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Robert B. Higgins, promoted.

Lieut. Walter J. Manion to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 25th day of February, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Isaac K. Seymour, deceased, to correct the date from which Lieutenant-Commander Manion takes rank as confirmed on April 23, 1908.

Lieut. George E. Gelm to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 17th day of April, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Charles S. Bookwalter, resigned.

Lieut. Frank H. Brumby to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 23d day of April, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander John C. Leonard, promoted.

Lieut. James P. Morton, an additional number in grade, to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 23d day of April, 1908, with Lieut. Frank H. Brumby, promoted.

Lieut. Frank P. Baldwin to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 24th day of April, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander John M. Ellicott, promoted.

Lieut. George L. P. Stone to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 15th day of May, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Charles W. Dyson, promoted.

Lieut. Harris Laning to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Harry George, promoted.

Lieut. Franklin D. Karns to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Frederick L. Chapin, promoted.

Lieut. David W. Todd to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander William C. Herbert, promoted.

Lieut. John V. Klemann to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Alexander S. Halstead, promoted.

Lieut. Henry V. Butler to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Harry A. Field, promoted.

Lieut. Walter R. Gherardi to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Chester M. Knepper, promoted.

Lieut. James J. Raby to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Clarence S. Williams, promoted.

Lieut. Frederic N. Freeman to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Frank K. Hill, promoted.

Lieut. William H. Standley to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Roger Welles, promoted.

Lieut. Kenneth M. Bennett to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander John D. McDonald, promoted.

Lieut. Edward H. Watson to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Hilary P. Jones, promoted.

Lieut. James E. Walker to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander William R. Shoemaker, promoted.

Lieut. Rufus Z. Johnston to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Charles P. Plunkett, promoted.

Lieut. Thomas D. Parker to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 4th day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Volney O. Chase, promoted.

Lieut. Thomas T. Craven to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander George R. Slocum, promoted.

Lieut. Daniel W. Wurtzbaugh, an additional number in grade, to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 19th day of July, 1908, with Lieut. Thomas T. Craven, promoted.

Lieut. Ralph Earle to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 20th day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander William G. Miller, promoted.

Lieut. Gatewood S. Lincoln to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 1st day of August, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander George W. Kline, promoted.

Lieut. Wat T. Cluverius to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 25th day of October, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Harrison A. Bispham, promoted.

First Lieut. Frank C. Lander to be a captain in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Newt H. Hall, promoted.

First Lieut. Eli T. Fryer to be a captain in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. Charles S. Hill, promoted.

First Lieut. Earl H. Ellis to be a captain in the Marine Corps from the 14th day of May, 1908, vice Capt. David D. Porter, appointed assistant adjutant and inspector.

Second Lieut. Samuel W. Bogan to be a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Robert Y. Rhea, promoted.

Second Lieut. Albert E. Randall to be a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps from the 13th day of May, 1908, vice First Lieut. Thomas Holcomb, jr., promoted.

Lieut. Jonas H. Holden to be a lieutenant-commander in the navy from the 11th day of July, 1908, vice Lieut. Commander Patrick W. Hourigan, promoted.

Assistant Paymaster Horace B. Worden to be a passed assistant paymaster in the navy from the 23d day of October, 1908, upon the completion of three years' service in present grade.

Mate William G. Smith, U. S. Navy, retired (died June 9, 1907), to be a mate on the retired list, with the rank and retired pay of the next higher grade, viz, the lowest grade of warrant officers, from the 29th day of June, 1906, to the date of his death, June 9, 1907, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved June 29, 1906.

POSTMASTERS.

ALABAMA.

George R. Lewis to be postmaster at Bessemer, Ala., in place of George R. Lewis. Incumbent's commission expires February 4, 1909.

John X. Thomas to be postmaster at Ensley, Ala., in place of John W. Clayton, resigned.

Henry C. Willis to be postmaster at Alexander City, Ala., in place of Joseph C. Manning. Incumbent's commission expired December 12, 1908.

GEORGIA.

H. B. Lemcke to be postmaster at Darien, Ga., in place of Charles R. Jackson, removed.

Clarence W. Withoft to be postmaster at Fort Valley, Ga., in place of Clarence W. Withoft. Incumbent's commission expires January 13, 1909.

IDAHO.

Nettie B. Carpenter to be postmaster at Grangeville, Idaho, in place of Julia A. Garber. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

ILLINOIS.

Philip H. Baker to be postmaster at Jonesboro, Ill., in place of Philip H. Baker. Incumbent's commission expired December 12, 1908.

IOWA.

Albert R. Kullmer to be postmaster at Dysart, Iowa, in place of Albert R. Kullmer. Incumbent's commission expires January 13, 1909.

MAINE.

George D. Libby to be postmaster at Gardiner, Me., in place of George D. Libby. Incumbent's commission expired December 8, 1908.

MARYLAND.

William Hall Harris to be postmaster at Baltimore, Md., in place of William Hall Harris. Incumbent's commission expires January 10, 1909.

Jesse West to be postmaster at North East, Md., in place of Jesse West. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1908.

MICHIGAN.

Herman A. Wyckoff to be postmaster at Pontiac, Mich., in place of Herman A. Wyckoff. Incumbent's commission expired December 12, 1908.

MINNESOTA.

William B. Anderson to be postmaster at Hopkins, Minn., in place of William B. Anderson. Incumbent's commission expired December 12, 1908.

MISSOURI.

William Bostian to be postmaster at Independence, Mo., in place of William Bostian. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1908.

Solomon R. McKay to be postmaster at Troy, Mo., in place of Solomon R. McKay. Incumbent's commission expires January 14, 1909.

NEBRASKA.

George H. Borden to be postmaster at Beaver Crossing, Nebr. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Frederick W. Richardson to be postmaster at Battle Creek, Nebr. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

NEW MEXICO.

Edward Pennington to be postmaster at Deming, N. Mex., in place of Edward Pennington. Incumbent's commission expired December 12, 1908.

NEW YORK.

Reuben Kline to be postmaster at Port Leyden, N. Y. Office became presidential October 1, 1908.

Charles J. Sweet to be postmaster at Black River, N. Y., in place of Charles J. Sweet. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1908.

Charles M. Waters to be postmaster at Lyons Falls, N. Y. Office became presidential July 1, 1908.

Earl L. Whiting to be postmaster at Delevan, N. Y., in place of Earl L. Whiting. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1908.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Charles Crouse to be postmaster at Wyoming, Pa., in place of Charles Crouse. Incumbent's commission expired February 23, 1907.

William A. Feist to be postmaster at White Haven, Pa., in place of William A. Feist. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

Christian E. Geyer to be postmaster at Catawissa, Pa., in place of Christian E. Geyer. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1908.

Samuel C. Graham to be postmaster at Starjunction, Pa., in place of Martin E. Strawn, resigned.

William Krause to be postmaster at Richland Center, Pa., in place of William Krause. Incumbent's commission expires December 15, 1908.

John Nelson to be postmaster at Leetsdale, Pa., in place of David McC. Woods, resigned.

UTAH.

Johnathan S. Page, jr., to be postmaster at Payson, Utah, in place of Jonathan S. Page, jr. Incumbent's commission expires December 14, 1908.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 14, 1908.

CONSULS-GENERAL.

Hector de Castro, of New York, to be consul-general of the United States of class 5 at Zurich, Switzerland.

Ernest L. Harris, of Illinois, to be consul-general of the United States of class 6 at Smyrna, Turkey.

Paul Nash, of New York, to be consul-general of the United States of class 6 at Budapest, Hungary.

Hunter Sharp, of North Carolina, to be consul-general of the United States of class 4 at Moscow, Russia.

Robert P. Skinner, of Ohio, to be consul-general of the United States of class 2 at Hamburg, Germany.

CONSULS.

George A. Bucklin, jr., of Oklahoma, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at San Luis Potosi, Mexico.

William Bardel, of New York, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rheims, France.

Robert S. S. Burgh, of North Dakota, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Belgrade, Servia.

Wallace C. Bond, of Wyoming, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Karachi, India.

Chapman Coleman, of Kentucky, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rome, Italy.

William Coffin, of Kentucky, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Tripoli, Tripoli.

Hernando de Soto, of California, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Riga, Russia.

Harry P. Dill, of Maine, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Orillia, Ontario, Canada.

John Fowler, of Massachusetts, to be consul of the United States of class 4 of Chefoo, China.

Arthur Garrels, of Missouri, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Zanzibar, Zanzibar.

Edwin N. Gunsaulus, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States of class 3 at Johannesburg, Transvaal.

Michael J. Hendrick, of New York, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada.

Arminius T. Haeberle, of Missouri, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Manzanillo, Mexico.

George N. Ifft, of Idaho, to be consul of the United States of class 5 at Warsaw, Russia.

Joseph E. Haven, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Roubaix, France.

Alexander Heingartner, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Batum, Russia.

John F. Jewell, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Melbourne, Australia.

Douglas Jenkins, of South Carolina, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at St. Pierre, St. Pierre Island.

Jesse B. Jackson, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Aleppo, Turkey.

John E. Kehl, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Will L. Lowrie, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 8 at Erfurt, Germany.

Alphonse J. Lespinasse, of New York, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Frontera, Mexico.

William W. Masterson, of Kentucky, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Harput, Turkey.

Chester W. Martin, of Michigan, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Barbados, West Indies.

Robert E. Mansfield, of Indiana, to be consul of the United States of class 4 at St. Gall, Switzerland.

Samuel E. Magill, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Guadalajara, Mexico.

Samuel C. Reat, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Port Louis, Mauritius.

James W. Ragsdale, of California, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at St. Petersburg, Russia.

John H. Snodgrass, of West Virginia, to be consul of the United States of class 3 at Kobe, Japan.

Nathaniel B. Stewart, of Georgia, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Madras, India.

Clarence Rice Slocum, of New York, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Fiume, Hungary.

Ralph J. Totten, of Tennessee, to be consul of the United States of class 9 at Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic.

William C. Teichmann, of Missouri, to be consul of the United States of class 7 at Colombo, Ceylon.

Ernest A. Wakefield, of Maine, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Rangoon, India.

Evan E. Young, of South Dakota, to be consul of the United States of class 6 at Saloniki, Turkey.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

First Lieut. Francis Adelbert Levis to be captain.

Second Lieut. Benjamin Little Brockway to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. John Boedeker to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. Harold Dale Hinckley to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. Charles Frederic Howell to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. William Henry Munter to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. John Lovejoy Maher, to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. William Ambrose O'Malley to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. Henry William Pope to be first lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Wales Alfred Benham to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Joseph Tillotson Drake to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. John Jenkins Hutson to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Raymond Lockwood Jack to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Chester Hardy Jones to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. John Farrell McGourty to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Fred Arthur Nichols to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Philip Francis Roach to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Thomas Andrew Shanley to be second lieutenant.

Third Lieut. Charles Frederic Seiter to be second lieutenant.

First Lieut. of Engineers Frederick Elias Owen to be senior engineer.

Second Lieut. of Engineers John Irvin Bryan to be first lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Clarence James Curtiss to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers John Thomas Carr to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Webb Cudworth Maglathlin to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Whitney Matthews Prall to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Albert Frank Patterson to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Third Lieut. of Engineers Frederick Harvey Young to be second lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Frank Everett Bagger, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Alvan Hovey Bixby, of Massachusetts, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Martin Augustus Doyle, of Virginia, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Philip Bently Eaton, of Connecticut, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Norman Brierley Hall, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Sydney Baxter Orne, of Maine, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Hugh Burton Robinson, of New York, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet Engineer Thomas Homer Yeager, of Virginia, to be third lieutenant of engineers.

Cadet James Pine, of New York, to be a third lieutenant.

Cadet Michael John Ryan, of Colorado, to be a third lieutenant.

Cadet Edward Joseph Donohue, of New York, to be a third lieutenant.

Cadet Warner Kieth Thompson, of Iowa, to be a third lieutenant.

Cadet Joseph Raoul Besse, of North Dakota, to be a third lieutenant.

Cadet William Francis Towle, of Massachusetts, to be a third lieutenant.

PUBLIC HEALTH AND MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Asst. Surg. George L. Collins to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Harvey G. Ebert to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Herbert M. Manning to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Norman Roberts to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Ernest A. Sweet to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Robert D. Spratt to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Frederick C. Smith to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. Thomas W. Salmon to be passed assistant surgeon.
Asst. Surg. William M. Wightman to be passed assistant surgeon.
Randolph M. Grimm, of Virginia, to be assistant surgeon.
Paul Preble, of Maine, to be assistant surgeon.
Joseph R. Ridlon, of Maine, to be assistant surgeon.

SECOND ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Joseph Stewart, of Missouri, to be Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

John R. Willis, of Alaska, to be collector of customs for the district of Alaska.
Malcolm J. McLeod, of Michigan, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of Michigan.
Sherman T. Newton, of New Hampshire, to be collector of customs for the district of Portsmouth, in the State of New Hampshire.

SURVEYOR OF CUSTOMS.

J. Frank Taylor, of Kentucky, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Louisville, Ky.

SECRETARY OF EMBASSY.

Lewis Einstein, of New York, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Constantinople, Turkey.

SECOND SECRETARY OF EMBASSY.

William Blumenthal, of New York, to be second secretary of the embassy of the United States at Constantinople, Turkey.

SECOND SECRETARY OF LEGATION.

G. Cornell Tarler, of New York, to be second secretary of the legation of the United States at Habana, Cuba.

REGISTERS OF LAND OFFICES.

Nathan H. Alexander, of Montgomery, Ala., to be register of the land office at Montgomery, Ala.
Robert N. Dunn, of Idaho, to be register of the land office at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

Capt. Joseph T. Davidson, quartermaster, to be quartermaster with the rank of major from April 25, 1908, vice Crabbs, retired from active service.

MEDICAL CORPS.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Edward Champe Carter, Medical Corps, from April 23, 1908, vice Crampton, promoted.
Maj. William Stephenson, Medical Corps, from May 1, 1908, vice Powell, retired from active service.

To be majors.

Capt. James R. Church, Medical Corps, from May 1, 1908, vice Stephenson, promoted.
Capt. Joseph H. Ford, Medical Corps, from May 20, 1908, vice Hallock, retired from active service.
Capt. Percy M. Ashburn, Medical Corps, from June 24, 1908, vice Kieffer, retired from active service.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. Smith S. Leach, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Sears, retired from active service.
Lieut. Col. Dan C. Kingman, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Marshall, appointed Chief of Engineers.
Lieut. Col. William M. Black, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Symons, retired from active service.
Lieut. Col. Walter L. Fisk, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Hoxie, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. William C. Langfitt, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Leach, promoted.
Maj. James C. Sanford, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Kingman, promoted.
Maj. Hiram M. Chittenden, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Black, promoted.
Maj. Graham D. Fitch, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Fisk, promoted.

To be majors.

Capt. Charles W. Kutz, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Langfitt, promoted.
Capt. Meriwether L. Walker, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Sanford, promoted.
Capt. Robert R. Raymond, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Chittenden, promoted.
Capt. William B. Ladue, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Fitch, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. George R. Spalding, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Kutz, promoted.
First Lieut. Elliott J. Dent, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Walker, promoted.
First Lieut. William G. Caples, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Raymond, promoted.
First Lieut. Henry C. Jewett, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Ladue, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Roger G. Powell, Corps of Engineers, from June 2, 1908, vice Spalding, promoted.
Second Lieut. John N. Hodges, Corps of Engineers, from July 6, 1908, vice Dent, promoted.
Second Lieut. Arthur R. Ehrnbeck, Corps of Engineers, from July 28, 1908, vice Caples, promoted.
Second Lieut. Harold S. Hetrick, Corps of Engineers, from August 7, 1908, vice Jewett, promoted.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

Capt. Edward P. O'Hern, Ordnance Department, to be major from October 31, 1908, vice Fuller, retired from active service.

CHAPLAINS.

Chaplain Halsey C. Gavitt, First Cavalry, to be chaplain with the rank of major from October 27, 1908.
Chaplain Henry A. Brown, Corps of Engineers, to be chaplain with the rank of major from November 12, 1908.

CAVALRY ARM.

Lieut. Col. James B. Hickey, unassigned, to be colonel from November 15, 1908, vice Godwin, Fourteenth Cavalry, retired from active service.
Maj. William D. Beach, Fifteenth Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel from November 15, 1908, vice Taylor, Fourth Cavalry, detailed as adjutant-general.
Capt. William F. Flynn, Eighth Cavalry, to be major from November 15, 1908, vice Beach, Fifteenth Cavalry, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. Alvan C. Gillem, Fifth Cavalry, from September 21, 1908, vice Heidt, Eleventh Cavalry, retired from active service.
First Lieut. William B. Cowin, Third Cavalry, from November 15, 1908, vice Flynn, Eighth Cavalry, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Sidney D. Maize, Third Cavalry, from May 18, 1908, vice Lusk, Twelfth Cavalry, retired from active service.
Second Lieut. William S. Barriger, Fifteenth Cavalry, from July 1, 1908, vice Jordan, Eighth Cavalry, detailed in the Ordnance Department.
Second Lieut. Ralph M. Parker, Eleventh Cavalry, from July 30, 1908, vice Dixon, Fifth Cavalry, detailed in the Signal Corps.
Second Lieut. John H. Howard, Ninth Cavalry, from August 2, 1908, vice Mangum, Eighth Cavalry, retired from active service.
Second Lieut. John K. Hume, Fourteenth Cavalry, from September 21, 1908, vice Gillem, Fifth Cavalry, promoted.
Second Lieut. Matt C. Bristol, Thirteenth Cavalry, from November 15, 1908, vice Cowin, Third Cavalry, promoted.

FIELD ARTILLERY ARM.

First Lieut. Morris E. Locke, First Field Artillery, to be captain from August 25, 1908, vice Overton, Third Field Artillery, retired from active service.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Fred T. Cruse, Third Field Artillery, from July 1, 1908, vice Kean, First Field Artillery, detailed in the Ordnance Department.
Second Lieut. James P. Marley, First Field Artillery, from July 20, 1908, vice Roemer, Sixth Field Artillery, deceased.
Second Lieut. Waldo C. Potter, Fifth Field Artillery, from August 25, 1908, vice Locke, First Field Artillery, promoted.

Second Lieut. Harry Pfeil, Fifth Field Artillery, from September 17, 1908, vice Selfridge, First Field Artillery, deceased.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. George L. Anderson, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Cummins, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. William H. Coffin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Homer, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Albert Todd, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Stewart, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Charles L. Phillips, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Woodward, detailed as inspector-general.

Maj. Charles J. Bailey, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Coffin, promoted.

Maj. Clarence P. Townsley, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Todd, promoted.

To be majors.

Capt. William C. Davis, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 10, 1908, vice Phillips, promoted.

Capt. Frank G. Mauldin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Bailey, promoted.

Capt. Daniel W. Ketcham, Coast Artillery Corps, from October 10, 1908, vice Townsley, promoted.

To be captains.

First Lieut. James A. Thomas, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 13, 1908, vice Marshall, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. John C. Ohnstad, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Mauldin, promoted.

First Lieut. Clarence M. Condon, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 21, 1908, vice Macon, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Curtis G. Rorebeck, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 28, 1908, vice Vance, retired from active service.

First Lieut. James D. Watson, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 29, 1908, vice Applewhite, retired from active service.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. John E. Townes, jr., Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Gatewood, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. Robert E. Vose, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Wilhelm, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. Dean Hall, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 1, 1908, vice Mahaffey, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. John S. Williams, Coast Artillery Corps, from July 13, 1908, vice Thomas, promoted.

Second Lieut. George Ruhlen, jr., Coast Artillery Corps, from July 27, 1908, vice Scott, resigned.

Second Lieut. John E. Mort, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 1, 1908, vice Ohnstad, promoted.

Second Lieut. Junnius Pierce, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 21, 1908, vice Condon, promoted.

Second Lieut. Henry W. T. Eglin, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 28, 1908, vice Rorebeck, promoted.

Second Lieut. Halvor G. Coulter, Coast Artillery Corps, from September 29, 1908, vice Watson, promoted.

INFANTRY ARM.

To be colonels.

Lieut. Col. William H. C. Bowen, Eighteenth Infantry, from July 1, 1908, vice Allen, Twelfth Infantry, retired from active service.

Lieut. Col. Henry E. Robinson (since retired from active service), detailed adjutant-general, from October 24, 1908, vice Smith, Eighth Infantry, appointed brigadier-general.

Lieut. Col. Charles W. Mason, Twenty-ninth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Robinson, unassigned, retired from active service.

To be lieutenant-colonels.

Maj. Alexis R. Paxton, Thirteenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Augur, Twenty-fourth Infantry, deceased.

Maj. Zerah W. Torrey, detailed inspector-general, from July 1, 1908, vice Bowen, Eighteenth Infantry, promoted.

Maj. James B. Jackson, Eleventh Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice Hardin, Twenty-sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

Maj. Reuben B. Turner, Eighth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Mason, Twenty-ninth Infantry, promoted.

Maj. Daniel A. Frederick, Twenty-second Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Jones, Nineteenth Infantry, detailed as adjutant-general.

To be majors.

Capt. Beaumont B. Buck, Sixteenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Paxton, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Capt. William F. Martin, Fifth Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Purssell, Eighteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Capt. Evan M. Johnson, jr., Eighth Infantry, from June 3, 1908, vice Bundy, Sixth Infantry, detailed as inspector-general.

Capt. Frank McIntyre (major, Bureau of Insular Affairs), from July 18, 1908, vice Jackson, Eleventh Infantry, promoted.

Capt. David J. Baker, jr., Ninth Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice McIntyre, detailed in the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

Capt. Benjamin A. Poore, Sixth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Frederick, Twenty-second Infantry, promoted.

Capt. James H. McRae, Third Infantry, from October 31, 1908, vice Leonhaeuser, Sixteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

To be captains.

First Lieut. Ernest E. Haskell, Twenty-ninth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Laws, Twenty-fourth Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Jack Hayes, Sixteenth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Stone, Twenty-second Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. William H. Waldron, detailed in the Signal Corps, from April 3, 1908, vice Ford, Fifth Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. Joseph K. Partello, Fifth Infantry, from April 24, 1908, vice Parmerter, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Leon L. Roach, Sixteenth Infantry, from May 9, 1908, vice Smiley, Fifteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Horace P. Hobbs, Seventeenth Infantry, from May 15, 1908, vice Devore, Twenty-third Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Louis J. Van Schaick, Fourth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Buck, Sixteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. George S. Tiffany, Twenty-first Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Martin, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Edgar A. Myer, Eleventh Infantry, from July 3, 1908, vice Lawton, Nineteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Arthur M. Shipp, Twentieth Infantry, from July 3, 1908, vice Johnson, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Joseph W. Beacham, jr., Twenty-seventh Infantry, from July 18, 1908, vice Baker, Ninth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Francis J. McConnell, Seventeenth Infantry, from July 24, 1908, vice Shelton, Eleventh Infantry, detailed in the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

First Lieut. Richard P. Rifenberick, jr., Twenty-ninth Infantry, from September 8, 1908, vice Moore, Fifteenth Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Graham L. Johnson, Eleventh Infantry, from September 16, 1908, vice Walton, Sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Charles E. Hay, jr., Twenty-fourth Infantry, from October 2, 1908, vice Chiles, Eleventh Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Robert H. Wescott, Sixteenth Infantry, from October 19, 1908, vice Parker, Twenty-fourth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. George W. Wallace, Twentieth Infantry, from October 28, 1908, vice Poore, Sixth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Paul Hurst, Third Infantry, from October 31, 1908, vice McRae, Third Infantry, promoted.

To be first lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Gilbert H. Stewart, detailed first lieutenant in the Ordnance Department, from November 24, 1907, vice Mullen, Twenty-first Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Edward J. Moran, Twenty-seventh Infantry, from November 24, 1907, vice Gibert, detailed in the Ordnance Department.

Second Lieut. John R. McGinness, Sixth Infantry, from December 5, 1907, vice Wilson, Twenty-second Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. Henry M. Nelly, Twentieth Infantry, from December 11, 1907, vice De Funiak, Eleventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Frederick F. Black, Tenth Infantry, from December 23, 1907, vice Armstrong, Sixth Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. James M. Hobson, jr., Twenty-seventh Infantry, from December 23, 1907, vice McCoy, Twenty-seventh Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. David H. Bower, Twelfth Infantry, from December 28, 1907, vice Townsend, Twenty-third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Hiram M. Cooper, Tenth Infantry, from January 1, 1908, vice Brewer, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Benjamin F. Miller, Twenty-seventh Infantry, from January 27, 1908, vice Parsons, Twentieth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Louis Soléliac, Sixteenth Infantry, from February 13, 1908, vice Ball, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles M. Blackford, Sixth Infantry, from March 5, 1908, vice Smith, Eighteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Walter O. Boswell, Sixteenth Infantry, from March 8, 1908, vice Doster, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Deshler Whiting, Ninth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Price, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Gulielmus V. Heidt, Sixth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Warfield, Thirtieth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Samuel J. Sutherland, Thirteenth Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice McCaskey, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edmund B. Iglehart, Third Infantry, from March 14, 1908, vice Lang, Fifteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Emory S. Adams, Fourteenth Infantry, from March 15, 1908, vice Dockery, Third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Ralph W. Drury, Ninth Infantry, from March 16, 1908, vice Thomas, Seventeenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. John C. Fairfax, Twenty-first Infantry, from March 18, 1908, vice Elliott, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Fred C. Miller, Twenty-third Infantry, from March 24, 1908, vice Freeman, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles L. Mitchell, Twenty-fourth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Hunt, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Alfred Brandt, Twenty-fifth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Haskell, Twenty-ninth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Robert John West, Twenty-sixth Infantry, from April 3, 1908, vice Hayes, Sixteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Seeley A. Wallen, Twenty-fifth Infantry, from April 15, 1908, vice Lewis, Eighteenth Infantry, detailed in the Signal Corps.

Second Lieut. Archibald G. Hutchinson, Third Infantry, from April 24, 1908, vice Partello, Fifth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Odiorne H. Sampson, Second Infantry, from May 15, 1908, vice Hobbs, Seventeenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles G. Sturtevant, Ninth Infantry, from June 5, 1908, vice Smith, Sixteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Albert Hardman, Twelfth Infantry, from June 7, 1908, vice Vredenburgh, Eleventh Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. William E. Holliday, Seventeenth Infantry, from June 25, 1908, vice Van Schaick, Fourth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Frank B. Kobes, Fourteenth Infantry, from June 30, 1908, vice Tiffany, Twenty-first Infantry, promoted.

Retired, with the rank of brigadier-general.

Col. James B. Hickey, cavalry, unassigned, to be placed on the retired list of the army, with the rank of brigadier-general from the date on which he shall be retired from active service.

Col. Edward A. Godwin, retired, with rank from November 15, 1908.

Retired, with the rank of captain.

First Lieut. Samuel T. Weirick, retired, with rank from June 18, 1908.

First Lieut. James Reagles, retired, with rank from September 12, 1908.

MEDICAL CORPS.

Maj. Henry P. Birmingham, Medical Corps, to be lieutenant-colonel from April 23, 1908, vice Torney, promoted.

NOTE.—The above-named officer was nominated to the Senate on May 18, 1908, and confirmed on May 21, 1908, for promotion to a vacancy created on May 1, 1908, by the retirement of Lieut. Col. Junius L. Powell, Medical Corps, but by reason of the failure of two of his seniors to pass satisfactory examinations for promotion Major Birmingham became entitled to promotion from April 23, 1908.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

GENERAL OFFICER.

Col. Frederick A. Smith, Eighth Infantry, to be brigadier-general from October 24, 1908, vice Reade, retired from active service.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

Col. William L. Marshall, Corps of Engineers, to be Chief of Engineers, with the rank of brigadier-general from July 2, 1908, vice Mackenzie, retired from active service.

REAPPOINTMENTS IN THE PORTO RICO PROVISIONAL REGIMENT.

To be captains.

Capt. Stewart McC. Decker, with rank from July 1, 1904.
Capt. Frank L. Graham, with rank from July 2, 1904.
Capt. John M. Field, with rank from July 3, 1904.
Capt. Edwin J. Griffith, with rank from July 4, 1904.
Capt. Ralph E. Gambell, with rank from July 5, 1904.
Capt. Miles K. Taulbee, with rank from July 6, 1904.
Capt. Orval P. Townshend, with rank from July 7, 1904.
Capt. Laurance Angel, with rank from November 20, 1906.
Capt. Frank C. Wood, with rank from November 21, 1906.
Capt. Emil J. Huebscher, with rank from November 22, 1906.
Capt. William S. Woodruff, with rank from November 23, 1906.

To be first lieutenants.

First Lieut. Abram I. Miller, with rank from July 1, 1904.

First Lieut. Samuel S. Bryant, with rank from November 30, 1904.

First Lieut. William H. Armstrong, with rank from December 1, 1904.

First Lieut. Henry C. Rexach, with rank from April 1, 1905.

First Lieut. Pedro J. Parra, with rank from February 23, 1906.

First Lieut. Teofio Marxuach, with rank from November 20, 1906.

First Lieut. Eduardo Iriarte, with rank from November 21, 1906.

First Lieut. Jaime Nadal, with rank from November 22, 1906.

First Lieut. Eugenio C. de Hostos, with rank from November 23, 1906.

First Lieut. Felix Emmanuelli, with rank from August 25, 1907.

To be second lieutenants.

Second Lieut. Pascual Lopez, with rank from March 3, 1905.

Second Lieut. Louis S. Emmanuelli, with rank from March 4, 1905.

Second Lieut. Daniel Rodriguez, with rank from January 17, 1906.

INFANTRY ARM.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from August 29, 1908.

Corpl. Roy Walter Winton, Company H, Twenty-sixth Infantry.

Sergt. Frederick Caldwell Phelps, Sixth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Q. M. Sergt. James Luke Frink, Troop H, Thirteenth Cavalry.

Sergt. John Burges Johnson, Company B, Hospital Corps.

Q. M. Sergt. Edmund Russell Andrews, One hundred and eighteenth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Master Gunner Spencer Montgomery Smith, Coast Artillery Corps.

Sergt. Joseph Albert Rogers, Company G, Ninth Infantry.

Sergt. Walter Richard Taliaferro, One hundred and tenth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

Squadron Sergt. Maj. Henry John Damm, Third Cavalry.

Master Gunner Max Robert Wainer, Coast Artillery Corps.

Sergt. Emmett Wilbur Smith, Company I, Twenty-eight Infantry.

Sergt. Charles Thorpe Griffith, Troop H, Thirteenth Cavalry.

MEDICAL CORPS.

First Lieut. James Reagles, Medical Reserve Corps (since retired from active service), to be first lieutenant from September 9, 1908, vice Jean, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Francis A. Halliday, Medical Reserve Corps (since retired from active service), to be first lieutenant from September 9, 1908, vice Kirby-Smith, resigned.

First Lieut. William L. Hart, Medical Reserve Corps, to be first lieutenant from September 15, 1908, vice Chidester, resigned.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from June 13, 1908.

John Raymond Barber, of Oregon, vice Godfrey, deceased.

Joseph Arliss Worthington, of Arkansas, vice Newgarden, promoted.

Mahlon Ashford, of the District of Columbia, vice Williamson, resigned.

Edward Godfrey Huber, of Missouri, vice Edwards, resigned.

John Sioussa Lambie, jr., of Pennsylvania, vice Reilly, retired from active service.

Arthur Newman Tasker, of the District of Columbia, vice Straub, promoted.

Howard McCrum Snyder, of Wyoming, vice Stark, promoted.

Calvin Duvall Cowles, jr., at large, vice Lynch, promoted.

Garfield Lesley McKinney, of Pennsylvania, vice Kulp, promoted.

Hiram Alfred Phillips, of Kentucky, vice Munson, promoted.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from June 16, 1908.

Contract Surg. Samuel T. Weirick (since retired from active service), vice Roberts, retired from active service.

MEDICAL RESERVE CORPS.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from July 5, 1908.

Orlando Wood Sherwin, of Vermont.
Robert F. Weir, of New York.
Theodore Andrews McGraw, of Michigan.
Harry C. Yarrow, of the District of Columbia.
Walter S. Thorne, of California.
Frank Pierce Foster, of New York.
Edmond Souchon, of Louisiana.
Louis Favrot Reynaud, of Louisiana.
Reginald Heber Fitz, of Massachusetts.
Henry O. Walker, of Michigan.
Joseph D. Bryant, of New York.
John Allan Wyeth, of New York.
Francis Parker Kinnicutt, of New York.
James Cornelius Wilson, of Pennsylvania.
A. Alexander Smith, of New York.
Virgil Pendleton Gibney, of New York.
Frederick Cheever Shattuck, of Massachusetts.
Charles Beylard G. de Nancrede, of Michigan.
J. Henry Carstens, of Michigan.
Thomas Waterman Huntington, of California.
William Tillinghast Bull, of New York.
Frederic Sheppard Dennis, of New York.
J. William White, of Pennsylvania.
Myles Standish, of Massachusetts.
Victor Clarence Vaughan, of Michigan.
Robert Abbe, of New York.
Sanger Brown, of Illinois.
Roswell Park, of New York.
William Stewart Halsted, of Maryland.
George Henry Simmons, of Illinois.
William Thomas Councilman, of Massachusetts.
Frank Billings, of Illinois.
Alvah Hunt Doty, of New York.
Harry Mitchell Sherman, of California.
Samuel Jason Mixter, of Massachusetts.
Richard Hickman Harte, of Pennsylvania.
William M. Conant, of Massachusetts.
Carl Beck, of New York.
John H. Musser, of Pennsylvania.
Charles Sumner Bacon, of Illinois.
William Gilman Thompson, of New York.
Robert Tuttle Morris, of New York.
Harvey Gilmer Mudd, of Missouri.
John Benjamin Murphy, of Illinois.
Andrew J. McCosh, of New York.
John C. Munro, of Massachusetts.
Thomas Darlington, of New York.
George Edmund de Schweinitz, of Pennsylvania.
Paul Emile Archinard, of Louisiana.
Theobald Smith, of Massachusetts.
Edward Martin, of Pennsylvania.
Samuel Treat Armstrong, of New York.
Alexander Crever Abbott, of Maryland.
Samuel Lloyd, of New York.
Charles Locke Scudder, of Massachusetts.
Henry Baird Favill, of Illinois.
Rudolph Matas, of Louisiana.
Barton Cooke Hirst, of Pennsylvania.
Arthur D. Bevan, of Illinois.
Charles Williamson Richardson, of the District of Columbia.
Alexander Lambert, of New York.
William Bradley Coley, of New York.
Charles Bingham Penrose, of Pennsylvania.
Angus McLean, of Michigan.
Malcolm La Salle Harris, of Illinois.
Hobart Amory Hare, of Pennsylvania.
George David Stewart, of New York.
Simon Flexner, of New York.
John Miller Turpin Finney, of Maryland.
James G. Mumford, of Massachusetts.
Franklin Greene Balch, of Massachusetts.
William Sydney Thayer, of Maryland.
George W. Crile, of Ohio.
John Chalmers Da Costa, of Pennsylvania.
Emmet Rixford, of California.
Robert Grier Le Conte, of Pennsylvania.
Charles Gabriel Levison, of California.
Emil Otto Jellinek, of California.
Isadore Dyer, of Louisiana.
John Bapst Blake, of Massachusetts.
William Fitch Cheney, of California.
Lewis Atterbury Conner, of New York.
Farrar Cobb, of Massachusetts.
John G. Clark, of Pennsylvania.
Joseph Colt Bloodgood, of Maryland.
Herbert C. Moffitt, of California.
William Edward Schroeder, of Illinois.
Albert John Ochsner, of Illinois.
Albert Edward Halstead, of Illinois.
Richard Clarke Cabot, of Massachusetts.
Alfred Stengel, of Pennsylvania.
Wallace Irving Terry, of California.
William Henry Haskin, of New York.
Harvey Cushing, of Maryland.
David Linn Edsall, of Pennsylvania.
John Wilson Shiels, of California.
John Taylor Bottomley, of Massachusetts.
Frederic A. Washburn, of Massachusetts.
Charles Louis Mix, of Illinois.
Charles Harrison Frazier, of Pennsylvania.
John Heysham Gibbon, of Pennsylvania.
James Farnandis Mitchell, of the District of Columbia.
John Joseph Archinard, of Louisiana.
Walter Clarke Howe, of Massachusetts.
Bertram Francis Alden, of California.
Albert Joshua Houston, of California.
William Pepper, of Pennsylvania.
Francis Denison Patterson, of Pennsylvania.
David Cheever, of Massachusetts.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from July 7, 1908.

Contract Surg. William F. de Niedman, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Leonard Knight Graves, of New York.
Contract Surg. Ira Christopher Brown, of New York.
Contract Surg. S. Chase de Krafft, of Maryland.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hadra, of Texas.
Contract Surg. John Robert Hereford, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Albert H. Eber, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Isaac Williams Brewer, of New York.
Contract Surg. Joseph Lipscomb Sanford, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. Charles Henry Stearns, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. George Sellers Wallace, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. George Henry Richardson, of California.
Contract Surg. James K. Stockard, of North Carolina.
Contract Surg. Frank E. Artaud, of Louisiana.
Contract Surg. Waller Holladay Dade, of Kentucky.,
Contract Surg. William H. Tukey, of Maine.
Contract Surg. Wilson Murray, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Clark Ingersoll Wertenbaker, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Elmer Seth Tenney, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. James Stewart Kennedy, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Walter Whitney, of Georgia.
Contract Surg. Frederick Morgan Barney, of New York.
Contract Surg. Albert Leonard Miller, of Wisconsin.
Contract Surg. J. Marchal Wheate, of Idaho.
Contract Surg. Harold Leroy Coffin, of Washington.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hessler Sparrenberger, of New Jersey.
Contract Surg. Henry W. Eliot, of Connecticut.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion McCallum, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. George Washington Daywalt, of California.
Contract Surg. Thomas W. Jackson, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. William O. Cutliffe, of New York.
Contract Surg. Michael Edward Hughes, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Donald Paul McCord, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Henry du Rest Phelan, of California.
Contract Surg. Luke Baker Peck, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. James Botterell Pascoe, at large.
Contract Surg. Thomas S. Lowe, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Ernest Kinloch Johnstone, of California.
Contract Surg. Julius Cæsar Le Hardy, of Georgia.
Contract Surg. Arthur Richard Jarrett, of New York.
Contract Surg. John Patrick Kelly, of Florida.
Contract Surg. Charles Everett MacDonald, of New York.
Contract Surg. James B. Ferguson, of Minnesota.
Contract Surg. Wallace Edgar Sabin, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Jesse P. Truax, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. J. Samuel White, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Thomas Gabriel Holmes, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Victor Egbert Watkins, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. Herbert Ira Harris, of New York.
Contract Surg. William Robert Sim George, of Texas.

Contract Surg. James William Hart, of West Virginia.
Contract Surg. Leonard Samuel Hughes, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Elias Hull Porter, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. George Newlove, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Edward Bailey, of Washington.
Contract Surg. James Christopher Dougherty, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles Lee Baker, of West Virginia.
Contract Surg. H. Newton Kierulff, of California.
Contract Surg. Frederick Hubbell Mills, of New York.
Contract Surg. David Durward Hogan, of Wisconsin.
Contract Surg. Edwin Wambaugh Patterson, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. John Findley Leeper, of Wyoming.
Contract Surg. Leonard Philip Bell, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. John Newton Merrick, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Benjamin Beckham Warriner, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. William James Enders, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Thomas Benton McCown, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Madison Harlan Bowman, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Harry Hill Van Kirk, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Clarance Fitzhugh Dickenson, of California.
Contract Surg. Charles Wilson Johnson, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Fred T. Koyle, of New York.
Contract Surg. Robert E. Sievers, at large.
Contract Surg. Wilmont E. Brown, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion Wall, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Alpha M. Chase, of Colorado.
Contract Surg. Frank C. Griffis, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Ernest Frederick Slater, of South Carolina.
Contract Surg. Francis Marion Wells, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. George Fitzpatrick Adair, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. Clemens Wesley McMillan, of Texas.
Contract Surg. Clarence Albert Treuholtz, of California.
Contract Surg. George Ruben Clayton, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. James Kennedy Ashburn, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Alva Rufus Hull, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. Oscar Franklin Davis, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Rodney D. Smith, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Wallace Ernest Parkman, of California.
Contract Surg. Preston S. Kellogg, of Michigan.
Contract Surg. Joseph Wooding Love, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. George Bass Tuttle, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Samuel Alexander Springwater, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Polk Duncan Brown, of Tennessee.
Contract Surg. Joseph Pinquard, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Harrison Warder Stuckey, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Everett Allen Anderson, of North Dakota.
Contract Surg. Marion Fraser Marvin, of Florida.
Contract Surg. Frederic Elmer Jenkins, of Maryland.
Contract Surg. John Michael Hewitt, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Ernest Eugene Roberts, of Iowa.
Contract Surg. Frank Suggs, of Arkansas.
Contract Surg. William Eugene Hall, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. James Rudolph Mount, of Kansas.
Contract Surg. Edgar James Farrow, of California.
Contract Surg. George B. Jones, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Albion McDowell Coffey, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. W. Church Griswold, of New York.
Contract Surg. Herbert William Yemans, of New York.
Contract Surg. John MacIntosh Shepherd, of New York.
Contract Surg. Edward H. Jordan, of Colorado.
Contract Surg. Robert Lemmon, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. George Elliot Chamberlain, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. Luis G. de Quevedo, of Porto Rico.
Contract Surg. Thomas Carl Walker, of North Carolina.
Contract Surg. Henry C. Bierbower, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Oswald Frederick Henning, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Hermon Erwin Hasseltine, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. George French Campbell, of Wyoming.
Contract Surg. William H. Myers, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Charles H. Halliday, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Charles Travis Dulin, of Washington.
Contract Surg. Leon Carre Garcia, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Samuel Brown McPheeters, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. Clarence Cameron Kress, at large.
Contract Surg. George Thomas Tyler, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles W. Cullen, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Daniel Warwick Harmon, of Virginia.
Contract Surg. George W. Cook, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Edgar Clyde Jones, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. George Philip Stallman, of New York.
Contract Surg. Fred J. Conzelmann, of New York.
Contract Surg. Herbert Cody Woolley, of New York.
Contract Surg. Edmund William Bayley, of Minnesota.
Contract Surg. Andrew Victor Stephenson, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. Daniel Parker Card, of New York.
Contract Surg. Raphael John Wren, of Ohio.
Contract Surg. Sylvester Francis O'Day, of New York.
Contract Surg. Lee Roy Dunbar, of New York.
Contract Surg. George Trotter-Tyler, of Kentucky.
Contract Surg. Arthur C. Delacroix, of New York.
Contract Surg. Harlow Comstock McLeod, of New York.
Contract Surg. Henry Freeman Lincoln, of Missouri.
Contract Surg. William Hope Smith, of Texas.
Contract Surg. Herbert Lentz Freeland, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Chauncey Leonard Chase, of Indiana.
Contract Surg. Arnold Dwight Tuttle, of New York.
Contract Surg. Charles Arthur Tetrault, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Dayton Carroll Wiggin, of New Hampshire.
Contract Surg. William Meade Archer, jr., of Virginia.
Contract Surg. James Connallin Magee, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Elsworth Wilson, of Oklahoma.
Contract Surg. Howard Priest, of Pennsylvania.
Contract Surg. Percy G. Drake, of the District of Columbia.
Contract Surg. James I. Thorne, at large.
Contract Surg. Joseph Edward Bastion, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Henry Reuben Weston, of Vermont.
Contract Surg. George Gorgas Craig, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. William Henry Pomeroy, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. Zotique Rousseau, of New York.
Contract Surg. Julian Augustus Mead, of Massachusetts.
Contract Surg. William Hull Ramsey, of Nebraska.
Contract Surg. Samuel C. Stanton, of Illinois.
Contract Surg. Carlisle F. Ferrin, of Connecticut.
William Richard Dear, of the District of Columbia.
Eben Clayton Hill, of Maryland.
Armin Mueller, of Wisconsin.
Rozier Clagett Bayly, of Virginia.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 14, 1908.

Henry Clay Coburn, of the District of Columbia.
John Brockenbrough Harvie Waring, of Virginia.
Charles Edward Doerr, of Ohio.
Frederick Starr Wright, of New York.
Ralph Harvard Goldthwaite, of Massachusetts.
Donald Miner, of New Jersey.
Robert William Kerr, of Rhode Island.
Norman Lincoln McDiarmid, of Ohio.
James Arthur Wilson, of Michigan.
Addison Dimmitt Davis, of South Dakota.
Corydon Goodrich Snow, of Illinois.
Morrison Clay Stayer, of Pennsylvania.
George Dawson Heath, jr., of South Carolina.
Richard Augustine Kearny, of Louisiana.
Alexander Dwight Parce, of Missouri.
Henry Fuller Philips, of Texas.
Thomas James Leary, of Pennsylvania.
William Stephens Shields, of Pennsylvania.
George Hudson McLellan, of Ohio.
Clarence Elmer Fronk, of Missouri.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 23, 1908.

Howard Andrew Knox, of Massachusetts.
Ralph Waldo Newton, of Massachusetts.
Nelson Walton Wilson, of New York.
Edgar Robinson McGuire, of New York.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

James Clinton Ballard, of Mississippi.
James Edward Maloney, of New York.
Thomas Madden Foley, of the District of Columbia.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 29, 1908.

Joseph August Pargon, of Oregon.
Maurice Buchsbaum, of Oklahoma.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from September 30, 1908.

Frank Salter Nicholson, of Nebraska.
Charles D. W. Colby, of North Carolina.
Charles Allen Betts, of Washington.
Ziba Lindley Henry, of Ohio.
Walter Fundenberg Leech, of West Virginia.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 2, 1908.

James Andrew Egan, of Illinois.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 5, 1908.

Lester Winslow Lord, of New Hampshire.

To be first lieutenant, with rank from October 27, 1908.

William Ward Plummer, of New York.

To be first lieutenants, with rank from October 31, 1908.

Edmund Douglas Shortlidge, of Delaware.
Llewellyn Powell Williamson, of Missouri.
John Ryan Devereux, of the District of Columbia.
Walter Clifford Chidester, of Ohio.
Reynold Marvin Kirby-Smith, of Tennessee.
Samuel Ernest Lambert, of Alabama.
James Franklin Edwards, of Pennsylvania.
William Evans Richards, of Mississippi.
Edward Warwick Pinkham, of Massachusetts.
Clarence Beacom Millhoff, of Pennsylvania.
Howard Walter Beal, of Maine.
Jerome Stuart Chaffee, of New York.

CHAPLAINS.

To be chaplains with the rank of first lieutenant.

WITH RANK FROM JUNE 9, 1908.

Rev. Walter Kenyon Lloyd, of Arkansas, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Clinton Herby Snyder, of Ohio, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Frederick Lawrence Kunnecke, of Maryland, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Edward Russell Chase, of Maine, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Laurence Leo Denning, of Ohio, to fill an original vacancy.

Rev. Michael Gabriel Doran, of New York, to fill an original vacancy.

WITH RANK FROM JUNE 29, 1908.

Rev. Stephen Richard Wood, of California, vice Steward, Twenty-fifth Infantry, retired from active service.

WITH RANK FROM SEPTEMBER 22, 1908.

Rev. Stanley Clayton Ramsden, of New Jersey, vice Brockmann, Twenty-seventh Infantry, resigned.

CAVALRY ARM.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Herbert Hamlin White, of Idaho.
Chauncey St. Claire McNeill, of West Virginia.
John Pullman, of New York.
Frank Keet Ross, of Pennsylvania.
Herman Kobbé, of California.
John Ashley Warden, of Texas.
John Caffery Walker, jr., of Texas.
Victor McDowell Whitside, of the District of Columbia.

FIELD ARTILLERY.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Edward Postell King, jr., of Georgia.
Kenneth Sheild Perkins, of Virginia.
Robert George Kirkwood, of Illinois.
Harold Everett Marr, of Maine.
Joseph Wright Rumbough, of Virginia.
William McCleave, of Montana.
Allan Clay McBride, of Maryland.
Joe Reese Brabson, of Tennessee.
Leonard Craig Sparks, of Washington.
John Alden Crane, of Maryland.
Albert Kenny Craven Palmer, of Maine.
Frederick Almyron Prince, of Illinois.
Marshall Magruder, of the District of Columbia.
Truby Cheney Martin, of Kansas.
Wilbur Rogers, of Kansas.
Louis Roberts Dougherty, of California.
Samuel Roland Hopkins, of Maryland.
Frederick Warren Stewart, at large.
Joseph Taylor Clement, of Florida.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from June 9, 1908.

Robert Ross Welshimer, of Illinois, late midshipman, United States Navy.

William Whinery Hicks, of Alabama, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from July 1, 1908.

Eugene Bonfils Walker, of California, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 4, 1908.

Louis David Pepin, of Minnesota.
Karl F. Baldwin, of Ohio.
Charles Kleber Wing, jr., of North Dakota.
Robert Octavious Edwards, of Virginia.
Everett Martin Balcom, of New Hampshire.
Guy Agard Mix, of New York.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

John Henry Pirie, of Texas.
George Rothwell Norton, of Massachusetts.
Eugene Reybold, of Delaware.
Wilmot Alfred Danielson, of Iowa.
Hugo Ernest Pitz, of Iowa.
Thomas Clair Cook, of Ohio.
Olin Harrington Longino, of Georgia.
Peter Hill Ottosen, of Iowa.
Edgar Hall Thompson, of Rhode Island.
Samuel Harvey McLeary, of Porto Rico.
John Norton Reynolds, of the District of Columbia.
Lewis Edward Goodier, jr., of New York.
Rufus Foote Maddux, of Kentucky.
Herbert Austin McCune, of Iowa.
Lincoln Beaumont Chambers, of Oregon.
Willis Craig Knight, of Washington.
John Robert Ellis, of Arkansas.
John Mather, of Connecticut.
Chester Raymond Snow, of New Jersey.
Robert Emmett Mason Goolrick, of Virginia.
Walter Putney Boatwright, of Virginia.
John Piper Smith, of Pennsylvania.
Harry Read Vaughan, of Georgia.
Abney Payne, of West Virginia.
Edwin Kennedy Smith, of Tennessee.
Clarence Talmage Marsh, of North Carolina.
John Blackwell Maynard, of Virginia.
Isaac Edwin Titus, of Ohio.
Jacob Frank, of Vermont.
Warren Reigle Bell, of Pennsylvania.
Arthur Griffith Campbell, of Virginia.
John Thomas Rowe, of Virginia.
Frederick Le Roy Martin, of Indiana.

To be second lieutenant, with rank from October 1, 1908.

Sergt. Harold Lincoln Gardiner, One hundred and ninth Company, Coast Artillery Corps.

INFANTRY ARM.

To be second lieutenant, with rank from June 9, 1908.

Alva Lee, of Wyoming, late midshipman, United States Navy.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 4, 1908.

Robert Henry Willis, jr., of South Carolina.
Charles Elting Coates, of Pennsylvania.

To be second lieutenants, with rank from September 25, 1908.

Martin Conrad Shallenberger, of Nebraska.
William Baldridge Loughborough, at large.
James Wallace Peyton, of Virginia.
Oral Eugene Clark, of Michigan.
Robert Coker, of Massachusetts.
Marcel Selby Keene, of Maryland.
William Ferguson Hoey, jr., of Delaware.
John Hale Stutesman, of Indiana.
William Willis Boddie, of North Carolina.
William Gladstone Langwill, of Iowa.
James Anthony Sarratt, of South Carolina.
Frank Melvin Kennedy, of Illinois.
John Thomas Harris, of West Virginia.
Albert Sidney Johnston Tucker, of Virginia.
Marion Ogilvie French, of New York.
George William Carlyle Whiting, of Virginia.
George Robbins Simpson, of Virginia.
Charles Winslow Elliott, of Minnesota.
James Douglas Rivet, of Massachusetts.
George Richard Koehler, of New Jersey.
James Alfred Merritt, of Maryland.
Oliver Seth Wood, of Arkansas.
Alexander Warner Cleary, of New York.
Allen Mitchell Burdett, of Georgia.
Herbert Clarence Fooks, of Maryland.
John Register Emory, jr., of Virginia.
Jacob Herman Rudolph, of Wisconsin.
Elbe Allen Lathrop, of Minnesota.
Raymond Ceward Baird, of Iowa.
Matthew Addison Palen, of California.

PROMOTION IN THE NAVY.

Rear-Admiral Newton E. Mason, U. S. Navy, to be chief of the Bureau of Ordnance in the Department of the Navy, with the rank of rear-admiral, for a term of four years from January 9, 1909.

POSTMASTERS.

CALIFORNIA.

John M. Jolley to be postmaster at Oceanside, Cal.
James G. Mason to be postmaster at Menlo Park, Cal.
Oscar L. Meek to be postmaster at Marysville, Cal.
Esther Murphy to be postmaster at Alhambra, Cal.
Frederick B. Nichols to be postmaster at McCloud, Cal.
Nellie Pellet to be postmaster at Brawley, Cal.
J. H. Williams to be postmaster at Compton, Cal.

CONNECTICUT.

John W. Cook to be postmaster at Beacon Falls, Conn.
Alexander B. Gardner to be postmaster at Milford, Conn.
Harvey S. Halligan to be postmaster at Seymour, Conn.
Nelson R. Jessup to be postmaster at Stamford, Conn.
William L. Judson to be postmaster at Woodbury, Conn.
William H. Kelsey to be postmaster at Clinton, Conn.
Giles P. Lecrenier to be postmaster at Moodus, Conn.
Charles H. Taylor to be postmaster at Georgetown, Conn.

ILLINOIS.

John F. Ashwill to be postmaster at Toledo, Ill.
Henry C. Bogue to be postmaster at Vermont, Ill.
Theodore Boltenstern to be postmaster at Cambridge, Ill.
Orange L. Campbell to be postmaster at Knoxville, Ill.
Frank J. Chapman to be postmaster at McLeansboro, Ill.
Albert S. Corl to be postmaster at North Crystal Lake, Ill. (late Munda).
Joel W. Ellis to be postmaster at Seneca, Ill.
John Holliday to be postmaster at Kirkwood, Ill.
Henry C. Jones to be postmaster at Marion, Ill.
William A. Kelly to be postmaster at West Frankfort, Ill.
Warren J. Lincoln to be postmaster at Mount Pulaski, Ill.
Robert L. Lutton to be postmaster at Clifton, Ill.
Henry P. Miller to be postmaster at Cobden, Ill.
Robert J. Morray to be postmaster at Creal Springs, Ill.
Edgar Rodee to be postmaster at Prophetstown, Ill.
Fred W. Pattee to be postmaster at Elburn, Ill.
Paul P. Shutt to be postmaster at Paris, Ill.
Frederick J. Simater to be postmaster at Minonk, Ill.
William L. Spear to be postmaster at Rankin, Ill.
J. W. Thompson to be postmaster at Granite City, Ill.
Charles G. Watrous to be postmaster at Waukegan, Ill.

IOWA.

Martin A. Aasgaard to be postmaster at Lake Mills, Iowa.
Carlos G. Aldrich to be postmaster at Schaller, Iowa.
George Banger to be postmaster at Laporte City, Iowa.
Charles O. Barry to be postmaster at Walker, Iowa.
Edgar O. Beanblossom to be postmaster at Whiting, Iowa.
Dennis Bittner to be postmaster at Olin, Iowa.
William L. Comstock to be postmaster at Mechanicsville, Iowa.
Hans Evenson to be postmaster at Calmar, Iowa.
Fred J. Fearis to be postmaster at Richland, Iowa.
John H. Hunt to be postmaster at Allison, Iowa.
J. E. T. Johnson to be postmaster at Gowrie, Iowa.
Louis N. Kramer to be postmaster at McGregor, Iowa.
Frank J. Mann to be postmaster at Burt, Iowa.
John C. Meredith to be postmaster at Allerton, Iowa.
A. W. Sleeper to be postmaster at Sheldon, Iowa.
Lewis W. Sley to be postmaster at Oxford Junction, Iowa.
Charles Smith to be postmaster at Clarence, Iowa.
Charles M. Stevens to be postmaster at Williams, Iowa.
L. H. Surber to be postmaster at Indianola, Iowa.
Frank J. Tishenbanner to be postmaster at Gilmore City, Iowa.
W. H. Vance to be postmaster at Winterset, Iowa.

KENTUCKY.

Charles Cowell to be postmaster at Earlington, Ky.
H. G. Hicks to be postmaster at Olive Hill, Ky.
John D. Littlejohn to be postmaster at Grayson, Ky.
John W. Shields to be postmaster at Williamstown, Ky.

MAINE.

Edward B. Buck to be postmaster at Foxcroft, Me.
Freeman D. Dearth to be postmaster at Dexter, Me.
Charles B. Haskell to be postmaster at Pittsfield, Me.
Charles A. Lang to be postmaster at Harrison, Me.
Frank W. Mallett to be postmaster at Fort Kent, Me.
Charles F. Plumly to be postmaster at Lincoln, Me.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Samuel Atwell to be postmaster at Kingston, Mass.
James S. Burbank to be postmaster at Mattapoisett, Mass.
Eunice Agnes Burtch to be postmaster at Sheffield, Mass.
Asa B. Fay to be postmaster at Northboro, Mass.
Harrison V. Hall to be postmaster at Wrentham, Mass.
George E. Ricker to be postmaster at Merrimac, Mass.
Joseph C. Sheehan to be postmaster at East Bridgewater, Mass.
Charles J. Shepard to be postmaster at Waltham, Mass.
Osgood L. Small to be postmaster at Sagamore, Mass.
George M. Solomon to be postmaster at Hinsdale, Mass.
Elmer Standley to be postmaster at Beverly Farms, Mass.
Marie E. White to be postmaster at South Hadley, Mass.
William F. Wiley to be postmaster at Peabody, Mass.

MICHIGAN.

Eber S. Andrews to be postmaster at Williamston, Mich.
Stuart Beatty to be postmaster at Utica, Mich.
Thomas H. Berryman to be postmaster at Mohawk, Mich.
Charles M. Butler to be postmaster at Morenci, Mich.
Theron D. Childs to be postmaster at Three Oaks, Mich.
David J. Evans to be postmaster at Millington, Mich.
Charles W. Glover to be postmaster at Bear Lake, Mich.
Jens Hemingsen to be postmaster at Grant, Mich.
A. M. Humphrey to be postmaster at Saline, Mich.
William F. Johnston to be postmaster at Roscommon, Mich.
Christopher C. Smith to be postmaster at Algonac, Mich.
William Trevarthen to be postmaster at South Range, Mich.

MINNESOTA.

Marion G. Crawford to be postmaster at Lakefield, Minn.
F. E. Toomey to be postmaster at Scanlon, Minn.
James Walker to be postmaster at Ellsworth, Minn.

MISSOURI.

Henry A. Herkstroeter to be postmaster at Washington, Mo.
John W. Key to be postmaster at Mountain Grove, Mo.
Iola W. Morsey to be postmaster at Warrenton, Mo.
William F. Norris to be postmaster at Perry, Mo.
George Stoolfer to be postmaster at Skidmore, Mo.
James A. Williams to be postmaster at Crane, Mo.
Edwin W. Pritchett to be postmaster at Martinsburg, Mo.

NEVADA.

Herbert Badt to be postmaster at Wells, Nev.
Jessie E. Burnett to be postmaster at McGill (late Smelter), Nev.
George C. Fetterman to be postmaster at Caliente, Nev.
Fred L. Littell to be postmaster at Yerington, Nev.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Joseph H. Avery to be postmaster at Milton, N. H.
E. Bertram Pike to be postmaster at Pike, N. H.

NEW MEXICO.

Robert Kellahin to be postmaster at Roswell, N. Mex.
Ira O. Wetmore to be postmaster at Carrizozo, N. Mex.

OREGON.

John E. Loggan to be postmaster at Burns, Oreg.
Land B. Rutherford to be postmaster at Rainier, Oreg.
Ben Weathers to be postmaster at Enterprise, Oreg.

RHODE ISLAND.

Nathaniel H. Brown to be postmaster at East Greenwich, R. I.
Hulda J. Fessenden to be postmaster at Saylesville, R. I.
Edward W. Jones to be postmaster at River Point, R. I.

VERMONT.

Lyman P. Bailey to be postmaster at Putney, Vt.

VIRGINIA.

William S. Gregory, jr., to be postmaster at Drakes Branch, Va.
Frederick I. Hanmer to be postmaster at Keysville, Va.
R. L. Hervey to be postmatser at Chase City, Va.
Frank D. Lumpkin to be postmaster at Danville, Va.
Harry A. Sager to be postmaster at Herndon, Va.
E. T. Sproles to be postmaster at Clinchport, Va.
B. P. Wall to be postmaster at Pine Beach, Va.

WEST VIRGINIA.

J. W. Edwards to be postmaster at Welch, W. Va.

WISCONSIN.

Altie B. Barnard to be postmaster at Redgranite, Wis.
Fred A. Brandt to be postmaster at Sparta, Wis.
John L. Extrom to be postmaster at Tomahawk, Wis.
Isa Faulds to be postmaster at Arcadia, Wis.
Ray Haggerty to be postmaster at Park Falls, Wis.
Robert Johnson to be postmaster at Mellen, Wis.
Asenath A. Kasson to be postmaster at Mattoon, Wis.
George E. King to be postmaster at Winneconne, Wis.
William Knelling to be postmaster at Shullsburg, Wis.
Judson L. Marvin to be postmaster at Mauston, Wis.
Thomas Stout, jr., to be postmaster at Clear Lake, Wis.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, December 14, 1908.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Saturday was read and approved.

HOLIDAY RECESS.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York offers a resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Saturday, December 19, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock m., Monday, January 4, 1909.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The question was taken, and the resolution was agreed to.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST ALIENS.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. I desire to inquire if the matter pending on Saturday is in order now?

The SPEAKER. It is unfinished business and in order.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that it lie on the table.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York moves that the appeal taken by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DE ARMOND] to the ruling of the Chair do lie on the table.

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Division, Mr. Speaker.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 117, noes 87.

Mr. DE ARMOND. The yeas and nays, Mr. Speaker.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 170, nays 98, answered "present" 12, not voting 110, as follows:

YEAS—170.

Acheson	Ellis, Mo.	Kahn	Parker
Allen	Ellis, Oreg.	Keifer	Parsons
Ames	Englebright	Kennedy, Iowa	Payne
Anthony	Esch	Kennedy, Ohio	Pearre
Bannon	Fassett	Kinkaid	Perkins
Barchfeld	Foss	Kitchin, Claude	Pollard
Bartlett, Ga.	Foster, Ind.	Knapp	Pray
Bates	Foster, Vt.	Knopf	Reid
Beale, Pa.	Foulkrod	Knowland	Reynolds
Bede	French	Küstermann	Roberts
Bingham	Fuller	Langley	Rodenberg
Birdsall	Gaines, W. Va.	Lawrence	Russell, Tex.
Bonynge	Gardner, Mass.	Lindbergh	Scott
Boutell	Garner	Longworth	Sherley
Bradley	Gilhams	Loud	Slemp
Brownlow	Gillett	Loudenslager	Smith, Cal.
Burke	Goebel	Lovering	Smith, Iowa
Burton, Del.	Graham	Lowden	Smith, Mich.
Butler	Greene	McCall	Southwick
Calderhead	Gronna	McCreary	Sperry
Campbell	Guernsey	McGavin	Stafford
Capron	Haggott	McGuire	Stevens, Minn.
Caulfield	Hamilton, Mich.	McKinlay, Cal.	Sturgiss
Chaney	Hammond	McKinley, Ill.	Sulloway
Chapman	Harding	McKinney	Swasey
Cole	Haskins	McLachlan, Cal.	Tawney
Cook, Colo.	Haugen	McLaughlin, Mich.	Taylor, Ohio
Cooper, Pa.	Hawley	McMorran	Thistlewood
Cooper, Wis.	Hayes	Macon	Thomas, Ohio
Crumpacker	Henry, Conn.	Madison	Tirrell
Currier	Hepburn	Mann	Townsend
Cushman	Higgins	Marshall	Volstead
Dalzell	Holliday	Martin	Washburn
Darragh	Howell, N. J.	Moon, Pa.	Webb
Davidson	Howland	Moon, Tenn.	Weeks
Davis, Minn.	Hubbard, Iowa	Moore, Pa.	Weems
Dawson	Hubbard, W. Va.	Morse	Wheeler
Denby	Hull, Iowa	Murdock	Williams
Douglas	Humphrey, Wash.	Nelson	Wilson, Ill.
Draper	Humphreys, Miss.	Nye	Woodyard
Driscoll	James, Addison D.	Olcott	Young
Durey	Jenkins	Overstreet
Edwards, Ky.	Jones, Wash.	Padgett

NAYS—98.

Adair	De Armond	Hamlin	Lever
Ansberry	Denver	Hardwick	Livingston
Ashbrook	Dixon	Hardy	Lloyd
Barnhart	Ellerbe	Harrison	McDermott
Bartlett, Nev.	Estopinal	Hay	Maynard
Bell, Ga.	Ferris	Heflin	Moore, Tex.
Booher	Finley	Helm	Murphy
Brodhead	Fitzgerald	Henry, Tex.	Nicholls
Broussard	Floyd	Hobson	Page
Brundidge	Foster, Ill.	Houston	Patterson
Caldwell	Fulton	Hughes, N. J.	Peters
Candler	Gaines, Tenn.	James, Ollie M.	Pujo
Carlin	Garrett	Johnson, S. C.	Rainey
Carter	Gillespie	Jones, Va.	Randell, Tex.
Clark, Mo.	Godwin	Kipp	Rauch
Cox, Ind.	Gordon	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Richardson
Craig	Goulden	Lamb	Robinson
Cravens	Hackney	Lassiter	Rothermel
Davenport	Hamilton, Iowa	Lenahan	Rucker
Russell, Mo.	Sherwood	Stanley	Wallace
Ryan	Sims	Stephens, Tex.	Watkins
Sabath	Slayden	Taylor, Ala.	Weisse
Saunders	Smith, Mo.	Thomas, N. C.	Wilson, Pa.
Shackleford	Smith, Tex.	Tou Velle
Sheppard	Sparkman	Underwood

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—12.

Adamson	Brantley	Howard	Lee
Alexander, Mo.	Clayton	Hull, Tenn.	Sherman
Bennet, N. Y.	Glass	Kimball	Talbott

NOT VOTING—110.

Aiken	Davey, La.	Hitchcock	Needham
Alexander, N. Y.	Dawes	Howell, Utah	Norris
Andrus	Diekema	Huff	O'Connell
Barclay	Dwight	Hughes, W. Va.	Olmsted
Bartholdt	Edwards, Ga.	Jackson	Porter
Beall, Tex.	Fairchild	Johnson, Ky.	Pou
Bennett, Ky.	Favrot	Kelliher	Pratt
Bowers	Flood	Lafean	Prince
Boyd	Focht	Lamar, Fla.	Ransdell, La.
Brumm	Foelker	Lamar, Mo.	Reeder
Burgess	Fordney	Landis	Rhinock
Burleigh	Fornes	Laning	Riordan
Burleson	Fowler	Law	Small
Burnett	Gardner, Mich.	Leake	Snapp
Burton, Ohio	Gardner, N. J.	Legare	Spight
Byrd	Gill	Lewis	Steenerson
Calder	Goldfogle	Lilley	Sterling
Cary	Graff	Lindsay	Sulzer
Cassel	Granger	Lorimer	Vreeland
Clark, Fla.	Gregg	McHenry	Waldo
Cockran	Griggs	McLain	Wanger
Cocks, N. Y.	Hackett	McMillan	Watson
Conner	Hale	Madden	Wiley
Cook, Pa.	Hall	Malby	Willett
Cooper, Tex.	Hamill	Miller	Wolf
Coudrey	Hill, Conn.	Mondell	Wood
Cousins	Hill, Miss.	Mouser
Crawford	Hinshaw	Mudd

So the appeal was laid on the table.

The following pairs were announced:

For this session:

Mr. WANGER with Mr. ADAMSON.

Mr. BENNET of New York with Mr. FORNES.

Mr. SHERMAN with Mr. RIORDAN.

Until further notice:

Mr. PORTER with Mr. AIKEN.

Mr. ALEXANDER of New York with Mr. BEALL of Texas.

Mr. ANDRUS with Mr. ALEXANDER of Missouri.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio with Mr. BURGESS.

Mr. DWIGHT with Mr. BURNETT.

Mr. COCKS of New York with Mr. BYRD.

Mr. DAWES with Mr. COCKRAN.

Mr. FOCHT with Mr. COOPER of Texas.

Mr. FORDNEY with Mr. CRAWFORD.

Mr. GARDNER of New Jersey with Mr. DAVEY of Louisiana.

Mr. GRAFF with Mr. FLOOD.

Mr. HALE with Mr. GILL.

Mr. HILL of Connecticut with Mr. GRANGER.

Mr. HINSHAW with Mr. GLASS.

Mr. HOWELL of Utah with Mr. GREGG.

Mr. HUGHES of West Virginia with Mr. HACKETT.

Mr. LAFEAN with Mr. HAMILL.

Mr. LANDIS with Mr. HITCHCOCK.

Mr. LANING with Mr. JOHNSON of Kentucky.

Mr. MCMILLAN with Mr. KELIHER.

Mr. MADDEN with Mr. LEAKE.

Mr. MALBY with Mr. LEWIS.

Mr. MILLER with Mr. KIMBALL.

Mr. MONDELL with Mr. LINDSAY.

Mr. MOUSER with Mr. MCLAIN.

Mr. NEEDHAM with Mr. O'CONNELL.

Mr. NORRIS with Mr. LEE.

Mr. OLMSTED with Mr. POU.

Mr. PRINCE with Mr. PRATT.

Mr. REEDER with Mr. RANSDELL of Louisiana.

Mr. SNAPP with Mr. RHINOCK.

Mr. STEENERSON with Mr. SMALL.

Mr. STERLING with Mr. SPIGHT.

Mr. VREELAND with Mr. SULZER.

Mr. WATSON with Mr. WILLETT.

Mr. FOELKER with Mr. WILEY.

Mr. HALL with Mr. WOLF.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan with Mr. BOWERS.

Mr. BARTHOLDT with Mr. GOLDFOGLE.

Mr. COUSINS with Mr. HOWARD.

Mr. CALDER with Mr. FAVROT.

Mr. COOK of Pennsylvania with Mr. HULL of Tennessee.

Mr. COUDREY with Mr. GRIGGS.

Mr. DIEKEMA with Mr. CLARK of Florida.

Mr. FAIRCHILD with Mr. LAMAR of Florida.

Mr. CONNER with Mr. LEGARE.

Mr. BURLEIGH with Mr. BRANTLEY.
Mr. MUDD with Mr. TALBOTT.
Mr. HUFF with Mr. CLAYTON.
For the balance of the day:
Mr. LORIMER with Mr. HILL of Mississippi.
Mr. LAW with Mr. LAMAR of Missouri.
Mr. WALDO with Mr. MCHENRY.
Mr. CARY with Mr. EDWARDS of Georgia.
The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to print in the RECORD some remarks, less than ten minutes in length of delivery, on this question which is just laid on that table.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

DEALING IN FUTURES.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I desire to renew the request I made the other day for a change of reference of a bill. It is the bill (H. R. 22338) to prohibit dealing in future contracts on agricultural products by forbidding the use of mail and interstate commerce facilities and to prevent sending fictitious prices made on exchanges. I made this request the other day, and the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. POLLARD] asked me to let it go over. This is a very important matter, and last session, my recollection is, it was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. I have made a few mere verbal changes, adding a new section as well, and I desire that the reference of this bill be changed from the Committee on Agriculture to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks unanimous consent for change of reference of the bill indicated from the Committee on Agriculture to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. POLLARD. Mr. Speaker, since the gentleman called the bill up the other day I have taken occasion to look over the files of our committee, and I find the Committee on Agriculture has four or five bills dealing with this same subject, and in view of that fact and the further fact, as I am informed by the chairman of the committee, that the Committee on Agriculture expects to take up this question and have hearings on the merits of the proposition, I am inclined to object.

Mr. HENRY of Texas. Now, if the gentleman will withhold his objection just a minute, and will give me assurance that there shall be hearings on this bill and kindred measures during this session, or some time, I have no objection to letting it go. All I am anxious for is that there shall be hearings on the subject-matter of the legislation.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Nebraska objects.

RESIGNATION OF COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following personal requests:

Mr. HIGGINS asks to be excused from further service on the Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, December 14, 1908.

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

I hereby resign from the Committee on Naval Affairs.
I have the honor to be,
Yours, respectfully, W. W. KITCHIN.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, December 14, 1908.

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the Committees on Indian Affairs and on Elections No. 3.
I have the honor to be,
Respectfully, yours, CLAUDE KITCHIN.

The SPEAKER. Without objection these gentlemen are excused from further service on those committees.

COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS.

The SPEAKER. The Chair announces the following committee assignments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. CASSELL, Committee on Accounts and Committee on Militia.
Mr. GUERNSEY, Committee on Banking and Currency and Committee on the Territories.
Mr. SWASEY, Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries and Committee on Revision of Laws.
Mr. FOELKER Committee on the Census and Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.
Mr. MARTIN, Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions.
Mr. WATSON, Committee on the Territories.
Mr. CLAUDE KITCHIN, Committee on Naval Affairs.
Mr. WILEY, Committee on Military Affairs and Committee on Militia.

AFFAIRS IN THE TERRITORIES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (H. R. 21957) relating to affairs in the Territories, with sundry Senate amendments.

Mr. HAMILTON of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference.

The motion was agreed to.

The Chair appointed as conferees on the part of the House Mr. HAMILTON of Michigan, Mr. CAPRON, and Mr. LLOYD.

EXPENDITURES UNDER THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department and ordered to be printed:

To the House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report by the Secretary of State, with accompanying papers, of expenditures under the Department of State for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, as required by law.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Agriculture and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture covering the operations of the department for the year 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

THE BERNE COPYRIGHT CONVENTION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Patents and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the information of Congress a copy of the report by the register of copyrights of the Library of Congress on the proceedings of the International Congress for the Revision of the Berne Copyright Convention, held at Berlin, Germany, from October 14 to November 14, 1908, which Congress he attended as the delegate of the United States.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

AFFAIRS IN PORTO RICO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report from Mr. Robert Bacon, Assistant Secretary of State, and Maj. Frank McIntyre, U. S. Army, of their mission to Porto Rico, under my oral instructions, to meet with representatives of the insular government of Porto Rico and of the Roman Catholic Church in that island with a view to reaching some equitable settlement of the questions pending between that church on the one hand and the United States and the people of Porto Rico on the other.

The nature of these questions and the conditions of the controversy at the time of the meeting of the commission at San Juan are fully and clearly stated in the report, as is the basis for an equitable and complete settlement of all the questions in controversy unanimously agreed on by the members of the commission in a memorandum signed on August 12, 1908.

It will be seen that under the terms of this memorandum the United States is to pay to the Roman Catholic Church in Porto Rico the sum of $120,000 in full settlement of all claims of every nature whatsoever relative to the properties claimed by the church which are now in the possession of the United States and which are defined in the report.

The properties specifically in question form part of the land reserved for military purposes in San Juan and are now occupied by United States troops. I am informed that they are well suited to such purposes, and that to provide for the garrison of San Juan elsewhere would require the expenditure of many times the sum involved in the proposed settlement.

This basis of agreement has received my entire approval, and I trust that the Congress will see the great importance of the matter and will, at its present session, pass such legislation as is necessary to give the basis of the agreement effect on the part of the United States.

The legislative assembly of Porto Rico has already, by a joint resolution approved September 16, 1908, ratified the basis of agreement recommended by the commissioners in so far as it affects that government, and enacted the necessary legislation to make it effective.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

MILITARY EDUCATION IN CIVIL INSTITUTIONS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War submitting draft of a bill to promote military education in civil institutions of learning in the United States. I approve the recommendation of the Secretary of War and ask for its favorable consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

PROMOTION OF RIFLE PRACTICE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS, ETC.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War submitting draft of a bill to promote rifle practice in public schools, colleges, universities, and civilian rifle clubs. I approve the recommendation of the Secretary of War and ask for its favorable consideration by the Congress.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPHIC UNION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit to the Congress as a matter of public interest a copy of the report of the American delegates to the tenth conference of the International Telegraphic Union, which opened at the city of Lisbon, Portugal, on May 4, 1908.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 14, 1908.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BUSINESS.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of District business.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of District of Columbia business, with Mr. TOWNSEND in the chair.

TOBACCO LICENSE, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I call up the bill (H. R. 16066) providing for the payment of an annual license tax by dealers in all forms of manufactured tobacco in the District of Columbia.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That an annual license tax of $12 is hereby imposed upon dealers in cigars, smoking or chewing tobacco, cigarettes, or any form of manufactured tobacco, the license year to begin November 1 and to terminate October 31 in each year.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, the report is so short and so fully explains the bill that I ask to have it read.

The report (by Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio) was read, as follows:

The Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 16066) providing for the payment of an annual license tax by dealers in all forms of manufactured tobacco in the District of Columbia, report the same back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The license law now in force, found in paragraph 46 of section 7 of the act approved July 1, 1902, provides for an annual license tax of $12 on "cigar dealers" only. The proposed legislation is intended to extend the same provision to dealers in "smoking or chewing tobacco, cigarettes, or any form of manufactured tobacco." This is the only change proposed in the law.

The bill as reported has the approval of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who ask for its passage, as appears by the following letter:

OFFICE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, January 28, 1908.

SIR: The Commissioners of the District of Columbia have the honor to transmit herewith a draft of a bill entitled "A bill providing for the payment of an annual license tax by dealers in all forms of manufactured tobacco in the District of Columbia," and recommend its early enactment.

The object of this bill is to extend the scope of liability for license tax to sell manufactured tobacco to dealers in all forms of that product. At present the license tax for tobacco selling is restricted to "cigar dealers," the annual charge for which is $12, as reiterated in the proposed measure herewith submitted.

Very respectfully,

HENRY B. F. MACFARLAND,
President Board of Commissioners District of Columbia.

Hon. S. W. SMITH,
Chairman Committee on District of Columbia,
House of Representatives.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, unless there is some question, I ask for a vote.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MANN. Have the committee considered the proposition of charging a higher license tax upon cigarette dealers than is charged upon cigar and other tobacco dealers?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I do not know that they specifically took that under consideration.

Mr. MANN. Of course the gentleman is aware that in some States of the Union the sale of cigarettes is absolutely prohibited, and in nearly all or many of the States and municipalities a high license tax is charged for the selling of cigarettes. Now, here is a proposition to make it $1 a month for the privilege of selling coffin nails.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. That is $12 a year higher than it was before.

Mr. MANN. That may be, but the subject is up.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Yes.

Mr. MANN. Why should it not be a great deal more than $12 a year? It ought to be not less than $12 a month. Every little establishment in Washington sells cigarettes and will under this.

Mr. WILSON of Illinois. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Yes.

Mr. WILSON of Illinois. Have you ever considered the prohibition of the sale of cigarettes in the District of Columbia?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. The District Committee have not considered it of late. At least the question has not been before us in that form.

Mr. WILSON of Illinois. Do not you think it would be a good idea for the committee to do that?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I have no doubt they would consider it if somebody would introduce a bill and bring it before us for consideration.

Mr. DAWSON. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Yes.

Mr. DAWSON. Is there any limitation as to the sale of cigarettes to minors, or boys under age, in the District of Columbia?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I do not recall the exact words of the statute at the moment, but I think there is such a provision. We can look it up and see.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out, in line 5, the word "cigarette" in order that I may offer another amendment, increasing the license tax upon cigarette dealers.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the proposed amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 5, strike out the word "cigarettes."

The question was taken on the amendment, and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MANN. Division!

Pending the division,

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. May I ask the gentleman from Illinois why cigarette dealers should be exempted from paying this license?

Mr. MANN. The gentleman has evidently just come in. I stated that the proposition was to strike out, for the purpose of offering an amendment charging a higher license on cigarette dealers.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I did not hear the gentleman's statement. That is the reason I want to know. The gentleman proposes to make the license higher?

Mr. MANN. I propose to offer an amendment to make it much higher in case this amendment prevails.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. I want to vote for that amendment if the gentleman will offer it.

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Suppose you strike this out and then the committee votes down your amendment, where will you be?

Mr. DOUGLAS. No better off than we are now.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Why not offer an amendment combining the two propositions?

Mr. MANN. I am perfectly willing to do that. I ask leave to withdraw my amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent to withdraw his amendment. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. MANN. And at the end of the bill as now printed I offer an amendment, which I ask the Clerk to report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after line 7, on page 1, the following:

"That an annual license tax of $100 is hereby imposed upon dealers in cigarettes, the license year to begin November 1 and to terminate October 31 in each year."

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the Clerk read the part to be stricken out and then read the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is informed that there is no proposition to strike out anything in this amendment. It is an amendment to the end of the bill.

Mr. MANN. Of course, Mr. Chairman, if that amendment were adopted, that would strike out the word "cigarette" where it now stands.

Mr. WILSON of Illinois. Why not include also "cigarette papers?"

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Does that include also striking out the word "cigarette?"

Mr. MANN. I will include in the amendment to strike out the word "cigarettes," although nobody makes the point of order on it, and insert the other amendment at the end of the section as now printed.

Mr. MACON. How about cigarette papers?

Mr. MANN. It has been suggested that the words "cigarette papers" ought to be added to the end after the word "cigarettes," so as to read "cigarettes or cigarette papers."

Mr. WILSON of Illinois. "And."

Mr. MANN. "Or" is the proper word. I ask unanimous consent that the words "or cigarette papers" be added after the word "cigarettes."

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman asks unanimous consent that the words "or cigarette papers" may be added to his amendment. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I will ask the Clerk to read the amendment as it would now read if adopted.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out in line 5 the word "cigarettes" and add at the end of the bill the following:

"That an annual license tax of $100 is hereby imposed upon dealers in cigarettes or cigarette papers, the license year to begin November 1 and to terminate October 31 in each year."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now recurs on laying the bill aside with a favorable recommendation.

The question was taken, and the bill was ordered to be laid aside with a favorable recommendation.

DISBURSING OFFICER, GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I call up the bill (H. R. 12899) to provide for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 4839 of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4839. The chief executive officer of the Government Hospital for the Insane shall be a superintendent, who shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be entitled to a salary of $4,000 a year, and shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in such sum and with such securities as may be required by the Secretary of the Interior. The superintendent shall be a well-educated physician, possessing competent experience in the care and treatment of the insane; he shall reside on the premises and devote his whole time to the welfare of the institution; he shall, subject to the approval of the board of visitors, appoint a responsible disbursing agent for the institution, who shall give a bond satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, and said superintendent shall engage and discharge all needful and useful employees in the care of the insane and all laborers on the farm and determine their wages and duties; he shall also be an ex officio secretary of the board of visitors. The said disbursing agent, under the direction of the superintendent, shall have the custody of and pay out all moneys appropriated by Congress for the Government Hospital for the Insane, or otherwise received for the purposes of the hospital, and all moneys received by the superintendent in behalf of the hospital or its patients, and keep an accurate account or accounts thereof. The said disbursing agent shall deposit in the Treasury of the United States, under the direction of the superintendent, all funds now in the hands of the superintendent or which may hereafter be intrusted to him by or for the use of patients, which shall be kept in a separate account; and the said disbursing agent is authorized to draw therefrom, under the direction of the said superintendent, from time to time, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, for the use of such patients, but not to exceed for any one patient the amount intrusted to the superintendent on account of such patient. During the time that any pensioner shall be an inmate of the Government Hospital for the Insane, all money due or becoming due upon his or her pension shall be paid by the pension agent to the superintendent or disbursing agent of the hospital, upon a certificate by such superintendent that the pensioner is an inmate of the hospital and is living, and such pension money shall be by said superintendent or disbursing agent disbursed and used, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, for the benefit of the pensioner, and, in case of a male pensioner, his wife, minor children, and dependent parents, or, if a female pensioner, her minor children, if any, in the order named, and to pay his or her board and maintenance in the hospital, the remainder of such pension money, if any, to be placed to the credit of the pensioner and to be paid to the pensioner or the guardian of the pensioner in the event of his or her discharge from the hospital; or, in the event of the death of said pensioner while an inmate of said hospital, shall, if a female pensioner, be paid to her minor children, and, in the case of a male pensioner, be paid to his wife, if living; if no wife survives him, then to his minor children; and in case there is no wife nor minor children, then the said unexpended balance to his or her credit shall be applied to the general uses of said hospital: Provided, That in the case of any pensioner transferred to the hospital from the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers any pension money to his credit at said Home at the time of his said transfer shall be transferred with him to said hospital and placed to his credit therein, to be expended as hereinbefore provided, and in case of his return from said hospital to the Home any balance to his credit at said hospital shall in like manner be transferred to said Home, to be expended in accordance with the rules established in regard thereto, and this provision shall also be applicable to all unexpended pension money heretofore paid to the officers of said hospital on account of pensioners who were but are not now inmates thereof."

SEC. 2. That all provisions of law inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I ask to have the report and the letters attached thereto in this matter read also.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection the Clerk will read the report.

There was no objection, and the Clerk read as follows:

The Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 12899) to provide for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane, report the same back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

This bill merely provides for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane.

No additional expense is entailed, and the creation of the position of disbursing officer will materially assist the proper administration of the affairs of the hospital.

Appended are letters from the Secretary of the Interior, the superintendent of the hospital, and the Commissioners, approving the bill.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, January 13, 1908.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge your letter of the 10th instant, inclosing House bill 12899, entitled "To provide for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane," and requesting my opinion on same.

In reply I would say that this bill was prepared by Mr. OLCOTT, who was the chairman of the committee of the last Congress that investigated the management of the Government Hospital for the Insane. It was one of the recommendations of that committee that the superintendent should be empowered to appoint a disbursing officer for the hospital, so that he might be relieved of the duties and responsibilities pertaining to that office. It has been the unanimous opinion of the board of visitors of the Government Hospital for the Insane for some years that this should be done, and the present bill is drawn with that end in view.

In my opinion it is a good bill and should be passed.

Respectfully,

JAMES RUDOLPH GARFIELD,
Secretary.

Hon. SAMUEL W. SMITH,
Chairman of Committee on the District of Columbia,
House of Representatives.

GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE,
Washington, D. C., February 29, 1908.

SIR: I have your letter of the 22d instant inclosing copy of House bill 12899, together with a letter from Commissioner Macfarland containing his opinions on same. You ask for my opinion of this bill.

Section 4839 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which it is sought to amend by this bill, is a portion of the organic act creating the Government Hospital for the Insane. This act was passed something over fifty years ago, and the hospital that was created thereby was of course comparatively a very small institution. Under these circumstances it was eminently proper that the superintendent should be the responsible disbursing officer thereof. Since that time, however, the hospital has constantly grown until it is now one of the large hospitals for the insane in this country, and I believe of all the public institutions for the care of the insane it has the most complex relations. In the natural course of the growth the duties of the superintendent have become gradually more numerous, and the time which he once had to devote to fiscal matters has now to be distributed over a large number of problems. In fact, I think I might say without exaggerating that the work of the office of superintendent has increased four or five times in quantity and correspondingly in complexity in the four and a half years that I have been in charge. The natural result of all this is that while the superintendent is held by the statute to be the responsible disbursing agent, and as a matter of fact signs all pay rolls, checks, and vouchers, still the absolute necessities of the situation demand that the responsibility for the proper keeping of the accounts and the making out of the vouchers and the like be delegated to others. It would seem, therefore, that the bill under consideration not only will have the effect of relieving the superintendent from the work and responsibilities incident to his office as disbursing officer, but will also have the effect of affording additional protection to the United States by having the responsibility for the custody of the funds rest with the individual who has their immediate handling and the keeping of the accounts.

During the past four and a half years the administrative department of the hospital has been in process of reorganization. This reorganization is now practically completed, the only single thing of importance necessary to finish the work being the authority granted in the proposed bill for the superintendent to appoint a responsible disbursing officer.

The bill, in my opinion, is a good one. It provides for a change in the administrative department of the hospital, which is much needed and which will redound to the interests of the institution and will strengthen its fiscal responsibility. It is furthermore a step which is thoroughly justified by precedent, many institutions of this sort having treasurers. I think the bill should pass.

Respectfully,

WM. A. WHITE,
Superintendent.

Hon. J. VAN VECHTEN OLCOTT,
House of Representatives.

OFFICE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, February 21, 1908.

DEAR SIR: The Commissioners of the District of Columbia have the honor to state, in response to your request for their views upon House bill 12899, "To provide for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane," that they know of no objection to the passage of the bill, although the legislation proposed does not seem in any way to relate to the question of disbursement of appropriations for the District of Columbia nor affect in any way the relations of the District to the Government Hospital for the Insane.

Congress provides annual and specific appropriations in the District appropriation acts for the support in the Government Hospital for the Insane of the patients committed to that institution upon the order of the executive authority of the District of Columbia. Monthly statements are submitted to this office by the authorities of the said institution, showing the cost for that period, payable by the District of Columbia. This statement is used as a basis of a voucher audited and approved by the auditor of the District of Columbia and certified to by the commissioners, and becomes the authority for the Treasury Department to debit the District of Columbia appropriation and credit the appropriation provided by the General Government for the support of the Government Hospital for the Insane, which is merely a bookkeeping entry, and does not involve the handling or transfer of cash, the expenditures on account of that portion of the expenses of the institution being primarily paid from the appropriation provided by the United States and reimbursed thereto monthly, as above cited.

HENRY B. F. MACFARLAND,
President Board of Commissioners District of Columbia.

Hon. J. VAN VECHTEN OLCOTT,
House of Representatives.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the bill will be laid aside with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. O Mr. Chairman, I wish to have some information in regard to it.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. OLCOTT].

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Mr. Chairman, there has been absolutely no explanation of this bill, and if nobody is going to explain it, I want to ask somebody who knows something about it some questions.

Mr. OLCOTT. I will be glad to explain the bill.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. I want to find out from the gentleman who has been disbursing the funds of this institution heretofore.

Mr. OLCOTT. The superintendent. He is the only person who has been entitled to sign checks.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Is the superintendent not provided with an ample force of clerks, under the appropriation bills, to do all this work?

Mr. OLCOTT. This does not add in any way to appropriations. It merely makes an assistant of his a disbursing officer, to enable him to sign checks when it is necessary for the superintendent to be away.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Is that assistant who is now acting as clerk receiving a salary of $4,000 a year?

Mr. OLCOTT. The superintendent himself receives $4,000 a year. The clerk receives much less. He gets no additional salary; there is no increase in the appropriation. He has to give a bond in the same amount as the superintendent, and is merely put in a position where he can sign checks as well as the superintendent.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Carolina. Does not that fix the compensation of the disbursing officer at $4,000?

Mr. OLCOTT. I do not think so. I would like to say in regard to this bill that with the exception of line 9, on page 2, to line 1, on page 3, is exactly the law as it exists now. That provides merely that this disbursing officer shall have the power on giving the bond satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, without increase in salary at all, without any increase in the appropriation, in the necessary absence or during the time that the superintendent has other work to do, to sign checks, so that the business of the hospital need not stop until the superintendent arrives.

Mr. TAWNEY. Has this man the exclusive right or will he have the exclusive right of disbursing the funds of that institution?

Mr. OLCOTT. He will not; the superintendent still retains his present powers. It merely gives some other person the power of signing checks and transacting that business for the asylum.

Mr. TAWNEY. Well, on page 2, line 9, it reads:

The said disbursing agent, under the direction of the superintendent, shall have the custody of and pay out all moneys appropriated by Congress for the Government Hospital for the Insane——

Mr. OLCOTT. Yes.

Mr. TAWNEY (continuing)— or otherwise received for the purposes of the hospital.

Now, that gives him exclusive control over the moneys.

Mr. OLCOTT. Under the direction of the superintendent. If the gentleman from Minnesota will notice a few lines above, there is a provision that the bond shall be satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, or exactly as now provided in the case of the superintendent.

Mr. TAWNEY. What salary does the superintendent receive?

Mr. OLCOTT. My impression is he receives $4,000.

Mr. TAWNEY. What salary is this man to receive?

Mr. OLCOTT. Just what he is receiving now; he is assistant to the superintendent.

Mr. TAWNEY. Why can not the disbursing officer for the Interior Department make the disbursements for that institution?

Mr. OLCOTT. Because that has not been done in the case of this institution; you would have to change entirely the conduct of the institution. Everything has always been paid over directly, and checks have been drawn by the superintendent himself upon the fund that is appropriated by Congress. He makes his drafts directly upon the appropriated amount.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Will the gentleman point out what part of this fixes the compensation of this new officer?

Mr. OLCOTT. There is no new officer. There is simply denominated a certain person connected with the institution as a disbursing officer; there is no additional appropriation called for.

Mr. FITZGERALD. What part of the bill is new?

Mr. OLCOTT. The part that is new is——

Mr. MANN. Creating him a disbursing agent; that is what is new.

Mr. OLCOTT—

Said disbursing agent under the direction of the superintendent—

That is beginning line 10 with the word "thereof" on line 16.

Mr. MANN. And the authority to appoint the disbursing agent——

Mr. OLCOTT. That is true.

Mr. MANN—

He shall reside on the premises and devote his whole time to the welfare of the institution; he shall, subject to the approval of the board of visitors, appoint a responsible disbursing agent for the institution who shall give a bond satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. FITZGERALD. That is new?

Mr. OLCOTT. That is new.

Mr. FITZGERALD. So the compensation is not fixed?

Mr. OLCOTT. It is not.

Mr. MANN. That would be fixed by the appropriation act.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I understood from the report it was fixed.

Mr. OLCOTT. No. The report expressly says, and the letters of the superintendent, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Commissioners all agree, that no additional compensation is contemplated, that the disbursing officer will be one of the present employees of the institution, who will have to give bond that is subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. There is no additional expense. Mr. Chairman, I move that the bill be laid aside with a favorable recommendation.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

FREE LECTURES.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I call up the bill (H. R. 16977) for free lectures.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan calls up the following bill, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 16977) for free lectures.

Be it enacted, etc., That the board of education of the District of Columbia be, and it is hereby, authorized to maintain a course or series of free evening lectures: Provided, That such lectures shall be held in some of the public school buildings.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I call for a reading of the report, as it is short.

The report was read, as follows:

The Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 16977) for free lectures, report the same back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The purpose of this legislation is sufficiently indicated in the bill itself—that is, the maintenance of a course or series of free evening lectures in some of the public school buildings.

A similar bill was recommended by this committee in the second session of the Fifty-ninth Congress (Rept. No. 6731, 59th Cong., 2d sess.), which passed the House but was not passed by the Senate.

This bill was submitted to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and received their approval, as appears by the following letter:

OFFICE COMMISSIONERS DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, March 9, 1908.

SIR: The Commissioners have the honor to recommend favorable action upon H. R. 16977, Sixtieth Congress, first session, entitled "A bill for free lectures," which was referred to them at your instance for examination and report.

This bill was recommended by the full committee on libraries and lectures of the board of education and approved by that board.

Very respectfully,

HENRY B. F. MACFARLAND,
President Board of Commissioners,
District of Columbia.

Hon. S. W. SMITH,
Chairman of Committee on the District of Columbia,
House of Representatives.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman——

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. OLCOTT].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from New York inform the committee what is the proposition with regard to paying the expenses of these lecturers?

Mr. OLCOTT. That, I would say, would depend entirely on what appropriation is made by the Appropriations Committee when the District appropriation bill comes up.

Mr. MANN. So this is simply a peg upon which to hang an appropriation?

Mr. OLCOTT. I would say in connection with that that there was an amendment to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, providing for free lectures, with an appropriation, but that was stricken out on the point of order being raised by the gentleman from Minnesota, if I recollect correctly, and this is to prevent that point of order being successfully made, and then I presume the Committee on Appropriations and thereafter the Committee of the Whole, when that bill comes up for discussion, will determine how much is to be appropriated.

Mr. MANN. This indicates the policy which shall be pursued. Now, what is the plan that they have in view? What are these lectures to be about. How many lectures are there to be? Are we to maintain a corps of professional lecturers for the schools?

Mr. OLCOTT. Of course, that must be limited entirely by the amount of appropriation that is made. The amendment that I offered during the discussion of the District bill, I think during the last session, or possibly the second session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, was for an appropriation of $10,000. I think that there was an amendment made to my suggestion to reduce such amount to $1,500. I am not ready at this particular moment to give an exact statement as to how these free lectures shall be conducted, or as to how many of them there shall be. The suggestion that these lectures be held in a public-school building was made and quickly accepted, so that there will be no expense whatever for rent.

Mr. MANN. Since I have been in the House, as the gentleman knows, I have seen an appropriation of $10,000, or such a matter, for rural free delivery grow to $34,000,000, and no end in sight.

Mr. OLCOTT. I scarcely think it is probable that an appropriation for free lectures would grow to such large figures. As a matter of fact, in the city of New York they do appropriate somewhere between $150,000 and $200,000.

Mr. MANN. What is the principle over there? Do they hire lecturers?

Mr. OLCOTT. In certain cases they do, but in other cases they are delivered voluntarily.

Mr. MANN. Will my distinguished friend from Missouri and my distinguished friend from Indiana soon be delivering their series of lectures, which are very good ones and worth the money, here?

Mr. OLCOTT. I think there is no particular risk in leaving that matter in the hands of the board of education. They would scarcely desire to allow a political harangue under the guise of free lectures.

Mr. MANN. It would not be a political harangue from the gentleman from Missouri, because everything he says is worth hearing. But how far will we go in hiring these professional lecturers, and what will be the result after the final cost? We ought to know something about it.

Mr. OLCOTT. I think it is proper that we should leave the details of that to the board of education, and I think that they can be depended upon to do as boards of education in other cities of this country have done, namely, maintain a method of education for people who, by reason of age or by reason of business affairs, feeling their limitations as to their education, can obtain knowledge by attending these lectures that it is impossible for them to obtain in any other way.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman understands, of course, that that which is free is generally sought for by nearly everybody.

Mr. OLCOTT. I think that is true.

Mr. MANN. And it does not make any difference whether it is a lunch, a pink tea, or a bargain counter. If it is something that is practically free, everybody wants the benefit. And if you propose to have a series of free lectures here—entertainment, instruction, literary lectures, lectures on travel, something to please the people—it is a good deal like going back to the old Roman days, when the theory was to please the people and be elected to office. Now, how far would such a thing go? I think there ought to be some limitation.

Mr. OLCOTT. I think that the limitation will come when the Appropriation Committee comes to make an appropriation. I do not imagine it is our duty to prescribe exactly the details of how the lectures are to be conducted when we have a board of education whose duty it will be to look after that.

Mr. MANN. There might be a limitation in here of the cost to the Government of these lectures.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Would not that come every year on the Appropriation Committee? They could not go beyond what the Committee on Appropriations would give them.

Mr. OLCOTT. I think I am right when I say that there is no one who is giving serious consideration to the general free public education, which is certainly believed in in the Federal Government as well as in the various state governments, who will not concede the fact that the lectures which have been delivered in various cities have been as valuable as anything that has been done for education.

Mr. MANN. Yes; but in all the other cities the people pay the bill. Here the people outside of the District pay half the bill.

Mr. OLCOTT. I understand that; but we are not going into the old question of who pays the expense of the District of Columbia. That is not germane now.

Mr. MANN. It is germane only to the extent as to how far the people here will urge Congress constantly to increase the appropriations for their free benefit at the expense of some one else.

Mr. OLCOTT. The only letter I have quoted in my report is from the president of the commissioners. The board of education has urged it for a considerable length of time. The Public Education Society, which is an entirely free and voluntary society, has urged it in the strongest possible terms. It is urged also by other people living here in the city of Washington who take an interest in education, not by those who desire to get something for nothing, but people who are interested in the best welfare of the city of Washington and its people.

Mr. SHERLEY. Will the gentleman inform me whether there are any night schools in the District of Columbia?

Mr. OLCOTT. There are night schools in the District of Columbia.

Mr. SHERLEY. Well, at those night schools these people whom you seek to accommodate who have no opportunity, ordinarily, to get an education, would have an opportunity.

Mr. OLCOTT. By attending these schools. They can attend the night schools except, I think, there are limitations as to the age of the persons who are admitted.

Mr. GILLETT. There is no limit of age.

Mr. OLCOTT. I thought there was.

Mr. GILLETT. There is not.

Mr. OLCOTT. Then I withdraw that statement.

Mr. SHERLEY. If there was any limitation we might possibly better serve the cause by liberalizing opportunities to attend the night schools than by providing for free lectures.

Mr. GILLETT. This is not a new proposition.

Mr. OLCOTT. Oh, no; not at all.

Mr. GILLETT. We have had it for a while.

Mr. GOULDEN. It is four years since we have had an appropriation.

Mr. GILLETT. We have had a test of them.

Mr. OLCOTT. We have.

Mr. GILLETT. Can the gentleman tell the numbers attending the lectures and the character of the lectures?

Mr. OLCOTT. I regret that I can not state that accurately.

Mr. GILLETT. There have been some lectures maintained by private people.

Mr. OLCOTT. I think so.

Mr. SHERLEY. Can the gentleman tell how many free lectures, day and night, are given in the District? Are there not more than in almost any other city of the United States?

Mr. OLCOTT. I do not think there are.

Mr. GOULDEN. Four years ago Congress appropriated $1,500 for this purpose.

Mr. OLCOTT. That was before I was here.

Mr. GOULDEN. That was four years ago. I attended several of the lectures at that time. They were well patronized, and in some instances people were turned away for want of room.

Mr. GILLETT. The gentleman says he attended the lectures. Where were the people turned away?

Mr. GOULDEN. From the Carnegie Library auditorium.

Mr. GILLETT. When was that?

Mr. GOULDEN. In February, 1905.

Mr. GILLETT. What was the subject?

Mr. GOULDEN. There were various historical subjects. I remember giving one of them myself. [Great laughter.] I do not mean that they were turned away because I happened to be a participant, but the lecture hall was so crowded that people were turned away on that and several other occasions.

Mr. MANN. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. OLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman for a question.

Mr. MANN. Is one reason for bringing that proposition up now because free lectures by a certain gentleman are to cease because of the change of the administration soon?

Mr. OLCOTT. I had not thought of that.

Mr. GILLETT. Mr. Chairman, this subject was up before the Committee on Appropriations several years ago, when I was on the subcommittee having in charge the District of Columbia appropriation bill. For several years there was an appropriation of $2,000.

Mr. GOULDEN. One thousand five hundred dollars.

Mr. GILLETT. We looked into the question of these lectures and the attendance at them, and we concluded that the lectures were not in the line of education of children, but that they were for adults and more a matter of gratification than education.

We thought they were more for amusement and entertainment than they were in the line of education, and we did not feel that it was the province of Congress or of the city government to begin giving entertainments to the grown people of the District. If I remember right, we found that the average attendance was about 200 at these lectures. I am quite sure it was not larger than that, and we found that the lecturers were all paid a compensation, which varied—perhaps my friend from New York can tell me what the compensation is.

Mr. GOULDEN. Ten dollars. I want to say, if the gentleman will pardon me, that the Member now speaking did not receive any compensation, but declined it.

Mr. GILLETT. I am sure it was worth it in that case. We found that they were paid a compensation, and then there were other expenses. Sometimes they had illustrated lectures, and then something was paid for janitor service. I have forgotten exactly what the expenses were, but I think the average expense of a lecture came to about $25. We concluded that the lectures, judging from the subjects which they treated of, were not in the line of the education of the children or of their parents, but were more in the line of entertainment, and we felt that it was not in the province of Congress to furnish amusement to the people of the District. Therefore we struck it out of the appropriation bill. When it came into the House an amendment was offered, as the gentleman says, and it was stricken out on a point of order. Since then there has been a constant attempt to pass this law, giving the right to have lectures, and it brings before the House the general question, it seems to me, Do we want in the District of Columbia to go into the business of providing entertainments for adults or do we not? I do not believe we do, and therefore I shall vote against this proposition. I believe in doing all we can for the children of the District, giving them everything which will promote their health as well as education. On their development depends the future of the country, and we can not afford to be on the side of niggardliness, but I do not think we should pay for the entertainment of adults.

Mr. OLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Vermont [Mr. FOSTER] such time as he desires.

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. Mr. Chairman, I am heartily in favor of this proposition. As matters now stand it is very difficult to get an appropriation for anything that is not provided for by law. This bill does not mean that we must necessarily appropriate money for this enterprise. It is true that free lectures are had in other cities. Every few days I read accounts of the free lectures that are given in New York in connection with the public-school system. The subjects are given and the names of the lecturers are given. It is the desire of the people of the United States that the system of public instruction here in Washington should be as nearly ideal as possible. This bill simply prepares the way so that hereafter, if the House of Representatives thinks it wise to provide for a course of free lectures, it can do so.

It can not do so now, because a Member on the Committee on Appropriations or any other individual Member of the House can raise the point of order if an attempt is made in connection with the proper appropriation bill to appropriate money for this purpose. I believe that the House of Representatives should have the opportunity to consider these subjects. This is a great and interesting subject, one that the House of Representatives is capable of dealing with. When the appropriation bill comes in each year there will be time enough to consider the question of making or continuing an appropriation.

Mr. SHERLEY. Would not that be true as to any other governmental activity? Is it not true that a point of order lies to any item on an appropriation bill when there is no law for it? If the gentleman's argument is sound, ought we not to authorize any department to do any particular thing and then leave it to the House to determine on an appropriation bill whether we want to vote the money?

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. I see no objection to that.

Mr. SHERLEY. But is there any force in your argument at all?

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. I think there is.

Mr. GILLETT. If the House does not want to do this, why is it not the better way to defeat this bill, rather than to wait until the question comes up on an appropriation bill?

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. Because that shuts out all future Houses of Representatives. The House of Representatives will go on after the gentleman from Massachusetts and myself cease to be Members.

Mr. GILLETT. Why can not a future House pass this bill just as well as we can?

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. We can pass this particular bill; but if this particular bill is passed now, then at every session of Congress the House of Representatives can consider the question of appropriating money for a course of free lectures. Otherwise it can not do this except as the Committee on Rules brings in a special rule.

Mr. GILLETT. We can pass this bill just as well in any other Congress.

Mr. FOSTER of Vermont. I know we can pass this bill in any other Congress, but I say that we can not consider an item in the appropriation bill on its merits for this purpose until some such legislation like this is had, and for that reason I am in favor of the legislation.

Mr. OLCOTT. Mr. Chairman, the objection that free lectures are not a proper part of public education as coming from the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] surprises me greatly. I am sure that he will agree with me that the experience in the city of Boston has been that these lectures have done a great amount of good. I know it has been so in the city of New York. I really think that we might just as well seriously discuss whether it is a proper appropriation of money for free libraries. There are some people that have not the taste or perhaps the ability for making proper use of libraries. I think these people should receive the advantage of having the lectures here in the city of Washington.

Mr. TAWNEY. Will the gentleman permit an interruption?

Mr. OLCOTT. Yes; if the gentleman wishes.

Mr. TAWNEY. The gentleman takes as an illustration the use of free libraries.

Mr. OLCOTT. If the gentleman wants to ask me a question, I will yield, but I do not want him to interrupt me in the middle of a sentence.

Mr. TAWNEY. The free library distributes its books everywhere, but the free lectures are limited by the size of the hall that is engaged.

Mr. OLCOTT. Not a speech, please.

Mr. TAWNEY. And the average attendance at these past lectures has only been 200.

Mr. OLCOTT. That is an interesting remark to come from the gentleman from Minnesota in view of the fact that the principal objection to free lectures in the past was that there was not enough people attending the lectures to make it profitable. Now the gentleman says that the greatest objection is that they are limited in number to the size of the hall. I think the objections made by the opponents of this bill are inconsistent.

The fact remains that in every city where lectures have been had they have been of great benefit to the community. If the Committee on Appropriations can not limit the expenditures, and the board of education can not be trusted to perform their duty properly in connection with these free lectures, if that is not a sufficient guard against this tremendous onslaught on the Treasury of the United States, then I think it is time to get a new board of education. Of course I would not say anything about a new Committee on Appropriations. [Laughter.]

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Will the gentleman yield to an inquiry?

Mr. OLCOTT. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. What does the gentleman mean by "free lectures?"

Mr. OLCOTT. Lectures that do not cost anything to the people who attend them.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Does the Government pay the lecturer?

Mr. OLCOTT. That is left to the board of education, who spend the money appropriated by the Appropriation Committee. If the Appropriation Committee does not make any appropriation, why, of course, the board of education can not pay any lecturer.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Why should you call them "free lectures" if it takes money out of the Public Treasury to pay the lecturer?

Mr. OLCOTT. I have stated my idea of free lectures—that they are such lectures as a person can attend without paying an admission fee.

Mr. SIMS. Mr. Chairman, when this same subject-matter was up before the last Congress I opposed this bill, or as a provision then offered in the appropriation bill. I oppose it now for the reason that I see no necessity for it whatever in the city of Washington. While, as has been stated, the lectures will be free to those who hear them—and I do not know how many there will be who will go—there are more opportunities for general education in the city of Washington by means of libraries, lectures, sermons, and schools than in any place in the United States. It is suggested by my friend from Massachusetts on my right [Mr. AMES] that I have not mentioned Congress, where it does not cost anything to hear the proceedings or to read them if they will only give us their names. Another gentleman says I have omitted the White House. I do not mean to omit any educational agency in this discussion. [Laughter.]

But I think the way to look at this is to take a practical view of it and see what they did do in Washington when they had these lectures, what kind of lectures they were, and what were the subjects, and see whether or not this House feels authorized to increase expenditures while every hour the deficit is increasing in the Treasury and new sources of taxation must be sought in order to support the Government, and to see whether or not we want these free lectures—free to those who will go to hear them and yet not free to the Government of the United States or to the District of Columbia.

The gentleman from New York [Mr. OLCOTT] had charge of the measure at that time. I looked back to the lectures they did have under the appropriation in 1905, and I refresh my memory by referring to the RECORD, so as to show you some of the subjects of the lectures, to see whether or not at a time like this, when the revenues of the Government are going down every day, we want to put an additional burden on our people in order that the people here may have an opportunity to attend free lectures upon such subjects as were treated at that time. There was a lecture delivered by H. W. Wiley, Ph. D., subject, "Feeding Preservatives to Young Men." That was one of the kind of lectures that you were paying for in 1905—feeding preservatives to young men!

Mr. OLCOTT. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. SIMS. Yes.

Mr. OLCOTT. Was not that the fault of the board of education in so administering the funds? And does that change the general principle?

Mr. SIMS. Then I will say that I do not want that board or any other board in the future to again disburse money for such purpose. Here was another by Henry Oldys, subject, "Bird Notes!" Some of you perhaps remember the serious and solemn discussion we had of the importance of that great lecture at that time—a free lecture to those who had it at the expense of the Treasury of the United States, in order that the working people of the District may hear bird notes talked about—free to them!

The very fact that money would be squandered for such a purpose as that should preclude any thought of ever laying a tax to employ any lecturers to discuss subjects of that kind. Bird notes! How many of you gentlemen are interested in bird notes? We should try to preserve the birds, and they will take care of the notes, but the idea of paying somebody to go down there and lecture to the people at night free upon bird notes seems preposterous. How many of you gentlemen feel that you could justify such a vote before your constituents, taxing them to have free lectures here on bird notes, or anywhere else?

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Why not have a lecture on how to pay promissory notes?

Mr. SIMS. My friend from Georgia suggests that a lecture on the method of paying promissory notes would be more in order, and I think so, too. We are issuing notes of the Government, bonds to run the Government—we will have to do so—and they are a kind of note, not a bird note, but a very interesting one to the taxpayer.

Another lecture was by George O. Totten, jr., on Spanish architecture. Now, you all know that the laboring people of this country and this District will be greatly deprived of a necessary knowledge to make a living if they do not understand Spanish architecture, and we must be taxed to have free lectures in order that they may understand Spanish architecture. Why, I suppose they are up on that subject now. They had a lecture on it in 1905. I never found out how many of them attended it, but I am showing you the subjects we did pay for, to enable the people to hear lectures free.

Another one is "Around the world in forty minutes." [Laughter.] That, perhaps, is excusable. I believe I would be willing to go to a lecture and pay for it if somebody would tell me how to go around the world in forty minutes, and especially how to get the navy of the United States around the world in less than twelve months at a cost of millions of dollars. But here is a free lecture on how to get around the world in forty minutes. These are the subjects of the lectures for which we did pay. It is so ridiculous that it seems unnecessary to comment upon the fact that these are the lectures delivered free to people who are so poor they can not pay to hear a lecture without taxation; so ridiculous as to disgust this Congress with any attempt to establish anything of that kind again.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. How much did they pay for a lecture?

Mr. SIMS. I do not know. If it had been a cent it would be too much.

Mr. GILLETT. Ten dollars.

Mr. SIMS. Here is another one, by the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce; subject, "A night in the nether world." Do you want to tax your people in order to let the people here find out something from a lecture about a night in the nether world? Is not that a practical subject? Is not that something we ought to all know about?—a night in a nether world. Of course, I do not know what the board of education will do in the future, but we have been taught that we must judge the future by the past, and that is what they did do. That is the way they employed the funds, and what guaranty have we that there will be any practical use made of it? Besides, it is not needed, even if it was desirable; even if the people did not have all the good opportunities they have here that are paid for, not costing them a cent, living in the finest city in the United States, if not in the world, with the greatest opportunities for educational advantage—a great museum, great libraries, and both ends of this Capitol full of great scholars, orators, and lecturers, who, at least when here, deliver them free.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I think this bill ought to be voted down. I do not think any such bill ought to pass. I do not think we ought to put it up to the Appropriations Committee to refuse to appropriate if Congress makes the law. It is saying to the Appropriations Committee that we deem it worthy of their consideration. Let us make no such useless law as this that was used, as I have indicated, when we did have such a law. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Before my colleague takes his seat I want to ask him what were the subjects discussed in the public schools in Boston?

Mr. SIMS. I do not know; I have not looked that up.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I would like to have that information; possibly they had something else.

Mr. OLCOTT. Mr. Chairman, I renew my motion to lay the bill aside with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, I want to call attention to one fact before the vote is taken. We have experimented with this in the past. Congress heretofore authorized these lectures and appropriated the money for them, and as a result of our experience with this authority Congress subsequently refused to authorize the continuance of these lectures and refused to appropriate money to defray the expense.

Mr. PARSONS. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. TAWNEY. Certainly.

Mr. PARSONS. How did Congress refuse to authorize?

Mr. TAWNEY. By failing to appropriate.

Mr. PARSONS. But did not the provision go out on the point of order?

Mr. TAWNEY. The provision went out on a point of order made on the floor of the House——

Mr. GILLETT. I beg pardon; no, it did not the first time. It was omitted by the Appropriations Committee and——

Mr. OLCOTT. The amendment was offered by me, and went out on the point of order.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, there is another branch of Congress where those interested in free lectures know very well that amendments of this character can be inserted in appropriation bills, and if there was any effort made to include this appropriation in the District of Columbia bill in the Senate the appropriation was not made. Now, if in the first instance we should authorize these lectures, as we did, and authorize them on the same presentation as now we are asked to authorize or enact this law, if the lectures are of such character as to justify the expenditure Congress can be relied on to make the appropriation for them, but under our experience it was demonstrated that they were not of that character as to justify the expenditure of public money for that purpose, and for that reason the appropriation has not been made, and we abandoned the experiment. I do not know what the experience or result has been in Boston or in New York, but after a full investigation of the practicability and utility of these lectures it was found to be unsatisfactory, and for that reason Congress ceased to make the appropriation, and I do not think we are justified upon the same presentation now to enact a permanent law whereby these lectures may be continued indefinitely. They may be improved or they may not; in any event, if we enact this it creates a permanent law and appropriations will be made without reference to the necessity for them. I hope the bill will be voted down.

Mr. OLCOTT. Mr. Chairman, I renew my motion.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Will the gentleman yield for a minute?

Mr. OLCOTT. Yes.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I want to find out from the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT] about these lectures in Boston. I understand free lectures have existed for some time in Boston. Will the gentleman tell the House what subjects were discussed?

Mr. GILLETT. I am not a citizen of Boston, and I do not know.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Well, is there anybody from Boston who can inform us? I really would like to know.

Mr. MANN. The gentlemen from Boston are all on that side of the House.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I understand that is a very learned side of the House.

Mr. MANN. And they send very learned Representatives here, too.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I would like to know what some of the lectures are had in the schools of Boston, so we can pass on this matter intelligently. I am going to vote against the bill with the information I have.

Mr. PARSONS. I think that in New York City the character of the subjects on which lectures are given are mostly historical and scientific. I remember that some years ago we had an anniversary celebration in New York, and we called upon the bureau of public lectures to give illustrated lectures in the open air all over the city on the occasion of that anniversary. These lectures were illustrative of the history of the city. Pictures of the city, showing its growth, gave to hundreds of thousands of people in the city information that they could not have obtained in any other way, and that of itself was quite worth while. Now, I would suggest that while the subjects alluded to by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. SIMS] are very humorous, his arguments against lectures would be equally as good against allowing the money appropriated for the public library in the District to be used to purchase books with those same titles. You do not object to that, and you would not object to it. You can very easily suppose the kind of lectures which would be of great benefit to those who went to hear them, and I hope that the experience of New York and Boston, where they have proper subjects, will prevail with the committee.

Mr. TAWNEY. I hope that the experience in the District of Columbia will prevail.

Mr. BENNET of New York. Mr. Chairman, I have always had a great admiration for the city of Chicago.

Mr. MANN. There are others.

Mr. BENNET of New York. Since visiting there last June I want to say that my admiration is even greater because of the magnificent system of recreation centers that they have established in that city, superior, I should say, to anything in the world. I think that we Representatives from cities, and especially from districts which embrace sections of cities where we have people who have not had all of the advantages, feel that in a sense it is our duty, legislating as we do for the District of Columbia, to see that the people here of limited means have the same opportunities as people of limited means in our own cities have. We have tried these lectures in New York City, and they have appealed to and instructed the people who have not had early opportunities. They are using them in the city of Chicago, but the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] tells me that there they are either entirely free to the city, or else that the expense was defrayed by a newspaper, and, therefore, the situation is not entirely analogous. But I do believe that in cities where the population is congested instruction of this sort to people who have not had the opportunities in their youth is valuable, and I hope the bill will pass.

Mr. GOULDEN. Mr. Chairman, I am in favor of the proposed bill. Having had a number of years of practical experience in this matter, I have seen the benefits arising from free lectures. Take the Borough of the Bronx, which constitutes the major portion of the Eighteenth New York Congressional District, with a population approximating that of Washington, a fair comparison can be made. The first lecture center was established there some fifteen years ago. Since then, twenty-odd centers have been formed and are in successful operation, proving the great popularity of this part of the great educational system of New York City.

The subject-matter of the lectures, which were attended by upward of two millions, was both instructive and interesting. They were of a historical, physiological, geographical, and kindred character.

Having attended many of these lectures, witnessed the interest manifested by the people, who come largely from the laboring or middle classes, heard their testimony in favor of these functions, I am in entire accord with the measure now under consideration.

When these lectures were given here in Washington in 1905, I watched them closely and formed the same favorable opinion of their benefits and advantages.

The criticism of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. SIMS] in giving the title of but four of the forty or fifty lectures delivered here four years ago is unfair. Why did he not give the committee the full list, showing the high and educational character of the great majority of these functions? Experience has taught all cities which have introduced the free lectures that they are beneficial, instructive, and popular. Congress may well follow these worthy examples and approve this desirable measure for the benefit of the people of the District of Columbia.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on laying the bill aside with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. SIMS. Mr. Chairman, it has not been read under the five-minute rule, and I want to offer an amendment to the bill. I have not a copy of the bill with me, but I want to add this as a final section if the Clerk will take it down.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman demand the reading of the bill?

Mr. SIMS. I do not care about its being read, so that I may offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman will offer his amendment.

Mr. SIMS. I offer this as the last section of the bill:

Provided, That the expenses thereof shall be paid entirely from the revenues of the District of Columbia as appropriated from time to time by Congress.

Mr. OLCOTT. I will not accept that amendment, Mr. Chairman, because I do not want to go into that question.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert at the end of the bill:
"Provided, That the expenses thereof shall be paid entirely from the revenues of the District of Columbia as appropriated from time to time by Congress."

Mr. SIMS. Mr. Chairman, as this is a local educational facility, and benefits almost entirely the local people, who are permanent residents of the District, I think these lectures ought to be paid for out of the district revenues.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. SIMS. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman's amendment would seem to be perfectly fair in some respects; but, after all, we have been acting under what may practically be called an agreement or organic act, under which the present District of Columbia is governed. This is in violation of the provisions of that act, and we can violate it because we have the authority to violate it; but the District people are always asking Congress to violate it in their favor. If we violate that provision in our favor, certainly we will give them a very good precedent for asking us to violate it in their favor in the future. It would be more direct to move to strike out the enacting clause of this bill.

Mr. SIMS. Under the organic act, I can not conceive that it was ever dreamed that any such appropriation as this would be asked for. I do not believe it was contemplated; and the only reason why I offer this amendment is to make the bill as objectionable as possible, in order that it may be killed—if the gentleman will accept that explanation.

Mr. MANN. In order to get at the matter directly, and as the motion will have priority, I move to strike out the enacting clause.

The CHAIRMAN. The question before the committee is the motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill.

The question was taken, and the chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. OLCOTT. Division, Mr. Chairman.

The committee divided, and there were—ayes 46, noes 21.

So the amendment was agreed to.

CODE OF LAWS FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I move that the bill (H. R. 552) to amend section 553 of the Code of Laws for the District of Columbia be referred back to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 552) amending section 553 of the Code of Laws for the District of Columbia.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

So the bill was laid aside with the recommendation that it be recommitted.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise and report the bills to the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. TOWNSEND, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration sundry bills and had directed him to report the bill H. R. 16977 with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out, the bill H. R. 552 with the recommendation that it be recommitted to the committee, and the bills H. R. 16066 and 12899 with favorable recommendations.

BILLS PASSED.

The first bill reported from the Committee of the Whole was the bill (H. R. 16066) providing for the payment of an annual license tax by dealers in all forms of manufacture of tobacco in the District of Columbia, with amendments, which were read.

The amendments recommended by the Committee of the Whole were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time and passed.

The next bill reported from the Committee of the Whole was the bill (H. R. 12899) to provide for a disbursing officer for the Government Hospital for the Insane.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time and passed.

BILL RECOMMITTED.

The next business reported from the Committee of the Whole was the bill (H. R. 552) to amend section 553 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, with the recommendation that it be recommitted to the Committee.

The recommendation of the Committee of the Whole was agreed to, and the bill was recommitted to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

FREE LECTURES.

The next business reported from the Committee of the Whole was the bill (H. R. 16977) for free lectures, reported from the Committee of the Whole, with the recommendation to strike out the enacting clause.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the recommendation of the committee.

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. OLCOTT. Division!

The House divided; and there were—ayes 35, noes 12.

Mr. OLCOTT. I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER (after counting). Twelve gentlemen have arisen.

Mr. FITZGERALD. The other side.

The other side was taken.

The SPEAKER. Twelve have arisen in support of the demand and 56 in the negative. The yeas and nays are refused.

So the enacting clause was stricken out.

On motion of Mr. SMITH of Michigan, a motion to reconsider the votes by which the bills H. R. 16066 and 12899 had been passed was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Crockett, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be directed to request the House of Representatives to return to the Senate the bill (H. R. 16743) for the removal of the restrictions on alienation of lands of allottees of the Quapaw Agency, Oklahoma, and the sale of all tribal lands, school, agency, or other buildings on any of the reservations within the jurisdiction of such agency, and for other purposes.

BUCKET SHOPS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 20111) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia," relative to gambling, bucket shops, and bucketing.

The bill was read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 869 of the act of Congress entitled "An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1901, be, and is hereby, amended by adding sections 869a, 869b, 869c, and 869d, so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 869a. An act to prohibit bucketing and bucket shopping and to abolish bucket shops.—The following words and phrases used in this act shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meanings:

"'Person' shall mean an individual, partnership, corporation, or association, whether acting in his or their own right or as the officer, agent, servant, correspondent, or representative of another.

"'Contract' shall mean any agreement, trade, or transaction.

"'Securities' shall mean all evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase and sale thereof, shares in any corporation or association, bonds, coupons, scrip, rights, choses in action, and other evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase or sale thereof.

"'Commodities' shall mean anything movable that is bought and sold.

"'Bucket shop' shall mean any room, office, store, building, or other place where any contract prohibited by this act is made or offered to be made.

"'Keeper' shall mean any person owning, keeping, managing, operating, or promoting a bucket shop, or assisting to keep, manage, operate, or promote a bucket shop.

"'Bucketing' or 'bucket shopping' shall mean: (a) The making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties thereto intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be or may be terminated, closed, or settled according to or upon the basis of the public market quotations of prices made on any board of trade or exchange upon which said securities or commodities are dealt in and without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (b) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be or may be deemed terminated, closed, or settled when such public market quotations of prices for the securities or commodities named in such contract shall reach a certain figure without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (c) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties do not intend, or such keeper does not intend, the actual or bona fide receipt or delivery of such securities or commodities, but do intend, or such keeper does intend, a settlement of such contract based upon the differences in such public market quotations of prices at which said securities or commodities are or are asserted to be bought and sold.

"SEC. 869b. Any person who makes or offers to make any contract defined in the preceding section, or who is the keeper of any bucket shop, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year. Any person who shall be convicted of a second offense shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years. The continuing of the keeping of a bucket shop by any person after the first conviction therefor shall be deemed a second offense under this act. If a domestic corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the supreme court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity in the name of the United States district attorney for the District of Columbia, on the relation of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to dissolve the corporation; and if a foreign corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the supreme court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, in the same manner, to restrain the corporation from doing business in the District of Columbia.

"SEC. 869c. Any person who shall communicate, receive, exhibit, or display in any manner any statement of quotations of prices of any securities or commodities with an intent to make, or offer to make, or to aid in making, or offering to make any contract prohibited by this act, upon conviction thereof shall be subject to the penalties provided in the preceding section.

"SEC. 869d. Every person shall furnish, upon demand, to any customer or principal for whom such person has executed any order for the actual purchase or sale of any securities or commodities, either for immediate or future delivery, a written statement, containing the names of the persons from whom such property was bought or to whom it has been sold, as the fact may be, the time when, place where, and the price at which the same was either bought or sold; and if such person shall refuse or neglect to furnish such statement within twenty-four hours after such demand such refusal or neglect shall be prima facie evidence that such purchase or sale was bucketing or bucket shopping within the terms of this act."

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. CAMPBELL] such time as he desires.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Speaker, this bill is modeled after the law now in force in the State of Massachusetts and the law that was enacted last winter in the State of New York. I was in correspondence with the secretary of the senate of the State of New York during the time that this bill was before the committee, and I have a copy of the bill as it was reported by the senate committee to the New York senate, and also a copy as it was passed by that senate, the bill having previously passed the New York assembly. The sections are transposed in some instances, but in every section throughout the entire bill the intent and language are practically the same as the bill now before the House.

Mr. MANN. That is the New York law?

Mr. CAMPBELL. Yes. The New York law passed last winter. In a letter that I do not now find among my papers, written by the governor of Massachusetts, he states that the law has worked well there, considering the shortness of the time it has been in operation. The bill went into effect in Massachusetts, I think, in the summer of 1907, and had only been in operation for some four or five months at the time the governor wrote concerning the matter.

Mr. MANN. We have a very effective antibucket-shop law in force in the State of Illinois. In the gentleman's investigations has he examined that law?

Mr. CAMPBELL. I examined the Illinois law very carefully.

Mr. MANN. Is it substantially the same as this bill?

Mr. CAMPBELL. Yes; as strong in some particulars as the law I propose here. All these laws tend in the same direction. The language differs and the punishment differs, in many instances, but the intent and practically the language of all the laws in all the States that I have examined are along the same lines and have the same purpose.

There are about fifteen known bucket shops in the District of Columbia, or were last winter. There are other places in the back ends of saloons and other resorts where wagers are laid on the prices of securities and commodities. They have a ticker, and margins are dealt in the same as in the more openly conducted bucket shops.

Mr. ADAIR. Mr. Speaker, is this a copy of the New York law practically?

Mr. CAMPBELL. Yes. However, it is more proper to say that it is a copy of the Massachusetts law. The New York law is a copy of the Massachusetts law.

Mr. ADAIR. And has it been successful in the State of New York?

Mr. CAMPBELL. It has just gone into effect there.

Mr. ADAIR. Are there any bucket shops in operation in the State of New York?

Mr. CAMPBELL. I think it is safe to say that there is some bucketing done in the State of New York.

Mr. Speaker, gambling in the price of stocks and commodities has been the subject of regulation and prohibitive legislation in Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Michigan, Massachusetts, Missouri, North Carolina, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

The constitutions of California and Louisiana prohibit dealing in stocks on margins and for future delivery.

The intent and purpose of the law in all cases is to prohibit the gambling that is done in the price of stocks, securities, and commodities.

Gambling in stocks and food commodities has been a subject of discussion in many of the countries of the world. Within the past ten years the subject has been under consideration in some form or other by the Argentine Republic, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Servia, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland.

The Canadian government has passed an effective law upon the subject. Throughout European countries a popular protest has arisen against gambling on the prices of farm products, the necessities of life.

It is wise to prohibit this species of gambling that is widely indulged in and most injurious in its consequences. Men who can ill afford to lose, gamble and lose their money in bucket shops and stock exchanges, betting on the differences in prices of stocks and commodities. Thousands have thought they could win in stock and grain gambling and have gone to their ruin. They have started in the bucket shop on a small scale, settling the differences between prices, and ended in ruin, the penitentiary, or the grave of a suicide.

It is estimated that within the last twenty-five years $2,500,000,000 have been lost in this species of gambling by those who could not afford to lose.

Embezzlement, imprisonment, ruin, suicide, and panic have been the results. Some of the principal victims were recently mentioned in a New York paper. I call attention to them here. Their experience should not be lost to others and to the country:

1884. The Marine National Bank of New York City was looted by two of its directors, who, in their Wall street speculations on margins, lost $2,000,000. The Second National Bank, through the Wall street speculations of John C. Eno, its president, lost $4,000,000.

1891. John T. Hill, president of the Ninth National Bank of New York City, speculated away $400,000.

1894. Frederick Baker, a depositor, and Samuel C. Seely, bookkeeper in the National Shoe and Leather Bank of New York City, lost $354,000.

1895. Frank C. Marvin, lawyer, Brooklyn, $75,000.

1898. John S. Hopkins, cashier of the People's Bank of Philadelphia, lost the bank's funds in speculation and killed himself, $700,000.

The Chemical National Bank, of New York City, lost, through "mistakes of judgment" on the part of the cashier, $393,000.

Ex-Mayor F. H. Twitchell, of Bath, Me., $60,000.

1899. George M. Valentine, cashier of the Middlesex County Bank and treasurer of the Perth Amboy (N. J.) Savings Institution, confessed to losing in speculation $125,000.

1900. Cornelius J. Alvord, jr., note teller of the First National Bank of New York City, lost in stock speculation $690,000.

William Schreiber, clerk in the Elizabeth Banking Company, Elizabeth, N. J., squandered in Wall street $106,000.

A confidential clerk of a wholesale house in Walker street, New York City, lost in Wall street $200,000.

1903. Frank V. La Bountie, confidential clerk for law firm of Wilson & Smith, of Chicago, $500,000.

William S. Allen, treasurer Preachers' Aid Society, Boston, $70,000.

United States Playing Card Company, of Cincinnati, robbed by a trusted woman employee of $100,000.

Enoch L. Cowart, cashier of the Navesink (N. J.) Bank, $40,000.

John A. Scott, cashier of the New York office of the London Assurance Company, $25,000.

William B. Given, president of the Lancaster County (Pa.) Railway and Light Company, $100,000.

Thomas W. Dewey, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank, of Newbern, N. C., $125,000.

James M. Watson, jr., clerk for auditor of the District of Columbia, $100,000.

Trusted clerk at the Hotel Beresford, in New York City, $50,000.

1904. Arnold Beathlen, cashier of a bank at West Liberty, Pa., $85,000.

John F. Goggin, treasurer of the Nashua Trust Company, of Nashua, N. H., arrested, charged with defalcation of $100,000.

George A. Rose, cashier of the Produce Exchange Banking Company of Cleveland, $170,000.

Wallace H. Ham, Boston agent of the American Surety Company, of New York City, $286,000.

Ex-Mayor S. F. Smith, of Davenport, Iowa, $150,000.

F. H. Cutting, bank president, of Ota, Iowa, $112,000.

1905. Ex-Tax Collector E. J. Smith, of San Francisco, $60,000.

Paul O. Stensland, Chicago banker, who was captured abroad, $1,500,000.

Cashier of the Cornwall (N. Y.) Bank, $45,000.

W. W. Karr, accountant of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., $50,000.

Mayor William H. Belcher, Paterson, N. J., $150,000.

Frank G. Bigelow, head of the First National Bank of Milwaukee, $1,450,000.

F. H. Palmer, cashier of the State Bank, Peconic, Long Island, $40,000.

Denver (Colo.) Savings Bank, looted by speculating officials of $1,700,000.

Newton C. Dougherty, superintendent of schools, Peoria, Ill., $250,000.

T. Lee Clarke, cashier of the Enterprise (Pa.) Bank, $1,200,000.

F. R. Green, cashier Fredonia National Bank, $300,000.

1906. Joseph A. Turney, note teller in the National Bank of North America, of New York City, took from the institution and lost in Wall street $34,000.

County Treasurer F. E. Smith, of Akron, Ohio, $282,000.

Gordon Dubose, president of the First National Bank, Ensley, Ala., $40,000.

Frank K. Hipple, president of the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia, $7,000,000.

C. S. Hixon, bookkeeper, Union Trust Company of Pittsburg, $125,000.

1907. Charles T. Barney, president of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, who killed himself when the financial crash came. It is estimated by his close friends that the total amount lost by him in speculation was almost $10,000,000.

F. Augustus Heinze, whose losses in the market fluctuations, according to a statement made by him to a friend, were $9,000,000.

Charles W. Morse, whilom "ice king," "steamboat king," and "bank chainer," whose losses in market fluctuations are figured at $20,000,000.

Chester Runyan, bank clerk, New York City, $86,000.

George H. Brouwer, known as the "soul of honor," confidential man for James H. Oliphant & Co., stockbrokers, of New York City, $90,000.

Clerk for the tax collector of New Orleans, $100,000.

William F. Walker, treasurer of the New Britain (Conn.) Savings Bank, $600,000.

Miss Flora Steipel, cashier in a Philadelphia department store, $25,000.

Oliver M. Dennett and William O. Douglass stole $1,300,000 in securities from the Trust Company of America and pawned them for $140,000.

Mr. Speaker, these enormous losses were the result of gambling in the price of stocks and commodities—not in the legitimate purchase of railroad or industrial stocks, or grain, or cotton, or produce of any character. It was not investment; it was gambling in options, futures, and the differences in prices of the products of the farm and stocks and securities of the transportation and industrial companies of the country.

It is safe to add to the injury that falls to the lot of the unfortunate individual who thus "speculates" and loses, and his family, the injury that comes to the whole country. Gambling on the price of other people's property, too often with other people's money, has more than once led the country into financial panics that have had a most harmful effect upon the otherwise prosperous business of the country. Thousands of industrious men, through no fault of theirs, have been thrown out of employment because other men gambled on the differences in the prices of the property they produced or worked with.

Mr. Speaker, the Wall street panic of 1901 was the result of fraudulent stock manipulation and gambling, and the whole country narrowly escaped disastrous results from that fraudulent manipulation and gambling. It was all done by a few individuals.

The incipient panic of 1903 was started by Wall street gamblers, and the financial panic of October, 1907, was started in Wall street and was the collapse after a debauch in wild and excessive gambling, largely in the prices of stocks that were owned by an innocent public—stocks that were not bought and sold in good faith on the exchanges. Money was borrowed in large amounts for which there was not ample security. This money had been attracted from country banks in almost every State in the Union by offers from Wall street banks of attractive rates of interest on daily balances. The interest offered was a higher rate than could be paid by manufacturers, jobbers, and merchants, or grain or cattle dealers who were doing a legitimate business for a fair profit.

I have no hesitation in saying that the panic was brought on by gambling with other people's money on the differences in prices of other people's property.

I would not stop investment and speculation on the stock exchanges, which promote large enterprises and float the stocks and bonds of the great industrial and transportation concerns of the country. Not at all. I would help rather than hinder investment and proper speculation in real stocks and real bonds and real grain and real cotton and real products of every sort that are sold in good faith and delivered in good faith, where the owner through his agent wants to sell and the buyer through his agent wants to invest.

I would protect honest investors and speculators in all these stocks, securities, and commodities from gambling and fraudulent manipulation in the prices of the stocks, bonds, grain, cotton, and other property of the country.

These gamblers never buy nor sell in good faith. I assert, without fear of successful contradiction by anyone, that over 90 per cent of the transactions on all the stock exchanges in Wall street or on the board of trade in Chicago or elsewhere in the country is a gamble on the differences in prices.

I assert here that in less than 10 per cent of the transactions on these exchanges that purport to be sales and purchases there is no real delivery in good faith by a seller to a buyer who wants to invest and become the owner of the property and secure the dividends or interest that may be earned. Actual delivery of the specific property is not made or intended to be made, and the alleged buyers do not want the stock they pretend to purchase as an investment.

Why, Mr. Speaker, to the actual investor and to the man who speculates on his best judgment, the dividends paid by a concern would largely control him in the price he would pay for its stocks or bonds, and yet it is actually true that on the stock exchanges in Wall street and elsewhere in the country the prices of stocks and bonds are not controlled by this standard of value.

On the 3d day of April, 1907, the Associated Press gave out this bit of news:

NEW YORK, April 3, 1907.

A market in which good news is good only until it gets out is not a very robust bull market. Just before the announcement of the increase in the Atchison dividend was made the stock sold at 94⅝. A few minutes later the price dropped to 94, and within half an hour it was fully a point down from the high morning and more than two points from the highest level touched in the rise on Tuesday.

But that is not all. The income of the railroads of the country gradually increased from $875 to $1,180 in a single year, and yet by a shrewd manipulation of railroad stocks within this period the prices were forced down or up to suit the demands of a gambling enterprise. What is actually done on the exchanges denies that they are conducted solely for real investors or speculators where property is sold and delivered in good faith.

The influence of these gambling prices upon the business of the country can not be anything but bad.

There are 35 banks, 29 trust companies, 9 safe deposit companies, the general offices of 52 railroads, 46 fire and 18 life insurance companies, 6 express companies, 21 telegraph, 18 steamship, and 42 coal, iron, steel, and copper companies, and more than 200 other large industrial and transportation corporations in the financial district that surrounds the stock exchanges in Wall street. Every one of these enterprises is keenly sensitive to and affected by the manipulations that go on on the exchanges.

A recent editorial in the New York World is so full of valuable information on this subject that I shall take the liberty of quoting from it. I take it that a New York paper would be fair with Wall street, the stock exchanges, and the banks of its city. It says:

Nowhere on the earth does another such gambling institution exist as finds shelter in the New York Stock Exchange—an unincorporated irresponsible institution. According to the statistics carefully compiled by James Creelman in Pearson's Magazine, there were sold in 1906 on the stock exchange 286,418,601 shares of stock of the par value of $25,000,000,000, besides 665,000 thousand-dollar bonds; on the Consolidated Exchange 136,000,760 shares of stock, besides 21,569,178 shares of mining stock and 183,884,000 bushels of wheat. This does not include curb sales.

